ATTY. GENERAL TAYLOR WRITES OF STATE PROBLEMS

Although it has fallen into comparative disuse in recent years, the Grand Jury has existed as an institution in Idaho since many years prior to statehood and has been resorted to continuously in various states down to the present time. Its power as an instrument for the enforcement of law has always been recognized, and in the past few years has been especially demonstrated in some parts of the United States.

The Grand Jury is especially useful under conditions which frequently make it difficult, or even impossible, to secure evidence in the ordinary course of judicial inquiry. Frequently private citizens are afraid to institute proceedings in certain cases by signing criminal complaints against those implicated because they dislike or fear to incur the displeasure of the persons or groups who are brought into the court for investigation. This attitude is overcome, in part at least, by the fact that no complaints need be signed to institute criminal action and the proceedings before the Grand Jury are secret. Since all persons may be required to appear and give their testimony, the natural reluctance to take the initiative is obviated, while the secrecy of the proceedings enables the timorous witnesses to submit testimony which ordinarily it would be very difficult, if not indeed impossible, to secure. Moreover, the Grand Jury overcomes, in some cases at least, reluctance of some prosecuting attorneys to undertake cases against persons of power or political influence, while the Grand Jury when once in session, has full control over the situation and can investigate whom it pleases. In the recent crime investigation carried on in New York City, the Grand Jury became impatient with the reluctance of the prosecutor and had a special attorney appointed to assist in its activities, with the result that New York had its first clean-up of gangsters and grafters.

Probably because this institution has been so little employed in Idaho, a Grand Jury receives and is receiving rather unusual attention. It is confidently asserted in some quarters that the forthcoming Grand Jury is being called for the purpose of "putting slot machines and pin ball machines out of business" and for the purpose of "impeaching every prosecuting attorney in the State." It is asserted in particular that the Bureau of Highways is being paralyzed because a Grand Jury is being called "out of spite and malice," in spite of the fact that highway activities appear to be progressing pretty much as usual and an extensive program of improvements is being heralded frequently in the public press. It is declared that an investigation of that department is something of an outrage, although more than $40,000,000 of public money has been expended on roads over a period of years without any audit or investigation. Various other bureaus and departments are very regularly audited with little or no comment, yet this particular branch of the state's activities has been allowed to run unchecked and unquestioned to an extent that would not be tolerated in any private enterprise. One would hardly imagine a private concern permitting the spending of such a vast sum to go on year after year without a check. Yet immediately upon the introduction of the bill authorizing the audit, at the last legislature, every known trick and device was interposed to prevent its enactment.

In spite of the determined effort to block it, the audit is nothing more or less than good business practice, and common sense. It is better to investigate the operation of various state departments periodically than to wake up some day and find such conditions as were brought to light a short time ago in the City of Boise.

DISTRIBUTE, DON'T DESTROY CROPS, SAYS BORAH

Congress is not dealing with farm legislation to meet an emergency, but is seeking to establish a permanent policy for agriculture. Things which may be justified to meet an emergency may be extremely unwise as a permanent policy. It does not seem to me that compulsory reduction of crops, in other words compulsory destruction of foodstuffs, has any place in a sound permanent agricultural policy. In this country we have millions, literally millions, in great need of those things which it is proposed by some that we destroy. We ought to thank our farmers every day of our lives for the energy and industry and intelligence which gives that country a surplus and devote ourselves to finding a wise method of distributing that surplus rather than destroying it.

This surplus of foodstuffs belongs in the stomachs of American children, millions of whom are undernourished and poorly clad, and in the homes and cupboards of millions of families. It is wicked to penalize the farmer, to put him in a straight-jacket, for producing that which the American people sorely need but which we have not yet found a way to distribute. If the American people as a whole, could have the necessities of life, there would not be any overproduction upon the farm. Our task of legislation is not destruction but distribution.

If it is found necessary to draw upon the public treasury in order to deal with the farm problem, I would rather support a measure to buy up and store the surplus and see that it gets to those in need of it, rather than to buy destruction. It has been demonstrated that if the American people as a whole could enjoy a decent standard of living, they would need at least ten million more food producing acres to meet the demand.

We are told that we are now following the plan, in a measure, of that inspired Hebrew leader who, thousands of years ago in Egypt, undertook to deal with surpluses. But there was no curtailment of production, no reduction of production in Joseph's scheme. Joseph had many strange dreams but he never dreamed of destroying foodstuffs. The central idea of Joseph's plan was production and distribution at the right time and under the proper circumstances.

We have a surplus in this country not because of producing more than we need but because a vast proportion of our people have not the means to buy what they ought to have. You can go into millions of American homes, not relief homes, either, and you will find the housewife cutting out the meat supply more and more days in the week, skipping here and there on food, because they are undernourished. While that condition prevails in this country, I feel we ought to find some way to deal with the matter rather than by compulsory reduction of foodstuffs.

Let us consider this question from another point. The able Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Wallace, spoke a while ago at Memphis on the Cotton Control question. Mr. Wallace is too candid to discuss effectively a reduction scheme. It appears that since we began cotton reduction and control, foreign nations have increased their cotton supply by more than ten million bales. When we advertise to the world that we are going to reduce our acreage in any world commodity it excites other nations to increase their acreage, which other nations are now doing. The cotton producer is in almost as serious a condition now as he ever experienced. What has happened to the cotton grower will inevitably happen to those who produce wheat or corn under the same policy. Our good neighbor, Canada, will put in two additional acres of wheat for every acre we reduce. Our good neighbor in the south, Argentina, will do likewise to corn; and with our trade agreements opening markets to this increased production abroad, where will the American farmer finally land?

Another thing which our candid Secretary of Agriculture states, in effect, is that as America's share of the world's cotton crop continues to decrease, we must from time to

In the last quarter but one point was made, the final score being 14 to 13 in favor of Kendrick. This game was featured by very close guarding, and both teams missed a large percentage of their free throws. Wallace lead the scoring for Kendrick with seven points. For The Poor Man

The government, after using many and various-hued pencils, have finally figured out that "cheap" homes can be built for as little as from $3,000 to $6,000. This is indeed good news for the man of average means—or the WPA worker. He will have the privilege of paying rent to the government for the balance of his life. The government has built some 125,000 houses at an average cost of $5,947—for the man of average salary. In our judgment, the man who can afford a $5,947 home, doesn't need government aid.

WHEAT MARKETS FIRMER: FEED GRAINS STEADY

Wheat markets turned firmer during the first week in December, influenced by a more active eastern inquiry and less favorable prospects in Argentina, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Feed grains held about unchanged with the moderate offerings moving readily into consuming channels.

The general wheat situation was strengthened materially with further confirmation of severe frost damage to the Argentine crop. No official estimate of the Argentine production is yet available, but trade estimates place the crop at around 194,000,000 bushels, compared with approximately 248,000,000 bushels harvested last season and estimate that only about 50,000,000 bushels will be available for shipment to Europe, since about 40,000,000 bushels will probably be taken by Brazil and other non-European countries. Harvest is now in progress, and the week's shipments of 368,000 bushels included some new wheat to Brazil.

The Australian harvest is about 80 per cent completed in New South Wales and about 16,000,000 bushels have already moved to elevators. Australian shippers offered new wheat freely and overseas shipments were reported at 2,876,000 bushels. Shipments from Black Sea ports totaled 2,120,000 bushels of which 960,000 bushels were from Russia. With prospects of continued light exports from Argentina, European buyers turned more to North American wheat and fairly large purchases of both Canadian and United States wheat were reported. Germany purchased 1,000,000 bushels of United States hard winter wheat according to trade reports.

The Liverpool market reflected the firmer wheat situation and prices of the principal wheats advanced 4c to 6c per bushel. At the close of the week, United States No. 2 hard winter was quoted at $1.18½, Pacific coast white wheat at $1.11½, No. 3 Canadian Manitoba from Atlantic ports at $1.39½.

The Winnipeg market gained along with Liverpool with a more active export inquiry for Canadian wheat. Cash prices at Winnipeg advanced 6c to 7c per bushel with No. 3 Manitoba Northern quoted December 3 at $1.11.

Domestic cash wheat markets strengthened materially, influenced by the broadening in the export demand, a material falling off in market receipts and a steady inquiry from the domestic trade. Receipts of wheat at the principal terminals were about a million bushels below those of the previous week and totaled 2,463,000 bushels. Marketings of winter wheat were about equal to those of the previous week with 3,162 cars reported at the principal terminals.

Trading at Kansas City was moderate with the approach of the inventory and holiday period ending to limit the flour trade. Shipments to the gulf on previous sales remained heavy and loadings for shipment to outside mills were also fairly large.

Purchases of hard winter wheat by Germany and of soft winter by Mexico were strengthening influences in the cash market and No. 2 hard winter was quoted December 3 at 95c to 96c.

At Chicago cash premiums were well maintained on the lighter offerings and prices of cash grains advanced along with futures. No. 2 hard red winter was quoted at the close of the week at $1.00 to $1.03, No. 2 soft red winter at 96c to 99½c per bushel. The better grades were readily taken at St. Louis by millers and order buyers with the lower grades going principally to elevators.

Marketings of spring wheat dropped off materially with 399 cars received at Minneapolis and 97 cars at Duluth. As a result of the lighter receipts and the firm market at Winnipeg, cash prices advanced 3c to 4c per bushel. Durum wheat advanced slightly less than bread wheat but current offerings were in good demand from millers. No. 2 amber durum was quoted at Minneapolis at 85½c to 89½c.

Intermountain and Pacific Coast markets also turned firmer although gains were less than at eastern points. At Denver local mills were bidding 83c per bushel for No. 2 hard winter and No. 2 northern spring FOB shipping points and at Ogden mills were offering 71c per

Between the upper and the nether millstones of increased production abroad and decreased production at home, the American farmer will not only lose the foreign market but will have to fight for his life in the home market.

"Turn Off The Moon"

Along comes another of those comedies, with music, that most everyone so thoroughly enjoys. There is a splendid cast in which is Chas. Ruggles and Kenny Baker, of the Kenny Baker-Phil Harris radio team—of the Jack Benny variety. There isn't much of a plot but there is a world of good music, banter and pretty girls. The picture has a good deal of kidding reference to astrology.

Charles Ruggles is a department store owner whose astrologist tells him he must bring to a successful conclusion the romance of a youthful couple before the stars will permit him to complete his own romance with a long-awaited and impatient fiancée. Gags of various kinds keep the young romancers from getting together until the end of the picture, whereupon their employer also gets married. It's a picture all will enjoy.

White West Highland Is Affinity of Cairn Breed

The White West Highland is a close affinity of the Cairn terrier and is not a White Scottish terrier as they are often miscalled, states a writer in the Los Angeles Times. Used to hunt vermin in the same fashion as other small terrier breeds, they were raised in Scotland for many years, but never attracted much attention until this century. When first exhibited in Edinburgh, Scotland, they were called Poltalloch terriers in honor of the district from which they came. Col. E. D. Malcom of Poltalloch is the first known breeder on record and it is thought that he perfected the breed from several strains of very light-colored Scot-ties or impure specimens. Gradually their fame spread and their popularity increased. The original name was rather limited and so the name of White Scottish terrier was adopted. This brought forth objections from the Scottie breeders until finally the name of the White West Highland was agreed upon and allowed as the official breed name. Much too long for everyday use the nickname of "Westie" is the pet term of those who love and raise them. Merry and gay in disposition, these short-legged terriers differ from their cousin, the Cairn, in color and size. The Cairn should never be lighter than a cream, and your Westie never anything but a pure white. In size they run from two to four pounds heavier, the male being distributed in body size. Dogs will tip the scales from seven to nineteen pounds; females from thirteen to seventeen.

Conservation Laws Old, According to Authority

Definite mention of conservation of both birds and trees is made in the laws of Moses over 2,500 years ago, cites a writer in the Detroit News. On trees we find this: "When thou shalt besiege a city a long time in making war against it to take it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an ax against them, for thou mayest eat against them, and thou shalt not cut them down (for the tree of the field is man's life) to employ them in the siege." Deuteronomy 20:19. Then touching on birds we read: "If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in any tree or on the ground, whether they be young ones or eggs, and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, thou shalt not take the dam with the young." Deuteronomy 22:6.

Mottos of London Companies

Some of the mottos of the City Companies of London are very curious. The Blacksmiths', for instance, have for their motto, "By hammer and hand all arts do stand"; the Butchers', "Omnia subjecisti sub pedibus, oves et boves"; the Clockmakers', "Tempus rerum Imperator"; the Distillers', "Drop as rain, distil as dew"; the Founders', "God the only Founder"; the Framework Knitters', "Speed, strength, and truth united"; the Innholders', "Come ye blessed when I was harborless, ye lodged me"; the Joiners', "Join loyalty and liberty"; the Saddlers', "Hold fast, sit sure"; the Salters', "Sal sapit omnia"; the Watermen's, "By command of our superiors"; Weavers', "Weave truth with trust"; and the Needlemakers', "They sewed leaves together and made themselves aprons."

Bricks With Straw

When the Israelites were in bondage in Egypt brick making was one of their chief occupations. These bricks were made of clay, dug from the banks of the Nile, to which was added straw to make the clay stick together. The bricks were dried in the sun. When King Pharaoh wanted to punish the Israelites he ordered their taskmasters not to give them straw for their brickmaking but to require them to go out and gather it for themselves. The record says that Pharaoh commanded: "Go ye get you straw where ye can find it; yet nought of your work shall be diminished. So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw."

Salt and Social Standing

Salt was a gauge of social standing in the early days of Christianity. The early dining tables were long, crude affairs and at first the huge salt cellar or bowl was placed in the center. Gradually this was moved toward the head of the table, where honored guests and the nobility were seated. From this was developed the expression, "he sits above or below the salt," which is taken to definitely announce the social standing.

The Beisa Antelope

The long, rapier-like horns of the beisa antelope enable him to prevail now and then over the fangs and claws of the king of beasts. Oddly enough, African hunters say the beisa shares this distinction with the giraffe, a creature which seems timid, awkward and harmless, with a vulnerable length of neck, and fragile, still-like legs. Yet the front hoofs of the giraffe are sharp, and his legs muscular. His thrusts have been known to cut a lion to death.

Screw Propellers Rated Impossible Century Ago

The screw propeller, almost universally used for the propulsion of ships, was invented a century ago. John Ericsson, the Swedish engineer, took out a patent in England on a screw propeller on July 13, 1836. Six weeks before an Englishman, F. P. Smith, had obtained a patent on a propeller of an entirely different design. Ericsson thought it would be necessary to use the propeller in double form, using two drums, each with the blades pitched in opposite directions, the drums to be rotated in tandem in opposite directions in order to overcome the rotary effects which the operation of one propeller would give to the water.

In the following year Ericsson demonstrated his propeller, which was installed on a ship and used on the River Thames. He towed a navy barge on the river, behind his screw propeller ship, but the navy showed no interest in his successful demonstration, according to Nature in its "Science News a Century Ago." He afterward learned that Sir William Symonds, surveyor of the navy, reported that "even if the propeller had the power of propelling a vessel it would be found altogether useless in practice because the power being applied to the stern, it would be absolutely impossible to make the vessel steer."

Used Postal Money for Gifts to King's Friends

Thomas Witherings, "postmaster of England and foreign parts," received his appointment from King Charles I, and in the two years, 1635-37, carried out such sweeping innovations that he left a postal system that was extremely profitable, because of its speed and low cost of communication. The handling of mail was a source of revenue to the crown. The receipts of the postal system provided a great sum of money from which the king could reward his friends. From 1653 to 1687, the inland posts of the country were auctioned off to the highest bidder and the winner ran the post office as a private and commercial enterprise.

In 1683 the king granted large annuities to his favorites. Every year following saw more names on the royal pension list, until the moneys diverted for patronage amounted to one-third of the total receipts of the postoffice. This condition endured for a century and a half, according to a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer, and it was not until 1856 that the last pensioner was bought off. At that time the Duke of Grafton gave a quit-claim to his grant forever for the tidy sum of 91,000 pounds sterling ($455,000).

Famous French Crown Jewels

The famous French crown jewels were lost during the Revolution, among them being the famous Regent diamond and the Dragon or Cote de Bretagne ruby, both of which were subsequently recovered. The Regent or Pitt diamond was sold by Thomas Pitt, governor of Fort St. George, to Philip of Orleans, and was at various times mounted in the crown, on the mound, and on the hilt of the state sword. In 1848 the crown jewels were scheduled for sale, a scheme which was not carried out, but by a law of 1887 they were sold at auction, and only a few, such as the Regent, were retained by the state and are preserved in the Louvre.

First Circus Tights

The use of tights for circus performers is said to go back to 1848. Before that, performers wore short jackets, knee breeches and stockings. One afternoon a rider in the John Robinson show misplaced his costume, as the story goes, and before he could find it, had to appear in the ring. He did his turn in his underwear. The freedom of action thus afforded was so great that the fashion created by necessity became more and more favored, until long drawers developed into tights.

Music of the Greeks

Music was considered by the Greeks as an important adjunct of their culture. It also served as a luxurious pastime of the nobility. The instruments of the Greeks were the lyra, kithara, phorminx, magadis and trigonon, all stringed instruments and much alike. Of the wind instruments, the flute assumed a position of importance, while accounts from the year 396 B. C. state that Timaeus and Krates were the victors upon the trumpet at the Olympic games.

A True Friend

A friend! What is a friend? My friend is he who laughs with me, who weeps with me; one who encourages, praises, rebukes; who comes to me at the wedding feast or stands with me beside the coffin; who listens to my hopes, my fears, my aims, my despair; who rejoices in my successes; who does not despise me in my misfortunes.

Passing Judgment on Ourselves

We are in a better position to form a judgment of ourselves than of others, though less apt to express it.

French Farmers Maintain Their Family Cemeteries

Like India's towers of silence, where the Parsees place their dead before they are removed to their ultimate burial place, so have the farming districts around Poitou and Saintonge in central France a strange burial custom, notes a United Press correspondent.

The attention of a visitor in these regions is attracted by the clumps of four cypress trees set out in a square some twenty-five to thirty feet apart which dot the landscape. Few know that here are the private family cemeteries of the French Protestant farmers. The districts of Poitou and Saintonge always have been the strongholds of Protestantism in France and ever since the days of Catholic persecution the Protestants have buried their dead on their farms.

The people of Poitou are affable and readily permit strangers to pass through the farms to little family cemeteries which usually are situated some fifty yards behind the house. A space about the size of a large room, enclosed within a thick hedge, a cypress tree at each corner, is the last resting place of those who have labored on the farm.

On passing the hedge the traveler finds half a dozen humble graves, a wooden cross here and there. Tombstones are rare. The cemeteries never grow in size, for the newest grave is dug in the dust of the oldest.

Canadians Keep Customs of Normandy, Brittany

A country within a country, the French Canadian Province of Quebec, although under British rule since 1763, retains customs and traditions which the early pioneers brought from Normandy and Brittany more than four centuries ago.

In some of the smaller and more remote villages inhabitants learn the news from the town crier who stands on the steps of the parish church Sunday mornings after mass and in French calls out the events of the week.

Dog-drawn carts deliver milk and bread at the doorsteps of ancient houses in the lower sections of Quebec around Murray Bay and Cap a L'Aigle.

Spinning looms, hand-loom and hand-hewn furniture are found in almost every village home and the clothes of the inhabitants are frequently spun as well as tailored by their women folk.

Nose Betrays Character

It is the nose, rather than the mouth, which betrays character. All other features can be consciously controlled, but the quivering of the nostrils will often reveal an inward unrest even when the other features remain tense and immobile, according to a writer in Pearson's Weekly. Most famous soldiers have possessed Roman noses. Wellington and Napoleon were two. The man with pinched nostrils may have considerable ability, but he lacks the will power to get there. Pinched nostrils usually denote a pronounced inferiority complex. The straight Grecian nose indicates artistic ability; the large, fairly thick nose is the hall-mark of the financial genius; the long, thin nose is suggestive of the quarrelsome type, while, at the other extreme, the good-humored, door-mat type of person will usually be the possessor of a pug nose.

Cumin Seed

Cumin seed is a commercial product imported chiefly from Malta, Sicily and India. The cumin is an annual herb of the parsley family, a native of Egypt and Syria and is mentioned several times in the Bible, as in Matthew 23, "Ye pay tithes of mint and anise and cumin." From ancient times these aromatic seeds containing a pungent oil have been used for flavoring, as a condiment, and for medicinal purposes. The Talmud mentions it as a means to stanch bleeding and to cure colic, but its curative properties are employed chiefly in veterinary practice. The seeds of other plants are known also as cumin; black cumin being the product of nigella sativa, related to one of our common garden flowers, and sweet cumin or anise the product of pimpinella anisum.

Value of Guinea Pigs

The guinea pig or cavy is commonly kept as a pet, possessing the advantages of being clean, harmless and without offensive odor. From a commercial point of view, his value is for laboratory and experimental purposes. The original ancestors of the domestic guinea pig are thought to have lived in the highlands of Peru, where they were domesticated by the Incas. They were allowed to run freely about the homes of their owners and were probably bred for their food value.

Battle of the Flowers

The battle of the flowers is a feature of carnival celebrations which originated at Nice. Vehicles are adorned with flowers and as they are driven through the streets the occupants salute their friends by throwing flowers at them. The greeting is returned in kind and the battle continues for many hours. In many continental cities the battles take place at other times.

The Electric Age

The use of electricity is today almost 25 times what it was 35 years ago, according to W. C. Mullendore, executive vice-president of the southern California Edison Company. Its cost is only one-third what it was then. This remarkable reduction of cost has been achieved in spite of the fact that operating expenses of almost all kinds have risen, and the industry's tax bill is 94 times as great as it was in 1902.

Cold figures cannot adequately tell what this remarkable record of service means to the American people. Expressed in human terms, it means that where only a small proportion of homes enjoyed the blessings of electric power at the beginning of the century, more than 80 per cent of all homes have electricity today. It means that we can use power to operate radios, refrigerators, stoves and other labor-saving equipment for less than we used to pay for lighting alone. It means that the average family's electric bill is actually less than its tobacco bill, and a great deal less than its theatre and amusement bill. It means that hundreds of thousands of farmers have been provided with power that performs swiftly, efficiently and cheaply, tasks of back-breaking severity.

Private capital started the electric industry. Private initiative and energy developed it. Vision foresaw its magnificent potentialities. In other lands, where electric developments have been dominated by government, progress has been nowhere near as great. There the dampening hand of politics has deprived their peoples of electricity's maximum aids to a happier, more comfortable life.

We are still in the beginning of the electric age. If we make sure that the utility industry is left in the hands of private individuals, under suitable state regulation, and is kept free from politics and bureaucracy, the future will bring wonders now undreamed of.

ORDINANCE NO. 31

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING TO CLEARWATER VALLEY LIGHT & POWER ASSOCIATION, INC., A CORPORATION, ITS SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS, THE RIGHT, PRIVILEGE AND FRANCHISE TO PLACE, ERECT, LAY, MAINTAIN, OPERATE, REPAIR, REMOVE OR REPLACE IN, UPON AND UNDER THE STREETS, ALLEYS, AVENUES, THOROUGHFARES, PUBLIC HIGHWAYS AND PUBLIC GROUNDS IN THE VILLAGE OF JULIAETTA, STATE OF IDAHO, POLES, CONDUITS, WIRES, CABLES, TRANSFORMERS AND OTHER APPLIANCES AND CONDUCTORS FOR THE TRANSMISSION OF ELECTRICITY.

Be it ordained by the Mayor and Board of Trustees of the Village of Juliaetta, Idaho:

Section 1. That the Village of Juliaetta does hereby grant to Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors and assigns, the right, privilege and franchise to place, erect, lay, maintain, operate, repair, remove or replace in, upon and under the streets, alleys, avenues, thoroughfares, public highways and public grounds of the Village of Juliaetta, State of Idaho, poles, conduits, wires, cables, transformers and other appliances or conductors for the transmission of electricity. Such wires, cables and other appliances and conductors may be strung on poles or other fixtures above ground, or, at the option of the grantee, its successors or assigns, may be laid underground in pipes or conduits or otherwise protected, and such other apparatus may be used as may be necessary or proper to maintain the same.

Section 2. Permission is hereby granted to, and it is hereby made lawful for, the said Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors and assigns, to make all needful excavation in any of the streets, alleys, avenues, thoroughfares, public highways and public grounds in the Village of Juliaetta, State of Idaho, for the purpose of placing, erecting, laying, maintaining, operating, removing, repairing, replacing poles, conduits or other supports or conductors for said wires and cables. Said work, however, shall at all times be done in compliance with the reasonable and necessary rules, regulations, ordinances or orders which may, from time to time, during the continuance of this franchise, be adopted by the governing body of said Village of Juliaetta, Idaho.

Section 3. In event said Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors or assigns, shall, in the exercise of the rights hereby granted, or otherwise, disturb any of the streets, alleys, avenues, thoroughfares, public highways or public grounds for the purposes aforesaid, it shall restore same to good order and condition as soon as possible and without unnecessary delay, and failing to do so, the Village of Juliaetta shall have the right to fix a time which shall be reasonable within which such repairs shall be completed; and in event said Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors or assigns, shall fail to make such repairs within such time, then the Village of Juliaetta may cause such repairs to be made at the expense of said Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors or assigns.

Section 4. Nothing in this ordinance shall be construed in any wise to prevent the proper authorities of said Village of Juliaetta from in any manner repairing, altering or improving any of the streets, alleys, avenues, thoroughfares or public highways or places within said Village of Juliaetta in or upon which the poles, wires or other conductors of said Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors or assigns, shall be placed, but all such work or improvements so inaugurated by said Village of Juliaetta shall be done so as not to interrupt the electric service being rendered by Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors or assigns, and so as not to obstruct or prevent, insofar as is reasonably possible, the free and uninterrupted use of all said poles, wires, conduits, conductors or other apparatus placed in, upon or under said streets, highways and public property within said Village of Juliaetta, Idaho, under the rights and privileges hereby granted.

Section 5. If, at any time hereafter, it shall become necessary to temporarily rearrange, remove, lower or raise the aerial cables, wires or other apparatus of the grantee in order to permit the passage of any building, machinery or other object, said grantee shall perform such rearrangement on not less than five days written notice from the person or persons desiring to move said building, machinery or other object. Said notice shall bear the approval of the proper Village official designated by the Board of Trustees for such purposes, shall detail the route of movement of such building, machinery or other object, and shall provide that the costs, incurred by the grantee in making such arrangement will be borne by the person or persons giving such notice, and shall provide that the person or persons giving said notice will indemnify and save said grantee harmless from any and all damages or claims or whatsoever kind or nature caused directly or indirectly from such temporary rearrangement, as may, under the provisions hereof, be directed to be made.

Section 6. The rights, privileges and franchise hereby granted shall continue and be in force for the period of twenty-five (25) years from and after the date this ordinance becomes effective.

Section 7. In consideration of the rights and privileges hereby granted to the said Clearwater Valley Light & Power Association, Inc., a corporation, its successors and assigns, shall agree to pay and shall pay annually to said Village of Juliaetta, Idaho, the sum of One Dollar ($1.00), said sum to be paid on the effective date of this ordinance and annually thereafter.

Notice is hereby given that I, E. R. Brown, constable of Latah county, Idaho, will sell at public auction, to the highest and best bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States, at the Alva Craig place, about 14 miles east of Kendrick, on Cedar creek, in Latah County, Idaho, the following described cow: One yearling roan heifer; with horns, no brands.

Above sale to take place on Saturday, December 18, 1937.
Dated Dec. 1, 1937.
E. R. Brown, Constable.

THE gigantic Christmas tree in Fountain square was ablaze with colored lights and decorations. Christmas eve had arrived and the snowy atmosphere was beautifully depositing the finishing touches to the grand and wonderful community tree. Even though all the celebrations had taken place elsewhere the big tree had never failed to stand in its place of honor in the center of town on Christmas eve.

Mirth, happiness and laughter fairly bounded through the joyous Christmas crowds as they thronged the streets blinking through the snowflakes and hurrying on to celebrations. They seemed to take the community tree for granted until the illustrious sound of sleighbells was heard in the distance. Sleighbells on Christmas eve—how delectable! All eyes were turned in the direction from which they came.

Soon the object of the delightful disturbance came into sight. A bright red sleigh drawn by six horses, cleverly decorated to represent reindeers, turned the corner and headed toward Fountain square. All traffic was stopped instantly as the children made a frantic rush to meet their Santa—the real Santa Claus from the North pole!

"It must be the real one," shouted one little fellow, "for only the really true one has reindeers. I know, 'cause my mother told me so."

Midst wild shouts of merriment Santa, himself, in his bright red and white costume and long white beard, alighted from the sleigh with a jovial, good-natured, "Merry Christmas, merry Christmas to you all!" The children swarmed about him in uncontrollable confusion as he joyously dragged forth pack after pack bulging with bright colored toys and dolls of all descriptions.

What could it mean? Who was this strange real Santa Claus with sleigh and reindeers from the North pole? The people marvelled! The children were bolsterous and completely out of control. Everyone forgot his own particular celebration and lingered on to see what it was all about.

Then jolly old St. Nick, his beard flying in the breezes, began digging down into his packs and passing out the toys to the youngsters.

"Oh, boy!" shouted one, "see what I got—an airplane." Then two little girls cried out, joyously, as they unwrapped golden-haired dollies.

On and on Santa continued as the crowd became greater and greater and the snowstorm grew heavier and heavier. Santa's packs seemed to be endless. Soon gay colored balloons, drums, harmonicas and gold and silver horns were in evidence on all sides, adding to the gaiety of the Christmas party.

There was a lull as Santa Claus dug down into still another pack. This time he began hurling large oranges and sacks of candy into the crowd and they were catching them amidst much laughter and excitement.

Santa himself was having the time of his life. Even more so, than the happy crowd about him. For he was chuckling within, because he had been reminded by a Christmas messenger of love to do this very thing and to become the community Santa Claus.

Finally the crowd became impatient to learn who their strange, chuckling Santa really was. Who could it be, who had given so generously and impartially to all? But before they had time to speak, the jolly old fellow was jostling past people, snow and traffic until he scrambled into his sleigh.

"Get up, reindeers!" he shouted. With a jerk the sleigh bounded forward with Santa wildly shouting, "Merry Christmas, folks, merry Christmas to all!"

But he wasn't to get away so easily for the next moment a strong north wind, whistling around the corner, tore off whiskers, mask and all, and Santa Claus stood revealed in all his embarrassment!

A hushed silence at first and then a wild shout of joy and surprise rang through the Christmas atmosphere. 'Twas "Indian Pete," the town's most confirmed miser. Never in all their lives had they seen such a glorious smile on his face, as he gazed out from his Christmas regalia and offered his hand in friendly greeting to all.

"Indian Pete" (so named because of his love for the outdoor life), had given without thought of receiving; and had incidentally received more than he ever could have received materially—the respect and adoration of the whole town.

When 111,000 Americans Died

A generation has passed since the sinking of the Titanic, yet that great disaster is still well remembered. Fifteen hundred persons died.

The Johnstown flood will never be forgotten—the world was aghast when the death total of 2,209 was tabulated.

The World War was the most sanguinary conflict in history. In it, 50,000 Americans lost their lives, and they are still mourned.

The recent Texas school explosion, which killed 294 children, brought universal sympathy and horror.

Yet last year 111,000 Americans met accidental death—more than twice as many as were killed in the great war—and it caused hardly a ripple in the flow of news. We read of some of those accidents in our paper—"John Jones, aged 45, died in emergency hospital after being struck by an automobile"—turned the page, and forgot them. This astounding callousness—this attitude of "Accidents always happen to the other fellow, not to me or mine"—is death's greatest ally.

Among men, heart disease is the only thing which kills more men than accidents. Such plagues as cancer, tuberculosis, pneumonia—plagues which are being fought by all the resources of science—are down the list. Recklessly driven automobiles, burns, falls, drownings, and so on—these are the great killers.

Practically every accident is preventable—and this is especially true of the motor car, greatest of all the great killers. Care, competence, courtesy—these make up the accident prevention triumvirate. It's up to you—to all of us.

Lighted Cigarette—$70,000 Gone

A short time ago, a careless Oregon motorist tossed a lighted cigarette from his car. An area of 5,000 acres, covered with good young timber, was burned. At the present average lumber price, that means $70,000 in payrolls and supplies was lost to the state. And, according to a conservation authority, "it would really amount to a loss of well over a million dollars in the future resources of the state." Many decades are required before a burned tree is replaced and devastated land becomes valuable again. Preventing fire is said to be 75 per cent of reforestation. And more than 90 per cent of all forest fires are man-made. In every lumber state, you can see thousands of ghostly acres, covered with only blackened stumps of once great trees—grim monuments to ignorance and carelessness.

Every individual owes his fellow citizens an obligation when he goes into the woods, or drives through timbered country. That obligation is easily discharged—but failure to do so may result in the loss of millions of dollars, and the ruin of irreplaceable natural beauties. Take the utmost care with smoking materials—and don't throw matches and butts, even though you think they're out, from your car. Watch campfires like a hawk, and when you leave, saturate them with water, then bury with dirt. Obey the law—especially the local rulings that are put into effect during fire seasons in areas where hazards are especially great.

Remember that forests are our heritage, and that it is up to us whether we dissipate or conserve that magnificent legacy.

Bits of Thin N'That

A Wisconsin man is dead at the age of 102. He was probably one of the very few men in the world who never heard of taxes.

You can tell by the way a motorist honks his horn whether or not he would like to be a dictator.

The "forgotten man" is probably by this time on a government payroll and driving around in a fine car.

As matters stand in the millinery world, if she says she has a hat on her guess is as good as yours.

Fruit is said to be fine for reducing, but the average girl still prefers "dates."

A typical American is one who will fire you for incompetency and then give you a letter of recommendation.

WHEAT MARKETS FIRMER: FEED GRAINS STEADY

bushel for No. 2 soft and hard white, No. 2 northern spring and No. 2 hard winter FOB Utah-Idaho common points.

The Portland market advanced only about 1c per bushel with demand from mills slow and export business light. At the close of the week Portland dealers were bidding 87½c per bushel for hard white (baart), 86c for soft white, western white and western red, 95½c for hard red winter and 99c for hard red spring, all basis No. 1 grade sacked. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals totaled about 600 cars, mostly deliveries on former sales. Local buyers prices were out of line for shipment to middlewestern markets and California buyers were obtaining their supplies for milling from Utah-Idaho points. Export sales totaled around 233,000 bushels, mostly to United Kingdom and Continental markets.

Pacific Northwestern barley markets were barely steady to slightly lower with No. 2 bright western quoted at Portland at $1.35 per 100, sacked basis. Feeding types were in slow request from local and nearby mixed feed manufacturers.

Demand in Pacific Northwestern oats markets continued light with country offerings limited. Only six cars were received at Portland which comprised mostly white oats moving to mixed feed manufacturers. No. 2 white oats were quoted at Portland at $1.20 per 100 with No. 2 gray oats at $1.30 per 100, sacked basis.

BIG BEAR BREVITIES
(By Deryl Ingle)

Mrs. Albert Nelson and little daughter Dawn Marie came home last week from a month's visit with her parents in Montana.

Violet Osterberg is in the Shrine hospital at Boise, where she underwent an operation on a leg.

Mrs. Eunice Kleth from near Deary, spent Wednesday with Mrs. Anna Whitcomb.

Church services will be held at the Chapel next Sunday at 2:30.

The ridge was well represented Monday at both Kendrick and Deary. Voting was being done, for road commissioners for both sections of the Bear Ridge highway districts.

Eric Swan, residing near Deary, and Bennie Swan of Clarkston spent Sunday with relatives here.

The Grant Clemenhagen family visited relatives in Deary Monday.

Emmett and Anton Lien arrived last week from Los Angeles for a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Lien.

The Guild met last week with Mrs. Anna Whitcomb.

Lester Nelson delivered a load of hogs to the Moscow pool Monday.

Church services were held at the Lutheran church Sunday morning.

The A. C. Willson family returned last week-end from a visit of several days at coast points.

The Wm. Hecht family spent Sunday at the Leonard Fairfield home.

The Lloyd Schoeffler family spent last week at Pomeroy.

parites in the horse's stomach," he said.

The treatment should be delayed until all of the bots from the common bot fly leave the horse's tongue and attach to the stomach, and it must be completed before the bots from the nose bot fly leave the stomach.

Bots are a heavy drain on the vitality of infested horses and their removal is a measure of economy because of saving in the feed normally required by the horses.

Treatment should be administered by a veterinarian or farmers should see county agents for participation in the program. U. S. D. A. Circular 148 on these parasites will be of help. Copies are available through the Agricultural Extension Service, Moscow, Idaho.

It is reported that horse owners in several communities over the state are planning bot control meetings for the near future.

Doctor Offers To Hang Van Vlack

There has been so much dilly-dallying about the execution of the confessed triple slayer, Van Vlack, who was first sentenced to be hung more than a year ago that people of every section of the state are becoming thoroughly disgusted with the apparent jelly-fish attitude of some of those who may have to take part in the affair (if it ever comes to pass). The following note to Warden William H. Gess, from Twin Falls shows that there is at least one man in the southern part of the state who believes in the carrying out of the order of the courts: "If you have not the intestinal fortitude to hang Van Vlack I will perform the duty for you gratis."

Gess, asked by defense council if he believed in capital punishment, replied: "Yes, when it is inflicted without delay after trial and conviction for murder. But I am opposed to it in this case, in which the crime was committed more than two years ago."

The "killer rat" gave his victims no quarter but shot them down without any sufficient cause to take life and freely admitted that he had taken the life of three people, one his former wife, probably prompted by jealousy, and two traffic officers who were in the discharge of their duty. He should be shown no more consideration than an ordinary wharf rat.

News dispatches carried the information that the pardon board had voted two to one to carry out the death penalty, passed the third time. It shouldn't be hard to guess which one of the three board members voted to commute the sentence.

Three Hundred Thirty-Three

Drunken and reckless driving and speeding were the causes of more than two-thirds of the 333 highway accidents that have occurred in the state the first seven months, according to the report from the office of J. L. Balderston, Commissioner of Law Enforcement. The reports show a total of 76 persons killed, 277 injured, and property damage, $51,307,250. In summarizing the reports, 13 deaths were due to recklessness and 10 cases to drunken driving.

The greater number of the accidents happened in the day time with clear weather and on dry roads. In the first three months of the year, 45 accidents occurred when the roads were covered with ice or snow. 182 accidents occurred under clear skies and 29 in cloudy weather. The roads were dry for 181 accidents while 34 cars were crashes upon wet roads. Of the time of the accidents, 144 occurred during the daylight and 111 in darkness.

The age of the persons killed were: six from 1½ to 10 years, eight from 10 to 17 years, twelve from 18 to 21 years, twenty-four from 22 to 45 years, and twenty-two from 45 years and over.

Listed as the causes of the accidents, 37 drivers did not have the right of way, 33 drove their cars off the roadway, 36 were on the wrong side of the road on curves or hills, 12 were blinded by oncoming cars, 26 were speeding and 16 hit parked cars. Eight drivers went to sleep at the wheel and five had defective steering gears. Seven sideswiped cars and 19 cars skidded into accidents. Three autos were struck by trains, while six crashed into bridge abutments, fences, and rock walls. Nine drivers who made improper turns and eight not watching their driving, put their cars in wrecks. The other accidents making up the fatality list were crashes in snow storms, intersection collisions, and many of various nature.
