PACIFIC NORTHWEST WHEAT DECLINES STILL FURTHER

Cash wheat markets in the Pacific Northwest made further slight declines during the week ending on May 31, states the Agricuutural Marketing Service in the Weekly Grain Market Review. Further weakness in important middlewestern markets, together with slow domestic and export demand for wheat in this area, was considered important factors in making for the weaker market situation here. War developments in Europe continued a dominating influence in the grain markets of the United States. Light trading and movement continued to feature cash wheat markets at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals, where wheat receipts for the week totaled only 434 cars. Mills reported a slow domestic flour inquiry and export sales to the Philippines under the indemnity plan were only fair and less than in other recent weeks. Sales of wheat from this area for rail movement eastward has ceased due to the narrowing of the spread between markets here and in that section. Demand from California was light and limit-ed to special lots to complete milling mixtures. A general lack of water freight space for both coastwise and intercoastal shipments has tended to restrict movement of wheat from the Northwest to California and the Atlantic seaboard. Reports indicate the sale of a half cargo of wheat from the Northwest to the United Kingdom early in the week under the subsidy program. Exporters in general, however, have not been actively in the market and mill demand has furnished the principal outlet for moderate offerings from the country. Wheat millfeeds were holding about steady. Crop prospects in the Northwest are considered good, to excellent at the last of May. Cash wheat prices in Portland on May 31 were: soft white and western white, western red and ordinary hard red winter, all 72c per bushel, basis No. 1 grade in bulk. Indemnity prices on flour for export were $1.00 to the Philippines and $1.30 per barrel to China and Hong Kong. Cash wheat prices at Seattle May 31, were: western white, western red and hard red winter, 71c.

The San Francisco wheat market continued to decline during the last Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rodgers and daughter, Mrs. Lot Manson, were supper guests in the Gamman, were larger offerings from central California growers. Prices were mostly around 5c per 100 lower compared with a week ago. Increased offer-ings were chiefly of new crop wheat from earliest harvested sections in tain wheat were somewhat lighter than in recent weeks. At Minneapolis, receipts of cash wheat déclined but the premium basis was draggy. Minneapolis re-ceipts amounted to 794 cars while Duluth unloaded 446 cars. Principal weakness was in special milling lots.

Wheat receipts at Kansas City were curtailed by the holiday and decreased to only 285 cars for the week. Arrivals at nine winter wheat markets totaled 1,056 cars compared with 924 cars the previous week and 1,412 cars a year ago. At the close of the week No. 2 hard winter, ordinary was quoted at 80c to 83c.

The domestic winter wheat crop continued to make (generally favorable progress east of the Mississippi river with heading reported in south Indiana and Illinois. Progress was only fair in Missouri and wheat deteriorated slightly in Nebraska because of continued dryness. Growth was uneven in Kansas. Progress was good in Oklahoma with heads filling. Good rains came mostly too late to materially affect the crop in Texas. Some wheat is ripe in north central Texas but the rains are delaying harvesting. Spring wheat continued to make favorable progress except in South Dakota and Nebraska where moisture is need. Soil moisture is ample for present needs in North Dakota and Montana and the crop was doing well in Minnesota German occupation of Norway, Denmark, The Netherlands and Belgium has materially reduced the export outlet for North American wheat. During the first nine months of the current season. United States exports of wheat, including flour, to these countries, totaled about 16 million bushels. Canadian exports for the eight months, August through March, totaled over 25½ million bushels. Net imports of wheat and flour for these four European countries averaged approximately 82,-750,000 bushels for the five crop years 1932-1937.

In the European Balkan states, the unseasonable coolness has given way to higher temperatures but wheat prospects continue only moderate. Warmer weather was forcing growth in Italy where crop conditions are favorable. Prospects in central and western Europe were apparently much below normal despite recent improvement in weather. Heavy losses to the Belgian crop are reported as a result of the invasion. The United States wheat supply in 1940-41 is expected to total approximately 963.000,000 bushels from present indications. If realized this would be about 45 million bushels short of last year's supply. Carryover stocks of wheat at the first of July were placed at 283 million bushels. Stocks on hand at the first of April were 438 million bushels
