HEAVY MOVEMENT—SLOW

EXPORTS WEAKEN WHEAT Heavy marketings of United States and Canadian spring wheat, together with only a moderate export inquiry, were weakening influences in the wheat market during the week end-ing August 26, and prices dropped to lower levels, according to the Week-ly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Oats and barley held steady to firm with a good demand for current offerings. The announcement by the Secretary of Agriculture of a new surplus wheat purchase program was an important feature of the wheat situation toward the close of the week. On August 26, the Federal Surplus Commodity Credit Corporation telegraphed invitations to the grain dealers to offer to sell to the CEIVE LARGE SUM—CONDIE corporation certain specified types of wheat, including No. 2 dark hard winter, No. 1 hard winter, No. 1 dark hard winter, mainly in the southwest, and No. 1 hard winter, No. 1 soft white, and No. 1 western white wheat, sacked, in the Pacific Northwest. Import demand for wheat con-tinues dull but world shipments dur-ing August were over 50 per cent larger than during the corresponding period last year. Exports were nearly three times those of a year ago and comprised the larger part of the North American shipments which totaled about 30 million bushels, from the first of July through August. Australian shipments in recent weeks have exceeded those of a year ago, as have also clearances from Argentina. Shipments from Danubian countries have been small but exports from Russia have been unusually large, totaling nearly nine million bushels during the first three weeks in August. Offers have been withdrawn according to trade re-ports. Country warehouses at shipthe poorer counties in the past were required to make levies up to 13.39 ping points in Russia are reported mills, while the richer counties made practically empty and little grain is now moving to ports. Winnipeg receipts during the week amounted to nearly 5,000 cars, Domestic cash wheat markets were relatively firmer than futures at most points, but declined 1c to 2c per bushel. Marketings of spring wheat continued to increase, with 3,275 cars received at Minneapolis and 3,102 cars unloaded at Duluth. A large percentage of the arrivals at Minneapolis were for storage and daily offerings were readily taken by millers. A good inquiry from eastern mills was reported at Duluth and considerable quantities were transhipped at that market for lake points. Marketings of winter wheat continued to decrease with a total of 2,754 cars received at the principal terminals. A large part of the arrivels at Kansas City went direct to mills and offerings in the open market were limited. No. 2 soft red winter was quoted Aug. 26 at 65½c to 68c and No. 2 hard at 64½c to 67c per bushel. At St. Louis No. 2 soft red winter sold at 67c and No. 2 hard red winter at 68c per bushel. Millers and order buyers competed for the lighter offerings.

Intermountain and Pacific Coast markets were steady to slightly lower. Denver mills were bidding 481/2c FOB Colorado common points for No. 1 hard winter and No. 2 northern spring. Mills at Ogden were offering 41c per bushel FOB Utah-Idaho common points for No. 2 soft white, northern spring and hard winter, 43c for No. 2 hard white and 45c per bushel for No. 2 dark northern spring. As a result of restrictions adopted to reduce large inventories built for which information is available, output during the month showed little significant change.

Value of sales of department stores declined slightly more than seasonally in July, but, at 89 per cent of the 1923-25 average, the seasonally adjusted index was only one point lower than the January-June average. Retail sales of automobiles have been stable since May, after allowance for seasonal influ-

Reports as of August 1 indicate that the total erop output in the district will be smaller this season than last, but larger than average production during recent years. The reduced volume of crop production in comparison with last year has been accompanied by generally lower prices for commodities and farm income is, consequently, less satisfactory than a year ago.

Mint an Important Crop

and Reaches Wide Market Mint is one of the most important of all essential producers of aromatic oil, the product distilled from it going to widespread markets in large quantities to help supply the need for medicinal compounds, confectioners' flavorings and extracts. Menthol and pimenthol also come from mint, the former being prepared in Japan from one species, while pimenthol is American, produced from an entirely different kind of mint. Japanese mint culture is confined to a single spot in northern Japan, the island of Hondo, where just one species, Menthe arvensis, variety piperascens, is grown exclusively. This particular mint is not known in wild form. It is inferior to the best grades of commercial mint but it is the original source of menthol, besides which its oil, when distilled, exceeds all others in the quantitative menthol crystal production.

Best known of our mints, states a writer in the Los Angeles Times, is "peppermint," or Menthe piperita, the commonly designated American mint. In New York this same mint, which reaches a height of three feet, is known as State mint.

Menthe piperita, variety vulgaris, the so-called black mint, is a dark type of a little less height than peppermint but with thicker stems and heavier, broader leaves. It ranks near the top as a popular commercial kind.

One sort, entirely different from the others, is Menthe citrata, or lemon mint. Oil from this species is used extensively in perfume manufacture.

The small, hairy-leaved species, M. pulegium, provides the oil from which is distilled the Pennyroyal of commerce. Spearmint, or Mentha spicata, is a household word in this country.

Three Types of Caribou Roam Forests of Canada

In Canada there are three distinct species of caribou, the barrenground caribou which is the smallest and most numerous, the woodland caribou which is larger in size and comes next in extent of distribution and abundance, and the large mountain caribou, or Osborne's caribou, which is dark in color and exceeds all others in size, notes a Quebec correspondent in the Indianapolis News.

Of these the barren-ground caribou are the most important both in point of numbers and economic value, and they probably constitute the most abundant of the larger mammals of the world. As the buffalo formerly ranged the western plains in millions, so in like abundance the barren-ground caribou ranges the vast northlands of Canada. Like the buffalo they furnish the native inhabitants of the territory in which they are found with meat and clothing, and finally, like the bison soon after the middle of the last century, their numbers are decreasing with the advent of the white man and his rifle. The most striking characteristic of this animal is its periodical migrations in herds of thousands, southward in autumn and northward in spring. While these migrations are very regular in point of time, the routes followed often vary and can not be predicted with any degree of certainty.

The Name Maurice The name Maurice, from the Lat-in, means "Moorish," which by implication is "dark-skinned." It is therefore suited to brunette men, writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Maurice, prince of Orange (1567-1625), one of the most skillful generals of his age, led the Dutch in driving the Spaniards out of the Netherlands. Maurice, elector of Saxony (1521-53), was a German general of great ability. Among other past bearers of this name who have achieved fame in various ways are: Abbot, Sir (d. 1642), English merchant, one of the council for settling the colony of Virginia; Marshal Saxe (d. 1750). great French soldier; De Haas (d. 1895), Dutch marine painter who emigrated to this country and won a high reputation with his "Farragut Passing the Forts," and others.

German Raider "Norwegian" In 1916 a German raiding ship passed the inspection of the British blockade in the North sea and, in the next seven months, sunk ten of the Allies' vessels. It was disguised as a Norwegian sailing ship, says Collier's Weekly, and every detail was Norwegian, including its cargo, language, and clothing of the crew furniture, photographs, ship's papers, logbook and flag. It even carried the name of a real Norwegian ship that was due to arrive at the blockade in a few hours.

Invented Surf Riding

What Polynesian first stood erect on a slab of light wood and sped beachward on the forecrest of a Pacific wave is not known. Whoever he was, he invented Hawaii's sport of kings-and queens-surf riding. Legend has it that King Kamehameha I, ancient island conqueror, rode the waves when he was very old. Capt. James Cook, great English explorer, found surf riders in Hawaii when he discovered the islands in the middle Eighteenth cenIN THE DISTRICT COURT OF RESERVED BEING THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF IDA-HO, IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF LATAH

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN

Although production in the important lumber industry increased further in July, total industrial output in the Twelfth Federal Reserve but little during the month, after allowances for seasonal factors. Inventories held by manufacturers and distributors continued to decline and in a number of lines are reported to have reached levels which necessitated reordering more generally than at any time during the past year. Factory employment in the three Pacific Coast states, excluding employment in the canning industry, was slightly lower in mid-July than a month earlier, after adjustment for seasonal influences. In California and Oregon the decline approximated 3 per cent, but in Washington a moderate increase in the number of wage earners was recorded, owing to a smaller than seasonal reduction in lumbering.

Following a considerable increase during the first half of 1938, value new residential construction undertaken in the district advanced further in July, the seasonally adjusted index advancing to the 1929 monthly level of 51 per cent of the 1923-25 average from 42 in June. Incomplete data covering the first about to sign may prevent serious 23 days of August indicate that the misunderstanding and financial loss. value of permits issued during that No matter how much confidence you month declined from the high July may have in the salesman or his total, although some increase is customary.

Orders received by district lumber mills in late June and expanded materially in July, reached a peak in the week ending July 23. Since that date a decrease has occurred, although new business has continued at levels considerably higher than earlier in the year. Lumber production also expanded in July, the seasonally adjusted index advancing to 67 per cent of the 1923-1925 average compared with 63 in June and 59 in May.

Cement production in the district advanced slightly, on a seasonally adjusted basis, and was 23 per cent above the level for the first quarter of the year. Activity in other industries supplying materials used in residential construction, such as clay products, plaster, and paints has also increased in recent months.

As a result of restrictions adopted to reduce large inventories built up since the summer of 1937, out-put of crude petroleum declined further in July. In other industries for which information is available, output during the month showed little significant change.

Value of sales of department stores declined slightly more than seasonally in July, but, at 89 per cent of the 1923-25 average, the seasonally adjusted index was only one point lower than the January June average. Reports as of August 1 indicate that the total crop output in the district will be smaller this season than last, but larger than average production during recent years. The reduced volume of crop production in comparison with last year has been accompanied by generally lower prices for commodities and farm income is, consequently, less satisfactory than a year ago.

SIGNING ON DOTTED LINE

The recent loss to a poor widow in a neighboring state of insurance money that would have cared for her comfortably the remainder of her District appears to have changed life must have impressed everyone who read about it with the imporance of reading the fine print on not only an insurance policy but on everything else to which a signature is placed.
Almost every Kendrick citizen is, in the course of his or her lifetime, called on to sign some sort of contract or agreement. In almost every instance such documents carry stipulations, reservations or agreements in very fine print, and in a majority of instances the person placing his signature to it does so without a careful reading of that fine print. The results have been anything but pleasant for thousands of people. Where there is a deliberate intertion to practice deception, this fine print serves the dishonest salesman or business concern with a loophole through which to escape responsibility. No matter what sort of verbal contract you may have had, it is null and void if the fine print on the printed contract specifies differently. Careful reading of every word on the contract or agreement you are firm, always read the fine print before you put your name to it. If it's meaning is not then clearly understood by you, then let it alone or insist upon it's being so worded that you will not later on be left holding the bag.

An Invitation

We invite you to get the churchgoing habit. One hour a week is not much time to give to the specific cultivation of your better self. Mint an Important Crop and Reaches Wide Market Mint is one of the most important of all essential producers of aromatic oil, the product distilled from t going to widespread markets in large quantities to help supply the need for medicinal compounds, confectioners' flavorings and extracts. Menthol and pimenthol also come from mint, the former being prepared in Japan from one species, while pimenthol is American, produced from an entirely different kind of mint.

Japanese mint culture is confined to a single spot in northern Japan, the island of Hondo, where just one species, Menthe arvensis, variety piperascens, is grown exclusively. This particular mint is not known in wild form. It is inferior to the best grades of commercial mint but it is the original source of menthol, besides which its oil, when distilled, exceeds all others in the quantitative menthol crystal production.

Best known of our mints, states a writer in the Los Angeles Times, is "peppermint," or Menthe piperita, the commonly designated American the common that is a second to the ican mint. In New York this same mint, which reaches a height of three feet, is known as State mint. Menthe piperita, variety vulgaris, the so-called black mint, is a dark type of a little less height than peppermint but with thicker stems and heavier, broader leaves. It ranks near the top as a popular commercial kind.

One sort, entirely different from the others, is Menthe citrata, or lemon mint. Oil from this species is used extensively in perfume manufacture.

Three Types of Caribou

Roam Forests of Canada In Canada there are three distinct species of caribou, the barrenground caribou which is the smallest and most numerous, the woodland caribou which is larger in size and comes next in extent of distribution and abundance, and the large mountain caribou, or Osborne's caribou, which is dark in color and exceeds all others in size, notes a Quebec correspondent in the Indianapolis News. Of these the barren-ground caribou are the most important both in point of numbers and economic value, and they probably constitute the most abundant of the larger mammals of the world. As the buffalo formerly ranged the western plains in millions, so in like abundance the barren-ground caribou ranges the vast northlands of Canada. Like the buffalo they furnish the native inhabitants of the terri tory in which they are found with meat and clothing, and finally, like the bison soon after the middle of the last century, their numbers are decreasing with the advent of the white man and his rifle.

The most striking characteristic of this animal is its periodical migrations in herds of thousands, southward in autumn and northward in spring. While these migrations are very regular in point of time, the routes followed often vary and can not be predicted with any degree of certainty.

The Name Maurice

The name Maurice, from the Latin, means "Moorish," which by implication is "dark-skinned." It is therefore suited to brunette men. writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, Maurice, prince of Orange (1567-1625), one of the most skillful generals of his age, led the Dutch in driving the Spaniards out of the Netherlands. Maurice, elector of Saxony (1521-53), was a German general of great ability. Among other past bearers of this name who have achieved fame in various ways are: Abbot, Sir (d. 1642), English merchant, one of the council for settling the colony of Virginia; Marshal Saxe (d. 1750), great French soldier; De Haas (d. 1895), Dutch marine painter who emigrated to this country and won a high reputation with his "Farragut Passing the Forts," and others.

German Raider "Norwegian"

In 1916 a German raiding ship passed the inspection of the British blockade in the North sea and, in the next seven months, sunk ten of the Allies' vessels. It was disguised as a Norwegian sailing ship, says Collier's Weekly, and every detail was Norwegian, including its cargo, language, and clothing of the crew, furniture, photographs, ship's papers, logbook and flag. It even carried the name of a real Norwegian ship that was due to arrive at the blockade in a few hours.

Invented Surf Riding

What Polynesian first stood erect on a slab of light wood and sped beachward on the forecrest of a Pacific wave is not known. Whoever he was, he invented Hawaii's sport of kings-and queens-surf riding. Legend has it that King Kamehameha I, ancient island conqueror, rode the waves when he was very old. Capt. James Cook, great English explorer, found surf riders in Hawaii when he discovered the islands in the middle Eighteenth cenIN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF IDA-HO, IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF LATAH

Well Folks-We note by the headlines of the papers that good old North Carolina and California have joined hands with Idaho in the rejection of F. D. R. politically sponsored candidates — and folks, there must be a reason. Can it be that the average Ameri-

Those Kendrick citizens who have had little or no contact with the training offered the youth of the land through the various activities of the numerous 4-H clubs, are due to open their creations to open their eyes in astonishment once they become acquainted with actual results.

4-H work and the opportunities it offers for development of personal interests and self-reliance are almost unlimited. Youths, through their various projects, learn useful and worthwhile ways in which to employ their spare time, and in conducting their meetings learn all the fine points of rules of order and discipline. A'4-H club meeting is not a casual get-together but an orderly well regulated session, and the youths well regulated session, and the youths elected to office gain experience which equips them far better to assume positions of leadership in later life than was possible in years past. The growth of the movement has been rapid because it has so steadily proved its value. Youth activities recently have been developed by adults to give them something to do which will direct their excess energies in a progressive course. The work of the 4-H clubs is offering to the entire country a fine example of what youth-formed and youth-conducted organizations can be, and that deserves the hearty support, morally and financially, of every citizen who has the best interests of future Americans at heart. terests of future Americans at heart.

Friday, August 12, at 2 p. m. in a colorfully-decroated grove at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Z. A. Aas, their daughter, Alma, became the bride of Harvey Flansburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Flansburg of Post Falls. The ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Arthur L. Swenson of Our Savior's Lutheran church, Moscow.

As the bridal party took its place before a beautifully decorated arch, Mrs. Arthur L. Swenson, hidden in a bower of flowers, played the wedding march. Mrs. Donald Louvaas, a sister and Mrs. a sister, and Mrs. M. Olson, sister of the groom ways of the groom, were matrons of honor, while Harry Westrom, a brother-inlaw of the groom, and Adolph Aas were the bridegroom's attendants.

The bride wore a becoming gown of white silk marquisette with a fingertip veil held in place by a crown of sweet-heart rose buds and lillies. The matrons of honor wore gowns of sheer blue with corsages. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served.

The bride is a graduate of the U. of I. and has been teaching home economics four years. The past two years she was at Rathdrum. The bridegroom is a graduate of W. S. C. They will live at Rathdrum, where Mr. Flansburg will centinue eaching music.

Mrs. Flansburg was born on Big Bear ridge and attended the grade school there. She is well known in this section.

Lindberg Socks Russian

A dispatch to the newspaper Soir from Riga-whence have come many a secret police inspector who was following him during his recent visit to Russia.

According to the story, Lindbergh had been annoyed because the inspector followed him everywhere. He demanded an explanation, it was said, and when the inspector did not reply, Lindbergh knocked him out. Next day, the newspaper alleged, the chief of the secret police telephoned the American embassy and explained that the inspector had been detailed to protect Lindbergh, not to check his movements.

West Virginia does not build highways in Virginia without getting paid for them, the West Virginia Road commission said, even though the state line depends solely upon which side of the mountain water

At Washington, the Topographic Survey said it had found that about 2,000 feet of a scenic highway built by West Virginia in Hampshire county lies in Virginia.

The road under question, State Route 23 between Lehew and Highview, said Road Commissioner Burr H. Simpson, was constructed six years ago, and Virginia paid construction costs on that portion of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kortemeier the highway which crossed the state
