We wish to thank the Northern Pacific for making it possible to get this material.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN 12TH RESERVE DISTRICT

Output of Twelfth Federal Reserve Bank District industries in October remained at about the level of the preceding month. Factory employment and payrolls were likewise unchanged, after allowances for seasonal influences. Residential building became more active, the value of projects initiated during October increasing from the September totals in practically all parts of the district, although some reduction is customary at this time of year. In November, according to preliminary figures, only the usual seasonal decline in building occurred. Railway freight business increased by the full seasonal amount during October. In the field of retail trade, department, apparel and furniture store sales increase considerably and there was an expansion in sales of new passenger automobiles. Further expansion during November is indicated by available data.

Industrial output in the Twelfth district has increased moderately since last June. Much of the expansion has come in the important lumber industry, in which production has increased 40 per cent more than seasonally since last winter, and in other industries which produce building materials or home furnishings. Employment and payrolls in these industries have also increased. Data on output of many industries which are not closely related to home building are not available, but on the basis of such information as is reported, it appears that aggregate output of those industries has risen but little since last June. The activity at automobile assembling plants has increased considerably in recent weeks, paper and pulp production in the Pacific Northwest is reported to have expanded somewhat from the low levels of the summer months, and gains in copper mining and smelting have taken place during the past two months.

District farm income during the first ten months of 1938, which includes the seasonally heavy marketings of late summer and, early fall, was about 20 per cent lower than in the comparable period of 1937. This decline is considerably greater than in the country as a whole, where receipts were down about 13 per cent.

Total loans of Twelfth District city banks declined in the five weeks ending November 23, the reduction offsetting about half the expansion which had taken place in the preceding two months. Much of the decline occurred in loans for commercial, industrial and agricultural purposes. Adjusted demand deposits continued the expansion in evidence since last May and in late November were about equal to the record level reported in January, 1937.

Community Meetings

Below is a list of Community meetings for the purpose of electing Community Committeemen for the Latah County Agricultural Conservation program:

Deary, Monday, Dec. 12, 2 p. m., Deary Grange hall.
Kendrick, Monday, December 12, 2 p. m., Kendrick City hall.

There are to be elected three community committeemen and an alternate, also a delegate to the county convention, where the county committee of three members will be elected, with two alternates.

Any farm operator or owner, who has a work sheet filed or makes application to file one in 1939 in the respective communities is eligible to vote for the community committeemen of their respective community. The present Chairman of community committees will preside at these Community Election meetings.

CROSS CROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY FOR A LONGER LIFE

This warning has not been heeded by drivers in Idaho during the past eleven months, according to statistics compiled in the Safety Bureau of the Law Enforcement Department. This was shown in the 14 train-auto accidents, in which 23 persons were killed. The heavy death toll in this state, and the greatest school bus grade crossing tragedy in the nation, which occurred in Utah, December 1, has aroused deep concern with the public. The irony of the latter tragedy is that it snuffed out the lives of a score of young people who were eagerly looking forward to the happy festivities of the Yuletide season.

Motor vehicles which are required to stop at railroad crossings and to observe other traffic signs in Idaho are stages, street and school buses and trucks. It is a mandatory order from their respective employers that the drivers of these motor vehicles stop at all railroad crossings whether on the main line or branch lines or tracks infrequently used. It is a frequent occurrence, while the busses with their human cargoes are stopped at the crossing where the signals or bells are indicating that a train is within a short distance, to see some speeding car dash across the track while the train is bearing down upon them. Inattentive drivers come to crossings without a shift of gears or reduction of speed or even taking the trouble to "stop, look, or listen." These are the reasons that have aroused the discussion of the necessity of adopting safety legislation.

With the ice, sleet, snow and darkness of December, there is an urgent need of caution on the part of motor vehicle drivers as they approach crossings. It should be, "Wait, Driver, Wait." The tragedy at the Utah crossing, according to press reports, occurred during a snow storm with a visibility of about a thousand feet. When these road conditions prevail, a few minutes delay and too much vigilance is better than a lifetime of regret.

Adverse weather conditions, together with the inattention of the drivers and the rush and geniality of the Christmas holiday season, swells the December traffic toll, says the National Safety Council. It asks that enforcement be stepped up and wherever it is deemed necessary that officers be at night clubs and other places during the holiday season to dissuade drinking drivers from taking the wheel. The council is asking parents to urge their sons and daughters not to ride with the drinking drivers, and is appealing to motorists and pedestrians to use unusual caution at all times upon the streets and highways.

Idaho In Front Row

Idaho's distinguished sons and Idaho products, which have added to the delights of the American table, will be honored at an Idaho dinner given by W. M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York City, today (Dec. 8).

Luminaries from Idaho will include Governor Barzilla W. Clark, Senator William E. Borah, Governor-Elect C. A. Bottolfsen, Senator-Elect D. Worth Clark, Congressman-Elect Henry C. Dworshak, Congressman Compton I. White.

Others at the table will include: Postmaster General James A. Farley, Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, J. Edgar Hoover, federal bureau of investigation, several presidents and a host of famous newspapermen.

Fire Destroys Buildings

Wednesday morning of last week, fire at the Roy Gertje home, 1/2 mile from Southwick, destroyed four buildings, consisting of a woodshed, garage, small shed and work shop. The fire started in a corner of the woodshed, and, fanned by a brisk wind, had gained great headway when discovered at 8:30 a. m. The flame was all the hotter, in as much as the woodshed contained ten cords of dry wood.

Mrs. Gertje and Mrs. Benjamin spread the alarm while Roy fought the blaze, and in a few minutes some 50 friends and neighbors, including the telephone crew working on the lines near Southwick, were at the farm. They saved the cellar and wash house, not more than 10 feet from the woodshed, and the house as well, which was close to the cellar. Quick thinking and quick work saved much valuable property.

KANSAS SOLON TRIES TO STOP IDAHO POTATOES

Rep. Frank Carlson, republican of the sixth Kansas district, has protested against prospective purchases of Idaho potatoes for use in CCC camps of Kansas and Missouri.

Carlson, in a letter to Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding general of the seventh corps area, Omaha, Neb., said he had noticed advertisements for bids for potatoes called for Idaho russets and that, "as I understand it, the only place they can be secured is in Idaho."

"I want to enter a protest as we have a large potato growing section in Kansas near the camps where the products will be used. Large quantities of potatoes are also produced in the Red river section, which is near the camps."

Carlson asserted "the difference in transportation charges on the potatoes grown in Idaho and those grown in this locality would be quite an item." He asked that Kansas growers be given an opportunity to submit bids, and said Kansas potatoes "are as good as those grown in Idaho."

Editors Note: We do not see any reason why Mr. Carlson should become "all het up" over a little thing like shipping Idaho potatoes into Kansas, or any other product from one part of the United States to another, simply because there may be plenty at home. Shipping things has been going on for the past six years. Why, even our own Idaho this past year shipped in 300,000 pounds of oranges—just to relieve the orange growers of California, who said they had a surplus crop—and our state felt so sorry for them they just ordered a few hundred thousand pounds. And this, too, when right in our own state, and right within the CCC territory, there were hundreds of boxes of good edible apples going to waste; and they can be used in many ways that oranges cannot, toward feeding a family or large groups of men.

CCC boys have been hauled from Alabama and New York to Idaho, while Idaho boys have been shipped to the Sunny South and eastward, all of which seems to have been in the general set-up. Not so long ago they shipped in tons of cabbages to Spokane, while Spokane section growers had tons rotting in their fields that they couldn't sell at any price. So, Mr. Carlson, don't get too badly excited over Idaho potatoes, for better "spuds" never grew than the famous Idaho brands—Idaho Russets and Netteed Gems!

Jefferson Lee Fowler

Jefferson Lee Fowler, pioneer of the Kendrick section, was born near El Dora, Pike County, Illinois, May 7, 1864. He was united in marriage to Mary Isabelle Browning on May 30, 1896, and to this union three children were born, two daughters surviving, Mrs. Letha Kuykendall, Kendrick, and Mrs. Rebecca Senter, Bremerton, Wash.

Mr. Fowler came to Kendrick with his family in 1901, residing here until some 15 years ago, when he moved to Lewiston Orchards to make his home. Mr. Fowler passed away at St. Joseph's hospital, Lewiston, Tuesday, November 29, of injuries sustained in an automobile accident. Funeral services were held in the Brower-Wann Chapel, Lewiston, Saturday, Dec. 3, with the Rev. L. C. McEwan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that place, officiating. Interment was in the Kendrick cemetery.

Survivors, besides his two daughters, were four brothers and one sister; J. W. Fowler, Middleton, Mo.; B. P. Fowler, Des Moines, Ia.; Elmer Fowler, New Canton, Ill.; Scott W. Fowler, Joliet, Ill.; Mrs. Mrs. Laura Fisher, New Canton, Ill. Seven grandchildren also survive.

Officials said that on November 1 some 131 miles of road and seven grade crossings were either under construction, under contract or approved.

WHEAT MARKET FIRMER — FEED GRAINS UNSETTLED

Wheat markets turned firmer toward the close of the week ended December 2, following the announcement of export sales of 20,000,000 bushels of United States wheat to English millers under the wheat export program, states the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Smaller marketings and unfavorable moisture conditions for winter wheat were further strengthening influences. Oats prices were slightly higher at most points but barley was barely steady.

Little change occurred in the general wheat situation. New crop prospects continued favorable in Argentina, with harvesting making rapid progress. Supplies of old wheat were reported down to about 14 million bushels on November 26, which suggests only a moderate carryover at the close of the season, December 1. Harvesting was also well under way in Australia with yields irregular in late districts. The Federal government of Australia established by law, effective Dec. 5, a price equivalent to about $1.20 per bushel FOB seaboard cities on wheat for domestic consumption. In recent years, domestic consumption, other than for seed, has ranged from 30 to 48 million bushels. Australian growers are now receiving about 48c per bushel for wheat delivered at the seaboard. Dryness continued in India and some reduction in acreage appears probable. Further Indian purchases of Australian wheat were reported and also a cargo of Canadian wheat from Vancouver. Southern hemisphere shipments continued light but Black Sea shipments were fairly heavy, totaling over four million bushels.

Prices on foreign wheat at Liverpool held steady, influenced by lack of selling pressure and increased use of low grade wheat for feed. At the close of the week, United States No. 2 yellow hard winter for January shipment was quoted at Liverpool at 58c, white wheat from the Pacific Coast at 63c, Canadian Manitoba No. 3 northern at 76c, Roumanian wheat at 50c, new Australian wheat at 60c and Argentine Rosaflo for January and February shipment at 65½c per bushel.

The outstanding feature in domestic wheat markets was the announcement by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation of the sale to American exporters of 20 million bushels of United States wheat for delivery over a period of several months to flour mills in the United Kingdom. Three cargoes of Pacific Northwestern wheat were sold to Shanghai in addition to two cargoes reported during the previous week. Over 11,000 barrels of flour were sold to China and around 8,000 to the Philippines under the flour export plan. The payment on flour to the Philippines was 80c and to China $1.05 per barrel.

Continued lack of moisture in the western portions of the winter wheat belt was also a strengthening influence in domestic markets. Further deterioration was reported in the western half of Kansas with some wind and soil erosion in the southwest. South of Kansas, except in the panhandle of Texas, conditions are generally reported unfavorable with growth slow and moisture needed. In Texas, some farmers were still awaiting rain for seeding. Cold weather checked growth in Missouri but early seeded wheat has shown much improvement since the rains in the early part of the month and late seeded fields have come up to good stands. North of Missouri, winter grains are in need of moisture. In the Ohio valley, winter wheat continues mostly in a satisfactory condition, but plants generally are undersize because of the fall drought. In the Pacific Northwest the crop has made satisfactory progress.

Marketings decreased with very slightly over 3,250,000 bushels reported received at the principal terminals. 1,576 cars were received at the principal winter wheat markets, 944 cars at Minneapolis and Duluth and 671 cars in the Pacific Northwest.

Cash wheat at Kansas City reflected the upturn in December futures and also displayed some independent strength on a premium basis, with closing prices 2c to 2½c higher for the week. Trading was active but not of large volume, due to smaller offerings.

WHEAT MARKET FIRMER — FEED GRAINS UNSETTLED

641 cars and the aggregate at nine winter wheat markets, including Kansas City, was 1,576 cars as compared with 1,679 in the short previous week and 1,162 cars a year ago. On Dec. 2, No. 2 hard winter was quoted at Kansas City at 65¼c to 68c.

The cash wheat market situation at Minneapolis strengthened materially, especially during the closing days of the week. In addition to higher premiums, discounts based on test weight also narrowed materially. Offerings of cash wheat were very limited since arrivals of all classes totaled only 555 cars during the week, while Duluth unloaded 389 cars.

The San Francisco wheat market maintained a firm tone during the past week, influenced by the moderate advances in other markets and light local offerings. Price ranges were about unchanged but trading was more toward the top of last week's range. On December 2, California grown No. 1 hard white was quoted at San Francisco at $1.25 to $1.27½, and Washington-Oregon No. 2 soft white and No. 2 western white was quoted at $1.20 per 100, in bulk.

Pacific Northwest cash wheat markets ranged from unchanged to 1c per bushel higher as compared with the previous week. On December 2, soft white wheat was quoted at Portland at 63c per bushel, with western white at 62½c, western red at 61c, hard red winter at 60¼c, and ordinary hard white (baart) at 63c per bushel, all basis No. 1 grade in bulk.

Wheat receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals were 671 cars. Mill demand for cash wheat at Portland was reported as somewhat more active than during the previous week, due to improved flour demand. At Seattle western white wheat was quoted at 64¼c, western red and ordinary protein hard winter at 62c.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced that sales through November 15, of wheat and flour for export under the Federal plan totaled 19 million bushels. Of this quantity, approximately 76 per cent was wheat and 24 per cent flour. Purchases of wheat by the FSCC to November 15 totaled about 28,420,000 bushels. The difference between the price paid to producers and dealers and received from exporters averaged 12¼c per bushel. Sales of wheat and flour for export from all agencies, July 1 to Nov. 15, was placed at approximately 43,200,000 bushels, of which 38,400,000 bushels have been exported.

Oats markets in the Pacific Northwest also held quite steady, with prices mostly unchanged from a week ago. Demand from the Willamette valley for feed oats was the principal steadying influence. On Dec. 1, No. 2 white oats weighing 38 pounds were quoted at Portland at $1.32½ per 100, sacked. White oats from eastern Washington were quoted at Seattle at $1.32½ per 100, sacked. Gray oats continued nominal at Portland, with only six carloads received at Portland during the week.

Pacific Northwestern barley markets were fully steady to slightly firmer toward the end of the period, and prices on feeding quality barley advanced 2¼c per 100 compared with the previous week at Portland. No. 2 bright western barley weighing 45 pounds was quoted at $1.15 per 100, sacked, at Portland, Dec. 1. Heavy white barley from eastern Washington was quoted at Seattle at $1.14 per 100, sacked. Twelve carloads of barley were received at Portland during the past week.

TEAKEAN GOSSIP (Delayed)

The weather has been quite cold for some time, with a little skiff of snow.
We had a very quiet Thanksgiving here. Lots of folks stayed at home and had Thanksgiving dinner all to themselves. There were no services at the church that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Brock had Mr. and Mrs. John Lind as Thanksgiving guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Huffman entertained guests on Thanksgiving Day, including Mr. and Mrs. Walter Huffman and family of Orofino and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carey and family.

Lanson Clanin went to Orofino Sunday to visit a doctor, as he has not been feeling well.

Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Fike and Mrs. Eva Clanin made a trip to Nampa last week to attend a Board meeting of the Church of the Brethren.

Some of our folks are enjoying the new electric lights now, but not so many have wired their homes as yet. The Grange Hall is partly wired, but not yet completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Miller and little girls, Carol and Donna Jean, spent Thanksgiving with Don's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Reece of Nez Perce spent Thanksgiving at the Chas. Kime home. Mrs. J. S. Lehman of Portland, Ore., accompanied them and remained to spend some time there. Mrs. Lehman is Mrs. Reece's and Mrs. Kimes' mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Groseclose and Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Groseclose ate Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mrs. Anna Harless.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Choate and family ate Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Choate.

The Ladies Aid will meet this week at the home of Mrs. Earl Kime to quilt and sew for her.

Carroll Groseclose is still hauling timber for his house. He expects to begin building soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Miller and Carroll Groseclose and his mother, Mrs. Wm. Groseclose, and Mrs. Geo. Pitcher were Orofino visitors last Friday.

Back to the Israelites

"Gloves of Antiquity" mentions gloves in the Bible, in the Book of Ruth. Gloves were worn by the Israelites, solely by men of rank. Mural paintings of Thebes show gloves as a part of the king's raiment. Xenophon at the end of the Eighth book of Cyropedia complains of the unwarranted elegance of the Persians, that they not only wore umbrellas over them in summer and in winter, not satisfied with ordinary clothing, but have coverings made of hair for their hands and fingers.

Chaldeans defined gloves in their dictionary. Pliny speaks of an amanuensis who "wore gloves upon his hands in winter, lest the severity of the weather should let him lose anything." Homer mentions Laertes, father of Ulysses, in retirement "while gloves received his hands to shield them from the thorns." A celebrated Roman glutton came to the table in gloves so that he might be able to handle and eat the meat while hot, and so devour more than the rest of the company.

The Christians at the end of the First century considered the wearing of both shoes and gloves (hair coverings for feet and hands) as shameful to persons in perfect health. But even caverns wore gloves, possibly 160,000 years ago, according to some learned historians. So we really have an instinct about gloves and can justify all of their uses, even that of pure decoration, by studying the costumes of the ancients.

Paper Decorations Used

In Chinese Ceremonials

The use of ornamental paper cut to represent various objects and burned at Chinese funerals dates from the very inception of paper-making, writes David Hunter in the Bulletin of American Museum of History. Objects of all kinds are constructed of paper and burned at the bier of the deceased so that the departed spirit may have an abundance of the things represented by the frail paper effigies.

Along certain streets of all great cities of China are shops where these ghost-like replicas are sold—highly ornate cardboard chests, with shiny gold and silver paper locks; flowing robes of paper, painted with golden dragons and complicated patterns; shoes, hats and all manner of wearing apparel made of paper.

For the relatives of the wealthy, the craftsmen in paper also construct full-sized carts and horses, the thought being that when these fragile representations go up in smoke they will eventually assume reality in heaven and the deceased will have horses and vehicles at his disposal.

Great quantities of mock money are burned every year in China and all over Asia, where Chinese have made their homes. If sufficient "money" is burned, the deceased will be able to purchase elaborate clothing, fine horses and other necessities after reaching the spirit world.

Dark Ages, Middle Ages

The Dark ages extended, roughly speaking, from the fall of the western Roman empire in 475 A. D. to the revival of learning on the discovery of the papyrus at Amalfi, Italy, in 1150—altogether about seven centuries. The period extending from the fall of the Roman empire to the capture of Constantinople in 1533 by the Turks is known as the Middle Ages. The papyrus were a collection of laws systematically arranged from Roman writings on jurisprudence. They were enacted into law by the Emperor Justinian in 529 A. D. Their discovery at Amalfi stimulated a general study of Roman and Greek literature, which led to what is known as the classic age. During the Dark Ages learning was at its lowest ebb in Europe and civilization seemed to retrograde, owing to the masses of barbarians who emerged from northern Europe and overran the former seats of learning.

Famed Umbrellas

Jonas Hanway was the man who popularized the rainshield in London. He took his life in his hands when he did it, too, asserts a writer in the Washington Post. Not that umbrellas were unknown. Far from it. They had been used as sun shades in the East for centuries. They were well-known in France. In fact, English women occasionally carried them. But Hanway was the first Englishman to date appear on the streets with an umbrella. He saw in it a way to prevent sickness caused by getting wet in rain. So, he carried his umbrella, though he was hooted, pelted with mud, sticks and stones. But Jonas Hanway lived to have the last laugh. Before he died in 1786 most men carried umbrellas and shortly after his death, even the hard-boiled men of the army took to them.

Wild Hare, Squirrels Pests

In the Eighteenth century wild hare and squirrels were so plentiful they became pests, with bounties on their heads, says the American Wildlife Institute. In one year—1749—800 pounds were paid out for the heads of gray and black squirrels at three pence a head in Pennsylvania alone. This means that more than 800,000 were killed for the price on their heads.

Mazers, Bowls of Wood, Were Made From Maple

Before glass and pottery for table use became common plates and drinking cups were made of wood. Mazers or bowls of wood were first used in the Thirteenth century and were made of the bole of the maple tree, cut across the part where the branches grew. This showed the beauty of the grain and was greatly prized.

The name may have come from the Dutch word "maeser," meaning a knot in the wood. As this section of a tree has the closest grain, it is possible this part of the wood was selected for its good wearing qualities, for the mazer was often subjected to hard usage and was in constant use, writes Alice R. Rollins in the Los Angeles Times.

The early mazers were often rimmed with silver which not only protected the brittle edges of the wood but also provided a place for the curious and quaint inscriptions to be found on many of them.

The inscriptions on the very early mazers are in black letter or Lombardic and some of them have flowers, animals and fruits in between the words. The date of these old mazers can be told by the spelling and style of lettering and the silver work.

The medallion which is found in the bottom of every mazer is a distinctive mark. No two are alike and they are of great variety. Some of the designs are a knight, king and falcon, rose, boar, shield and helmet. In addition many carried initials and monograms.

Perpetual June Enjoyed

In the Famous Bahamas

The Bahamas lie across the Tropic of Cancer, a short distance to the east of the Gulf stream, and this location gives them the climate of perpetual June.

Although not the largest island, New Providence, about the size of Staten island, is the most important, as it contains the capital, Nassau. The islands number approximately 700. The group is one of Great Britain's three self-governing colonies, sharing this distinction with Bermuda and Barbados. San Salvador, or Watling island, is generally accepted as the landfall of Columbus. It is 12 miles long and seven miles wide and much of its area is covered by a lake.

The island of New Providence is about 21 miles in length from east to west and seven miles from north to south. It is mostly flat, though a range of rocky hills makes its appearance.

The Bahamas have a population of about 60,000. The city of Nassau represents 20,000, of which two-thirds are colored. Next to New Providence the island of Eleuthera is the largest in population, having about 7,500 natives.

The lowest recorded temperature in the annals of the weather bureau is 53 degrees.

General Jackson's Horse

According to the Louisiana State museum, Old Duke was Gen. Andrew Jackson's favorite mount. An article in the New Orleans Daily Crescent on that subject says in part: "I was often reminded of this praiseworthy remembrance of fidelity and merit, cherished by my old friend General Jackson toward his famous Old Duke, the horse he rode during the Southern campaigns of the late war. Though Duke grew feeble, was greatly affected, withered and almost helpless in his latter days, he was not forgotten nor suffered to be neglected. . . . On one occasion, to try the general on a tender point, the writer of this article suggested the idea of putting an end to the sufferings of Duke. 'No,' said his generous master, 'never, never! Let him live, and while there is anything to go upon this farm, Duke shall have a part.'"

Long-Tailed Fowl Once Popular

The Yokohama long-tailed fowl has a fascinating history. Long ago the inhabitants of Tosa, Japan, carried its feathers as pennons on their spears, carefully breeding the birds to get long feathers, says Pearson's London Weekly. These fowls are bred in Japan, where their cages are lighted only at the top, lest the birds descend from their perches and spoil their fantastic tails. But the fowls must have exercise so they are taken for walks—during which an attendant acts as "train bearer," solemnly holding the fowl's tail.

Famous French Fortuneteller

Catherine Monvoisin, known as La Voisin, was the wife of a jeweler. She practiced chiromancy, face-reading, midwifery and provided love powders and poisons. Her chief accomplice was one of her lovers, the magician, Lesage. The women of Paris flocked to La Voisin and she accumulated great wealth. She was one of the chief personages in the famous affaire des poisons which disgraced the reign of Louis XVI and was executed at an early stage of the proceedings on February 20, 1680.

Weapons of the Zulus

A Zulu chief named Moselikatse became famous a century ago and was the ruler of thousands of square miles. He carried a shield made from an ox hide. Spears were the chief weapons of old-time Zulus, and each soldier carried two or three of them.

Animals and Birds Find

Plenty of Use for Tails

Certain species of mice have extraordinary long tails which are used as balancing organs while making long leaps. In another species of mice the tail seems to have no purpose at all as it is only a remnant. Among the larger mammals the bear and elephant have about the smallest tails in relation to their size, although the elephant had his compensated for by a proboscis on the other end. We may think the common cottontail was slighted in this respect, writes a correspondent in the Detroit News, but it has a tail nearly as long as a bear and furthermore it serves as a signal of danger much the same as the tail of the deer.

The Gila monster finds his tail an excellent place for food storage. The alligator uses its tail as a weapon and as a powerful lever in turning its body over and over after seizing its prey. In this way the alligator tears its food or victim as the case may be. The great order of insects show a wide diversity in structure and function of tails or tail-like appendages.

If one is expert enough to read the signals of the skunk's tail he can tell when to retreat to a safety zone. Some people claim they can pick up a skunk by the tail with perfect impunity, but some skunks are too clever for persons to take this advantage of them. Others claim they can pick up a porcupine by the tail without danger; however, unless you are an expert you will probably find it a very effective war club worthy of considerable respect. The beaver's tail is used to spank out on the water a warning of approaching danger.

Some tails serve chiefly as ornaments as in the peacock, the lyre bird and pheasants. The ruffed grouse is a famous dandy which, during the drumming period, struts about vainly displaying the coloration of his tail feathers. Of course, we all know that the horse's tail is not only an ornament but also a fly swatter. The question still remains of what use is a pig's tail?

Field Mouse Makes Home

In Network of Runways

The small mammal, known scientifically as Microtus pennsylvanicus, is a common species of field mouse. It makes its home usually in damp fields where there is an abundance of grass. It is a very active creature, both by day as well as by night, observes a writer in the Montreal Herald.

It lives in burrows, making a network of runways among the vegetation which are connected with their feeding grounds. The burrows may be in meadows or under logs, rocks, tussocks of grass or roots of trees, and lead to underground chambers filled with nests of dry grass which provide a home in winter and often in summer. Other nests are located in damp meadows or marshes in depressions on the surface or among clumps of grass.

The common meadow mouse is most prolific. Estimating the normal increase at six young, with four litters in a season, and assuming that there are no checks upon the increase, the results are appalling. A single pair and their progeny in five seasons would amount to nearly 1,000,000 individuals. Field mice, also known as moles, have stout bodies, blunt, rounded muzzles, small eyes and short ears—often completely concealed by the fur. The tail is short and hairy; the soles of the feet are naked, or clothed with short hairs, and have five or six foot pads (plantar tubercles). The incisors are broad and not grooved.

Word 'Ginseng' From Chinese

Practically all of the American production of ginseng is exported to China, where it is in great demand for medicinal and domestic purposes. Branched roots resembling the human form are especially prized for their supposed occult virtues. The word "ginseng" is derived from Chinese words meaning "likeness of man." It is considered a cure for many diseases in China. The roots are marketable in about the fifth or sixth year from planting of seed. They are washed and cured in a well ventilated room with temperature not exceeding 90 degrees Fahrenheit. This takes about a month for the larger roots. They are then stored in a dry, airy place in sacks or boxes for shipment.

Did Not Like Buttons

Once, a gentleman would rather have been shot than have any buttons on his coat. In England, about 700 years ago, the fasteners were only "scandalous ornament on men of low degree." A bit later whole sleeves might be buttoned, from wrist to above the elbow. Buttons have not always been used as fasteners, says the Washington Post. The rank of a Chinese mandarin was distinguished by the color button he wore on his hat.

Highest Sea Mountain

Even though Mauna Kea in Hawaii is the highest island mountain in the world, the visible portion is only a small part of it. The mountain begins on a great plain 18,000 feet below sea level. It rises 14,000 feet above sea level, so high that it is topped with snow. The snow gives it the name Mauna Kea, which is translated "White Mountain."

Annual Poultry Short Course

The fourteenth annual poultry short course offered by the University of Idaho Poultry department will be held December 8 and 9 at the Poultry Service building on the University farm. These dates, which are considerably earlier than other years, were decided upon with the hopes that better weather might prevail, and for the reason that some of the information obtained might be applied in increasing profits from the laying flock during the remaining winter months.

The favorable price of eggs, which has prevailed this past fall and winter, has stimulated considerable interest in poultry raising. That there is still opportunity for profitable local poultry enterprise is evidenced by the large volume of eggs shipped into this section during the fall and winter months.

Turkey problems will be in for a discussion on Friday afternoon.

Feeding, housing and the cost of production factors will be discussed on Thursday, the first day, with general problems of management, disease control, and turkey problems on Friday. It is planned to serve the usual refreshments the second day, so come equipped with eating utensils for that date.

Remember the dates, Thursday and Friday, December 8 and 9.

Leland School Notes

Practice on our Christmas program was begun Tuesday. It will consist of three major parts, each of which requires costuming. Much of the program is of an entirely different nature than any we have given recently. Most of the costumes and scenery will be made by the pupils during their art, sewing and shop periods.

Two new pupils were enrolled in our school last week, both from Lapwai. They were Austin and Elmo Blankenship. This brings our Shirley Temple will be seen at the Kendrick Theatre this coming Friday and Saturday nights in "Little Miss Broadway," and brings everything that's new in song and rhythm. All the fun that fills a Shirley Temple picture; the kind of cast that makes shows hum, and a Shirley of surprises stepping out on the main stem! A story steeped in excitement and set on the world's most colorful street. A romance as bright as the Broadway lights and brimming with youth-appeal. Besides Shirley the cast includes Gen. Murphy, Phyllis Brooks, Jimmy Durante and Edna Mae Ferber. That makes a full house.

New Recipes For Potatoes

December 2 to 10 is National Potato week and Idaho potatoes will be featured all over America. Here at home we should make this an important week for Idaho potatoes, too. To call your attention to some different ways to use the famous Idaho delicacy, we suggest these two fine recipes for potatoes and onions. We rather imagine you will want to try them right away.

Sausage potatoes—With apple cover remove center from peeled Idaho potatoes. Stuff with sausage. Place in baking dish, dot with butter, season. Cover bottom of dish with water. Bake covered in medium hot (375) oven until almost done. Remove cover to let potatoes brown and finish cooking.

French Fried onions—6 Idaho sweet Spanish onions; 1 egg; 1 cup milk; 1 cup flour; ¼ teaspoon salt; deep fat for frying. Break egg in bowl, add milk, sift flour and salt into mixture and beat until batter is free from lumps. Peel onions, slice thin and separate into rings. Dip single rings into batter and fry in hot fat (375) until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper, sprinkle with salt. Serve piping hot.

These savory dishes are two of some forty just released in folder form by the Idaho Fruit and Vegetable commission.

Idaho potatoes have long been known on eastern markets as the finest of bakers, and as a result have been used for that almost exclusively.

Library Has Book Shortage

The cupboard of Old Mother Hubbard was no more bare than the shelves of the juvenile department of Idaho's traveling library, Lalla Bedford, librarian, said.

"With six months of the heaviest reading period ahead, the shelves of the state library are practically depleted," she said.

Two years ago, Governors C. Ben Ross and Barzilla W. Clark, collaborating on the state budgets, allowed an increase of two and one half times in the appropriation for the library, said Miss Bedford.

The increase was overwhelmingly endorsed by the 1937 legislature, but in spite of the additional funds for books, the supply is falling far short of the demands of the rural reading public.

Georgia Anecdote

Among those not entirely satisfied with the results of the Georgia election is the man whose platform was recorded in a Post-Dispatch article.

This Georgian said he was for Eugene Talmade (who was defeated) Governor Rivers (who was reelected) and President Roosevelt. He explained: "Gene Talmade will give me 40 acres of land; Ed Rivers will exempt it from taxes and the President will pay me not to farm it. That's my ticket."

Why Girls Stay Thin

A girl or woman receiving $18 a week pays $116 a year in hidden taxes. Six weeks of her work out of each fifty-two go to tax collectors. She pays for government spending at the rate of 32 cents a day—more than she can afford to pay for her lunch. —Commentor Magazine.

December Unemployment Peak

When the Benefit Section of the Idaho Unemployment Compensation Division on September 1, started the program for payment of unemployment benefits, it appeared that Idaho workers were pretty generally employed, but the picture is very materially changed at this time, said Laurence B. Lyman, superintendent of the division.

The first month brought only 4,029 initial claims for benefits to the central office, but applications are now coming in at the rate of 234 per day and have reached a total of 11,504. Checks to the number of 14,950 have been mailed to unemployed workers averaging $10.46 per week, and the total paid out of the Benefit fund to date has reached the sum of $153,207.34.

It is expected, said Mr. Lyman, that by Christmas the weekly benefit pay roll will be $30,000.00, and that this sum will increase through the winter months. After that, said Mr. Lyman, the benefit payments should level off, as those found eligible in the first few months will have exhausted their benefit credits, and no doubt the summer months, when employment is highest in Idaho, will witness a substantial reduction in benefit payments.

Contributions to the Benefit fund amount to about $450,000.00 per quarter.

Idahoans Drink Less Liquor

Idahoans gulp their whiskey straight and they can take it by the jigger or the tin cup without batting an eye. And they drink a prodigious amount.

The foregoing is a legend many easterners firmly believe. It's a silly relic, perhaps, of the pioneer days. When one compares the per capita consumption of liquor in Idaho with that of most other states, the legend is absurdly untrue.

Media Records, incorporated, submits a table showing per capita liquor consumption per year and Idaho is not far from the bottom of the list, with a consumption of .973 of a gallon a year.

But take the District of Columbia, in which is located Washington, our national capital.

In the District of Columbia—in case it interests anyone—they drink (proportionately) almost five times as much as we do in Idaho. Per capita consumption there is 4.817 gallons per year!

Out here in Idaho, of course, most of us have to work for a living. We don't have so much time to sit around and guzzle whiskey. — Boise Statesman.

EDITORIAL

Well, Folks — Here it is December 8, and Christmas rapidly approaching — almost too rapidly, it seems, for most of us have just been saluted with a tax statement that makes anything but good reading.

These two things — Christmas and taxes, call for money, and our credit is no good at the tax collector's office, even if it may be to do your Christmas shopping — so why not get the cash for both by selling us your cream?

We pay spot cash for cream. There is no waiting, no fuss or bother, and you don't even have to wash the can when we return it to you — it's steam sterilized!

Christmas, too, will be all the nicer if you have frozen fruits and meats in one of our locker boxes. What would taste better as a Christmas dessert than a fresh strawberry shortcake, or a big scoop of our ice cream, heaped with berries? Try it.

Teacher: Unselfishness is voluntarily going without something we need. Give me a living example of it, James.

James: "Me. I go without a bath when I need it!"

A father told his inquiring son that Newton's law of gravity kept the earth from careening into space.

"What held us up before F. D. R. got that law passed, pop?" was the next question.

"What made you beat up that guy?"

"He insulted my girl!"

"Why, all he said was that she danced like a zephyr."

"I thought he said heifer."
