

KENDRICK GAZETTE

WHAT HAPPENED HERE 20 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

E. H. Dammarell, in going through some of his papers at the store, found some quotations made by Fred S. Beckwith on local products in March, 1917. The prices are so much lower than those of today that we quote a few, as follows: Italian dried prunes in 100-pound bags, 6c a pound; small white beans, $2.40 per 100; Lady Washington beans, $3.00 per 100; Miners red beans, $3.40 per 100. —(Kendrick Gazette, Sept. 19, 1919).

Kelso, one of the most daring aviators in the Northwest, spent the noon hour in the air over Kendrick Tuesday. Arrangements had been made last Saturday afternoon with the manager of the Spokane aviation company to have Kelso come here to give an exhibition. The business men of Kendrick paid $100.00 for the exhibition. The manager of the company said the expense of handling the machine averaged $225 a day and that the average weekly flying time was 4½ days. Kelso is paid $300 a week. Where ground conditions are favorable he carries passengers for $1.00 a minute.

Fred Crocker last week purchased the Farrington sawmill, near Crescent. Mr. Crocker has had considerable experience in handling timber and will no doubt make a success of the new venture.

Miss Lottie Hammond of Juliaetta and Jesse Cox of Potlatch ridge were married in Moscow last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. H. O. Perry. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hammond of Juliaetta and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cox of Potlatch ridge. The couple will make their home on a farm in the Riverside neighborhood.

President Wilson rode in Ramsey Walker's car at the head of the parade at Coeur d'Alene last week. Ramsey Walker was a former Kendrick resident and is well known by the old-timers here.

Wade Keene and his father will leave this week on a hunting trip that will extend over a period of a month or more. They expect to go to the mouth of Fourth of July Creek and from there take the trail back into the wilds. They are going after big game of any kind.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Carlson and children returned from their trip to Minneapolis Sunday evening. They went to Minneapolis by rail for a visit with Mrs. Carlson's mother. While there Mr. Carlson bought a seven-passenger car and they made the trip home in it. The speedometer registered 1,700 miles at the end of the journey and this distance was made in ten days traveling time.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Byard Davidson of American ridge, Monday, September 15, a son.

It is estimated that 350,000 bushels of wheat will be marketed in Kendrick this year. The acreage is larger this season than usual, but the yield per acre is not as good as average, counting both spring and winter wheat.

The Oregon Packing company has shipped three carloads of prunes from Kendrick this week.

A two-column (full-length) ad. appeared, advertising a Harvest Ball at the Fraternal Temple on Friday, October 3, with the Metronome Jazz orchestra furnishing the music. The biggest thing ever pulled off since Kendrick has been a town."

Capt. Geo. P. Barnum arrived in Kendrick Sunday from Camp Holland, which is located at Baltimore, Maryland. He is here on a furlough, the first one he has received since entering the army over a year ago. Captain Barnum has been with the motor truck transportation service and has charge of a unit in that branch of the service at Camp Holland. Capt. Barnum likes army life very much and expects to continue the service for some time.

Dick Winegardner of Leland purchased 160 acres on Cedar creek ridge last week. The place is known as the old French farm and was owned by Mr. Bagley. The purchase price was given at $5,600. Mr. Winegardner traded some Leland property on the deal.

October 1 is "Pay Day" in this community. When you get all your other accounts straightened out, don't forget that there is one probably still due at the Gazette office $1.50 (or more). Of course it's a small amount, but when there are a good many hundred just like scattered around over the country they represent quite a sum.

N. E. Walker is having a motor car called in his harness shop to be used for the purpose of running his logging machine.

Bear Ridge News—Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Emmett and children arrived here from Havre, Montana, the last of the week. They will move to their father's farm, to be vacated by A. W. Jones.

Beans are averaging from 2 to 2½ sacks to the acre this year. Returns from the different localities in the vicinity of Kendrick indicate a very much lighter yield than the ordinary season produces. In the Southwest country a few growers got about 3½ sacks but most crops will return but little better than.

Graveling Proceeding

Construction work by DeAtley & Co., on the new road below Juliaetta is proceeding rapidly, with the gravel surfacing now stretching to below the A. E. Robbins home. It started on this edge of Juliaetta.

The work is said to be about three weeks ahead of schedule, due to favorable weather conditions, and an "easy" rock supply for both grading and crushing purposes.

Of course, any road under construction really tests out the springs and body construction of cars going over it, putting squeaks in any car (if they weren't already there).

The new gravel is deep and loose, and all drivers are warned by the company to "take it easy."

PIONEER RESIDENT OF POTLATCH RIDGE PASSES

Emma Leora Sage (Grandma Betts) was born April 30, 1861, at Ransom Center, Michigan, daughter of Gustavis and Sarah Ester Sage. She passed away September 21, 1939, at her home near Southwick, at the age of 78 years, four months and 21 days.

She was united in marriage on August 14, 1880, at Hillsdale, Michigan, to Daniel W. Betts, who preceded her in death. They came west to Idaho, settling on the place where she resided at the time of her death, in 1907, residing there continuously. To this union six children were born, three of whom (Eulah and Leora, and a son Cleo) have preceded her in death.

She leaves to mourn their loss three sons, Glen, Russell and Homer, together with their families, also Mrs. Ola Betts, widow of Cleo, and their family; also a step-son, Andrew Betts, of Gary, Ind.; nine grandchildren, one great grandchild; a sister, Mrs. Eva Phelps, and a brother, Lewis L. Sage, both of Battle Creek, Mich.; besides many other relatives and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held in the United Bretheran church Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock, with Rev. B. W. Pressnall officiating. She was laid to rest in the Southwick cemetery. Pall bearers were Wm. Cowger, Fred Stage, Clarence Bell, John Lettenmaier, Richard Winegardner, Gordon Harris.

A funeral services were in charge of Earl Alden, Troy.

We wish to acknowledge with deep appreciation your kind expressions of sympathy during the loss of our mother and grandmother. Also we wish to thank those who gave the floral offerings and for other services rendered.

Russell Betts
Mr. and Mrs. Homer Betts,
Mrs. Ola Betts and Family.

Watch For School Buses

Public opinion is becoming aroused in the matter of protection for children riding in school busses, says Harry M. Rayner, commissioner of law enforcement.

Last week four arrests were made in one county alone for violation of the statute making it illegal to pass a bus which had stopped to let children on or off. The interesting point is that in two of these cases charges were preferred by witnesses, instead of the state police.

Another county recorded three convictions resulting in an average fine of $10 and costs, while several other convictions were had in scattered areas.

Dinner Party

A no-host, no-hostess dinner was enjoyed in the Edgar Long home Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Minnie Frost of Kansas City, who is visiting here.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. James Benjamin, Kathryn Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Emmett, Mrs. Laura Emmett, Delores Crocker, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dammarell and children and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Long.

Had Tonsils Removed

Ilene Garner, daughter of Mrs. Mattie Garner, underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils on Monday, September 25.

Mrs. Raleigh Smith of Mullan, Idaho, underwent a similar operation on Tuesday, September 26.

Both are getting along nicely.

MISS MAXINE KEENE BRIDE OF GEORGE JONES

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wade T. Keene was the scene of a beautiful and impressive marriage ceremony service, when their daughter, Miss Maxine Keene, became the bride of George Jones, Sunday, September 24, at 2:30 p. m.

Rev. Wm. T. Gray performed the ring ceremony in the presence of forty-five relatives and friends, before an improvised altar, which was lovely with the soft glow of tall candles in crystal holders and banked with baskets of pink gladiolus.

Annie Deobald and Mary Havens, accompanied by Mrs. Claud Jones at the piano, sang, "At Dawning," before the nuptial service and softly hummed "I Love You Truly" while the sacred vows were taken.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, entered the spacious living room which had been transformed into a bower of fall blossoms and numerous candles, cast a soft glow over the entire assemblage, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. She presented a beautiful picture in a floor-length dress of white lace over white satin, as she entered on the arm of her father and proceeded to the altar, where she was met by the groom and his attendant.

Mrs. Everett Hammond (nee Elma Jones) as matron of honor, wore a frock of blue taffeta and a corsage of pink rose buds. Everett Hammond acted as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony refreshments were served. Adorning the center of the lace covered table was a three-tier artistically decorated wedding cake, the bride cutting the first piece.

The bride is a graduate of the Southern Branch of the U. of I., at Pocatello, where she majored in Pharmacy. Lambda Kappa Sigma was her sorority, and she was elected to Mortar and Pestle club. She has, by her winning personality made herself a general favorite with all.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Jones of Big Bear ridge. He attended college for one year at Shawnee, Okla., and two years at the University of Idaho. He is a young man of exemplary habits and worthy of the lady of his choice. He is at present employed in the County Agent's office at Moscow, and where the young people will make their home at the Thutama apartments.

The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. John Crockett of Orofino; Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hardman, Mrs. Ruth Hunter, Mrs. Rance Oglesby and Douglas Hunter, of Peck; Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton, Burton Hunter and Miss Peggy Foley and Mr. and Mrs. H. Dammarell of Lewiston; Ralph Foley, Nelson Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hammond of Moscow; Annie Deobald, Mrs. Johanna Nelson, Grandma Keene, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Havens and daughters Mary and Winnie, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Havens and daughter Marie, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Havens, Mr. and Mrs. Nora Callison and daughter Nancy, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Jones, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Jones and son Donald, and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Keene and son Lewis.

High scores for the evening were awarded Mrs. S. Cook and H. B. Thompson, while low went to Mrs. E. P. Roberts and Nora Callison.

Rilla Davidson was an invited guest.

Kendrick Folk Stay At Home

Residents of this section seemed to prefer to stay at home rather than to drive the Lewiston road to the Round-Up, held last week-end.

The road, under construction, is a "corker." Kendrick merchants reported a good trade both afternoon and evening, and the local picture show was likewise well patronized. Most folks thought this country would be deserted.

Cuts Chin

George Davidson, Sr., had the misfortune to cut his chin severely last Monday afternoon while dismantling a windmill.

One of the legs fell, allowing one of the blades to fall in such a way as to strike him on the chin. Nine stitches were required to close the cut.

To Get New Car

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Choate of Teakean left Wednesday by train for the east, where they will visit with relatives and friends for a couple of weeks, taking delivery of a new car at Detroit, which they will drive home.

TWO KENDRICK BANKS BECOME ONE INSTITUTION

"The assets and liabilities of the Kendrick State Bank have been taken over by the Farmers Bank of Kendrick and effective Monday morning business of the consolidated institutions will be handled from the location of the Farmers Bank, H. M. Emerson, cashier of the First National Bank, Lewiston, and vice-president of the Farmers Bank, announced Sunday evening. The name "Farmers Bank" will be retained.

"Mr. Emerson said checks drawn on the Kendrick State Bank will be handled through the Farmers Bank as well as other business.

"In the consolidation the capital structure of the Farmers Bank has been increased from $20,000 to $36,000, Mr. Emerson said. The deposits of the consolidated banks will aggregate $300,000.

"Officers of the Farmers Bank are Herman Meyer, Kendrick, president; H. M. Emerson, Lewiston, vice-president; O. E. Havens, Kendrick, cashier; L. D. Crocker, assistant cashier of the Kendrick State Bank will be employed at the Farmers Bank, Mr. Emerson said.

"Both banks have been in business for many years." — Lewiston Tribune.

Both the Farmers Bank and the Kendrick State Bank have been in business in Kendrick for many years, and both home-owned institutions. The Farmers Bank, a former Vollmer bank, became a locally-owned institution immediately following its reopening after the National Bank holiday of 1932, and has continued on that basis since that time.

The Kendrick State Bank, organized locally many years ago, absorbed the Juliaetta bank in 1931. In 1932, also following the National Bank holiday, it underwent a reorganization, to emerge in the form it occupied until its sale last Saturday.

In the purchase by the Farmers Bank, not only did bank stock, assets and liabilities change hands, but also the real property of the Kendrick State Bank. Just what plans may be had for the building, which consists of the banking room and vault, a modern apartment and the offices of Dr. D. A. Christensen, has not as yet been announced.

H. B. Thompson, vice-president and cashier of the State Bank said he had no definite plans as yet.

L. D. Crocker, assistant cashier of the State Bank is now employed at the Farmers Bank.

Red Cross Representative Here

Mrs. Jessie Downer, Case Worker doing Disaster work for the American Red Cross, with headquarters in San Francisco, arrived in Kendrick Monday evening for a survey of needs caused by the big fire of September 10, here. She came to Kendrick from Pine Ridge, Oregon, near Kalamath, where she investigated needs following the big fire there.

Mrs. Downer was preceded by James Dancy, also from the San Francisco office, who started the original investigation. Mr. Dancy is a Roll Call representative, doing survey work in emergencies.

Mrs. Downer has established her headquarters in the rear of the Kendrick State Bank building. Just how long she will be here is not known at this time.

Fight Sleeping Sickness

A very complimentary editorial appears in the Missouri Ruralist for July 8, 1939, in regard to veterinary activity against equine encephalomyelitis. In this article the Missouri veterinarians are complimented for having won the fight against sleeping sickness, with the statement that results in disease prevention have been virtually 100 per cent efficient. "Thus farmers owe another debt to members of a profession whose value is sometimes overlooked."

The article further comments that more veterinarians are needed in the country as a safeguard against epizootic disease.—The Jen Sal Journal.

In connection with the above article it is advised that so far during the current season there has been no outbreaks of equine encephalomyelitis in this state in animals which have been properly vaccinated against this disease during the present year, says Dr. Edwin T. Powell, director of animal industry.

The average motor car now in use in the U. S. is nearly five years old.

Carbon Monoxide Is Deadly

Carbon monoxide gas is odorless, colorless and deadly, states the bureau of safety at Boise.

Now that cold mornings are coming on, do not start the motor of your car in the garage unless the doors are propped wide open.

The action of the gas is swift, and insidious—you have no warning. A feeling of drowsiness tempts you to close your eyes for a moment, then they remain forever closed.

Don't take any chances with your car, on the road or in the garage. Drowsiness is dangerous, cultivate a warning signal in your mind when you feel sleepiness coming on. There are 100,000 bad accidents each year directly charged to driving when drowsy.

COMMUNITY SALES DAY SET FOR OCTOBER 14TH

Kendrick's annual Community Sales Day date has been set for Saturday, October 14th, and a really big day is being planned.

In addition to the free auction sale, special bargains will be offered in every store in town, and they will be more than welcome to most, since rising prices seem to be the order.

More is also planned in the way of entertainment, for in addition to the concert by the Kendrick School band, a real sports program is planned, with Ross Armitage, Lowell Mason and Don Lyle in charge of the events.

Of course there will be the usual prizes for the biggest pumpkin, the biggest spud, the biggest squash, and various other items as in years gone by.

Marvin Long, chairman of the Merchants' Committee of the Kendrick Commercial club, says: "It's going to be the biggest and best Sales Day we've ever had in Kendrick. Mark that day off on your calendar and plan to come. You just can't afford to stay at home."

In next week's issue of the Gazette will appear the prize list and other pertinent information. Watch for it.

Watch Yellow Highway Line

The CCCs of Idaho highways — Carelessness, Curves and Centerline, are the hazards that are exacting a tremendous toll in pain, suffering and death, besides enormous property damage, says the bureau of safety at Boise.

Of course the center line in itself is one of the greatest helps in avoiding accident. It is the habit of straddling the center line, or driving too close to it that constitutes the danger.

Carelessness includes speed "too fast for conditions," the errors committed in passing (and one of the worst is cutting in too soon), failure to give proper signal in time, attempting a left-hand turn from the right hand lane without being certain of success, sticking the left elbow out of the window while driving. These appear in accident reports in nearly every county so far during September.

Curves claim many of the tragedies of the road. Naturally speed enters into this picture, for when friction is overcome by centrifugal force, over goes the car. There have been 17 serious accidents during September from this cause, four of them recording fatalities.

WHEAT MARKET UNSETTLED — FEED GRAINS LOWER

Wheat markets continued unsettled during the week ending September 22, dominated by European developments, but feed grains made further declines, the Agricultural Marketing Service reports in its Weekly Grain Market Review. Unfavorable fall seeding conditions were a strengthening influence in domestic wheat markets and tend to offset the lack of export business and a lessened milling inquiry. Heavy market receipts tended to weaken oats with corn, Barley held steady.

No important changes occurred in the general wheat situation although information on market developments abroad was limited because of war censorship and little could be learned concerning prices and world trade. Argentine wheat shipments totaled around three million bushels. New crops made satisfactory progress in Argentina but some districts in Australia were complaining of dryness and frosts were prevalent over wide areas. Soil conditions were reported favorable for early wheat seeding in India but the drought in southern sections of Russia remained unrelieved and seeding was further delayed. Fall seeding was also being delayed by dry soil in the Balkan countries.

While little data are available on world trade, exports apparently were restricted by submarine warfare and blockade. The scarcity of Rumanian boats on the Danube and the ocean blockade limited shipments to Germany. Yugoslavia prohibited exports of grain and the Swiss government decreed that only dark bread could be made, sold or consumed in that country. English millers are now permitted the admixture of Canadian wheat not including garnet. Belgium continued to be a good buyer of Argentine wheat afloat and sales of this wheat were reported at Antwerp at 87c to 88¼c per bushel. No. 2 Manitoba afloat from Atlantic ports was quoted at Antwerp at $1.07 and United States No. 1 hard winter at 99c per bushel. Canadian markets declined nearly 4c per bushel as a result of continued heavy marketings, more favorable threshing returns and lack of export business. On September 22, No. 3 northern closed at 69½c per bushel and No. 2 Canadian western durum at 64½c per bushel.

Domestic cash wheat markets weakened slightly, influenced by the decline in Canadian markets, a less active milling inquiry and lack of export business. These weakening factors, however, were largely offset by unfavorable seeding conditions in the winter wheat belt and light offerings by growers. Serious drought attended by high temperatures aggravated an already serious condition in Oklahoma and Nebraska and in adjoining areas of Missouri and western Arkansas. These unfavorable conditions extended eastward over much of the Ohio valley during the week. Rainfall during the first 19 days in September was only 5 per cent of normal in Missouri, 8 per cent in Oklahoma and Kansas, 10 per cent in Iowa and Illinois, 12 per cent in Arkansas, 15 per cent in Indiana and 22 per cent in Nebraska. As a result of these conditions, the seedings of wheat in Kansas was practically discontinued and progress was slow in other areas.

Marketings of winter wheat were only moderate with 1,578 cars received at the principal terminals. Receipts of spring wheat dropped off further with a total of 3,223 cars reported at Minneapolis and Duluth. Arrivals at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals were moderate at 753 cars. Milling demand slackened following the active buying early in September, since inquiry for flour had subsided. Export trade was negligible since domestic prices remain above an export basis and payments to exporters had not been resumed. Exports of wheat totaled 775,000 bushels, which made the season's total approximately nine million bushels compared with about 22 million bushels during the corresponding period last year. Export sales of flour were moderate and mostly to the Philippines. Indemnity payments on flour exports remained unchanged at Portland at $1.15 per barrel to the Philippines, $1.25 to China and $1.20 to other areas from Pacific Coast ports. The general flour payments from gulf and Atlantic ports was $1.25 per barrel.

The game with Deary last Wednesday afternoon will really make history. Both boys and girls were victorious, the girls winning by a score of 25 to 8; and the boys bring-home the bacon by winning 10 to 6. Bernadine and Irene Peters and Beulah Draper won the titles of "Home Run Queens," with Kenneth Woody and Jimmy Kuykendall taking the "Home Run Kings" title. Those kids can really hit! We wish to thank Jim Langdon for providing transportation for our "Big League" players.

However, last Friday night, even though Bernadine Peters smashed out another homer, the girls weren't so lucky. At the third inning the girls had a good lead over Juliaetta, but the tables turned. Anyway, the game ended with the Juliaetta girls winning 21 to 18. The boys again played a good game, winning 10 to 7 from Juliaetta. On Wednesday of this week Deary came to Kendrick, high school boys and girls, besides the grade boys, participating in the soft ball games. Full reports on these games will be given next week.

On Thursday of last week the Kendrick Girls' chorus, accompanied by Lois Deobald, gave an assembly program. The program opened with the chorus singing "The Star Spangled Banner," followed by "The Voice in the Old Village Choir," after which Myra Kautkeberg, accompanied by Paula McKeever, sang "By the Bend in the River." Next came a hit song of the day "White Sails," and "God Bless America," interpreted by the chorus and featuring Betty Boyd, Annie Deobald and Mary Havens. The program ended with the entire assembly singing "Idaho." Master of Ceremonies for the program was Judd Lee.

Tuesday, September 26, the F. F. A. held a meeting for the purpose of electing officers, which are as follows: Glenn Newman, president; Harvey Thornton, vice-president; Kenneth Woody, secretary; Ray McGraw, treasurer; Judd Lee, reporter; Kenneth Wolff, watch dog. Boys were also appointed to take charge of the various exhibits at the Latah County Fair, to be held this week-end. They were: Judd Lee, pen of three fat lambs; Deryl Ingle, Duroc Jersey hogs; Kenneth Wolff, Katahin spuds; Glenn Newman, Early Ohio spuds; Gene Mattoon, poultry; Harry Ingle, potatoes; Fraser Bros., sheep; Jay Armitage, corn; Elmer Wilson, fat junior pigs; Bob Watts, Hereford.

The grade school has started on a Physical Education plan, which consists of soft ball, touch football, and other sports. As yet the High school has not started this activity because the lockers and showers in the gym. basement have not been completed. Harold Abrams has been hired as supervisor of the P. E. class.

POTLATCHERS-

All Co-operated In Fighting Fire, Sept. 10

All Are Co-operating In The Rebuilding Job

Fire is no respecter of persons or of property lines, of cattle, homes, buildings, or any of the other items that constitute necessities in the life of man. And on Sunday, September 10, the Potlatch country was visited by one of the worst conflagrations this section has ever seen. And all responded to the call of "Fire": All fought shoulder to shoulder, co-operating in the attempt to stop the blaze, and aided by the elements, it was finally brought under control.

In response to a need call from the Red Cross to help those who lost their all, all are again co-operating in the rehabilitation of the region. And it's a work that will take real co-operation. Homes and barns are gone, sheds and feed, cattle, chickens, machinery — furniture and clothing — and success will again be attained — for co-operation and perseverance will succeed.

As it is in the fighting of fire, and the work of rehabilitation, why not let it be with the advancement of Kendrick? If we work together, pull together, have the same point of view — Kendrick is our town — we cannot help but make it a better town — a better place in which to live — a better place in which to trade — a better place to call "my home town." It's worth thought, deep thought, before you pass up Kendrick and elect to trade elsewhere.

Honestly, Potlatchers, we believe you like Kendrick and will do your part toward making it a bigger and better town.

We are prompted to sponsor this message to the people of Kendrick and vicinity through our interest in community welfare.

THUMB-NAILS OF IDAHO HISTORY

Isthmus Butter
In view of the fact that Idaho sends a good many million pounds of butter to California each year, it is interesting to note that the first inter-change of this commodity between the two states traveled in the opposite direction. During the year 1864, Mr. Charles Teeter, who seemed to have a rather happy faculty for buying and transporting, left the Boise basin mining area for a visit to California, and having accumulated the funds, by trade venture rather than by mining, sought an investment in San Francisco that he might be to turn into a profit. After thoughtful consideration Mr. Teeter decided to put his money in butter. It was not California butter, however, but had been produced in New England and shipped from New York by the way of Panama. It was therefore called "Isthmus butter." It was packed in large firrels and had the reputation of being the "very best of butter." Mr. Teeter purchased 2,148 pounds of this Isthmus butter, shipped it to Portland by boat and engaged a stage on the same vessel. At Umatilla it was reloaded on a river steamer for Umatilla and at the end of a week from the date of the original shipping both Mr. Teeter and his butter were at Umatilla. The difficult part of the journey was still ahead since no regular transportation had been established between Umatilla and Idaho City, but Mr. Teeter was fortunate enough to run across a freighter ready to start for the Boise Basin and needing an additional ton to make up his load. A deal was soon made. Some three weeks later Mr. Teeter arrived in Idaho City, after having made a side trip into the Blue mountains to look at a new gold discovery. He had been completely out of touch with the mines since he left two months before, but was pleased to learn that butter was scarce. It was retailing at $1.25 per pound. Mr. Teeter sold his supply to George W. Craft, a Main Street merchant, for $1.00 a pound, payable on delivery. The freighter arrived about two weeks later with Mr. Teeter's butter intact. It was inspected, a "butter-tryer" being used for this purpose, and then the merchant weighed out $2,148 in the currency of the time, gold dust. Mr. Teeter's profit on the deal was about $960.00. It so happened, according to the story, that the butter shortage was growing acute and Mr. Craft was able to dispose of the entire shipment in a short time at $1.10 in the firkin.

How Geo. Dwight Spent the Night
On the evening of May 18, 1865, George Dwight, a miner with a love for Shakespeare, was hurrying along Idaho City's main street. It was a little after 9 o'clock and the town, then queen of the gold camps, was burning down. George was going to the fire, which was beginning to threaten the entire business district. George W. Craft, one of the town's leading merchants, stood in his doorway, watching the hurrying throng with a perplexed frown on his face. His place was still clear of the fire, but down the street he could see the leaping flames. He saw George Dwight and his face cleared. "Come inside, George," he said. "I've got a job for you." The miner followed the merchant into the store. Craft led the way back to the big iron safe which he used for keeping the bags of gold dust brought to him by the miners. He opened the safe, exposing the buckskin bags, each labeled with its owner's name. According to the report, 100 pounds of gold dust was in that safe that night. Craft began putting the bags into an ordinary sack. "I want you to take care of this till morning," he told George Dwight, when the last bag was out of the safe. There is no record of Dwight's reply. Possibly he didn't reply. But he shouldered the sack, worth very easily $50,000, and moved out of the store into a jostling mob that was already beginning to be looted. Men brushed elbows with Dwight who would cheerfully have killed him for just one of those little buckskin bags. Not long after that, as the flames gained headway toward Craft's store, some of the depositors rushed in excitedly and demanded their dust. "Don't worry," the merchant told them. "I've taken care of it; call around in the morning and you can get it." Such was George Craft's confidence in the integrity of a fellow man. In that milling, excited mob, many of whom already carried loot from the burning stores, George Dwight was speedily lost. Soon he was nowhere to be found. Idaho City burned, Craft's store with the rest. Morning came at last, grey, smoky and discouraging. Craft's depositors gathered around him, singing and smugged, grimly determined that he make good his promise. . . . It was a tense, crucial moment, and no doubt Mr. Craft was greatly relieved when he saw George Dwight detach himself from the edge of the timber and come picking his way through the charred ruins with a heavy sack on his shoulder. While Idaho City burned, Dwight had spent the night on the hill by himself, guarding the gold dust.

Courageous Jane Silcott likely forwarded the development of Idaho by a decade or more. Possibly it was Jane Silcott, the daughter of a red chieftain, born and raised in the Idaho wilderness, who turned the tide of victory in the Civil War, since gold from the Clearwater country provided the "sinews" for the Union treasury. In August, 1860, Captain Ed Pierce, professional gold hunter and adventurer, was trying to make his way into the Clearwater country with a party of six to prospect for the precious yellow metal. For several years rumors of gold had been coming from the Clearwater and Pierce was determined to see for himself just what basis there was for these reports. But his party, after journeying only a few miles into the country, was stopped by a group of armed Nez Perce warriors. It was their country, so these Indians told Pierce, and white men would not be permitted in it. They ordered him to go back. Pierce made a pretense of obeying, but tried again the following day. Again he was stopped by the Indians. A third attempt a few days later likewise failed, and Pierce was told that if he did not leave the country immediately he would never leave it. Reluctantly Pierce turned his back and began to retrace his steps down the river. Apparently he was convinced that it would be foolhardy to carry the attempt farther. How much longer the nuggets of Canal creek would have lain undiscovered if the prospectors had not halted for the night at Chief Timothy's camp is problematical. But they did stop there and, possibly for the lack of a better topic, told Timothy of their thwarted plans. The chief was sympathetic, but he urged them to give up the scheme, declaring that they were risking their lives by remaining. Sitting around that campfire was the girl, Jane. There was a way, Timothy admitted, that the prospectors could reach the upper Clearwater country and avoid the Indians, but they would need a guide, a person who knew the country intimately, and neither Timothy nor any of his men dared risk the certain displeasure of their tribesman. It was then that Jane spoke up. She is described as being of stolid, broad countenance with straight, jet black hair. "I will show you the way," she told them. A few days later, having successfully eluded the Indian sentries, Pierce and his party were camped on Canal creek. W. F. Bassett, largely by force of habit, picked up his pan, went down to the creek and threw in a shovel of gravel. From that minute Idaho was assured a place among the states.

BLOOD WILL TELL — BETTER STAY SOBER WHILE DRIVING
The defense attorney appeared quite indignant when he met a member of the state police early in the week. "You won't get away with this," he stated emphatically. "My client can prove he was not drunk and you'll lose your case." The following day the two met again. "My client will plead guilty," the attorney said. "He just told me you had gotten a sample of blood from him for chemical examination and now he remembers he was drunk." The war between the drunken driver and law enforcement officers is fast reaching a point where arrest will mean certain conviction, says the state law enforcement commissioner. Courts of justice accept without question the results of chemical analysis. State police are supplied with new "Motor Vehicle Intoxication Reports" in the same form as is being used in 20 states and many large cities at this time. These report forms set forth the recognized tests for intoxication and make a valuable background for prosecution. The new sound-film, "Testing the Drinking Driver," supplied by the National Safety Council, is now being shown to various law enforcement officers in order to familiarize them with the four modern methods of combatting the dangerous combination of alcohol and driving.

Safe Stopping Takes Time
Brake your car or — break your neck. It's a split-second matter on the highway, and good resolutions make poor brake-bands, says Harry M. Rayner, commissioner of law enforcement, in a warning to motorists today. When the surface of the road is perfect and quite dry (brushed concrete is best); when your tires are good and your brakes are fine, it requires 227 feet to bring your car to a stop at 50 miles per hour. Road conditions will soon be impaired by rain, snow and ice and the stopping distance may easily become more than a city block. The wise man will see that his tires are in good condition and his brakes tops before a serious emergency arises. Cold nights should be a sufficient reminder not to be caught with poor brakes and tires.

Women Of The Gold Discovery
It has been said, and with probable truth, that women have played a part in every historical event of importance. A Nez Perce squaw is credited with being a principal factor in the discovery of gold in Idaho.

Coonjine Died Out With Mississippi Steamboats

Coonjine died with the passing of the Mississippi steamboat. You likely never heard the word unless you were reared on the shores of the big river or one of its tributaries where the steamboats came into dock daily. In that case, writes Garnett Laidlaw Eskew in Coronet, you will doubtless recall the weird, semi-barbaric, loose-kneed shuffle-louch (timed perfectly to equally barbaric songs), by which the Negro roustabouts loaded and unloaded the boats. That was Coonjine—song and dance.

Many years ago, at the old levees, steamboats crowded as thickly as horses tethered nose-in to a hitching rail. The roustabout would swagger ashore at the end of the run and cut a swath among the women, staking big money on the roll of the spotted ivories.

The work was back-breaking; and it was to lighten their hard labor that the roustabouts sang their Coonjine songs. When a Negro sings he forgets he is tired. Steamboat captains and mates knew this and encouraged their roustabouts to sing. Subject matter for Coonjine songs covered a wide range—fights, police, love affairs, domestic embroglios, and nostalgia.

But mainly, Coonjine songs had to do with the work in hand; the boats, their speed and luxury; the individual characteristics of mate or captain or fellow roustabouts; and, under the ridiculous words, frequently a note of pathos at the hard lot of his downtrodden race.

Ole Roustabout ain't got no home, Make his livin' on his shoulder bone.

Coral Reefs, Flamingos Cited for Great Beauty

There are on this earth a few things so exquisitely beautiful that believe in them one must see them, writes Gilbert C. Klingel in Baltimore Sun. One is the uniquely fairyland of a coral reef from undersea. Another is the flamingo.

I shall never forget my first view of these flaming scarlet creatures. It happened in 1929, when I was shipwrecked on the island of Inagua, in the West Indies. Our ship had broken ground to pieces on a coral reef and we had waded ashore through the surf, our clothes soaked and in tatters, ourselves weary to exhaustion. Almost in mockery the setting sun was tinting the world with refulgent gold.

From high above came a faint honking—such plaintive mournful notes as the wild geese sing on the north wind. We looked up and saw that from the interior of the island was coming a great flock of scarlet flamingo, wings ablaze in the sunlight. Like geese, they were flying too, in V-shaped formation, hundreds of them, guided by a leader. The scarlet of their wings flashed and flared, set in vivid contrast by the velvety black of the wing tips.

'Vegetable' Method of Tanning

The "vegetable" method of tanning is the oldest and most important process in the leather industry. This method uses juices from the hemlock, chestnut, oak, spruce, or the hard South American quebracho. Ninety-six per cent of the leather used for soles is cured with these "vegetable" extracts, according to an authority in the Chicago Tribune. In the Nineteenth century, however, the tanning power of chromium salts was discovered as a cheaper process. Chrome tanning reduces the thickness of leather and is therefore undesirable in soles. Uppers are thin slices of the tanned hides and the chrome tanning is highly effective in producing pliable softness. The mineral process is faster, taking about one-quarter of the time of the bark extract process.

Famous Naturalist Born in Haiti

John James Audubon was born at Aux Cayes, Haiti, in 1785. His early years were spent in France, but he came to this country in 1804 to his father's estate, "Mill Grove," near this city. Here he became interested in bird life and in a cave on the banks of the Perkiomen he made the first "banding" experiment on the young of wild American birds. From 1808 to 1826 he lived in Kentucky, where the greater scope for his studies was possible. He then went to England in search of a publisher for his bird drawings. "Birds of America" was successful immediately. Audubon was made a life member of the American Philosophical society and of the Academy of Natural Sciences, New York, where some of his original work is preserved. He died in New York, January 27, 1851.

Growth of Oysters

The shape of oysters is affected by the type of bottom on which they grow. On hard bottom they grow wide in proportion to length; on soft bottom, in which they tend to sink, they become the prized, relatively long-shelled "coon" oysters. Beds producing the latter type of oysters are most likely to be under shoal water, more easily reached by wading, which is the oyster-gathering technique used by the Indians. Hence the high proportion of "coon" oyster shells in the Indian shell mounds represents an unconscious selection of the high quality, shoal-water oysters in ancient times, rather than a deterioration in the quality of the modern mollusks.

FARM TOPICS

SUGGESTS ELECTRIC FARM WATERWORKS

North Carolina System Costs About $100.

By RUSSELL BROADBENT
A water system can be installed in the farm home for as little as $100 with the advent of rural electrification throughout the United States.

New opportunities for installing labor and time-saving equipment are offered farm people at a price they can afford to pay, the North Carolina State college has found. The first essential in a water system is a good, clean, wholesome supply in a quantity sufficient for the farm and home needs. A well should be located at least 50 feet from any possible source of contamination.

To keep a water supply clean and free from harmful bacteria, the well should have rock masonry, brick or terra cotta walls from bottom to top. In many cases driven or bored wells with iron castings are quite satisfactory. All wells should have tight, properly-made concrete platforms to keep out surface water.

An electric water system will provide 1,000 gallons of water per hour for three cents when the electric rate is six cents a kilowatt hour. In many cases the small amount of electric current used to pump water will not increase the monthly bill above the minimum charge.

The college recommends that the farm family first install an outlet to the kitchen sink and another to the barn for watering live stock. He says this can be done for approximately $100. The system can be enlarged as finances permit.

The average farm laborer earns from 20 to 30 cents an hour for his work. Why then should the farmer's family work carrying water at the rate of one-half cent per hour?

Opportunities Offered in Homemade Equipment

Homemade equipment is only for persons who have ideas of their own. A farmer usually sees a neighbor's wagon, inspects it, and goes home to build one for himself, or lets his son do it.

Also, say engineers at the New York State College of Agriculture, rubber-tired tractors have convinced farmers of the practicability of rubber-mounted equipment.

In their opinion, a start toward bringing all the equipment up-to-date is the farm wagon which can be made easily and will cost about $35, without box or rack. Auto running gear, preferably with 600-16 tires, lends itself to easy tire replacement when the wagon is heavily loaded.

The advantages of tires are lost, it is said, with more than 25 pounds pressure in them. Used tires are satisfactory if the wagon is used on the farm and not behind a truck or car on the highway. If used on the road as a trailer, New York state law requires that it be equipped with brakes, lights, and a license.

Ensilage carts that push easily over litter and other obstructions may be made at a cost of from $20 to $25 for material and labor, according to the engineers. A sturdy handy cart for carrying milk cans may be made from old auto wheels, he says.

Suggest Caustic Potash To Remove Cow Horns

In the wild state, cows may have needed their horns for defense, but under modern conditions they are of no practical value except from the standpoint of beauty, say Washington State college dairymen, who recommend that horns be removed from calves at an early age.

Horns may be removed with caustic when the calf is about a week old. Caustic potash in sticks may be used for this purpose. Tie the animal securely then clip an area over and around the horn "button" about the size of a half dollar. Cover this area with vaseline to prevent the caustic from burning beyond the horn area.

Wrap one end of the caustic in paper to prevent burning the fingers of the operator. Place the stick of caustic over the center of the horn button and rub with a circular motion until the caustic has gone through the skin and into the center of the horn button. Some practice is necessary to achieve the best results.

Do not turn the calf out in the rain for a day or two and do not allow other calves to lick the treated horn buttons.

Turning Eggs

Some authorities assert that when eggs are hatched in an incubator they should be turned three or more times a day from the third to the eighteenth day. Be sure the hands are clean and free from oil or grease when the eggs are turned. If hatched under a hen, this handling is unnecessary as the hen will take care of the necessary moving. However, all hatching eggs should be candled on the seventh day and all infertile eggs removed.

ly light and premiums on contract grades advanced about 1/4c per bushel during the week. No. 2 hard winter was quoted September 22, at 88 3/4c to 90 1/4c and No. 1 soft red winter at 89 1/2c to 91 1/4c per bushel. Milling wheat of good quality was in active request at St. Louis but offerings were mostly of low grade. No. 2 soft red winter was quoted at the close of the week at 91 1/4c and No. 2 hard winter at 89c per bushel.

In the Pacific Northwest, cash wheat markets were relatively weaker than futures, reflecting lack of export demand and only moderate milling inquiry, as the result of slow domestic flour business. On September 22, soft white and western white wheat were quoted at Portland at 80c, western red at 79c, ordinary protein hard white (baart) not quoted, hard red winter 78c per bushel, all basis No. 1 grade in bulk. Wheat receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river ports totaled 758 cars, a considerable portion of which was for terminal storage.

Domestic flour mills furnished the principal outlet for current offerings in Pacific Northwest markets, since exporters were mostly out of the market. Needs of mills were mostly confined to special lots of high quality, with market offerings generally ample for their requirements. Growers were still reported offering only moderate amounts of cash wheat at country points and were mostly storing their grain, either at country or coast terminals. Wheat subsidies to South America and Mexico during part of the week resulted in only a small amount of sales.

The San Francisco wheat market turned somewhat weaker during the week ending September 22, influenced principally by declines in Pacific Northwest markets and slower local demand. Prices were mostly around 2 1/2c to 5c per 100 lower compared with a week ago. Central California marketings remained light but Bay Region buyers were turning more to Washington-Oregon markets for their milling requirements. Recent declines in the Pacific Northwest have placed both milling and feed grades on a shipping basis to the Bay region. Northwestern wheats were still mostly too high to permit shipments to interior California feeding centers but some lots of local wheat originally purchased for the needs of San Francisco were being diverted to interior points and replaced with Washington and Oregon wheat. Stocks in California producing areas have been reduced to relatively light amounts and growers were holding remaining supplies very firmly.

Changes in the cash wheat prices at Kansas City ranged from 1/4c advance to 1 1/4c decline, with continued ready outlet for the moderately larger arrivals. Kansas City received 473 cars and arrivals at nine winter wheat markets totaled 1,598 cars compared with 1,538 a week ago and 1,873 a year ago. Mills which were working actively on recent heavy bookings of flour were buyers of best milling types.

Demand for cash wheat at Minneapolis was slightly less active, which resulted in barely steady to weaker premiums. The moderate receipts, however, were well cleaned up from day to day. Demand for diversion point offerings continued fair to good with additional boat space contracted for during the week at considerably higher levels.

Chicago reports a man who refused to buy his wife a fur coat because she wouldn't mend his socks. In other words, she didn't give a darn and he didn't give a rap.

They Just Don't Mix
John Barleycorn scored the first September motor vehicle death when two men left a party in Benewah county after 5:00 in the morning and within half a mile attempted a curve at 50, the safe speed being 30, says the Bureau of Safety. The car left the road and the passenger died shortly afterwards from a smashed spine. The driver is charged with drunken driving.

National Dog Week Honors Man's Best Friend

"Every dog has his day" in America, where National Dog Week has been set as September 17-24, honoring man's best friend. Miss Evelyn Busby, of Detroit, had her hands full when she started out to observe the event by giving an automobile ride to Thor, a giant great Dane, and Bressy, a miniature pinscher. Thor usually rides with great dignity on the back seat of Evelyn's Chevrolet, while Bressy proudly perches with his back feet on the front seat and his front paws on the open door of the glove compartment!

"Arizona Wildcat"

Again, this coming Friday and Saturday nights, Jane Withers, that little buzz-saw of the movies, will come to the Kendrick Theatre in "The Arizona Wildcat." - Down the main street of Mineville, Arizona, a stagecoach races, carrying the riddled bodies of the driver and two guards, who have been murdered and robbed of a gold shipment. "Jeepers!" says Jane. "First the gold was missing from the mine - then the stagecoach was stuck up - and I found out my adopted daddy was El Gato, the famous outlaw! Jimminy, did we fix those bad hombres good!" With Jane and a band of Mexican outlaws headed by Leo Carrillo, restoring order and law to a small Arizona town, one can very readily understand that "The Arizona Wildcat" is the proper name for Jane.

Also there will be shown Episode No. 1 of "The Lone Ranger," which is said to give thrills galore.

No wonder people like "Far From the Old Folks at Home." You can be somebody if you get far enough.

BOTT FAILS TO "MOW DOWN" MAINE POTATO OPPONENT

Before a packed grandstand at the E. Stern Idaho State Fair at Blackfoot last Friday, Governor Lewis O. Barrows, of Maine, defeated Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen, of Idaho, in the annual Governors Potato Picking contest, while Eldon Booth, of Rupert, "All-American" spud picking champion, defeated "International" champion, Robert Hallett, of Mars Hill, Maine, in a special match following the main event.

The two governors picked for five minutes, with Barrows registering 382½ pounds to 368 for Bott.

The professionals went the fifteen minute route, with Booth tossing nearly a ton of tubers, 1,971 pounds, while Maine's pride, French-Canadian Hallett, sacked 1,558. The Rupert man got his title at a contest held at Rupert last year, while Hallett has, for the past two years, won the International Potato Picking contest held annually in Maine.

The governors' contest climaxed a month of charges and counter charges, threats and counter threats about the relative ability of the two executives at picking spuds, and about the superlative qualities of Maine and Idaho potatoes.

Needless to say, the affair furnished good national publicity for the potatoes of both states. The National Broadcasting company sent ace commentator Jennings Pearce, to cover the battle for the network, releasing it through KSEI at Pocatello by leased wire from the fairgrounds at Blackfoot. Newsmen and photographers, too, covered the story so that every nook and corner of the United States knows about the event.

"There's some consolation in losing to an opponent of the calibre of Governor Barrows," said Bottolfsen when he congratulated the Maine executive on his victory.

"I must have trained Bott too fine," declared Commissioner of Agriculture, E. N. Pettygrove, trainer and second to Bottolfsen in the match.

After the contest, both governors were made chieftains in the Bannock tribe and acted as official judges in a Papoose Baby contest.

Timekeepers were former Governor Barzilla W. Clark, of Idaho Falls, who lost to Barrows last year at Fort Fairfield, Maine, and Paul Nash, secretary of the Pocatello Chamber of Commerce. They were assisted by State Law Enforcement Commissioner Harry Rayner, who manned the starting gun.

EDITORIAL

Well, Folks — Here it is with the calendar crowding the first of October — and has the summer gone fast, and colder weather will be at hand almost before we realize it. Colder weather calls for warmer clothes, and warmer clothes cost money — but cream money will buy them. Cash, you know, speaks loudly and we have the cash ready to pay for that cream. In case you haven't tried it, bring in a can today and see the color of our money. It will buy just as much as if you shipped that cream — and there is no waiting, no fuss or bother. Bring in a can today — try it for yourself.

The old-fashioned girl blushed when she was ashamed. The modern one is ashamed when she blushes.

"I want to buy a muzzie."
"Yes, sir. Would this one do?"
"No, that would hold the jaws too tightly shut."
"But I just sold one to a woman."
"Yes, I suppose it would do for a woman, but I want mine for a dog!"

Mrs. New-wed: "I'd like to see some shirts for my husband. Soft ones, please, the doctor has forbidden anything starchy."

Prof: "What's a skeleton?"
Frosh: "A stack of bones with all the people scraped off."

Battle With Drunken Driver On

Boise.—With 40 convictions during September on charge of drunken driving, carrying fine and revocation of drivers' licenses, the battle with this extreme hatred of the highways is gaining momentum, says the bureau of safety at Boise.

State police are being provided with equipment to take care of body fluid samples for chemical analysis and the results are being accepted by courts as prima facie evidence.

Judges, doctors, prosecutors, and prominent citizens are taking advantage of the opportunity to view the sound film, "Testing the Drinking Driver," that is being shown by the state police to law enforcement officers.

The state of Indiana has taken the lead in passing a statute stating prima facie limits of intoxication to be adhered to by the courts. The law states, "Evidence that there was at the time from .05 to .15 per cent by weight of alcohol in his blood is relevant evidence but is not to be given prima facie effect in indicating whether or not defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor, under the meaning of this act. Evidence that there was at the time .15 per cent or more by weight of alcohol in his blood is prima facie evidence that the defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor sufficiently to lessen his driving ability, within the meaning of the statutory definitions of the offense."

These tests convict the guilty and free the innocent from unpleasant implications.

The business that runs like clock-work doesn't usually sell very much on "tick."

Change Your Habits With Tires
Lots of people should change their habits when they change tires, says the Bureau of Safety.

Rocks, and even logs, are used to make certain the car will not roll on a slight grade. The amazing thing is that drivers nonchalantly proceed on their way once the tire is changed—and leave the rocks and logs lying in wait for some unsuspecting motorist.

Trying to avoid an obstacle of this character in the roadway many times causes a motorist to make an unexpected swerve that invites disaster, especially with oncoming traffic.
