WHEAT MARKETS FIRMER FOLLOWING RECENT DROP

Domestic grain markets turned somewhat firmer toward the close of the week ending July 28, and prices advanced from the low levels reported early in the period, states the Agricultural Marketing Service in the Weekly Grain Market Rener for about 7:30. They probably will include a football picture, a cartoon-comedy; Sound Waves; Seed Dispersol (ag.) and the San Francisco Fair.

Canadian markets declined further despite some drought damage in the Prairie provinces. Spring wheat suffered from hot, dry weather in Alberta and southeastern sections of Saskatchewan. Taken altogether, however, the outlook is for a relatively large crop. Harvesting started during the week in southern Manitoba. Hot weather delayed har-vesting in some sections of Europe, particularly. Belgium, Holland, and France. Good harvesting weather, however, prevailed in the Balkan states and in Russia. Yields about equal to last year are expected in Italy and a crop of around 112,000,-000 bushels is indicated for Spain. > Marketings of new spring wheat increased and quite a few cars from South Dakota points were received at Minneapolis. Demand was active and premiums were firm to 1c higher, particularly for high protein wheat.

Cash wheat markets in the Pacific Northwest advanced toward the close of the week and showed gains of 1/2c to 2c per bushel from a week ago. Cash wheat prices at Portland on July 28 were: soft white and western white, 69c; western red 67%c; ordinary protein hard red winter, 66c and hard white (baart) 69c per bushel, all basis No. 1 grade in bulk. > The San Francisco wheat market developed a somewhat stronger tone toward the close of the week ending July 28, chiefly influenced by the recovery of a portion of recent sharp price declines in other domestic markets. Quotations on local wheats were largely unchanged but trading broadened and was more toward the top of the previous week's range. FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS OF IDAHO HISTORY

By Glenn Balch

Dutch Jake's Wedding One of the most interesting per sonalities which developed out of those hectic days when the Coeurd'Alene mining region was making millionaires and paupers over night was Jake Goetz.

About 1885 Dutch Jake, as he was known in the mining camps of half a dozen regions, came drifting into the Coeur d'Alene country with all of his worldly possessions on a single toboggan. He got hold of a good claim in the Potosi diggings and started taking every broke miner who came along. Jake had a lot of charger a broad smile and a stock of energy, a broad smile and a stock of fairly good whiskey. He prospered. With prosperity came recollections of the apple-cheeked girl he had left back in the "states", so after a time Jake wrote her to come ter a time Jake wrote her to come

This whole-souled man of the min-ing camps did nothing half-heartedly. His wedding was by far the most pretentious and elaborate held during the Coeur d'Alene boom days. He didn't send out engraved invitations to a select group of friends. On the contrary, he published notices in the newspapers, issuing a whole sale invitation to all the people living in the area which is now Washington Table and Markova Hericago Washington, Idaho and Montana. He had large flamboyant posters printed, heralding the event in gigantic type, and these were tacked up on the mountain walls and trees all over the region.

Dutch Jake was going to get married. It was to be a grand and glorious occasion. Dutch Jake wanted everybody there to share his happiness and hospitality. It is reported on good authority that the last line on the posters read: "Nobody barred.

At last the momentous day arrived. The apple-cheeked girl was there, appropriately blushing and not a little awed by the robust splen-dor of the occasion. Home-made salutes of blasting powder announced the event in every mining camp the region. Miners threw down their tools and converged by mountain trail on Murray from all di-rections of the compass! A brass band, reported to have been the only one in the country, tooted and bang-ed all day long. Wine and liquor was to be had in endless abundance and nobody's money was any good but Dutch Jake's.

Dutch Jake's friends were equal to the occasion and the gift list was a marvel to behold. Jim Wardner reports that one package of silverware weighed over 700 pounds. No item that might conceivably have a place in the newly married couple's home was overlooked. Everything from cellar to garret was provided for hand for power large transfer. for. And for many long years afterward the rough and hardy miners of the Coeur d'Alenes dated events of enough importance to remember from "the day Dutch Jake got mar-

Wheat Grading Done At Boise Grading of all farm-stored wheat on which Latah County producers make application for storage loans, will be effected at the newly established grading laboratory at the Boise office of the Idaho State AAA, Paul Carlson, chairman of the county Agricultural Conservation committee announced this week.

Farm storage wheat from all other counties in the state will also be graded at the new Boise laboratory, he stated. This practice will assure standard, equitable grades throughout the state.

The county office has been notified the apparatus at the laboratory was tested last week by Lester Grandy, federal grain grading supervisor stationed at Ogden, Utah, and is now waiting for grading requests. Wheat must be in storage on the farm for 30 days before it is eligible to become collateral for an AAA

When the producers make application for a loan to the county Agricultural Conservation office, a representative sample from each bin will be taken by the inspector. These samples will be sent to Boise for dockage, smut, moisture and grade

High protein content will be recognized with premiums over established loan rates this year upon presentation of a protein certificate. If a producer desires a protein test, a sample of his wheat will be sent to an approved protein test laboratory at the same time other samples are taken.

Loan rates in northern Idaho counties vary from 52c to 55c per bushel on the farm for No. 1 soft white, according to freight rates to Portland, the basic terminal. One cent per bushel in addition will be paid for No. 1 hard white of the following varities: Hard Federation, White Federation, Bart and Blue-

Protein premiums will be paid in addition to the regular loan rates upon presentation of a protein cer-

Warehouse storage loans may be nade immediately upon harvesting, and many loans already have been made in northern Idaho counties. Nez Perce county made the first loan in the state, and one of the first in the nation, on July 19.

Insurance will be required on all oan wheat and farm-stored wheat must be placed in weather, vermin and burglar-proof bins, approved by the county wheat loan supervisor.

EXPECT PLENTIFUL SUPPLY

GRASS SEED THIS FALL An abundant supply of the wheat-wild rye hybrid grass seed, locally known as Michels grass, to be available this fall, was indicated by Dr. K. H. Klages, Idaho agricultiral experiment station agronomist, in response to frequent inquiries address-this newly developed grass. Around 8,000 pounds of seed is xpected to be available for distribution from the University farm, Moscow, this year, the agronomist stated, which, together with fairsized acreages sown to the grass over the state, should result in considerable quantities of the seed available for sale.

The grass developed recently by rof. C. A. Michels of the agroenthusiastically by range and live-stock men as a potential all-round grass for Idaho ranges. The grass has a large rye-like seed, is easily established, makes an early and abundant spring growth and pro-duces palatable feed. It is a good seed producer and can be harvested prepared for market similarly "Seed will be available at reasonable prices from private growers and the Idaho agricultural experiment station, Moscow," Dr. Klages said Purchasers of seed from the experi-Another thing this country could very well get along without are will not be offered for sale at a price higher than that which they themselves paid for the seed. guard against exploitation.

"We wish to emphasize again that The good old days were those any findings of new developments by the experiment station are for

"In addition, since liberal quantities of seed are to be available to meet all anticipated needs there is no need for paying exhorbitant prices. It is recommended that prospective growers purchase a limited amount of seed so that the grass may be tried out under the conditions prevailing on their own farms before going into its production on an extensive scale. The amount of seed to be sold to any one grower ed to the agricultural college about by the experiment station will be limited to 50 pounds.' A factor for prospective producers of the hybrid grass to keep in mind, the experiment station official said is that the crop has good seed habits and can be increased rapidly. It produces up to 1,200 pounds or seed per acre under dry-land conditions and higher seed yields can be obtained under irrigation. Only 15 to 20 pounds of seed per acre is required to establish stands. This nomy department has been received fact was pointed out to avoid disappointments to producers who may plan to go into the production of the grass with the hope of realizing high seed prices.

"Tailspin" At Local Theatre The coming attraction at the Kendrick Theatre for this week-end will be "Tailspin," and don't get the idea that this is a "Tailspin Tommy" picture, for it isn't. EDITORIAL

Well, Folks - Seems like our burst of hot weather is over for a little while — although we have lots of time for more of the same. It certainly played hob with beans, tomatoes, squash and watermelons, and brought the wheat harvest on with a rush possibly doing some damage to late-sown spring grain. It also dried up the pastures, thereby cutting down the cream possibilities of the ground — but Folks with wheet on the skids Folks — with wheat on the skids in price — you can afford to feed the cows a bit — and bring the cream to us. We like to turn cream into cash for you — try us — once you do, you'll stay.

1940 A. A. A. PROGAM IN-CREASES CONSERVATION

Increased emphasis on soil conservation will be a major feature of the 1940 AAA farm program, Paul Carlson, chairman of the Latah County Agricultural Conservation Association, announced this week.

Next year's farm program will also provide a better opportunity for operators of small farms to participate, and the responsibility of administration will continue in the hands of committees, composed of actual farm operators.

These features result from the National AAA conference in Washington, D. C., attended by D. R. Turner of Boise, and T. Henry Crozier, of Lewiston, members of the Idaho State AAA committee.

An important recommendation affecting soil conservation, and helping operators of small farms to take part in the program, was that a minimum soil-building allowance of $20 for each farm be established. Another conservation recommendation is one which would allow farmers to earn up to $30 per farm for tree planting, in addition to the regular, soil-building allowance for

State and local committeemen will have more responsibility for the field administration of crop insurance and crop loans. This is in line with the established AAA policy of putting dren were fishing and huckleberrying farmers in direct charge of their at White Rock mountain over the own program.

The national conference was held month earlier this year than last. This fact will give farmers in 1940 a better opportunity than ever be-fore to know well in advance of the planting season what the program has to offer them.

Recommendations made at the conference grew out of recommedations made to the state AAA committee by county and community committeemen and farmers all over the state. They will be used for drafting specific provisions of the 1940 program.

In general, changes recommended are those which will simplify administration of the program, or make it more effective from the standpoint of soil conservation.
