HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS DISPATCHES

Baltimore.—The Catholic Review, official organ of Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore, urged Fr. Charles E. Coughlan and Msgr. John A. Ryan editorially to "retire into solitude and rest a while. "The rest of us need a little rest from the two gentlemen," the editorial said, referring indirectly to Monsignor Ryan of the Catholic university, Washington, and the Detroit radio orator as political parsons. "If both the reverend gentlemen would retire for some time to the Carthusian order, where perpetual silence is observed, they would do a great favor to the church and to the country at large," the editorial said. Bishop Curley, chancellor of the Catholic university, appears only infrequently in the public eye. Monsignor Ryan in an address recently took issue with Father Coughlan, who has attacked the new deal. "There are 30,000 Catholic priests in the United States. Of that number 29,998 are attending to their business, which is that of their Heavenly Father," the editorial said. "We have two politicians just now out of the 30,000. * * * "Sensible American people never had any use for political parsons. * * * "The two gentlemen who have come into the area of politics * * * are rendering no service either to God or country. They do not represent the Catholic priesthood of this country, and certainly they do not represent the Catholic church. * * * "

Boise.—Idaho's estimated 11,300 employes have begun figuring how much taxes, if any, they must pay under provisions of the 1936 state unemployment compensation act that became operative September 1. The law was called to their attention this week by Lawrence Lyman, superintendent of the unemployment compensation division of the Idaho industrial accident board, whose office mailed out questionnaires to each employer. The law provides each employer of eight or more persons must pay nine-tenths of one per cent on his annual payroll for 1936 to the state; for 1937 employers of one or more persons must pay 1.8 per cent and employes each must pay nine-tenths of one per cent of their salaries to the state. The tax for 1936 is payable January 1 and on each following quarter. The amount collected by the state may be deducted from the national tax for unemployment by employers required to pay one per cent to the federal government.

Boise.—Mrs. Lydia Southard, in prison for the poison-murder of the fourth of her six husbands, announced on her 44th birthday anniversary that she will make a sixth appeal for a pardon. "I want to go home to my mother—she's getting along in years and is in poor health, you know," she said in an interview. "I've already served five years more than my minimum. The prison officials, I think, will tell you my record has been good." This was her 15th birthday anniversary behind bars. It would have been her 16th except for the fact that for more than a year she was a fugitive. Sentenced Sept. 17, 1921, she escaped from the women's cell block May 5, 1931, only to be recaptured July 30, 1932, at Topeka, Kansas. During her absence she married her sixth husband, Harry Whitlock of Denver, Colo.

Calgary, Alta.—The Alberta employment service reported a new high record for unemployment in Alberta for October was set last week when 11,057 men and women were jobless. The service said the increase was 55 per cent over the same period last year.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Robert M. Bowes, local business man, who slips an extra $10 in the pay envelopes of his employes occasionally, with a request that they spend it usefully but immediately, has found that most of it goes for wearing apparel. There are three requirements in connection with the gift money—it must be spent with an Indianapolis concern, with business people "who also give their employes a break" and the sales checks must be returned to Bowes. "I get a great kick out of the whole thing," Bowes said. "The plan has made a happy crowd out of the 47 workers. They have spent the four extra $10 bills usefully. I think it's a good idea. It pays big dividends in loyalty."

A recent invention prevents girls from falling out of rattle seats. It looks like another move to displace men with machinery.

Return From Southern Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dougharty of American ridge returned last week from a three-weeks trip to Miami, Fla. They were accompanied on their southern trip by Mr. Dougharty's sister, Mrs. Carl Kinzer, whose home is in Miami, but who had been spending the past several months here visiting relatives. Mr. Dougharty said they made the trip by bus and passed through 14 states, but that he saw nothing that looked as good to him as Idaho—the Gem state.

URGES RED CROSS ROLL CALL SUPPORT IN ARTICLE

In a statement released today by Dr. D. C. Ray, Poccatello, president of the Idaho Medical association, members throughout the state are urged to support the 20th Red Cross Roll Call, which starts November 11. Dr. Ray's statement follows: "As the President of the Idaho State Medical association, I wish to pledge our support and interest in the Red Cross' program of service and relief, in the future as we have done in the past. I know of no organization which appeals more to the commonwealth and the great aggregate of small contributions show that the people have not changed in their impulses toward human helpfulness except to become more firmly imbued with their obligation to share in such undertakings. We feel that your membership campaign will be more successful than any you have had in the past."

Idaho chapters have for the most part appointed Roll Call chairmen and are ready to launch their campaign to enroll 26,325 members during November, Parker P. Carver, State Roll Call chairman, reported. "With each chapter reaching or surpassing its modest Roll Call quota during the 20th campaign Idaho will be assured its quota," the state chairman said. Many chapter representatives are meeting at Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Twin Falls and Idaho Falls this week to discuss Roll Call plans, Mr. Carver said.

Vote Against Sunday Beer

Of the 181 voters who participated in the "unofficial" election on the beer question Tuesday, 102 voted for Sunday closing of beer parlors and 79 against. As stated last week, this election was for the purpose of giving the village council an idea as to how the citizens actually stood on the matter, as a means of guiding the board in its action.

A petition bearing 200 names had been filed with the board at its last meeting, asking that beer sales be prohibited on Sunday. As to how the question will finally be disposed of, that will have to be settled by the board in an official meeting.

In any event it is probable that existing licenses will permit beer vendors to sell on Sundays until the licenses expire, which will be at midnight, December 31. The board will probably take no action until they have secured legal advice as to the procedure to be followed.—Latah County Press (Troy).

Motor Receipts Reach High Mark

With three months of 1936 yet to come, Idaho's receipts this year from motor vehicle licenses already has hit an all-time peak for any year on record—$2,010,082.

This is $237,037 more than was collected for all of 1935, said T. P. Graham, state auditor of motor vehicle registration records.

Of the total $1,418,214 represents fees on 100,989 passenger vehicles. This figures one vehicle for every 4.5 persons in the state. This year 8,862 more passenger cars have been registered than during the first nine months of last year.

"Our collection and registrations to October 1 this year are higher than for any entire year in history," Graham said.

Two More Bear Laid Low

There seems to be plenty of bear roaming these and near sections of the country and six of them have been accounted for to date.

The latest kills have been made by Frank Crocker and C. E. "Bud" Harris, Mr. Crocker killing one on Sunday on Three Bear that dressed 165 pounds, while Mr. Harris killed one in the same section Monday evening that dressed 400 pounds, and tipped the scales at more than 600 pounds before being completely dressed.

CLARK AND STEPHAN BOTH HAVE THEIR SAY

Soda Springs, Idaho—Visualizing development of southeastern Idaho's huge phosphate beds in this and other counties as "storehouses of wealth which will enhance values of all farm land in this state," Brazilla W. Clark, Democratic candidate for governor, said in an address here, he would seek immediate development of the phosphate regions for cheap fertilizer for farmers.

Pointing to the beds, reputedly the largest in the world, as "lying dormant for years while our farmers are paying three to six times too much for their fertilizer and while at the same time thousands of men in Idaho have been out of work or on federal payrolls," Clark said, "I will immediately take steps to determine if they can be worked for the public good through federal cooperation."

The phosphate deposits, subjects of extensive mineral surveys during the past decade, have the approval of the state planning board as feasible for development, with the material to be used for fertilizer, Clark said he understood.

"I know many counties in southwestern and all sections of Idaho where such fertilizer can be used if it is made available at a reasonable price. The use will make the land more valuable, less water will be needed to grow a crop when the land is highly energized and enriched. Men will be put to work in this section with government assistance and the entire state will develop. The phosphates also can be used for other materials and some can be sold to other sources."

Clark gave his views at a Soda Springs political rally and in an interview after touring most of Caribou county. Accompanied by Harry C. Parsons, state auditor and J. W. Taylor, candidate for attorney general, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee arrived from Blackfoot, where they spoke.

Clark's development program for Idaho was echoed by Parsons, and Taylor, who said, "After seeing Brazilla's five-point program favoring good roads, water conservation, development of phosphate deposits, protection of endowment fund lands and complete cooperation with the federal government, I am confident he will get more votes than Roosevelt in Idaho."

Poccatello, Idaho—Assailing the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Brazilla Clark, for his straddling the fence tactics on the sales tax question, Frank L. Stephan, Republican candidate for governor, in an address here stated that the ordinary citizens of Idaho are hit by the tax, not large corporations.

Asking the question, "Do I sound like a large corporation and utility tycoon when I go around the state demanding the repeal of the sales tax?" Mr. Stephan pointed out that the tax benefited the large corporations and asked why his democratic opponent didn't favor its repeal.

"I have, upon several occasions, made it plain that I favor the repeal of the sales tax. I appreciate that this question is coming up for the vote of the people at a referendum on election day, and have made my position clear upon this question with the hopes that the people will vote, as I believe they will, in favor of repealing the sales tax," he said.

"My democratic opponent has merely said that the people will vote on it this fall, and that is all the interest he has in this subject. He poses as a great advocate of the common people, and I would ask the question, 'Who pays the sales tax?' The people of the state of Idaho pay it on everything they purchase.

"The only people who are really opposed to the repeal of the tax are the large corporations and utilities, because it does not affect them as they purchase the commodities they use at wholesale outside the state. But because of the income from the sales tax, their property taxes are reduced by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"It is a known fact that the sales tax aids the large corporations. Then why isn't Mr. Clark consistent? He has made statements attacking the large corporations, but at no time has he said he favors the repeal of the sales tax," he concluded.

Lot's wife looked back and turned into a pillar of salt. Wives that look back now usually turn into a telephone pole.

INTERESTING NEWS NOTES FROM OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Six weeks exams are over and grades will be given out this week.

The annual High School Carnival, held Friday night, was a huge success. All booths did a good business and most of the prizes were sold. The Queen contest was the most successful ever held by the Kendrick schools. The contest ended in a very close race between Miss Ruby Hecht and Miss Marie Havens. Ruby surged ahead in the last minute to win the contest. The contest was followed by a dance, the music being furnished by the Parr orchestra. As a financial success, it was the best ever—the $200.00 mark was considerably passed, although the exact amount has not yet been determined.

Kendrick High is very sorry to announce that Margaret and Madeline Schultz, who have been attending the Kendrick High school for the past three and a half years, left Saturday for their new home in southern Idaho. They will attend High school at Meridian, Idaho. Their many friends in Kendrick will miss them, but wish them all the success and happiness they can possibly have in their new school.

Eunice Henderson, who left for Portland, will enter school there. She will be missed by her classmates and friends and everyone wishes her luck and success in her new school.

We welcome the arrival of Oswald, Gordon and Myra Kanikeberg, who have been attending school in North Dakota.

Last week the Ag. boys went to the Albert Schultz farm on a dairy judging trip.

The football team went to Culdesac Wednesday, and defeated that school 13 to 6. Thursday evening Southwick came to Kendrick and was defeated 25 to 0. This was the last game of the season. Kendrick was the only team in the conference to be undefeated.

At a meeting of the Girls' Athletic association, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Jean Bigelow, president; Helen Halseth, vice-president; Barbara Long, secretary-treasurer; Eleanor Hill, hiking manager; Marie Havens, volley ball manager; Jean Fry basket ball manager. It was not decided when practice will begin.

The Girls' Glee Club music has come and the boys are expecting theirs soon.

Phyllis Thomas has been absent from school the past week because of illness. Everyone wishes her a speedy recovery.

The second P.-T. A. meeting of the year was held Monday evening. There was discussion on the phases of youth and adult activity. Miss Thelma Jones, the public health nurse, was introduced to the parents. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Arthur Dawald and Mrs. Everett Fraser.

Grade Notes

The first and second grades are giving a Halloween party on Friday, October 30.

Mr. Ross, the county superintendent, gave reading tests to the fourth to eighth grades, on Monday of this week.

All grades received their report cards on Wednesday.

F. F. A. Makes Portland Trip (Delayed)

Twenty-two boys, Mr. Orr, instructor, and Robt. Clemenhagen, driver, started on the morning of October 1, for Portland and the International Livestock show. We went down the river, stopping for breakfast at Walla Walla, and dinner at The Dalles. Many interesting sights were seen, including Multnomah and Horsetail falls, Bonneville Dam, a number of salmon canning plants and many other interesting things. We arrived in Portland that evening about 6 p. m. and secured rooms at the Congress hotel. The next day was spent in seeing the town. The whole group went through the famous battleship Oregon, seeing the large guns and machinery used on a big battleship.

Saturday we went out to the Livestock show. The judging team was composed of Harry Wegner, James Langdon and Nolan Weeks. The rest of the day was spent in seeing the livestock exhibits.

Early Sunday morning we started for home. Outside of stopping for meals we continued without interruptions, and arrived in Kendrick about 6 that evening. It was a very nice trip and enjoyed by all.

Gazette "Caught Again"

We don't like to acknowledge so many errors so close together as they have been coming lately, but we must acknowledge this one, regarding the marriage of Miss Nell Davis and Elmer F. Lohman, an account of which was given last week, only a line had been dropped out making us say that "Carl Lohman" was the bridegroom, instead of the father of the bridegroom. One complete line of typewriting had been skipped in setting the article and the error was not caught in "proof," hence it was printed in the paper as set up.

THIS AND THAT ABOUT FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Miss Marjorie Griffith, who had been visiting in the McCreary home for the past ten days, returned to Spokane Tuesday.

Miss Selma Hartung, who has been working in Genesee during the past two months, returned to her home here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Watts and family and Rilla Davidson drove to Deary Sunday to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Waide.

Joe Watts, Junior Ramey, Glen Wallace, Elmer Emery and Aaron Blewett came over from the "U" to spend the week-end with home folks.

Mrs. George Leith and Mrs. Robt. Spencer of Moscow drove to Spokane Wednesday morning, returning home the same evening.

Mrs. Walter Wagner of Kellogg arrived Monday to spend several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Perryman.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lyle, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Orr drove to Spokane Saturday, returning the same evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnson were Sunday guests of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fry.

Florian LaHatt was a guest in the Jake Berreman home this week-end.

Miss Frances Farrish spent Friday night and Saturday in the Rose Farrington home.

Miss Irene Kimbley is a guest in the Rose Farrington home.

Deobald Family Reunion

A reunion of the Deobald family was held at the American ridge home of Mrs. Mary Deobald on Sunday, October 18, when members of the family gathered to help eat one of those fine chicken dinners for which Mrs. Deobald is famous in this section, together with all the necessary trimmings to make up a delectable meal.

Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Deobald of Tonic, Ill., Mrs. Mary Brady of Granville, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Deobald and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Deobald and family of Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schupfer and family, Mrs. Eva Thompson of Orofino, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thompson of Moscow, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bechtel and family of Moscow and Dan Stover, a student at the U. of I., and the hostess.

Two Deobalds were unable to be present—Harry of Columbus, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Deobald, and Carl, son of Mrs. Mary Deobald, of Linden, Wash.

This is the first meeting of the relatives in many years and the result was a very pleasant day for all.

Canadian Visitors Arrive

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Havens from Piggars, Saskatchewan, Canada, arrived Saturday for a visit with his brothers, Ira and O. E. Havens and their families and other relatives.

Mr. Havens said that it sometimes gets a little cool up in his home country, the mercury reaching 65 below zero at one time last winter.

He also said he thinks it is pretty warm down here. He stated the weather had been quite dry in Saskatchewan during the past year.

They expect to remain here for a few weeks visiting relatives.

Putting On New Roofs

The residence of J. F. Brown, in the west part of town, has just been treated to a new roof, which, Mr. Brown hopes, will answer the purpose better than the one just removed.

Those "lightning" carpenters, Tony Lien and Chieve Aiken, who have just finished the Brown roof, are now engaged in welding their hammers on a new roof on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Long.

DOMESTIC WHEAT FIRMER BUT FEED GRAINS LOWER

Domestic grain markets were somewhat unsettled during the week ended October 16, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Wheat made further gains, influenced principally by advances at Winnipeg and Liverpool where prospects of a more stable currency situation and a continued active inquiry from European buyers were strengthening influences. Corn turned slightly weaker with larger offerings and increased shipments from the new crop, together with lower quotations on Argentine corn. Oats remained about unchanged with the moderate market receipts apparently adequate for current trade needs. Barley was unsettled, with malting types firm and in good demand, while feed barley was weak and slightly lower.

The general wheat situation remained firm with a continued good inquiry for foreign wheat by European buyers. Prospects of a more settled exchange situation which would facilitate world trade following the agreement among leading nations on a currency policy, was a further strengthening influence. Prices at Liverpool advanced to the highest point since 1930, while the Winnipeg market reached a new high for the current season. The world's visible supply at the first of October was about 85,000,000 bushels under the corresponding figure of a year ago, but shipments from the southern hemisphere increased materially during the week, with 1,588,000 bushels from Argentina and 1,526,000 bushels from Australia. General rains benefited the new crop in Argentina but continued dryness prevails in much of Australia, with trade agencies making further reductions in their estimates for the current crop.

The French crop is now officially estimated at 244,340,000 bushels, or estimated at 244,343,000 bushels, or 1935 harvest. Import licenses have been issued by the French government for the importation of around 16,500,000 bushels of foreign wheat, according to trade reports. Inquiry was quite active at Liverpool, particularly for new crop Argentine grain, which was quoted for January and February shipment at $1.12, compared with $1.15½ for Danubian wheat for October shipment, $1.25½ for new Australian wheat for shipment by December 15 and $1.29½ for No. 2 Manitoba from Atlantic ports. The Winnipeg market reflected the strength at Liverpool and advanced 3¼¢ per bushel. Some falling off in current movement was also a strengthening factor.

Domestic cash wheat markets were firmer with futures despite only moderately active milling inquiry. Receipts of spring wheat were somewhat larger, with 680 cars reported at Minneapolis and 159 cars at Duluth. High protein heavy weight wheat was in good demand at Minneapolis and also at diversion points, but inquiry for other types was dull. The protein of the week's receipts averaged slightly lower than the previous week. At the close of the week, 54 pound dark northern was quoted at $1.35 to $1.40.

The durum futures market was barely steady while cash prices on domestic wheat were adjusted sharply downward because of unsatisfactory milling quality. No. 2 amber durum was quoted at Minneapolis at about 20¢ per bushel over the Duluth December price, which closed at $1.34½. High quality Canadian durum, on the other hand, remained firm with fancy lots at Duluth bringing premiums of 6¢ over the Winnipeg October price. At the close of the week, Canadian shippers were asking premiums of 7½¢ over the Winnipeg October, but no sales were reported at that figure.

Marketings of winter wheat increased slightly with 1,289 cars reported at the principal markets. A good part of the Kansas City receipts went direct to mills or storage concerns and current offerings in the cash market were relatively small. A large proportion of the arrivals were of light weight high protein, a type in slow demand. At the close of the week, ordinary protein hard winter was quoted at $1.19 to $1.24½ and 15 per cent protein at $1.21 to $1.26½ per bushel. At Fort Worth, No. 1 hard winter was quoted at $1.39. At St. Louis No. 1 hard winter brought $1.24, while at Chicago No. 2 hard was quoted at $1.20 to $1.24. Demand for wheat at St. Louis was only moderately active despite small receipts but at Chicago, premiums held steady with a good shipping business reported.

DeWINTER & GOUDZWARD, LELAND

Soft winter wheat strengthened with other classes and at the close of the week No. 1 soft red winter was quoted at St. Louis at $1.24, No. 2 at Chicago at $1.20 and at Kansas City at $1.20 per bushel.

Intermountain and Pacific Coast markets mostly followed the advance at eastern points, with Denver mills bidding $1.11 per bushel FOB cars shipping points for No. 2 northern spring. Mills at Ogden offered 84c for No. 2 soft white, 90c for No. 2 hard white and 94c per bushel for No. 2 northern spring FOB Utah-Idaho common points.

The California wheat market was rather unsettled with gains of about 2 1/2c per 100 pounds reported in San Francisco prices and declines of about the same amount at Los Angeles. Offerings from central California growers remained light but local demand from mills and feeders was also relatively small. Scattered sales of federation and baart wheat for direct rail shipment from interior points to eastern states were reported at around 90c per bushel FOB shipping points.

Pacific Northwestern barley markets were very quiet, reflecting the limited supplies of malting barley and a slow demand for feeding types. The firm holding tendency of growers was a sustaining influence. Malting barley was nominally quoted at around $2.00 to $2.05 per 100 pounds FOB cars Willamette valley shipping points. No. 2 bright western, testing 45 pounds was quoted at Portland October 15 at $1.67 1/2 per 100 pounds, sacked basis.

Oats markets declined moderately with a limited inquiry for the offerings. Trading and movement in the Pacific Northwest were very dull as lack of boat space restricted shipments to the Atlantic Seaboard. A few shipments from the Pacific Northwest to middlewestern points by rail were reported. No. 2 white oats were quoted at Portland Oct. 15 at $1.50 and No. 2 gray oats at $1.45 per 100 pounds, sacked basis. Eastern Washington white oats were quoted at Seattle at $1.52 and Puget Sound oats at $1.40 per 100 pounds, sacked basis.

TEAKEAN NEWS

Ed. Choate, his son Gordon, and Elwood Brock came home from the Weitaa country Sunday evening with an elk each.

Instead of having the Ladies Aid sale here as intended, it was held at Cavnesh at the close of the Republican rally, and it was a success. Most of the articles sold for more than was expected. Rev. Fike was the auctioneer, and the candidates bought most of the goods.

A number of our people attended the meeting of the Pomona Grange at Orofino Saturday evening.

The new Sunday school room is under cover now. The work is being done by donation. Not many come to help each day, but we hope it will be finished soon.

A number of young folks met at the John Lind home Sunday afternoon and spent some time practicing songs.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schliefer and little son Milo called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Brock Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Miller and Mrs. Lethco Reece visited at the Don Miller home Sunday afternoon. Sam Harp is hauling wood to Orofino this week.

Has Written Book

A book by Rev. George Fike, whom most everyone in this section knows, "Winning The Pacific Northwest," has recently been published. The story is of the Old Oregon Trail and the stirring events which led up to the final winning of the great Pacific Northwest by the sturdy, pioneers of this region and the strong arm of Uncle Sam and the wise and prompt action of Missionary Whitman in exposing the British plot to annex this vast territory to Canada.

The book has 128 pages, is cloth bound and is sold at a very reasonable price. The book may be procured through your local book dealer.

Double-Eight Bridge Club

Members of the Double-Eight Bridge club met with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Deobald on Thursday evening of last week. A delicious dessert was served by the hostess, after which bridge was played at four tables. Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Deobald were invited guests for the evening.

Mrs. E. A. Deobald won high score for the ladies while F. B. Higley was high for the men. Ernest Roberts was low for the men and Mrs. J. M. Lyle for the ladies.

At the close of the evening the club presented Mr. and Mrs. Roberts a wedding gift.

To Visit In East

Mrs. Theresa Schultz left Thursday for Palouse, Wn., to visit with friends, going from there to Spokane and Medical Lake to visit relatives for a week or 10 days.

She will then leave for St. Paul to visit two sisters residing there; going from there to Goodphunder, Minn., to visit a brother. She will visit there and at St. Paul for the winter, returning here next spring.

Democrats Visit Kendrick

A party of democratic politicians, headed by Congressman Compton I. White were in Kendrick last Saturday about noon, and met quite a few of the local democrats as well as a few stray republicans who happened to chance along. Mr. White was accompanied by C. G. Gossett and Myrtle Enking.

Adults who criticise children for playing would be better off if they did some playing themselves.

West African Crocodile

More Active Than Gator
Some of the huge Nile crocodiles are capable of dragging a man or a large mammal through the underwater passages to their dens. They swallow a body, bones and all, and digest it at leisure, relates a writer in the Washington Star.

The West African crocodile is more active and dangerous than his American cousin, the alligator. His snout is usually more pointed and his teeth are set differently. He is perhaps the nearest remaining relative of the great and fearsome dinosaur.

The ancient Egyptians worshiped crocodiles of the Nile. They seemed to venerate them as symbols of fertility because they appeared in large numbers when the Nile flooded its rich alluvial deposits over the fields.

Several species of the crocodile are found in India, the Malay region and Australia. A clue to their wide distribution can be had from a story told by a zoo director while he was collecting in the East Indies.

It seems the natives of an island of the Fiji group were terrified by a huge monster which had come ashore there from the sea. They found his great tracks in the marshes, heard his strange roar at night, and finally got a glimpse of the creature. Soon the whole island was in an uproar.

White hunters were dispatched to the scene and shot a crocodile almost 30 feet long. His nearest natural home was the Solomon islands. Wind, wave and tide had washed this giant through 1,000 miles or more of ocean.

Indian Music Lacking in Harmony; Drum for Time

Indian burlesque songs include the pleasure dances, the owl dance and the sage-hen dance, which are sung to proclaim the virtue of some member of the tribe who has been subjected to scandal. Other songs are the tobacco planting song, the medicine pipe song, ghost songs, etc. The priest sings the last, when he claims communication with the Great Spirit.

Then there are love songs, and flute melodies. These are the most impressive to the white man. The quaint rhythms make a strange appeal to the senses. The songs are different in construction to the music of any of the white people. There is a kind of haunting melancholy about them which is difficult to describe in words. One has to hear them to understand their peculiar character.

The Indian knows nothing of harmony, asserts a writer in the Montreal Herald. The only accompaniment is that of the drum, which beats out the time. The melody, however, is much better without such accompaniment, except in the dances. The best musician is he who has the greatest vocal compass, and can sing the most songs. He is usually very proud of his voice and uses it with great effect in his spirit and love songs.

Smallest Fish in World

According to the United States bureau of fisheries, the smallest fish in the world reaches an average length of six-sixteenths of an inch and a maximum length of seven-sixteenths of an inch. It is about the size of an ant and is probably the tiniest back-boned creature that has ever been called to the attention of science. The species is found in certain creeks in the Philippines and is known scientifically as Pandaka pygmaea. The bodies of these fish are slender and almost transparent, the comparatively large eyes being the only feature clearly visible. The next fish in respect to size is Mistichthys luzonensis, also found in the Philippines. Its average length is about one-twelfth of an inch greater than that of Pandaka pygmaea. Fish of this species are so numerous in Lake Buhl, Luzon, that the natives catch them for food. Sinarapan is the local name for the species.

Washington Not So Old

Washington has few buildings more than a century old for it is but an infant as far as ages of cities go. Conococheague, as the Indians called it, was selected in 1791 by Congress as the site for the capital city of the newly organized republic but was not taken over in earnest until 10 years later. Much of the area occupied by stately government buildings and parks was under water and had to be drained and filled in. Georgetown, now a part of the city, had been settled about 100 years previously although it was not laid out as a town until about 1751.

Jaguars, Biggest Cats

The jaguars are the biggest cats in the Americas and now are mostly confined to Central and South American jungles. They are excellent tree climbers for such heavy creatures, and usually haunt river jungles, although they often are found in the uplands. In his native country the jaguar is more frequently heard than seen. His hoarse deep roar carries far over forest and river, especially during the mating season. The jaguar young develop swiftly. They are capable of following their mother 15 days after birth, zoologists say.

Ancient Curse Falls At Last

Green River, Utah.—An age-old 50-foot monolith pitched 1000 feet from Gunnison butte to the valley floor near here recently, to bring to superstitious folk a bright hope for the future.

The tall rock spire crashed without warning, with a roar that was heard at several nearby ranches. Rearing upward in striking resemblance to the figure of a man, the landmark had been regarded by the superstitious as an evil omen since, they said, frustrated pioneers 80 years ago placed a curse upon the arid valley—the curse to remain as long as the monolith stood.

Virgin Island Rum Soon Here

Liquor stores will soon be selling Secretary Harold L. Ickes' Virgin Island rum. Although financed with PWA money, the semi-private corporation headed by the cabinet member plans to get fancy prices for the liquor, according to news dispatches from Washington.

The rum, financed with government funds, costs Ickes' company about 25 cents a gallon to produce, but will sell retail in the United States for approximately $7.50 per gallon, making millions in profits for the corporation officials. In cocktails, the ultimate purchaser will pay as much as $25 a gallon for the 25-cent a gallon rum.—Genesee News.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for their foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball, hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Gatlin retired from business, willed Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II

Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over by her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III

Stephen elbowed his way into the courtroom. Nance Belden saw him, and from behind the bars of the prisoner's dock waved to him and called cheerily: "Hello, Steve."

"Silence—you!" the bailiff warned her.

Nance made a face at him; then, observing Stephen lay finger to lip in a warning gesture, she tossed her head, tilted her chin and bent upon the judge a cold and defiant stare.

The bailiff opened the door of the prisoners' dock and beckoned to her.

"Nance Belden," the judge queried, "have you anything to say as to why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?"

"I've got a mouthpiece," the girl retorted. "Ask him!"

From a chair beside the counsels' table a young man arose. "May it please the court, the public defender has withdrawn from this case and I am now counsel for the defendant. My name is David Tyrrell. I am reliably informed, your honor, that, following a fair and impartial trial, this defendant has been convicted of the crime of which she stands accused and is now before the court for sentence."

"Mr. Tyrrell, your client is now under a suspended sentence from the Superior court, for the crime of grand theft. She was there sentenced to two years in San Quentin penitentiary, but paroled for two years. Less than two months have passed since she was paroled, and today she stands before the court for sentence under a charge

Not So Pleasing

Each day we meet our share of thrills, such meetings are auspicious. But when we have to meet our bills, that isn't so delicious. For when they face us, we must "dig"; a tribute is exacted. They always seem just twice as much as when they were contracted.

We meet old cronies now and then, and greet them with elation, but no one feels so cheerful when he meets an obligation. We tremble when they come in view, our spirits touch the bottom. They have a way of falling due like maple leaves in autumn.

Some friends are of the wanting kind. You know their sad, sad story. And all the bills I've met, I find, are in this category. They're like those friends we hold "so dear," whose purpose never wavers. We always know, when they appear, that they are seeking favors.

You can't deploy around a block to leave your bills behind you. They come right in and do not knock. If you're home they'll find you. They can't be fooled by blinds pulled down. They're on the job to "nail" you, and even when you're out of town, the dog-gone things will trail you.

Kiss Shorten Life Three Minutes

Publication by the Silver & Gold, University of Colorado student newspaper, of a scientist's statement that one kiss shortens a life three minutes caused such a stir on the campus that the newspaper had to clarify the story.

In a subsequent issue the newspaper recommended 175 kisses as a reasonable quota for a life-time because that would shorten one's life by only 1 year.

The editor admitted that, according to the scientist, 48 kisses a week would shorten a person's life by one year, but assured his readers that "it's worth it."

of petit larceny. The defendant evidently is incorrigible, and I intend to remand her to the Superior court for commitment under the old charge of grand theft."

"I thank your honor. I have been retained in this apparently hopeless case for the purpose of adducing a sound reason why this defendant should be neither sentenced under the present charge nor remanded to the Superior court for commitment under sentence for the former crime. To that end, your honor, I ask leave to present an expert witness to testify to the mental irresponsibility of my client."

"One moment, please, Mr. Tyrrell. Your action would be merely wasting your time and that of the court. I shall remand the prisoner immediately to the Superior court, with a request to the judge thereof that her case be taken up immediately. I sentence this prisoner to ninety days in the county jail, but the sentence will be suspended during her good behavior for one year from date. A bailiff will conduct you, your expert witness and the defendant at once to Department Number Six of the Superior court, and I will immediately telephone to the judge and request that he listen to your expert witness."

As they entered the Superior court the judge glanced at a document which evidently had reached him from the police magistrate's court. "Mr. Tyrrell, I understand you desire to present some expert testimony in an effort to prove the mental irresponsibility of this defendant, Nance Belden. I may state that I have already been in telephonic communication with Doctor Blethen, and have had a complete report from him on this case. You may proceed, however, to present your side of it. Who is your witness?"

"Dr. Stephen Burt, your honor," and Tyrrell indicated Stephen.

"I know all about Doctor Burt," the judge said pleasantly. "I had him in my court a year ago as an expert witness in the matter of the Carter will case," he nodded to Stephen. "This court is very much interested in getting at the facts in this case and it is obliged to you for your voluntary attendance. What is your professional opinion of this girl's mentality?"

"I have not had a fair opportunity to study her, your honor," Stephen replied, "hence I am not in a position to give the court more than a snap decision."

"How long have you studied her?"

"About thirty minutes, your honor."

"H'm-m-m! Doctor Blethen examined her on three different occasions, his examinations embodying a total of about six hours' time."

"With all due deference to my distinguished colleague," Stephen replied with his singularly charming smile, "six hours is not usually considered more than sufficient time to form an approximate opinion, which subsequent investigations may set at variance. If this girl were to become a patient of mine today, I should devote many weeks to an effort to demonstrate that my original opinion regarding her was in error."

"Is she crazy, Doctor Burt?"

"Not in the sense that we customarily employ the term, your honor. I should say, rather, that her psychology is abnormal, that she is neither moral nor immoral, but unmoral. For instance, when I asked her why she stole silk stockings, she told me quite frankly that she did it because there were runs in all her old stockings. That reply was very illuminating. As I talked further with her I noted her vainglorious and quickly came to the conclusion that she is suffering from dissociation by reason of shock. In other words, this girl, who doubtless in happier days possessed a single personality and that a normal one, has now acquired a secondary personality. In plain English, two entirely different people inhabit the one body."

"The first personality, which I shall call A, is the result of acquired instincts, habit, education, and repressions imposed on society by convention and the code of procedure which we call morals. This has been submerged wholly or in part by a second personality, which I shall call B, and when B personality rules her she has amnesia for what I have termed her acquired or normal instincts. Out of her unconscious mind then emerge, as definite impulses to action, the old antipathies to such action, which we medical men term conflicts."

"Let me illustrate. We will assume that at this moment she is possessed of her personality A, and in this state she realizes she has runs in all her stockings—that she must have new stockings, but she sees some stockings which she can readily steal. Normal people often have impulses to steal, your honor, and Nance Belden has an impulse to steal the stockings she needs."

"But here a factor intervenes. She has been taught, from the day she manifested thought, that it is wrong to steal, and this moral lesson has impressed itself upon her conscious mind. With repetition, the thought, becoming a habit, dropped out of her conscious mind to become conserved in her unconscious mind. Conserved there, it became a definite part of her personality—her soul, if you will. Thereafter it was not necessary to remind herself that it was wrong to steal. She knew it was, without having to think about it at all, and this unconscious knowledge was her protection in the fleeting moment of temptation, aroused by her definite need and the knowledge that, lacking money to buy the stockings, and faced with the absolute necessity for acquiring stockings, the sole alternative was to steal them. She got no further than that vague, conscious thought. Immediately the knowledge that it was immoral to steal—that nothing could possibly excuse theft—rose out of her unconscious mind and became a dominating conscious thought.

Now, right there appeared the mental phenomenon known among psychiatrists as a complex or conflict. In all conflicts the stronger wins—and in this particular mental conflict, the will not to steal won instantly. It was an older habit of thought. It was an acquired instinct, whereas the impulse to steal was not a habit of thought, because she had never indulged in theft! We say we do a thing on instinct, but really we act after due, if incalculably brief cogitation, based on reason, which is the result of habituation to doing certain things."

"This defendant, your honor, is a healthy girl as far as I can judge from outward appearances. But she is what you often hear referred to as high-strung. And she is so unusually intelligent that I readily realized there must have been a very potent reason for the commission of such an unintelligent act as theft. So immediately I commenced to question her as to her family, her past."

"She could tell me nothing. She is not at all sure that her name is Nance Belden, and I am satisfied that her inability to throw any light on her genealogy was not born of a desire to withhold that information. I believe she has amnesia for a certain period of her life, and we know that such a condition is usually the result of a severe mental shock. In such cases the patient usually has an intense desire to forget absolutely the unhappy, unpleasant or terrifying episode or person that produced the shock, and so intense is the power of will in certain highly sensitive people, women particularly, that not infrequently they succeed! Thus amnesia is produced. It is, in a sense, autohypnosis, and your honor undoubtedly is aware that people who have been hypnotized remember nothing of what occurs during the hypnotic state."

"I believe I follow you," the judge murmured.

"I have shown you why the normal Nance Belden would not steal. But now comes that mental shock I spoke of, with consequent amnesia for all of her life that has preceded it; or it may be a part of that life. With the amnesia comes what we term dissociation or mental disintegration. The unconscious overwhelms the conscious; the acquired instincts of morality—social usage—drop out of the conscious into the unconscious, and the thoughts and impulses that have lain dormant and defeated in the unconscious are now in the saddle. Unfortunates who have acquired dual personalities or a dissociated personality live from one personality into the other and back again, with or without amnesia for the preceding state."

"At a time when Nance Belden's second personality (B) ruled her, and she decided to steal those stockings, she was acting under the impulsion of an idea that could not be combated. To steal had become an acquired instinct, or at least a very strong instinct. There may have been a certain amount of repression against the act at first, but gradually that repressive instinct, i. e., her moral instincts, once part of her conscious mind but now relegated to her unconscious mind, grew weaker, until finally the stronger instinct won, and the result is, we have Nance Belden up before your honor for commitment to San Quentin penitentiary on a suspended sentence for grand theft."

"Have you any theory as to what this mental shock might be, Doctor Burt?"

"I have a very definite theory as to what prepared the ground, so to speak, for the mental shock, but I have not the slightest idea of the nature of the shock."

"This is most interesting, Doctor Burt. Pray explain."

"Look carefully at this defendant, your honor. You see a young woman about five feet, five inches high—normal height for a woman of her age, which I imagine to be about twenty-one or twenty-two. How much do you weigh, Miss Belden?"

"A hundred and twenty-eight, Steve."

"A normal weight, your honor." He took the girl's hand and counted her pulse. Then he took a stethoscope from his pocket, placed it against her left breast and listened. Her pulse and heart beat normally, your honor, and from her appearance of general good health we have no reason to suspect pulmonary trouble. Her skin is clear, soft and smooth; it is free from blemishes—another indication of good health. Her hair is fine and lustrous; not dry and lifeless, as is the case of a person of pronounced psychopathic tendencies. Her eyes are full, lambent, kindly, intelligent. Her brow is full, broad and of medium height, her head a little larger than that of the average woman, and she is broad between the ears—because, as she has brains, nature ordained that she should have room for them. She is neatly dressed and decidedly not a slattern. She gives no indication of dissipation—drugs or alcohol. But mark her nose. It is a grand wreck. A nose like that would cause a continuous mental conflict in any woman."

"But for this lamentable facial defect, this girl would be beautiful. Perhaps she remembers, or used to remember, herself as beautiful or attractive; then this accident occurred and lo, she became an ugly duckling. She brooded upon her misfortune; she wept over it, doubtless she thought it very hard that God should afflict her so. Doubtless the knowledge that she was an object of curiosity or derision to strangers and repugnance to her friends made of her a gloomy, depressed recluse. Who knows what wild, desperate and desolate thoughts she became a prey to? Mental conflicts undoubtedly were at work—an impulse to run away, to hide herself, countered by the natural impulse to make the best of the situation, to be brave, to pretend she was not different."

"In the case of a girl whose mind and nerves had been thus harassed over a long period, a new sorrow, constituting a definite mental shock, even if of no great magnitude, might nevertheless be sufficient to bring about the condition of dissociation of personality which I have described."

"Anything else, Doctor Burt?"

"I have given a concise and general outline of the case as it presents itself to me, your honor. This defendant should have treatment. It is quite possible to cure her and I am morally certain I could do so. Her saddle nose can be repaired. I have a very good friend, a specialist in plastic surgery, and I know he would be willing to help, without charge, to make a swan of this ugly duckling."

"And you think you would make her over into a responsible moral citizen?"

"I think so, your honor."

"How would she support herself during the period of treatment? By theft—or worse?" The judge glanced at Nance Belden. "How do you support yourself, young woman?"

"I carry my own check-book," the girl replied.

"You have a private income?"

"Sure, old thing."

"What is its source?"

"I don't know. On the first of every month somebody puts some money in the bank for me and I check against it."

"And that's all you know about it, eh?"

"Sometimes I can remember, but I can't now. It's the time I can't remember that raises —I with me, Judge. I don't know what name to sign to my checks then or I forget I have a checking account. Then I get hard up and steal."

"How truly remarkable, Miss Belden! Have you ever issued any checks that bounced back on you?"

"Says, are you trying to kid me, Whiskers?"

The judge ignored this obvious contempt of court. "I suppose you have had many sweethearts, Miss Belden?"

Nance Belden's scornful laughter filled the courtroom. "Oh, Judge, you're precious. What sort of a man would pick me for a sweetheart, I ask you? Be yourself, Judge. Now you tell one."

"Why not?" the judge pursued remorselessly.

"Well, maybe because nobody ever asked me," the girl assured him with simple directness. "I don't mind admitting I'd like to have a nice sweetheart if I could find one, but what the h—! is the use trying? I'd only have him a little while; then he'd get ashamed of me. What's the use bothering myself? I know a blind fellow that's mad about me. I've often thought of taking the poor gazabo on for my steady sweetheart, but he makes me so sad I know it wouldn't last. He has that funny staring look, and when he walks with his arms held straight out, it just breaks my heart."

"Where does he live?"

"God knows—now. I was taking care of him when I got pinched. You see, Judge, I took him to a doctor to see if something couldn't be done for his poor eyes, and the doctor said he could be cured, but it would be expensive. He'd have to go east to a very noted specialist, who would charge a lot for the operation. Well, I paid that doctor his bill and that left me short."

"Did the same doctor say anything to you about your nose?"

"Yes, he said he could cure that himself, and to come in when I was ready and he'd put me in a hospital and operate. Gosh, it's some baby, isn't it, Judge?"

"How did it happen?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know anything, do you?"

"Yes, I know something."

"What is it?"

"You haven't the slightest intention of agreeing with Steve. That sheep-faced nut, Bierhen, has given you an earful. You're one of these judges that believes what he wants to believe. Steve's told you I'm nutty, but Steve's wrong. I'm not. Steve's just a good fellow trying to give the little girl a hand."

"So you believe you're quite sane?"

"Of course I am. There's nothing wrong with me except a bad memory, and a beak like the American eagle."

Stephen sighed and shook his head, seeing which, Nance crossed to his side, put her arm around his neck, and laid her cheek against his. "Steve, darling, you'd be a wonderful sweetheart," she assured him, and laughed.

"Your honor," Stephen pleaded, "can't you see she's—"

"I can see she's as intelligent as you say she is, Doctor. In fact, she's more than that. She is very artfully stimulating mental irresponsibility by attempting to spoil the good work of her expert witness. It is my conviction that Doctor Blethen was right when he told me she was the smartest, most ardent criminal type he had ever examined. I believe, with him, that she is incorrigible, and incorrigible criminals should be set apart from society. He turned to his clerk. "I believe the sentence was two years in San Quentin penitentiary. Verify it and prepare the commitment."

"Good G—d," Stephen Burt cried sharply, "you are not going to commit this social outrage, your honor?"

The judge eyed him sourly. "Doctor Burt, you will apologize to the court for that language or I shall fine you fifty dollars for contempt of court."

Stephen Burt drew a fifty-dollar bill from his pocketbook and tossed it on the table.

"Court is adjourned," his honor mumbled, much embarrassed.

The policeman who had brought Nance Belden into Superior court approached her. "If you're a good girl, Nance, I'll not put the cuffs on you."

"You didn't put them on me coming here; so why should you think it necessary now?"

TO HALT RUM SALES AMONG THE INDIANS

Determined to discourage the sale of intoxicating liquor to Indians, based on the government's concerted drive against narcotics and illicit manufacture and sale of liquors, United States Commissioner J. J. LeFebvre announced Saturday that henceforth the minimum bond in liquor cases would be fixed at $1,500 where evidence showed the person arraigned knowingly conspired to violate the law, while in cases where a dealer sells to an Indian bail will not be less than $5,000.

The commissioner's statement follows: "The sale of intoxicating liquor to Indians must stop, and if it is within the province of the commissioner to discourage the sale of liquor to Indians by fixing bond so high that a defendant will probably have trouble in securing it, that is the step the court intends to take."

There will not be a bond fixed at less than $1,500 in any case where there is sufficient evidence to show the person arraigned conspired knowingly to violate the federal law, and when a dealer is involved bail will not be lower than $5,000.

"The sale of liquor to Indians is a felony. It is the cause of crime. In the last few weeks eight Indian deaths have been reported, all due to overindulgence in liquor. Automobile accidents involving Indians in most cases result from the driver being drunk. Life, limb and property of others are placed in jeopardy. It must stop."

107 Lives Week-End Toll

At least 107 persons lost their lives in automobile accidents over the nation during the week-end.

A mother and two small children were killed in a grade crossing accident at Muncie, Ind., in which the father of the family lost both legs and three other persons were injured.

New Jersey officials announced that during state safety week 19 persons had been killed there, one more than the average for previous weeks of the year.

The census bureau at Washington reported automobile deaths in 130 major cities totaled 6,485 for the first 39 weeks of the year, 284 less than during the corresponding period last year.

NORTH IDAHO

IGNORED

By Democrats

On State Ticket

In the selection of candidates for state offices the Democratic Party has completely ignored North Idaho (with the single exception of State Mine Inspector's office.)

If the Democratic Party should be successful in the coming election North Idaho would have NO REPRESENTATION on the State Board of Equalization, Land Board, Pardon Board or Board of Examiners.

Taxation without representation should not be tolerated by any section and deserves the concerted action of all North Idaho citizens.

North Idaho Well Represented

on Republican Ticket

In sharp contrast to the Democratic Party's neglect of North Idaho, this section of the state is well represented on the Republican State ticket by the following candidates:

R. E. THOMAS of Orofino
Candidate for Secretary of State

JAMES W. KEATING of Harrison
Candidate for State Treasurer

MISS ELLEN PETERSON of Moscow
Candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction

North Idaho deserves to be represented in all state matters just as any other section of Idaho deserves representation. And the Republican Party offers the people full representation by three candidates for state office.

The Republican Ticket provides an ideal combination of state officers. Southern Idaho with the largest percentage of taxable wealth will have a majority of members on the state board of equalization. North Idaho with the largest area of standing timber will have a majority of members on the State Land Board.

Big Double Feature

There will be a big double feature at the Kendrick Theatre this Friday and Saturday nights, when there will be shown two full-length films, which will give anyone their money's worth.

The first on the program is one of Zane Grey's famous pictures, "Thunder Mountain"—one of his newest and best books, which has just been dramatized. Geo. O'Brien, that big two-fisted boy that all fans of real Westerns like so well, will have the leading role, with Frances Grant carrying the female stellar role. It's one of those rip-roaring out-door pictures that will make you sit on the edge of your seat during the entire performance.

"Every Saturday Night" is the other feature and is a domestic comedy drama of a typical American family. Dealing with natural human folk, it is told in a natural human way, without any resort to the artificial. It blends drama with comedy, humor with pathos, heartache with heart thrill, as modern youth conflicts with loving but resolute maturity.

NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS OF GOOD ROAD DISTRICT NO. 1 IN LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the Board of Commissioners of Good Road District No. 1 in Latah County, Idaho, of the intention to sell the general obligation refunding coupon bonds of said District in the principal amount of $21,000.00.

The foregoing bonds shall be dated July 1st, 1936, and shall bear interest at a rate not in excess of six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and shall be of the denomination of $500.00 each, and shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of said District or at the office of the Treasurer of the State of Idaho, or at some bank or trust company in the City and State of New York, or at some bank or trust company in the State of Idaho, all as hereafter designated by the Board of Commissioners of said District prior to the issuance of such bonds; and said bonds shall mature and be payable annually commencing at the end of the second year from date of said bonds, as follows: Bonds aggregating $3,000.00 in each of the years 1938 and 1939; bonds aggregating $2,500.00 in each of the years 1940 and 1941; and bonds aggregating $4,000.00 in each of the years 1942 and 1943. The District reserves the right to redeem any or all of the bonds of the foregoing final maturity on or after one year from the date of said refunding bonds.

None of said bonds shall be sold for less than par and accrued interest to date of delivery.

Sealed bids for said bonds are requested and required. Bidders therefor shall submit sealed written bids specifying

(a) the lowest rate of interest and premium, if any above par, at which the bidder will purchase such bonds, or

(b) the lowest rate of interest at which the bidder will purchase such bonds at par, and each such bid (except from any bid which may be received from the State of Idaho, or its Department of Public Investments) is required to be accompanied by a certified check made payable to the Treasurer of said District in an amount equaling five per cent (5%) of the amount of any such bid, or by a cash deposit in like amount, which such certified check or cash deposit shall be returned or forfeited or applied upon the purchase of said bonds as provided by subparagraph (c) of Section 5 of Chapter 262 of the Session Laws of Idaho of 1927.

Sealed bids for said bonds will be received by the Board of Commissioners of said District at any time prior to 3 o'clock p. m. on the 13th day of November, 1936, at the office of said Board being at Kendrick State Bank, Kendrick, Idaho, at which time and place thus specified in this notice the said Board of Commissioners of said District will meet in public meeting for the purpose of considering any bids which may be received therefore and for the purpose of awarding such bonds or any part thereof as may be deemed advisable, or rejecting any and all bids therefore.

All bids for said bonds shall be unconditional.

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF GOOD ROAD DISTRICT NO. 1 IN LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO.

By A. ALEXANDER, President.
 ATTEST: F. C. LYONS, Secretary. 43-3

NOTICE OF BOND CALL AND REDEMPTION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the Board of Commissioners of Good Road District No. 1, Latah County, Idaho, that said District has exercised its option to redeem, and will pay and redeem, on the 22nd day of November, 1936, the following described bonds of said District, viz:

Forty-two (42) bonds numbered as hereinafter set forth in this Notice, dated June 1, 1925 (being a part of an original bond issue of $65,000.00) of the denomination of $500.00 each, bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable annually on the first day of February of each year, payable, both principal and interest, at the Bank of America, City of New York, State of New York, United States of America, said outstanding bonds being numbered and maturing as follows, viz:

Nos. 67 to 69, inclusive, June 1, 1938, $1,500.00
 Nos. 71 to 74, inclusive, June 1, 1939, $2,000.00
 Nos. 76 to 79, inclusive, June 1, 1939, $2,000.00
 Nos. 85 to 88, inclusive, June 1, 1940, $3,000.00
 Nos. 95 to 106, inclusive, June 1, 1941, $6,000.00
 Nos. 107 to 117, inclusive, June 1, 1942, $5,500.00
 Nos. 127 to 128, inclusive, June 1, 1943, $1,000.00

which said bonds are redeemable under the laws of Idaho at any time on or after ten years from the date thereof.

The holders or owners of any of said bonds are hereby notified to present the same for payment at the office of the Treasurer of said District in Kendrick, Latah County, Idaho, or at the place of payment named above, or at the bank known as the Kendrick State Bank in Kendrick, Latah County, Idaho, on said date, when the same will be paid. You are further notified that after the foregoing date of redemption interest on said bonds will cease.

By Order of the Board of Commissioners of Good Road District No. 1, Latah County, Idaho.

RAMEY HUNT,
 Treasurer of foregoing District. 43-3

Walt May and Don Barnett returned from their hunting trip. They bagged two deer and an elk.

Dine In Pajamas

Pajamas may be worn to dinner this fall, and just to show how slinky they can be, one designer created a pair made of black sequins. A full-length transparent trimmed with bands of scarlet sequins goes with this outfit, guaranteed to make your dinner party "different."

Dinner pajamas are also being shown in all shades of velvet and satin; and it's chic to combine colors—for example, pale blue satin jacket and slacks and satin blouse of egg-plant color.

Both lounging and dinner pajamas for fall have trousers cut like slacks. Some velveteen slacks have tuck-in blouses of jersey or contrasting color flannel; and the gay contrasts include gray with coral or two shades of one color.
