HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS DISPATCHES

Topeka, Kan.—Gov. Alf M. Landon discussed new deal relief policies Friday with Sen. Rush D. Holt, a democratic critic of WPA who afterward told reporters he was "favorably impressed" with the republican presidential nominee. "I think WPA is more scandalous than Teapot Dome," the youthful West Virginian added. "I gave the governor my views very definitely. No, I won't make any statement at all on whom I am going to support for the presidency. I may announce it later and I may not." Before leaving for Nebraska to continue what he described as a "non-political" tour to find "whether any state has more politics in WPA than West Virginia," Holt said that before taking a public stand on the November election "I want to see whether the administration is sincere about cleaning up relief."

New York.—Declaring they had evidence indicating violation of federal election laws in the Maine election Monday, democratic leaders announced they would demand a recount in the state's close senatorial race. The charges were made by Sen. Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, chairman of the democratic senatorial committee, after a conference with Gov. Louis J. Brann of Maine, defeated candidate for the senate in January. Immediately after Guffey issued his statement, Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., manager of the republican campaign in the east, said the charges were "ridiculous" and were "merely politics."

Sacramento, Calif.—A strenuous manhunt shaded with lynch talk ended dramatically Friday when John T. Brite and Coke Brite, brothers, were locked in Folsom prison for safekeeping after their gray-haired mother had arranged their surrender on a triple murder charge. The mountaineer fugitives submitted to the custody of District Attorney James Davis and a friend, Dr. Earl E. Harris, in the isolated Horse creek district while sheriff's possemen still were hunting for them. Without the use of handcuffs or firearms Davis and Dr. Harris drove the brothers southward all night through northern California to the prison near here. Reports from Horse creek said public feeling boiled up again when word of the surrender became known. Neither Sheriff W. G. Chandler nor his possemen knew anything about it until the brothers were safely behind Folsom's walls, 400 miles away.

Washington.—A conference to explore the possibility of providing cheap electricity by pooling public and private power in the southeast and, ultimately, in other regions has been called by President Roosevelt for September 30. In a statement summoning the meeting of federal power officials and representatives of private utilities, banking and electric equipment industries, the president said: "The public interest demands that the power that is being or soon will be generated by the Tennessee valley authority and at the Bonneville dam and other public works projects should be made to serve the greatest number of our people at the lowest cost and as far as possible, without injury to existing actual investments."

Washington.—Wheat, cotton and corn were listed by department of agriculture spokesmen as major commodities upon which data looking forward toward crop insurance is being assembled. At a press conference Secretary Wallace denied that President Roosevelt's creation of a special committee to suggest an all-risk crop insurance plan to congress had been timed to "steal the show" from an announcement by Governor Alf M. Landon. He said he was unaware that the republican presidential candidate had planned to discuss crop insurance in a speech at Des Moines, Iowa. Asked why the administration was advocating crop insurance when the idea had been omitted from the democratic platform, the secretary of agriculture said: "I think it's just a matter of public consciousness ripening."

Double-Eight Club Meets

The Double-Eight Bridge club held their first meeting of the fall season Wednesday evening with a dessert-bridge at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Silvie Cook, when four tables were in play. Mrs. Lester Crocker was high for the ladies and Mrs. Edgar Long low. For the men, Edgar Long was high and F. B. Higley low.

Ernie Roberts was taken in as a new member and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Long and R. Christensen were invited guests.

Discontinuing Business

DeWinter & Goudzward, pioneer merchantile firm, who have conducted a general store at Leland for the past 35 years, are having a closing out sale, their large advertisement appearing on another page in this paper, and it is with real regret that residents of this section, and many of them residing on other ridges, see them go.

Handling lines of merit, and a much larger stock than is carried in the average general store, they have served the Potlatch ridge well. Mr. DeWinter will likely, after liquidation, take up his residence in Moscow. Mr. Goudzward, as yet, has no definite plans for the future.

TWO HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS AND ONE NEAR ACCIDENT

Truck Over Bank

Monday evening a Chevrolet truck belonging to Louis Scharnhorst of Genesee went over the embankment just the other side of the old Compton place, between here and Juliaetta, and landed in the deep ditch at the bottom of the bank between road and railroad track.

The exact cause of the accident is not known, but the truck, headed toward Juliaetta, failed to negotiate the turn on the rise above the Compton farm, tore out a post, travelled along the bank for approximately 200 feet, turned over, and stopped in the deep ditch. It was removed from its resting place Tuesday at noon.

Car Over Sperry Grade

Otto Rauschke had the misfortune to turn over his Ford coupe Monday morning about 10:30 a. m.

He was descending Sperry grade, and a stag shirt he had laying in the back window niche, kept sliding down against his shoulder. He half turned around, reached for the shirt and laid it more firmly in place. When he turned his eyes back to the road the coupe was doing a nose-dive over the bank into the brush. It turned over one and one-half times and came to rest in a brush patch.

Mr. Rauschke was unhurt and the coupe suffered only one broken window glass and some slightly bent fenders. Ed Deobald went to the rescue and Monday evening the coupe was again on its way.

A Narrow Escape

Someone Sunday night had a very narrow escape from what would undoubtedly have been a serious accident at the foot of the schoolhouse hill.

Evidently descending the hill at high speed, they almost failed to make the turn at the bottom, two wheels of the car going clear over the sidewalk into the yard of the Don Miller home, and from the looks of the tracks, only the curb kept the car (or truck) right-side-up. Marks on the concrete indicated the car threw a tire, as the marks of steel were plainly visible on the walk.

The speed at which many drivers descend and ascend the hill it is indeed marvelous that there has not to date been a serious accident at the foot of the hill, as it is steep and the gravel quite loose. However, unless some way can be found to stop such performances, sooner or later there will either be a crash or some car will end in the Geo. Leith or Don Miller homes.

"Open House" at U. of I.

Annual "Open House" at the University of Idaho college of agriculture farm will be held Sunday afternoon September 27 from 2 to 4 o'clock, according to C. W. Hickman, head of the department of animal husbandry.

Featured at the "Open House" will be the university livestock being finished for the Pacific International Livestock Exposition at Portland on October 3 to 10, an event in which the Idaho institution has been a consistent winner. University entries in this year's Pacific International will include Southdown wethers, beef steers, and about 40 to 50 hogs. In the swine competition at Portland the university's record has been exceptionally outstanding.

At the annual "Open House" livestock will be on exhibit at the following barns: Beef cattle, horses, sheep, swine, dairy cattle and poultry. Representatives of the various departments of the college of agriculture will be on hand to escort visitors about the farm.

All farmers who are interested in livestock are cordially invited to visit the university farm during the "Open House" period.

INTERESTING NEWS NOTES FROM OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL

Meetings were held last week for the purpose of electing class officers, which resulted as follows:

Seniors: President, Jean Bigelow; vice-president, Margaret Schultz; secretary, Leasel Havens; treasurer, Ruby Hecht; advisor, Mr. Lyle.

Junior: President, Homer Jones; vice-president, Jean Fry; secretary, Don Bencoster; treasurer, Pearl Daugherty; advisor, Mrs. Tully.

Freshmen: President, John Thompson; vice-president, Lloyd Farrington; secretary, Barbara Long; treasurer, Maxine Bigelow; advisor, Mr. Orr.

After election of officers by various classes plans were made for the class activities for the year. More details of these plans will be announced later. Each class is allowed one party each semester and class meetings are held as needed by the various classes.

The Junior class has a committee checking over various plays which will be suitable for their annual class play, to be given early in November. As soon as several plays have been selected by this committee they will be presented to the class and a decision will be made on the play to be used and practice will start immediately. This is the big event in the first semester of the Junior year and considerable enthusiasm seems to be evident among class members.

A checkup is being made by Mr. Lyle on all people interested in band work. A letter was sent to the parents and if interested, they were to sign and return by the students. The response has been most gratifying and it is hoped that a more definite announcement will be available next week.

Touch football has been organized in the high school and an excellent turnout of boys are reporting to Coach Dawald at the field at the lower end of town, due to the fact that there is no field available closer than this. Games have been scheduled with Southwick, Juliaetta and Culesac. Touch football gives the players some of the thrills of regular football without the expense connected with the regular game. No football equipment is used and there is no tacking. It is possible to use regular plays and it is felt it will give the boys some good workouts.

Monday night representatives of Culesac, Juliaetta and Southwick met at the Kendrick high school to work out some rules for touch football. After a considerable amount of discussion, rules were drawn up and will be used by the competing teams in playing off the schedule drawn up. Touch football is played on a somewhat smaller field than regular football and nine instead of eleven are used.

Those attending the meeting were Mr. Emerson and Mr. Powell, superintendent and coach at Culesac; Mr. Irwin and Mr. Grantham, superintendent and coach at Juliaetta; Mr. Holmes, Mr. Armitage and Mr. Dalberg, superintendent, coach and teacher at Southwick, and Mr. Lyle and Mr. Dawald of Kendrick. The first game for the Kendrick team will be played this Friday afternoon at the ball field, between Culesac and Kendrick.

The new typewriters, which were ordered during the summer, but which were slow in arriving, are now here and have been checked by Mr. Hobson and are now in use. This gives Kendrick an excellent setup on typing work, there now being about 42 in typing classes and every machine is in use during each period of the day, with the exception of one or two machines during one period of the day.

Felix Holt enrolled in the Freshman class Tuesday of this week.

Pearl Daugherty has left the Kendrick school and has enrolled in the Lewis and Clark High school at Spokane.

Has Moved To Town

Cecil Emmett is now a gentleman of leisure, we assume, naturally, as most of those who live in town are supposed to be. Anyway, he moved their household goods to town the first part of the week and they are now at home in the property recently purchased in the west part of town—or will be. Cecil said, just as soon as they complete modernization of the house, work on which is going forward.

Drowned In Clearwater

Trapped in their coupe when it plunged into the South Fork of the Clearwater river and landed upside down in a deep hole, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Woodruff, Grangeville, were drowned some time between midnight Sunday and dawn Monday.

A passing motorist noticed the car in the river Monday morning and the bodies were recovered by Sheriff Walter Altman and Coroner Glen Ailor.

The couple left Grangeville late Sunday night for the CCC camp at Red River Hot Springs, south of Elk City. Their car slipped off the grade a mile above the South Fork bridge.

Woodruff, a veteran forest service employee, was construction superintendent at the CCC camp.

MISS RUBY HEFFEL IS BRIDE OF ROY CRAIG

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized Sunday at high noon, when Miss Ruby Heffel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Heffel, became the bride of Mr. Roy Craig of Leland. The impressive ring ceremony was used, with Rev. Roy Metcalf of Leland reading the ceremony.

The bride was beautiful in a white satin gown with long train and wedding veil and carried a shower bouquet of pink, white and yellow gladiolus.

The groom, a well-known young farmer of this community, wore the conventional dark suit of oxford gray. Mrs. George Baugh, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, wearing a lovely lavender and white ensemble and carrying a bouquet of red and yellow gladiolus.

Jesse Heffel, brother of the bride, was best man, wearing a suit of dark blue.

The living room of the Heffel home was decorated with pink, white and yellow crepe paper festoons and cedar boughs. The bridal party stood under an arch of evergreens and fall flowers and white wedding bells.

Miss Nell Goudzward sang the wedding march and sang, "I Love You Truly," before the ceremony.

A sumptuous buffet dinner was served to the 40 guests. The bridal party, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Heffel and Rev. and Mrs. Metcalf were seated at a special table. The bride cut and served the mammoth three-tiered wedding cake, which was a work of art, adorned with its pink rosebuds and other decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig left in the afternoon for a short honeymoon trip. Guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Heffel, Rev. and Mrs. Metcalf, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Vester Whitinger, Mr. and Mrs. Oral Craig and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Thornton and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Craig, Jesse Heffel, Mrs. Pemberton, Mrs. Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Draper, Charley Craig, John Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dagefoerde, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Emmett, Miss Gertrude Dagefoerde, Miss Nell Goudzward, Mr. and Mrs. George Baugh, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Craig and daughter.

Mrs. Roy Morgan and Mrs. Robert Smith served the dinner.

First P.-T. A. Meeting Held

The first regular meeting of the Kendrick Parent-Teachers association was held in the school building Monday evening, with a fair attendance.

A regular business meeting was held and discussion was had on various problems concerning the P.-T. A., after which Mrs. Cook told of playground apparatus, and another discussion of ways in which more playground apparatus could be secured, was held. No definite action was taken at the time for improvement of these conditions, but an effort will be made to help correct this trouble so that the students may have the benefit of some playground equipment and with this, organized play may be worked out to a better advantage.

With over 200 students, the playground situation has reached the stage where some action should be taken. It is felt that this can and will be corrected soon.

A better attendance is needed at future meetings if the P.-T. A. is to do the beneficial work which it is supposed to do.

Entertain At Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nelson and son, Mr. and Mrs. Bjorkland and son and Mrs. Peter Foss, all of Moscow; Mrs. Marie Slind and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Slind and daughter were Sunday dinner guests at the Halvor Lien home.

DOMESTIC MARKETS FIRM OATS AND BARLEY STEADY

Domestic grain markets were mostly firm to higher during the week ending September 18, although some weakness was apparent in oats and rye, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Wheat advanced 1c to 2c per bushel, influenced principally by strength in foreign markets and sharp gains at Liverpool and Winnipeg as a result of the less favorable prospects for European harvests and an active demand from European markets. Continued active inquiry for the limited offerings was a strengthening factor in the corn market with cash prices much firmer than new crop futures. Oats were barely steady with the moderate market receipts ample for current trade needs.

Further strengthening was apparent in the world wheat situation during the week with prospective downward revisions in production estimates and continued unfavorable weather for completion of European harvests. Futures prices at Liverpool advanced to the highest point since 1930 and these gains were reflected at Winnipeg and other exporting markets. Northwestern European countries have suffered from unfavorable harvesting weather which may materially reduce local supplies. Disappointing yields are reported in Germany and trade advices suggest imports to supplement local supplies. Unsatisfactory quality of the French crop which is below normal domestic requirements is expected to result in imports of some hard wheats for blend in milling mixtures. Trade estimates place the Italian crop from sixty to eighty million bushels below last year's harvest with the grain of poor quality. The need for foreign wheat in Italy is reflected in recent substantial purchases of Canadian and Danubian wheat. Progress of the southern hemisphere crops was somewhat less favorable than a month ago with rains needed in Argentina and Australia.

United States wheat markets gained 1c to 2c per bushel, influenced principally by the strength at Winnipeg and Liverpool. Offerings of cash grains were moderate and milling inquiry was not urgent. Cash premiums, however, were generally well maintained. Arrivals at the principal winter wheat markets increased to 1,286 cars compared with 963 cars during the previous week. Mills competed for choice milling lots but the lighter weight grain was generally taken by storage interests pending a more favorable market for this type of grain. Light weight wheat continued to be discounted sharply with the lightest weights selling as much as 18c to 19c per bushel under 60 pound grain at Kansas City. Premiums strengthened slightly at Chicago where No. 2 hard winter was quoted at $1.19 to $1.23. A fair shipping business was reported but was about half Canadian feed wheat. Offerings were moderate at St. Louis and were principally by order buyers with local mills and elevator interests mostly out of the market.

Labor difficulties at Minneapolis continued to restrict trading in spring wheat and receipts totaled only 182 cars at that market and 123 cars at Duluth. Of the Minneapolis inspections 80 cars were winter wheat and 102 cars durum. Premiums held about unchanged but quotations were largely nominal because of the limited sales. At the close of the week, 58-pound No. 1 dark northern was quoted at $1.37 to $1.44. Durum wheat advanced with other classes and was about 1/4c higher than a week ago. Offerings were principally of Canadian wheat which brought relatively high premiums over domestic wheat because of the better quality. No. 2 hard amber from local offerings was quoted at Minneapolis at $1.30 to $1.42 per bushel.

Intermountain and Pacific Coast markets did not follow fully the strength in eastern points and were influenced by local supply and demand conditions. Harvesting was about completed in Utah and southern Idaho under ideal weather conditions. Local mills at Ogden were bidding 91c for No. 1 soft white, $1.01 for No. 2 hard winter and No. 2 northern spring. FOB Utah-Idaho common points.

Futures prices at Portland followed the advances at Chicago but cash markets held about unchanged with No. 1 hard white (Big Bend Bluestem or baart) quoted at $1.08 1/2, with 12 per cent dark hard winter at $1.13, soft white and western white at 97c.

"Three On The Trail"
Two-gun "bad men" of the early West are pictured at their best—which is their worst in "Three on the Trail," latest of the "Hopalong Cassidy" western adventures, which comes to the Kendrick Theatre this Friday and Saturday nights, with William Boyd and Jimmy Ellison playing the roles of "Hopalong" and "Johnny Nelson." Filmed in the High Sierras near Lone Pine, Calif., some 400 miles from Hollywood, the natural pictorial beauty of the setting forms a perfectly fitting background for one of the most dramatic western stories ever to reach the screen.
The added feature of "The Girl of the Ozarks" makes Friday and Saturday nights' shows among the best double features for a long time—for those who love out-door pictures and the little girl of the Ozark hills will bring many a sigh—and laugh—from those who see this double show at the price of one.

Ft. Ticonderoga Figured in Indian, French Wars

Ft. Ticonderoga stands on a point of land at the lower end of Lake Champlain about 100 miles from Albany and seventy miles below Plattsburg. Long before the coming of the white man it was a common battleground for the Indian tribes of the region. It was there, notes a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, that Champlain fought the Iroquois and instilled in them hatred for the French. Thereafter they always fought on the side of the English.

The French built a fortification there to command the passage of the lake and called it Carillon, meaning "chime of bells," in allusion to the sound of the nearby waterfall which the Indians called Ticonderoga (sounding water). Later it was called Ft. Ticonderoga. It was greatly enlarged and strengthened by the British who took possession of it in 1759.

When the town of Ticonderoga in 1875 celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of the American capture of the Fort, Ft. Ticonderoga bid fair to become little more than a memory. Mouldering walls were slowly crumbling away from the effects of the elements and the hands of man who found the old fort a convenient stone quarry. Many a doorstep and grave marker of the region were stones which had been carted away from the fort.

Tasmanian Devil Always Ill-Natured, Disagreeable

The Tasmanian devil is a pouched mammal peculiar to Tasmania, so called from its ugly and untamable disposition. Whether in a wild state or in captivity it always is the same ill-natured, disagreeable beast, whose blood is aroused at the slightest provocation, asserts a writer in the Indianapolis News. It never learns to know or to like the person who cares for it and gives it food, attacking him with the same blind ferocity as it does a stranger. It is about as large as a badger or small bear. It is powerfully built, with a very large head and a bushy, thickly-haired tail, about twelve inches long. The fur, which is thick and close, is mainly black or blackish brown, with a white collar or patch on the throat and white spots on the neck, shoulders and rump. In its gait and movements it very much resembles a badger or small bear. It is nocturnal in habit, being nearly blinded by the sun's rays, and passes the day usually coiled up in a cleft in the rocks or in a hole excavated by its powerful claws under the roots of some tree. Its prey consists of living creatures which it is able to destroy. In the early days of European settlement it was the pest of sheep-breeders and poultry-raisers, but is nearly exterminated and is seen rarely even in the wildest regions.

The Little Brown Bear

The little brown bear is the descendant of a long line of European brown bears. Perhaps his ancestors did not come over on the Mayflower, but they once entertained Queen Elizabeth at a command performance. That was in 1575, says a writer in the Washington Star. Thirteen brown bears consented to be baited with bulldogs for the edification of her royal highness, and they made such a hit that the sport was continued for centuries, despite the Puritans and various uplift organizations. The hybrids obviously are of pioneer stock and have no family traditions. The little brown aristocrat's forbears were trained artists, dancing for the crowned heads of Europe, while the hybrids' parents were mooching fish from the Eskimos.

Survivors of Revolution

Leaders of the French revolution of 1789 all met their death by the guillotine within a few years by new leaders of revolution; those who survived until the end of the century and Napoleon's time were, for the most part, men of the second and third rank, who turned with every change of political phase; soldiers who had escaped the whirlpool of politics, and the corrupt, the unprincipled, the quick-witted, men like Talleyrand and Fouché, always careful to be on the winning side.

Pirates as Benefactors

In Seventeenth century England pirates sold the people such vast quantities of stolen merchandise at such low prices that these buccaneers came to be looked upon as public benefactors. Hence the courts could rarely find a jury that would convict them. Later, however, England virtually killed piracy on the high seas through a law which pardoned all freebooters who surrendered themselves by a certain date.—Collier's Weekly.

Tradition Is Observed

For embarrassing moments among royalty there is the story of a Persian Shah, calling on Queen Victoria at Windsor, who, when the doors opened, found himself faced by a green carpet, flecked with a pattern of pink roses—the Queen at the other end of it, seated on her throne. By religion, the Shah was forbidden to step on anything green, so picture him hopping from rose to rose until he reached the throne!

Two Species of Mountain Sheep, Investigator Says

In North America there are two species of mountain sheep, the Rocky Mountain bighorn and the Alaska white sheep, states a writer in the Washington Star. The desert bighorn is one of the sub-species of the Rocky Mountain bighorn, distinguished by its small size and pale color. Its natural range includes the arid mountainous regions of the southwestern states and parts of Mexico.

Desert vegetation eaten by these bighorns includes cactuses and other thorny plants. The tender leaves of the spiny, polelike ocotillo cactus are a favorite food. In times of food shortage old rams often butt their way through the thorny armament of barrel cactus to eat the juicy pulp inside the plant.

In winter the hairy coat of these animals is dark brown, sometimes so dark that a band of sheep at a distance appears as a black spot moving across the light background of the desert sands. During spring and summer, however, their coats are bleached by the sun into a dull yellow. Many of the old rams have fine horns — long a cherished trophy of hunters — which are larger in proportion to the weight of their bodies than the horns of larger species. Predatory animals that attack mountain sheep usually make a hasty retreat after one or two well directed butts.

Lammergeyer Is Feared by Children of Europe

Mothers of Southern Europe often subdue their children with a threat of winged terror from the sky, writes W. H. Shippen, Jr., in the Washington Star.

The lammergeyer is supposed to swoop down upon runaway toddlers, bearing them off to devour them on some lofty mountain pinnacle.

Scientists, however, say the lammergeyer, or bearded vulture, likes turtles and marrow bones far better than he does bad boys and girls. He swings aloft with the turtle or bone and smashes his food open by dropping it on rocks far below.

The lammergeyer's ten-foot wing spread enables him to fly away with lambs, pigs or young calves. He has become rare in his native mountains of Southern Europe and is found mostly in North Africa or Southern Asia.

The lammergeyer rears its young on the highest, most inaccessible crags, laying a single egg in a huge nest rudely constructed of sticks. He is one of Europe's biggest birds of prey. The small tuft of hair, or "beard," under his chin is more pronounced than in related species.

The lammergeyer feeds upon meat, like the eagles.

Making Shrunken Heads

The shrunken heads of the Jivaros were generally the heads of enemies slain in battle. After having been severed from the body the heads are placed in hot sand, and the skin, flesh and muscles peeled off, leaving the skull clean and naked but for the eyes and teeth. They are then filled with sand and placed in specially prepared pots made of baked clay to which water is added. The water is allowed to heat and the heads removed just before it reaches the boiling point. When they are removed the heads have shrunken to about one-third their size. More hot sand is poured into them and they are ironed with hot stones, picked up with the aid of palm leaves. This process is continued for about 48 hours until the outside of the head is smooth and hard as leather and has gradually shrunken to the size of an orange. They are hung in the smoke of a fire to preserve them.

Atmosphere Is Dusty

Dustiness is one of the many characteristics of the atmosphere that science is not content merely to observe, but must also measure. The usual procedure is to count the number of dust particles per unit space. A generation or more ago the standard instrument for this purpose was the dust counter devised by John Aitken, the Scottish physicist, and the measurements obtained with this instrument were responsible for some rather startling statements still found in reference books; as, for example, that the air of a dusty room may contain upwards of 88,000,000 dust particles to the cubic inch and that a cigaret smoker sends 4,000,000,000 particles into the air at every puff.

Mango Trees

The mango (Mangifera indica) is a tree of the sumac family, sometimes 40 feet high, with large, shiny leaves and yellow or reddish flowers. The fruit varies in size from that of a plum to that of an apple, sometimes weighing a pound or more. Mangoes are grown in many tropical and subtropical countries, particularly in the West Indies and, to some extent, in southern California and Florida.

Lost Loin Cloth Set Style

In the most ancient Olympic games loin cloths were the uniforms worn by the boys. But in 720 B. C. Orsippus of Megara, who wasn't given a chance, lost his loin cloth and scampered "unimpeded" to victory in a race. For many years thereafter the boys dressed only in smiles and frowns.

Ancestor of Automobile Was the Steam Carriage

Useful inventors frequently get a cold reception when they are offered to the world. The ancestor of the automobile, cites a writer in the New York Herald Tribune, made its appearance a century ago when Sir Goldsworthy Gurney, a British surgeon, gave up his lucrative practice to devote his time and energy to the perfection of a steam carriage. By 1829, he had developed his invention to the extent that he was able to journey from London to Bath and back at the speed of fifteen miles an hour. His efforts to make this sort of vehicle a universal conveyance on the roads received a rude shock when a bill was introduced in parliament in 1836 heavily taxing such vehicles by imposing a toll charge for their use of the roads.

Sir Goldsworthy was also the inventor of the oxyhydrogen blowpipe and the lime light. The latter was the common type of illumination for floodlighting up to a generation ago. It used the hot colorless flame of the oxyhydrogen blowpipe to bring to incandescence a block of calcium which gave out a brilliant white light at the same temperature as the colorless burning gases. The same principle was used in the gas mantle lamps which were in general use until the electric lamps replaced them.

Size of Noah's Ark May Have Totaled 450 Feet

The dimensions of Noah's Ark as given in Genesis were 300 cubits in length, 50 cubits in breadth, 30 cubits in height. The length of the cubit is approximately 18 inches, so that the Ark must have been about 450 feet long, 75 feet broad and 45 feet high, observes a writer in the Detroit News. The tonnage of a merchant vessel for purposes of registration is the entire internal cubic capacity in tons of 100 cubic feet each, ascertained in a manner prescribed by law. According to this method of calculating tonnage the gross tonnage of the Ark must have been a little over 15,000 tons. Scribner's "A Dictionary of the Bible," edited by Dr. James Hastings, says of its capacity: "It has been calculated that it would contain a space of 3,600,000 cubic feet and that after nine-tenths had been set aside for storage of food, there would be over 50 cubic feet each allowed for 7,000 pairs of animals. Such calculations, though in earlier times treated with all seriousness, now receive little consideration. The measurements given in the biblical text are not sufficiently detailed, nor is the description of the whole construction sufficiently explicit, to form the basis of such conclusions."

Pennsylvania Dutch

The ancestors of the so-called "Pennsylvania Dutch" came from Germany, Holland and Switzerland. They were chiefly members of religious sects such as the Mennonites and immigrated in the late Seventeenth and early Eighteenth centuries. At the time of the Revolution it was estimated they constituted one-third of Pennsylvania's population. The early Mennonites were from Holland or from parts of Germany adjacent to it where Dutch was the language spoken. The name "Dutch" gradually came to be applied to the entire German group, whether they spoke that language or not, particularly as they called themselves "Deutsch." The term "Pennsylvania Dutch" is applied to the corrupted mixture of German and English spoken in many parts of that state.

Game Birds' Hatching Time

Under normal conditions the time required for incubating the eggs of various species of well known game birds varies with the species. Ring-necked, golden and silver pheasants take about 23 days. Bob-white quail 24 days, Ruffed grouse 21 to 23 days and Chukar and Hungarian partridges from 22 to 24 days. Various wildfowl require from 25 to 30 days with pintails and teal ducks taking 25 and woodducks 30.

Chinese Funerals Gay

The age-old desire of the Chinese to avoid despondency, sadness and even solemnity is typified in their funerals. Such services are always accompanied by as much gaiety, noise and music as weddings. As a matter of fact, few Chinese can tell a funeral from a wedding procession until they are close enough to see whether it contains a casket or a wedding-throne.—Collier's Weekly.

Waterspouts

Waterspouts may appear in pairs, or in groups of a dozen or more. They differ a great deal in height and in width. Perhaps the highest spout ever measured was seen off the southern coast of Australia years ago. Its height is given as a little more than 5,000 feet. In general, the spouts do not rise more than half a mile, and some are less than 200 feet high.

Nature of Astigmatism

Astigmatism is the condition where there is eyestrain because the light rays are not being properly focused onto the retina of the eye.

Sea-Lilies Not Flowers;
Are Related to Starfish

Zoology has revealed no organism more at variance with the popular conception of animals than the sea-lilies, or crinoids, found in the waters of Australia, according to a correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. When seen for the first time it is difficult to believe that they are not flowers; yet in all but the stately form they are animals, belonging to the same family as does the starfish.

The crinoids grow in clusters like the beds of tiger-lilies, and from the bed a jointed stalk rises, sometimes to a height of several feet, before the "lily" is produced. Surmounting the stem is a disk that bears the mouth, as in the case of the anemones; but the tentacles are much longer, and rise around the margins of the disk in such a manner as to stimulate a lily with marvelous perfection.

Unlike most of the anemones the crinoids live in deep water, and some of them have been dredged up from depths in which it seems impossible for such tender and delicate things to exist. They were among the earliest types of animal life on earth, and their fossils are very common. They are in such preservation that they were called "stone lilies" before their true nature was understood.

Caterpillars Big Eaters; Weave Own Silken Cocoon

Caterpillars eat very heartily. It has been said that one may eat seven times his own weight in a day. As they eat, they grow. And as they grow, they frequently shed their skins and grow new ones. Finally, writes J. B. Furber, in the Missouri Farmer, after shedding their skins and enlarging themselves several times, they reach their full size.

When this full size is attained, they cease eating, and fasten themselves to twigs or other objects. Often they hang head downward, supported by a silken thread which they have manufactured within their bodies. After one more molt, or change of skin, they manufacture more of this silk thread, and completely wind themselves up in it.

Inside this silken case, which we call the cocoon, the caterpillar loses its legs and mouth-parts. Then it remains in this little prison until it has developed two pairs of wings, three pairs of legs, long antennae on the head, and new mouth-parts consisting of a coiled tube for sucking nectar from flowers. These great changes require various lengths of time. In some cases, only a few days are required; while in others, it takes all winter.

U. S. Volunteer Life Savers

The United States volunteer life-saving corps was formed in 1870 and instructs in rescue work from drowning, resuscitation and first aid, places life-saving equipment, surf boats, life buoys and so on, at the most dangerous places throughout the United States, and grants medals and certificates. Its work has been adopted by the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Red Cross and practically all municipal life guards in the country, as well as army, navy and other branches of the government, each organization modifying the work. The corps has over 100,000 rescues to its credit and countless first aid cases since its inception. Its membership approximates 75,000 and is active in many states throughout the Union. The headquarters are at Providence, R. I.

"Talking Drums" of Africa

Once again the talking war-drums of Africa are booming through the hot, steaming air of tropical swamps, conveying messages to which the natives listen with a strong intensity and with a queer gleam in their dark liquid eyes. Day and night the drums sound, calling the natives to the defense of Africa's last empire.

From east to west, from north to south, the drum news travels. The most remarkable feature of this completely unsolved mystery is how the difficulties of language—there are, it is computed, upwards of 600 man, that there is a 'lingua' of the mounted when messages boom across the continent.

"The real enigma of the drums lies in the enormous area of Africa over which the news of great events has undoubtedly been spread," says Mr. Lawrence Green in a book, "Great African Mysteries."

"The traders, missionaries, river-steamers captains and other exiles of the African tropics, who discussed the subject with me agreed, almost to a man, that there is a 'lingua' of the drums which is known to the cleverest drummers of practically all races in the continent. The bulk of drum traffic would be beaten out in the dialect of the districts, and would not carry beyond its boundaries.

The most impressive "talking" drum is that hollowed out of a huge tree-trunk. Some of this type are more than twelve feet long by five feet thick. As the slit in the log is only an inch or two in width, the hollowing out process calls for great skill and perseverance. Faulty workmanship would ruin the note of the drum. The exterior is often elaborately carved, so that the drum strongly resembles a hideous idol with face complete and feet and arms indicated.

The author explains that one lip of the drums is thicker than the other, so that the natives will tell you there is a male voice and a female voice. The chief usually owns the talking drums, and they are kept in a special place, under a thatched roof, where no man save the drummer dares to touch them. Their range, under ideal conditions, is probably never more than twenty miles.

Do your part to build up Kendrick and you will probably be surprised to find out how many people are ready to do the same.

Moss From Idaho Lake—Fortune Sandpoint

A small lake near here which L. S. Bradley purchased for raising fish and mink turned out to be a veritable gold-bearing moss mine.

Bradley told how he sent samples of a moss which abounded around the lake shore to the University of Idaho for analysis and found it to be a rare species seldom found west of the Mississippi. There was a big market demand for it as a moisture-holding packing substance in nurseries and produce packing plants.

Bradley said he shipped $27,362 worth to California alone last year, in addition to supplying the Spokane market.

The moss, from 30 to 50 feet deep, is cut out in squares. The squares are resawed into thin slices. Bradley has built his find into an industry employing nine men in cutting, packing and shipping.

Beavers Put To Work

That the government does not intend to have any "jobless" left in the country is indicated by a news dispatch from Spokane which said that the government had been trapping and distributing beavers to different sections for the purpose of having them build dams for soil conservation purposes. One project over in the Blue Mountains of southeastern Washington and northeastern Oregon has received a consignment of 12 of the little dam builders and it is expected they will soon have the entire section dammed. But we are wondering just how they expect to keep those little fellows busy atop some of those hot, dry hills.

ers were utilizing relatively cheap new crop grain sorghums. At the close of the week, No. 1 hard white wheat was quoted at San Francisco at 97c to 99c, No. 1 soft white at 96c sacked, and Washington-Oregon No. 2 western white at $1.02 in bulk. Both No. 1 hard and soft white wheats were quoted at Los Angeles at $1.00 to $1.02 per bushel, sacked.

Oats markets were quiet with prices mostly steady, reflecting the light current offerings. Pacific Northwest growers displayed a firm holding tendency which was a strengthening influence in the market situation. Lack of boat space for shipment to Atlantic Coast ports was restricting sales to that area but occasional cars moved to middlewestern points by rail. Local and nearby mixed feed manufacturers took occasional cars at Portland, with cereal mills absorbing the current offerings of gray oats. No. 2 white oats were quoted at Portland on Sept. 17, at $1.50 per 100, with No. 2 gray oats at $1.45 per 100, sacked basis. The San Francisco market was dull but offerings were light and prices held steady, with red feed oats quoted at $1.45 to $1.50 and No. 2 red cats at $1.55 to $1.65 per 100. Pacific Northwestern barley markets were quiet. Light remaining supplies of malting barley in the Willamette valley restricted trading in that type with nominal quotations holding around $2.00 per 100 FOB valley shipping points. Movement to midwestern points was reflected in the heavier receipts at Portland where 535 cars have been received since July 1, compared with only 58 cars for the same period last year. Barley suitable for feeding was in slow request and prices declined, with No. 2 bright western, testing 45 pounds per bushel, quoted at Portland Sept. 17, at $1.72½ per 100, sacked basis.

Good roads are the basis of marketing possibilities of any town. Boost for good roads into Kendrick.

Passengers in the smoking compartment on my train were arguing about why railroad business is picking up.

A factory owner said it was because of Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight. The railroad calls for the LCL freight at shipper's door and delivers it to consignee's door.

A traveling salesman said it was because so many passenger and freight trains now run on faster schedules.

There was a school principal in the group and he said it was because train travel is so much cheaper for passengers. He said passenger fares are at the lowest point in history, with substantial reductions if you buy a round-trip ticket—and no more surcharge for riding in sleeping cars.

One man, a farmer, said he liked something he could depend on, that's why he was traveling by train.

Another man, a newspaper reporter, said people were in favor of railroad travel because it is by far the safest. He quoted a lot of statistics from a book called, "Live and Let Live."

A banker we all know by name said railroad tax payments mean a lot in this state.

We are proud of railroad achievements, appreciate the public's good will and increased patronage, and pledge continued progress.

Country marketings were larger and receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals totaled around 1,022 cars. Local milling inquiry slackened, influenced by labor difficulties but fair sales were made to the Kansas City area. Shipments to Minneapolis were cut off by labor difficulties at that market and sales to California were confined to small quantities of high protein wheat. European bids were in line for business but no shipping space was available and no sales were reported.

California markets were independently weak, reflecting liberal local supplies from the largest crop since 1919. Growers were not pressing offerings but milling demand was dull and feeders and industrial buy-

Well, folks—Now that frost has removed all hopes of further garden produce—let's turn our consideration to fall income—that of cream, which is your year-around income. Perhaps you have been neglecting it lately in the rush to harvest wheat and beans—but believe me—now's the time to begin cashing in on it.

Nothing looks better in the winter than a cream check. Many report to us that it feeds and clothes their family—many say they have money to spare from it. Why not cash in on it? Bring the cream here.

First Old Maid (excitedly): "Oh, Agatha, I'm going with a used furniture salesman."

Second Old Maid: "What's the difference, as long as he's healthy."

"What do the three balls in front of a pawnshop mean?"

"Two to one you don't get it back."

Teacher (pointing to a deer at the zoo): "Johnny, what is that?"

Johnny: "I don't know."

Teacher: "What does your mother call your father?"

Johnny: "Don't tell me that's a louse!"
