

PEACE-TIME PATRIOTISM

Individual, Community, National Prosperity

We hear a lot about the general financial condition and prosperity of the nation. But the first step toward national prosperity is community prosperity, and this is made possible largely through cooperation among the residents of its trade area, as well as that of its residents.

It has been pointed out by well known civic and governmental authorities that communities are not built through mass effort alone, but through the combination of individual efforts — and co-operation.

To benefit your community, all must put forth their very best individual efforts every day in the year. Successful and faithful individuals make a prosperous community — and you can do your bit to help. Kendrick does not belong to the merchants alone — but to you who trade here as well — and with you lies its success or failure, as a town.

Next to love of home and family should come love of community, state, and nation. In time of war we call love of country patriotism — in peace it is none the less.

We are prompted to sponsor this message to the people of Kendrick and vicinity through our interest in community welfare.

western red at 67c, hard winter 65c and baart at 70c. The San Francisco market turned somewhat stronger during the week, influenced by advances in eastern markets and lighter local offerings. Prices were unchanged to 2 1/2c per 100 higher compared with a week. Marketings of cash wheat at Kansas City dropped to 339 cars for the week, which restricted trading to rather meager proportions. Nine mid-western markets reported receiving 1,416 cars, against 1,908 cars a week ago and 3,122 cars a year ago. Reflecting the firmer tone in futures cash prices at Kansas City advanced 1c to 2c per bushel for the week.

Movement of new spring wheat to markets was slower, with Minneapolis receiving a total of 2,000 cars for the week and Duluth 1,829 cars. Scarcity of offerings because of the effects of the government loan program resulted in some movement from elevators.

THUMB NAIL RESUMES OF IDAHO HISTORY

"Lady Luck" played a big part in many of the most famous metal strikes made in the west. Of course the prospectors were out there in the desert or back in the mountains, looking, usually, for gold, but still when they finally made the discovery they could point to something that had the element of luck. Coming across a sagebrush side-hill in northern Nevada, a badger stopped sniffed at a squirrel hole then started digging, carving the earth with sweeping strokes of claw-armed paws. The hole was old and the trail was cold when a prospector came along. The prospector always inspected badger holes. He took a look at this one, a casual look first and then a long, careful look. A few years later the town of Mountain City was growing above the Rio Tinto copper mine.

A couple of prospectors, named Redmond and Herick, took time off one day for a hunt. They had along with them a bird dog, they called Skookum. After an hour or so, one of the men shot a grouse. The bird dropped into the water. Skookum was sent in for the retrieve. Coming back with the grouse in his mouth, the dog scratched at the steep bank. The men noticed that the stone was white under the moss. It was gold-bearing quartz. They followed the lead and located a couple of claims which afterwards became the Red Jacket.

The story of another kind of luck is told by Jim Wardner of a man who came to him one morning and said that he had dreamed of discovering a very rich mine. Furthermore, he asserted that he had recognized the place in which he had discovered the dream mine as a location that actually existed in the mountainous region. Any successful mine operator of those days had to be a good judge of character and ready to take chances. Wardner presently peeled a handful of bills off his "roll" and told the man to go find the mine if he could. "A month later," Wardner said, "I received a letter telling me that a rich mine had been discovered, and the funny part of it was that the Alpha was on a ledge where neither gold nor silver had ever been found before. It was just as Austin had dreamed it."

Chevrolet Sales Increase Further sales gains over 1938 were recorded by Chevrolet during the first 10 days of August as production of 1939 models drew to a close, according to figures released today. A total of 17,814 new passenger cars and trucks were sold at retail during the period, the report shows, which is a gain of 14.2 per cent over the same period in 1938. This represents a unit increase of 2,200 new cars and trucks. During the same period Chevrolet dealers retailed 37,050 used cars, 3,992 units more than were sold in the first 10 days of August in 1938, for a gain of 12 per cent. In the same period the truck department reported sales of 4,963 units, which represents a 26.4 per cent increase over the 3,925 sold during the corresponding period last year.

"Northerner" At Theatre This week's offering at the Kendrick Theatre will be a northern story by one of the best-known authors ever to write one — Rex Beach's "The Barrier." Jean Parker and James Ellison have the starring roles in this thrilling drama of the north and its residents — the gold miner, trader, trapper, hunter and the men who preserve law and order — the Royal Northwest Mounted police. Not only is it a thrill-packed story, but was really filmed in the north — and the scenery is said to be as beautiful as was ever flashed upon a screen. In addition the usual shorts will shown.

Most stars have a surface temperature of 3,000 to 35,000 degrees, with a maximum of perhaps 50,000 degrees.

EDITORIAL

Well, Folks — Here we are again with our little newspaper which we hope you read and enjoy. And you know, we've been harping about harvest and cream for so long that beyond mentioning them, and our swell milk, ice cream, buttermilk, and other products, we're going to devote this whole space to jokes — and we hope you enjoy them — "and we do mean you!"

"Wouldn't you say that I'm one hundred per cent beautiful, big boy?"
"Nope."
"Say, why not?"
"Well I can't see one hundred per cent of you!"

"Is your wife changeable, old man?"
"I've never tried — but I wouldn't think so."

She: "Would you leave your home for me?"
He: "For you I'd leave a baseball game in the ninth inning with the bases full and the score tied."

A bishop was more than a little upset to receive on a Friday morning this note from a certain vicar in his diocese:

"My Lord—I regret to inform you of the death of my wife. Can you possibly send me a substitute for the week-end?"

Love if you will, and give your days
To kisses fond and fiery,
But run my lad, from the amorous gaze
Of a gal who keeps a diary!

Read the "Bullitin." Keep posted on local event.

THUMB-NAILS OF IDAHO HISTORY

By Glenn Balch

Stove-Pipe Sam

Sam Collier had a claim at Spring Town in 1871. Spring Town largest of the Snake river gold camps, was on the south bank of the river just below the present site of Hansen bridge. Stove-Pipe Sam, as he was known to most of the miners, executed one of the cleverest stage hold-ups ever pulled off in the west. Charlie Walgamott, old-timer of the Twin Falls country, tells the story most interestingly.

Stove-Pipe Sam's claim became poorer and poorer, until finally Stove-Pipe arrived at a place where he wasn't even making bacon money, to say nothing of the dust that would gain him a place at the gaming tables which he loved. It was a tough situation and Sam more than once said in a joking manner that "if things didn't start breaking his way he would have to hold up the stage and get the Wells-Fargo treasure."

Things went from bad to worse for Sam. He lost steadily at poker. His claim petered out. Then one night the stage was robbed. The strong-box was chopped open and a couple of thousand dollars in bills was taken, as well as two bars of gold bullion.

Some suspicion was directed at Stove-Pipe until it was learned that the hold-up had been performed by three men, not just one. That let Sam out, because it was known that he had no intimates in the camp who would assist him in such a project.

But Wells-Fargo company was wise in the ways of men and crooks and presently an offer of a sizeable reward was made for information leading to the arrest of the robbers.

A man whose name is said to have been Frederickson and who had a claim next to Sam's appeared before the company officials and reported Sam had approached him with the proposition of filing down some gold bullion and selling it as dust from their claims. Sam later contended that Frederickson had agreed to the proposal until notice of the reward was posted.

Confronted with this evidence, Sam confessed the robbery. But what about the two accomplices whom the driver had seen pointing guns at him in the dark? Under cross-examination Sam finally admitted that they weren't men at all, but two clumps of sage brush which he had dressed up in jumper and overalls and fitted with crooked limbs that resembled guns. To the frightened driver they no doubt had looked real enough.

The express company recovered the bullion, but Sam insisted that he didn't get the bills. Before long he was behind the bars at the penitentiary in Boise. Immediately, the shrewd man that he was, he became a model prisoner and a few years later was pardoned.

It is reported that as soon as he gained his freedom he made his way to a crack in the Snake river rocks and pulled out a pair of old overalls that were wrapped around a couple of thousand dollars in bills. Then he disappeared from the country.

We used to be prosperous back in the good old Coolidge days, when everything worked but a cigarette lighter.

A lot of fellows can feel prosperous, even when driving a mortgaged car over a bonded road.

Russians bought 200 per cent more candy in 1938 than in 1937.
