INTERESTING NEWS NOTES FROM OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

On Thursday of last week a peanut shower, sponsered by the student body, in honor of Mr. Lyle, as an April fool joke, was given and took him completely off his guard. While the peanuts were being eaten entertainment in songs was given by the different classes, the faculty, and Nolan Weeks and Harry Wegner sang several duets.

On Friday of last week the Student Body was again entertained by a show given by Wally Herman, advertising agent for the Western Cartridge Company. He gave an interesting exhibition of shooting and showed us the proper use and handling of rifles and pistols.

DISCOVER PREHISTORIC FISH IN CLEARWATER

Recent discovery of several complete skeletons of fish in prehistoric formation exposed in the Clearwater river canyon about 11 miles upstream from Lewiston adds another interesting and valuable bit to the geologic history of Idaho and the Pacific Northwest.

This discovery is reported in So far as Idaho geoligists know this skeletons have been found in what scientists call the "Latah formation" -which dates back somewhere between 12 and 20 million years and which already has yielded evidence its work of towing log rafts or ships that this country once had a climate and plant life very simialar to that now found in the southeastern states, the Carolinas, Georgia, and Alabama.

To the vertabrate paleontologists -student of prehistoric animal life this discovery is significant, Mr. Schied points out. It gives him another valuable addition to his picture of animal life before the great lava flows. To a layman it is interesting as a practical manifestation that the earth writes its own history in its rocks and deposits.

About a year ago Dr. F. B. Lanev. head of the geology department, reported discovery of carbonized logs from prehistoric trees near the North and South highway in Benewah county. Those trees were growing when the great lava flows came and turned them to charcoal. When those trees were growing the fish that Mr. Schied reports probably were swimming lazily in a pond or lake in the present Clearwater river country unmindful of the fact that great lava flows were gathering in the west and making ready to move inland and change completely the surface of the country.

"There are some 200,000 square miles of territory in California, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington and a small part of British Columbia covered by the big lava flows," explains Dr. Laney. "In only a few places is it possible for us to get a peek at the formations below the lava. Hence every discovery of plant and animal life remains in the prehistoric formation is of great value in completing the geologic history of our country."

Peary's Ship Now a Tug.

ing at 8:00.

Commodore Robert E. Peary's historic polar exploration ship, the Roosevelt, is now a tug. The boat now lies off a tropic beach at Cristobal. Panama Canal Zone, awaiting drydock inspection that may determine its fate.

The Roosevelt, a triple hulled veteran of grinding ice and Arctic storms, oozes tar in the heat and bears the scars of a recent 80 mile gale in the Caribbean sea. But its owners, the Washington Tug and Barge Company, announced that the ship is structurally sound to continue Reports reached San Fransisco that the craft had been abandoned and beached after its crew gave up efforts to tow the old navy collier Jason from Seattle to New York. A relief tug continued the trip. But according to the owners, the Roosevelt wasn't done for.

The ship was built in 1905 at Buckport, Me., and twice forced its way through the polar ice pack to 82 degrees north. It was frozen in at Cape Sheridan—the farthest north any ship has been ice-locked. Peary made his dash to the north pole from Cape Sheridan in 1908 after disaster overtook his expedition in

The 182 foot vessel used a combination of sail and steam. Now the Roosevelt, without masts, has a notable record of work done along the Pacific Coast. On some occasions it has towed one million feet of logs, it is reported.
