NO. 18

HIGHWAY MONEY MAY BE HELD UP BY COURT DECISION

Seven county prosecutors and Attorney General J. W. Taylor, convened on steps to be taken by the constitutionally of a highway fund for the state division of highway funds. The measure passed by the 1939 legislature, which authorized the reimbursement of counties for highway construction through reduction of license plates from an average of $28 to a flat $5.00. The measure was questioned, the constitutionality of the act last week by counties who anticipated reimbursement of their share of the tax were forced to suspend highway construction plans and work on various projects.

The question in the minds of the counties is whether the law should be upheld by the supreme court. Kenneth O'Leary, prosecutor of Blaine county, is the matter of deciding what approach. A definite decision may not be reached for some time.

Bottolfsen said the litigation postponed organization of public relations in the department of public works.

Under the 1939 law is to make a survey in each county. Bottolfsen said that the survey will be made, on the basis of the conditions in each county.

A $200,000 payment was made by State Auditor Caldwell, on advice of Attorney General Taylor, declined to sue for the validity of the law.

Maude Morrison Passes

Maude Morrison, Jan. 18, 1870, passed away in her home at Southwick, Idaho, at the age of 68 years. She was born in Maine, and was married to Walter Morrison, who died in 1910. She is survived by six children, four of whom are living. Her husband was a prominent farmer and stock raiser. She was a member of the Methodist church and was well known in the community.

Painting Being Done

Carl Lohman is busy these days painting a coat of paint to his home in the west part of town. Improving the appearance of his home is his main object. He has received a coat of gleaming white, with green trim. It adds much to its appearance.

The front of the Rider Food Store received a coat of cream-yellow paint last week, and the Ruby Hotel entrance a new sign.

Such improvements are a sure sign of spring.

Band Concert

Next Sunday afternoon (May 7) there will be a concert given by the local school band, commencing at 2 o'clock, in the Kendrick park. Mr. Vaughn will be in charge of the band and there is every reason to believe the youngsters will do themselves proud and their instructor proud.

The general public is invited to come out and hear them.

Entertain For Dawlds

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Long, was the scene of a very pleasant get-together and card party honoring Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dawld, given by the Ladies of the Afternoon Bridge club.

Following a delicious "no host or hostess" supper, cards were played at six tables. High scores for the ladies going to Mrs. W. A. Watts and low to Mrs. Harold Thomas.

High score for the men went to George Leith and low to E. A. Deobald.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawld were given a guest prize.

FIRE SEASON REGULATIONS NOW IN FORCE

Because of the unusually dry condition of the forests, the fire season in Idaho opened May 1, one month ahead of schedule. E. C. Rettig, chief forester of Potlatch Forests, Inc., said. The advanced date was recently authorized by a proclamation by Governor Bottolfsen. Beginning May 1, burning of camp fires, garbage disposal fires and slashings not authorized by the district fire warden will be illegal, he said. In addition to compulsory permits, regular fire season regulations, including lighted cigarettes and matches from automobiles traveling through areas under protection, will be in effect, Mr. Rettig said. The season is slated to close Sept. 30, but if authorities consider an extension advisable it will probably conclude one month later.

Fire season regulations are enforced by the U. S. forest service in national forests and by private fire wardens in private owned forest tracts. A. B. Curtis, Orofino, fire warden of the Clearwater Timber Protective association, will issue permits for both the national forest reserve area east and south of the north fork of the Clearwater river and land under protection of the association. R. L. Woenser will issue permits at Elk River for the area of the Potlatch Timber Protective association, said the Lewiston Tribune.

Mr. Rettig reported several minor fires had resulted from slashings in northern Idaho, but none have been reported in the north central Idaho forests.

Farm Buildings Need Good Braces

Studies in the bracing of barns and other farm buildings have been carried on at the U. S. Forestry Products laboratory at Madison, Wis., for a number of years. The engineers there have found that the lack of sufficient bracing has been the chief reason in reducing the strength and serviceable life of many of these buildings.

A wall with studding spaced about two feet apart and covered with 6-inch drop siding can be made three times as strong and rigid lengthwise by simply nailing 1x4 braces on approximately a 45-degree angle across the studs on the inside of the top plate to the base of the wall. Braces made of short length of 2x4 lumber stock are often accurately fitted between the studs on a 45-degree angle and nailed securely in place. This kind of bracing, while increasing the strength and rigidity of the wall somewhat, is not very efficient when compared with the long one-piece brace or with diagonally nailed sheathing.

A covering of long and wide sheets of building material may furnish a strong bracing but a covering of horizontal or vertical boards, although well nailed, is not very efficient in keeping the building rigid, as these boards do not form triangles with the horizontal and vertical framing members. A good brace is usually one which runs diagonally much as the temporary braces so often used during the erection of the building.

The little extra cost of putting in proper bracing at the time the building is erected may save considerable expense later.

Wildlife Federation Row

The supposedly "perfect" game commission, which is supposed to have removed all politics from the Game department, is already in the throes of its first real pains from such an undertaking and State Game Director A. B. Hatch has been asked for his resignation, and Walter Fiscus, of Potlatch and Mike Bottolfsen of Kellogg have threatened to resign because of the "fixing" of Hatch by the board or commission, which was done by a three-to-two vote. There have been charges and counter charges regarding favoritism in civil service examinations, and other charges as well.

It seems that no matter how they try, or what political party is in charge, there is always a row on down at Boise. No matter whether Mr. Hatch was a good manager or not, he lives at Moscow, and that is sufficient cause for members of the commission living in the southern part of the state to take exception. It is also claimed that Mr. Hatch mixed too much University of Idaho up with the game department.

However, we still believe in that old slogan: "No north—just south—Idaho."

New Awing Going Up

Tuesday of this week Harold Thomas installed a new roller-type awning across the front of his creamery and cannery building, in preparation for the coming warm summer weather.

The new awning is of a kahkai color and adds materially to the appearance of the building, and well as to its coolness.

JUNIOR PROM FRIDAY ONE OF FINEST EVER HELD

The 1939 Junior Prom, "The Dance of the Year," held last Friday evening in the Kendrick High School gymnasium, was one of the finest ever given in Kendrick.

The interior decorations, of the big gym, consisting of hundreds of yards of white, silver and blue crepe paper, Japanese lanterns, and wild apple blossoms, interspersed with evergreen boughs, made a very striking scene as one entered the building.

At the entrance, as the invitation was presented, each couple received two dance programs, a white one for the lady, and a black one for the man, and, in addition, each received two tiny Japanese parasols, with the remark, "Just in case it rains."

The indirect colored lighting further enhanced the beauty of the big gym, and when the orchestra finally started playing a large crowd was on hand for the event, which opened with a grand march, directed by Geo. P. Barnum, maestro of this art, who has directed them for many years, and who also acted as floor director.

Free punch was also served by the class, and as the evening was warm, the "punch well" proved a very popular place.

All in all, the decorations were beautiful, the floor good, the music fine, and the class and its advisor is indeed to be congratulated on the fine social event they produced.

Twenty Years Ago

Sucker hunting has been the excitement of the week in this locality. Potlatch creek and its tributaries are well stocked with these fish and all that is necessary to get them is to have a spear and a lantern.

Leland Notes—A pie social was given by the Odd Fellows on Friday night. The sale brought in $40.00 cash. On the same evening a masquerade ball was given in the built-up part of Claude Craig's store. A prize of a $5.00 gold piece went to the best masked couple. Hank Black, dressed as a ragged man, and Miss Craig, dressed as a Red Cross nurse, were the recipients.

Big Bear Ridge—Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Fairfield are entertaining a fine boy, born April 29. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Holt and children have moved to the Ole Lien place, recently vacated by Mrs. Florence Harrison. Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Gentry have moved to Texas ridge. Mrs. August Dahlgren has returned to her home on Texas ridge. She received a telegram last week that her husband had landed safely in New York from overseas.

The first issue of the new paper for Juliaetta made its appearance last week under the heading of "The Juliaetta Record." It is a neat, creditable paper and deserves the patronage of the business men of Juliaetta. J. C. Bulen is the owner and publisher.

Take Project Tour

Last Thursday afternoon the Freshmen and Sophomore boys enrolled in Vocational Agriculture visited the projects of the boys on American ridge.

The first project visited was that of Warney May, Jr., who has several worthwhile projects under way. At the present time he is managing a sow and litter, three milk cows, alfalfa, beans, barley and two mares.

From that point we drove to the Carroll Cox home. Here we saw 17 weaning pigs and two brood sows owned by Clinton Cox. These were mighty thrifty pigs. Clinton is also planting an acre of corn. Bill Cox is planning on planting an acre of potatoes this year.

We then visited Kenneth Woody's home and saw his pigs. He has a sow, with a litter of ten thrifty pigs.

On our return from the Woody home we were invited into the Carroll Cox place and there we were served delicious cake and ice cream.

Last, but not least, was a worthwhile visit to the Nora Callison home. Here we saw a fine example of raising baby chicks. Out of 400, 2-week-old chicks, Nora had lost but three.

The boys enjoyed this tour very much and gained some knowledge of how other boys manage their enterprises.

German Husbands Held Responsible

A news dispatch from Berlin, under date of April 29, is to the effect that husbands in official positions are held responsible under the Nazi regime for the vagaries of spendthrift wives.

Cast-iron rules of the German civil service have been made even more severe by a circular just issued by the Reich finance minister to his subordinates.

It ordains that a married official renders himself liable to punishment if he does not "properly check any tendency to extravagance on his wife's part in running his household."

In general terms, the official must avoid doing anything calculated to harm the interests of the Reich or the status of his profession. Getting into debt is held to be a major transgression.

He is strictly forbidden to advise or assist taxpayers in their troubles with endless forms to fill up, or to accept gifts or favors of any kind.

Even accepting a cup of coffee may be counted as a "bribe."

This prohibition extends to all members of his family.

It must be great sport to be a politician in Germany.

INTERESTING NEWS ITEMS FROM KENDRICK SCHOOLS

The Junior Prom is over and was certainly a grand success both socially and financially. The gym was beautifully decorated to represent a Japanese garden and a very fine job it was. Along one side was a lattice fence of silver crepe paper entwined with green vines and red roses. The stage, decorated with evergreens and Japanese lanterns, held the orchestra. Huge bouquets of lilacs and tulips and apple blossoms were everywhere, and at one end of the hall was a most natural-looking well surrounded by grass, moss and rocks. Delicious punch was served to all from this well.

The Grand March, which started at 9:00 o'clock, was led by Helen Newman and the Junior Class president, Ervin Draper. Everyone agrees it was one of the nicest Proms ever to be given here, and that the Junior Class really deserves praise for their fine work.

A group of mothers were hostesses at a party honoring the Kendrick Girls' League in the M. E. church basement Monday afternoon. About forty girls were present. A huge table in the shape of the letter "U" was decorated with great bowls of tulips and lilies of the valley. Tall white candles burned in low crystal candle sticks. Clever place cards and favors in the shape of tulips were used in creating a festive and spring-like atmosphere. Dainty refreshments were served, after which a word game was played. Helen Newman being the winner. After this a number of songs were sung by the group with Arlene Deobald accompanying on the piano. Hostesses were Mesdames I. W. Havens, E. A. Deobald, O. E. Havens, Clifford Davidson, L. S. LaHatt, Rose Farrington, O. K. Kanikkeberg, Edgar Long, Hiram Galloway and W. B. Deobald. The Girls' League wishes to take this opportunity to thank these ladies again. We deeply appreciate such interest in our League.

Commencement and Baccalaureate speakers have been engaged for the graduating Seniors of the Kendrick High school. Dr. Wm. Gray, pastor of the local community church will deliver the Baccalaureate sermon on Sunday evening, May 14, at 8:00 o'clock, in the Kendrick Community church. Rev. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Moscow will deliver the Commencement address, also in the Community church, on Wednesday evening, May 17, at 8:00 o'clock. Dr. Walker comes very highly recommended as a speaker. The Juniors and Sophomores will decorate the church for the two occasions, as in the past.

Averages have been computed for the Valedictorian and Salutatorian of the graduating group and the averages are probably closer than they have ever been before. Arlene Deobald, with an average of 5.95 and 34 academic credits, is Valedictorian; Myrtle Schmidt, with an average of 5.94 and 32 academic credits, is Salutatorian. There will be 26 Seniors receiving diplomas if all work now on hand is completed by each member. This number may vary, but indications are now for that number with possibly one exception.

On Sunday afternoon, May 7, the Kendrick band, under the direction of Mr. Vaughn, will present a public concert in the Kendrick Park at 3:00 p. m. This is the first town appearance of this group and we hope there will be a good turnout for this affair. The concert will last about 45 minutes.

Grain Grading School

Latah and Nez Perce county farmers and grain dealers will have an opportunity to study methods of grading grain at a two-day school to be held at Lewiston, May 15 and 16.

"Each dealer who attends the school will receive an individual set of twenty samples illustrating various grading problems peculiar to his region." Dr. K. H. Klages, agronomist with the Idaho agricultural experiment station, stated. "These samples are to be analyzed at the school, and the dealer can take them home for further study."

B. W. Whitlock, federal grain inspector, Portland, and Willis B. Combs, marketing specialist for the U. S. extension service, Chicago, will attend and take leading parts in the school.

A complete program has been arranged for the two days in cooperation with county extension agents.

WHEAT MARKET FIRMER DUE TO REPORTS OF DETERIORATION

Wheat markets strengthened very materially toward the close of the week ended April 28, influenced by reports of less favorable prospects for winter wheat, an active milling inquiry for current offerings and the continued political unsettlement in Europe, states the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in the Weekly Grain Market Review. Feed grains were barely steady. Barley maintained a firm tone.

Crop developments were a dominant influence in the general wheat situation, although the political situation in Europe continued an important factor. Less favorable prospects were reported in parts of the United States winter wheat area. Conditions were very poor in the west central and southwestern Texas portions as well as southwestern Oklahoma. Some deterioration was reported in parts of Kansas. The crop is nearly all jointed in southeastern and south central parts and the change was noted in these sections. Conditions improved somewhat in portions of Nebraska, but progress was rather poor in most of the trans-Mississippi states. In the Ohio valley, progress and condition of winter wheat were fairly good, except in some low lands. The seeding of spring wheat was nearing completion but good rains were badly needed over large areas of the Dakotas where sub-soil moisture is lacking.

Considerable damage from winter killing is reported in Europe and in France, the Netherlands and Belgium and the outlook appears to be somewhat below average. Spring seeding to replace damaged winter wheat has been retarded by cold weather. A good crop is in prospect in Italy but frequent rains will be needed to maintain favorable prospects. Conditions in Germany are above average.

Future prices in United States markets turned sharply upward toward the close of the week and reached the highest point since July of 1938. Cash prices also advanced and premiums were well maintained for most grades. Inter-mill and warehouse second grade first of April were the second largest on record, according to the official estimate and totaled 92,846,000 bushels compared with 73,495,000 bushels a year ago and the 1931-37 average of 68,761,000 bushels. Adding stocks on farms and in terminal markets gave a total wheat supply in the United States April 1, of 364,424,000 bushels; not including stocks in merchant mills. Disappearance of wheat in the January-March quarter not including changes in mill stocks, was approximately 20 million bushels larger this season than last. Most of the increase in disappearance was in domestic channels since exports to the first of April were only about five million bushels larger than last season. Export demand during the period was negligible and exports during the third week in April totaled slightly less than a million dollars and brought the season's total to 67,600,000 bushels. Milling inquiry was active, however, and current offerings, which were materially larger than during the previous week, were readily taken. Marketings of winter wheat totaled 1,803 cars at the principal winter wheat markets, while 1,370 cars were received at Minneapolis and Duluth and 1,421 cars at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals in the Pacific Northwest.

Indemnity payments on export flour at the close of the week were $1.00 to the Philippines, $1.20 general from Pacific Coast ports and $1.25 to China. Demand for cash wheat was somewhat less urgent at Northwest terminal markets toward the close of the period, since export sales to the Orient declined at the higher prices and millers were not so actively in the market. Demand from exporters was also less active since no export sales of wheat were reported during the period. Crop conditions in the Pacific Northwest are reported definitely less favorable with some deterioration already reported due to lack of moisture. A good soaking rain is needed over most of the Pacific Northwest wheat producing districts.

In Pacific Northwest barley markets, a fully steady tone was maintained during the past week. Prices at Portland at the close of the period for No. 2 bright western barley, weighing 45 lbs. per bushel, were shown at $1.22 1/2 per 100, sacked, while No. 2 gray oats remained nominal. At Seattle, heavy white barley from eastern Washington was quoted at $1.22 1/2 to $1.25 per 100, sacked. Maiting quality Hanhchen barley was quoted nominally at $1.25 per 100, basis FOB cars Willamette valley or Klamath Falls shipping points, but with supplies in those areas practically depleted.

Oats markets in the Pacific Northwest were also fully steady although trading and movement were light. On April 27, No. 2 white oats weighing 38 lbs. were quoted at Portland at $1.36 1/4 per 100, sacked, with No. 2 gray oats nominal. White oats from eastern Washington were quoted at Seattle at $1.35 to $1.27 1/2 per 100, sacked. Receipts for the week totaled four cars of oats at Portland with none received at Seattle. Growers were not pressing their comparatively small remaining supplies of oats for sale in this area, which tended to offset the only moderate to light demand continued at the terminal markets. Current receipts to come principally from eastern Oregon and Washington shippers, since offerings of feeding types of oats from Montana were slow in request.

Come and Get It

It cost Polk-watson county, Kansas $899 in officers' salaries to give away their social welfare money last month. Wouldn't it have been cheaper to have piled it up in the court yard and told them to "come and get it?"

THUMB NAIL RESUMES OF IDAHO HISTORY

By Glenn Balch
The practice of artificially supplying crops with moisture in the west had its inception in the arid valleys of Utah. By means of it the Mormons made the desert bloom like the proverbial rose. Upon irrigation, the natural fertility of the dry soil, and the splendid courage and resourcefulness of his people, Brigham Young founded his mighty empire and transformed the dusty purple of the sage to the green of production.

Naturally enough, irrigation in Idaho seeped up from Utah. It was in 1854 that a little colony of Mormons threaded its way northward and selected lovely Lemhi valley in the eastern part of the state as a location.

One of the first activities was the construction of a mud-walled fort for protection against the Indians. A primitive system of ditches was built to irrigate the low, flat bench on which the fort was located. Production of crops began.

While not exactly thriving, the little colony was struggling along valiantly in 1858, four years later. However, on February 25 of that year a band of Indians, reported to have been Bannacks and Shoshones, ambushed the men at work, killing two and wounding five. This blow was too much. On March 28 the settlers abandoned the location and returned to Utah. The weathered remains of the old fort still stand.

A second Mormon settlement in Idaho occurred in 1860, where the city of Franklin now stands. Irrigation was immediately resorted to and proved successful. Steady development since that time has converted this area into one of the finest irrigation sections of the west.

The real impetus to irrigation came, however, during and immediately after the gold excitement of the early '60's. Miners thronging to Boise Basin provided a commercial demand for fresh vegetables in 1863 that resulted in irrigation development in Jerusalem valley, near the Horseshoe bend. Success of this venture launched the industry destined to become Idaho's economical backbone.

The second phase of this important impetus to Idaho irrigation came at the close of the gold excitement. Hundreds of men who had rushed to the state in high frenzy found themselves, as the area of pay dirt dwindled, without employment. Some drifted on to new diggings, but many, if not actually the majority, had been thoroughly disillusioned of rumors of quick riches. Many of them had come from the midwest and eastern farms, and practically all of them, through placer mining, had gained first hand experience in the control and use of water.

The result is obvious. They took their knowledge of water and soil and their hunger for homes and fertile valleys that abounded on all sides. From that time the success and expansion of irrigation in Idaho was assured.

Visit McAntire Herd
Last Monday the Junior and Senior boys in Vocational Agriculture had the opportunity to see how cattle are tested for Bang's disease, how they are branded and the brand registered, and discussed other important problems relative to the livestock business. The McAntire Brothers are building up a good herd of Aberdeen-Angus cattle, and their efforts to produce more beef in this community are being amply rewarded. The boys appreciate the opportunity of seeing this work, and who can say, but that in the near future they may be in the same occupation.

Little International Show

On next Saturday, May 6, the students in the College of Agriculture, U. of I., are giving their annual parade and display of University stock, grains, poultry, agricultural engineering exhibits, etc. This show is the high-light of events for agricultural students.

Anyone interested in seeing some excellent stock should plan on attending the parade during the day or the show during the evening. Your time will be well spent.

"Five Of A Kind"
Everyone is interested in the Dione quintuplets, naturally, as they are the only quins in the world that have lived to the "ripe old age" these quins have. They have grown much since seen last in Kendrick and they are said to show great versatility.

Although the quins are the big highlight of the picture, a well-knit and actional story, the plot of which sweeps from the small Canadian village to the throbbing turmoil of Metropolitan New York. It concerns the rivalry of two romantic reporters, who race for the year's most exciting scoop. The action speeds in and out of Broadway, New York, and introduces an original and thrilling climax in which the quins have a leading part.

Bright Future
First of the saloon recitations to be made into a film is "Gunga Din." If the tendency spreads, talent scouts must find a face suitable for a bar-room floor.

DR. SIMMONS COMING
Dr. Charles Simmons, Eye-Sight Specialist of Lewiston will be in Juliaetta during the forenoon of Friday, May 5th, and at the Raby Hotel during the afternoon of the same day. Those desiring to consult him should call the Heacock Confectionery for Juliaetta appointments and the Raby Hotel for Kendrick appointments. This will be the last visit of Dr. Simmons until July or August, as he plans to be away for a few weeks attending lectures and the National Optometric Convention.

EDITORIAL

Well, Folks — May day has come and gone, and as usual we read of a few jaws being broken, heads cracked, etc., in the annual May Day labor disturbances here and there, and it begins to again look like war in Europe, but maybe, as before, it's just the "dogs of war" growling over an anticipated bone, and not the real thing. We sincerely hope so, for as has been repeated throughout history "War is Hell," and it benefits nobody, breaks up homes, and bankrupts nations. Let us hope that peace will remain.

But regardless of what happens in Europe, cream is still cash with us, and cash speaks in any language. Have you tried it? If you haven't, just bring us a can of cream, get the cash and see what it will buy.

Do you use "Pride O' The Pot-latch" creamery butter? If you don't, try a pound today. It may be purchased at any of the local stores, or at the creamery, if you wish.

The doctor was visiting Rastus' wife to deliver the 12th offspring. While riding along with Rastus he saw a duck in the road.

Doctor: "Whose duck is that?"
Rastus: "That ain't no duck. That's the stork with his legs wore off."

She: "What does 'davenport' suggest to you?"
He: "A city in Iowa."

A young man who complained of insomnia was advised to count until he fell asleep. Next day the doctor paid another visit.

"Did you follow my advice?" he asked.

"Yes," was the reply. "I counted up to 19,560."

"And then you fell asleep?"
"No, it was time to get up."

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO TO PRESENT PAGEANT

Featuring the forty-fourth University of Idaho commencement will be the third campus presentation of the University's own pageant, "The Light on the Mountains," written by Talbot Jennings '24, now scenarist, with Paramount studios in Hollywood. Actually the 1939 performance, scheduled for MacLean field the evening of Saturday, June 10—Alumni Day on the commencement schedule—will be the fourth performance of the huge pageant. In addition to the previous presentations at the university, first at the 1923 commencement and again at commencement in 1927, the pageant was given at Boise in 1924.

The idea of the University of Idaho preserving in pageant form the stirring history of Idaho was born in 1922. Dr. A. H. Upham, then president of the university, took keen personal interest in the project. Jennings, major in English with exceptional writing ability and much interested in this type of writing, was assigned to prepare the script. The first presentation was on June 9, 1923. Prior to the second presentation, Jennings revised the script extensively and David Nyvall, then a member of the university music faculty, wrote original music. The revised form was presented June 4, 1927.

Believed to be the state's first large-scale pageant, calling for a cast of approximately 300 persons, "The Light on the Mountains" portrays in drama, dance and song the history of Idaho from the time of Indian occupation to the present day. It opens with the old Indian prophecy of the coming of the white man. The first episode tells of Lewis and Clark, Sacajawea, the early trappers and missionaries who played important parts in the opening of Idaho. Subsequent episodes deal with other important chapters in Idaho history, such as the gold rush days and the Indian war period. The finale ties together the state's romantic past with its bright future. Production of the pageant at the 1939 commencement will be under the general supervision of Prof. John H. Cushman, head of the English department.

Shortstop Garner

Maybe Mr. Garner wasn't avoiding the subject, after all, when he said, when informed that the boom for him for President was progressing, that as a youth he was the "best danged shortstop in east Texas." Maybe he thinks the White House needs a shortstop more than it does a quarterback.—Indianapolis News.

WHITE PINE SCOURAGE STILL IS SPREADING

Because sufficient funds are not available to put adequate numbers of control workers in the field the blister rust, scourage of vast valuable white pine forests in northern Idaho, eastern Washington and western Montana—is still spreading faster than protection forces can keep up with it.

This is the conclusion drawn from the annual report just issued by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine at Spokane, responsible in cooperation with the United States Forest Service for directing and supervising control measures.

The report shows that much progress has been made and the disease definitely checked on about two-thirds of the 2,600,000 acres in the affected area. Remaining to be given protection for the first time, however, are 888,000 acres or approximately one-third of the area over which the disease is spreading at an alarming rate. With this large area left to be given first working in addition to practicing maintenance control work on areas already covered once or twice before, the report indicates that the program is not progressing rapidly enough to keep up with the spread of the disease.

Blister rust does not spread from pine to pine, but only through infection of wild currant and gooseberry bushes, which in turn infect the trees. Since the disease cannot spread except through the currant and gooseberry bushes, the job of controlling the scourage is simply one of eradicating these plants from the pine forests. This is entirely practical and possible, say the foresters.

Since the first control plan work was started in 1923, the report shows that the first working for eradication of currant and gooseberry bushes has been completed on 1,782,000 acres or a little less than two-thirds of the total area. Second and third workings, which are sometimes necessary to eliminate new sprouts or bushes missed in the first working, have been completed on 202,000 acres.

During the summer of 1938 an army of 4,798 men was engaged in the blister rust battle, but in view of the wide front over which the disease is spreading, this number of workers was not sufficient. Included in the 1938 crews were CCC workers, WPA workers, and others paid from regular appropriations. During the year the area worked by all agencies amounted to 169,000 acres, of which 77,000 acres received the coverage for the first time.

Although the white pine area represents a huge area of rough terrain and the original outlay of money to finance an initial comprehensive program would be large, those in charge of control work believe that quick attack on all fronts would be cheaper in the long run and most effective. They say sufficient crews can and should be placed in the field to complete the urgent work within the next two or three years. Thereafter the maintenance work would require a much smaller program.

Experience has indicated that adequate control work can be done to protect the pine at a cost which is far less than the value of the pine producing land, and foresters are confident that if ample funds could be immediately provided to finance a sufficiently large protection program, the disease could be thoroughly subdued and the white pine industry saved for future generations.

And Now They're Drinking Ink

First it was some of the goofy college boys that tried swallowing one little gold fish—and thought he had done something wonderful. Then others came along and raised the ante until the record stands at 25 or more—at one sitting, or standing. Then came another goof who ate 200 angle worms and lopped them off with other refreshing victuals. But it remained for a young chap down at Twin Falls to come along, and, supposedly being somewhat thirsty, drank a bottle of ink. To date he is declared to be the daffiest one of them all.

It can't be much worse, though than eating various kinds of hardware or chewing up plate glass windows and other "nick-knacks."

Laziest Man

Salina's laziest man is badly disappointed. He read about the Kansas legislator who proposes to give a pension of $100 monthly to every resident of the state who loses both hands. He was all ready to put himself in position to collect, but suddenly realized that after he had chopped off one hand, he would be unable to amputate the other. That's the trouble with all this humanitarian legislation, he says—there's always a catch in it somewhere.—Salina, Kansas, Journal.
