Tearing Down Old Tram
One of the old Potlatch country landmarks—the old Vollmer-Clearwater Co. tramway, now the property of the Lewiston Grain Growers, is fast becoming only a memory, as last Friday a crew started the tearing down of this once valuable piece of equipment.

In the days before good highways and trucks, thousands of tons of grain came down it annually, but in later years the tonnage slackened until it was no longer profitable to operate, and finally its destruction was decided upon.

A mile and an eighth of cable formed its bucket brigade. Its destruction is regretted by the old timers, since it was one of the really old landmarks in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Muenz had intended coming here to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary, May 26th, but were unable to reach here by that time. However, we have looked up the announcement of their wedding 25 years ago, and the following was taken from the Kendrick Gazette of June 4, 1915:

"Wednesday morning, May 26th, at the Cameron Lutheran church, Miss Freida Finke, eldest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Finke, Cameron, and Mr. Wm. Muenz of Lewiston were united in the holy bonds of matrimony the father of the bride officiating. After the ceremony at the church the bride party and guests were invited to the home of the bride, where an elaborate repast was set before the large crowd. Everything was done to make it a pleasant as well as memorable affair. The bride is one of the Potlatch's most prominent ladies and the groom is a promising young baker in Lewiston. The Gazette joins with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy wedded life."

Big Egg Contest
The Gazette's annual Big Egg contest closed Saturday evening, June 15, and when the measurements were scanned it was found that Roy Blankenship of Southwick was the winner, one of his hens having produced an egg measuring 6 1/2 inches by 8 1/2 inches. Really, folks, it was some egg.

Ernest Schmidt, also of Leland, had a hen who produced a pretty close second, and Norla Callison of American ridge one who would have come in third.

For some reason or other the hens about Juliaetta, who usually receive at least honorable mention, failed to come through with anything very large this year.

Roy will receive a free six-month subscription to the Gazette.

Old Sol, following a week of "non-belligerency" on Tuesday, decided to open up with more stuff, and on that day the indicator climbed to a modest 96 at 1:00 p. m. By 3:30 it had dropped to a mere 94, and as the hours waned fell lower, with the evening quite pleasant.

NORTHWEST CASH WHEAT UNCHANGED TO LOWER

Cash wheat markets in the Pacific Northwest ranged from unchanged to slightly lower for the week ending June 14, as compared with the previous week, states the Weekly Grain Market Review of the Agricultural Marketing Service. Developments in the European war situation were dominating influences in domestic markets, creating a generally unsettled condition in the entire grain list. The market situation in this area continued to be featured by light offerings of wheat by growers and most needs of millers and exporters were being supplied from stocks at terminals.

At Portland June 14, soft white, western white and ordinary hard red winter were quoted at 73c with western white at 73 1/2c per bushel, all basis No. 1 grade, in bulk. Cash wheat prices at Seattle on June 14 were: Western white, western red and hard winter at 72 1/2c and hard white (baart) at 87c. Wheat (receipts by rail at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals during the week dropped to only 318 cars for the period, indicating principally light marketings by growers at all country points.

Indemnity payments on export flour to the Philippines were 80c, and $1.10 per barrel to China and Hong Kong, with only moderate sales to the Philippines reported. However, sales of about 50,000 barrels of flour to Hong Kong during the week and about 40,000 barrels to North China the latter part of the previous week, were important developments in the export flour trade from the Northwest. Trade reports also indicate that about 25,000 tons of white wheat have been sold to Ireland under export subsidy during the past two weeks.

Wheat to fill these sales was reported mostly available at Northwest terminals. An important feature of the market situation in this area was the continued light offerings of wheat from growers, current prices being close to government loan values, and remaining stocks being mostly in strong hands. New crop conditions in the Northwest continue excellent according to trade reports, although official weather bureau reports indicate rains are beginning to be needed in nearly all producing sections of Oregon.

The San Francisco wheat market was dull and developed further weakness during the past week, influenced principally by declines in other markets and slow local demand.

The cash market at Minneapolis was generally dull and toward the end of the week traders were awaiting the removal of pegged prices on futures. While the futures dropped about 2c below the pegged July price, premiums remained steady.

Influenced by the unsettled market action and by several consecutive days of rain, country shippers marketed wheat in greatly reduced volume at Kansas City, where arrivals decreased to 154 cars for the week, the lightest receipts in many months.

Trading in cash wheat at Chicago was slow with country offerings light. Carlot receipts were heavier than last week but largely from other markets.

Wheat quotations at Ogden June 14, basis No. 2, FOB Ogden showed dark hard winter and dark northern spring at 74c per bushel.

No. 2 hard winter and No. 2 northern spring were quoted at 63c per bushel, basis Colorado common points, by Denver mills.

A. A. A. Program For All

Emphasizing the belief that "the Triple-A farm program is for all farmers", H. F. Koster, chairman of the county Agricultural Conservation Committee points out that provisions in the 1940 program which apply particularly to "small" farms in Latah County.

Of course the beneficial effect of production stabilization helps the small farmer as well as the large farmer, in promoting fairer prices for all farm products. "Small" farmers can get crop insurance often on irrigated tracts which are high-yielding, they can get crop loans, conservation payments, and parity payments if they raise wheat.

"Small" farmers are entitled to a vote in marketing quota referenda as well as to membership in the county Agricultural Conservation Association and a voice in electing committeemen who administer the program.

Sign up for 1940 indicates that more small farms are participating in the AAA program than ever before, the dispatch added.

Conservation is needed on small farms as much as larger ones. Usually the farming is more intensified, the drain on fertility is greater and the need to protect farm income is as vital.

Approximately 200 farms in the county are affected by the $20 minimum allowance which is a new feature in the Farm Program this year. If special crop acreage payments are less than $20, the farmer may earn the difference between that amount and the $20 payment by carrying out approved soil-building practices, regardless of how small his soil-building allowance may be. Such practices as grasses and legumes which otherwise many small farmers cannot afford to carryout, are made possible with the conservation payments, the chairman said. Better farms mean better farm income and are good business for the businessmen who rely on farm trade, as well.

Among The Sick

Mrs. Ida McAllister, who underwent a goiter operation last Friday at St. Joseph's hospital, Lewiston, was returned to her home here on Wednesday by Dr. Christensen. She is getting along nicely.

Bruce Wilson, Cedar Creek, suffered a severe cut on his right wrist Monday afternoon while engaged in logging operations. He was brought to town and several stitches were required to close the wound. Mr. Wilson was walking a log, the bark slipped under his calked boots and he fell, the razor-edged doubled-bitted axe wedging itself in such a position as to inflict the wound.

Besides the graduates at this year's Commencement program of the U. of I. Monday, local students home for the summer include: Arlene Deobald, Frank Rider, Jr., Leon Lind, Nolan Weeks, Herman Renfrow and Beatrice and Betty Curtis. Tom Keene, W. S. C. student, is also at home.

Bell, a pioneer minister of Kendrick, Leland and American ridge will preach from the same ground where Rev. Spalding taught the Gospel to the Nez Perce Indians, 104 years ago. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Remember the date!

PLANS FOR WATERFOWL REFUGE DEVELOPING
 Plans for the development of the Hagerman Valley Project were nearing completion this week, state fish and game director Owen W. Morris reports, and when the project is finished, Idaho will have within its boundaries one of the most modern waterfowl and game bird refuges in the west.

Included in the project is a warm water fish hatchery—the first of its kind in the state—that is being made possible through special efforts of the department with Federal aid in wildlife restoration act officials.

The land in Hagerman valley was recently purchased by the department with the aid of federal funds and covers approximately 700 acres of ideal swampland that will be used as a migratory waterfowl refuge; natural warm water ponds that will be used for development and experimental work on bass and catfish propagation and farm land on which hay and grain will be raised to feed big game animals and migratory and game birds.

In addition, a portion of the area will be utilized for the raising and propagation of beaver, muskrat and other fur bearing animals.

The site selected for the hatchery has been termed by game department officials as probably the most ideally situated region for a warm water hatchery and experiment station in Idaho. Ample water the year around is assured with a flow of 6,000 inches from Riley creek and an equal amount from Tucker springs, both sources being located on the property. An analysis of the water was recently made by the state laboratory and revealed the water from the two sources to be perfect for hatchery purposes.

The swamplands on the property will make ideal nesting and feeding areas for migratory waterfowl and it is of the opinion that duck and goose hunting will be materially improved by the development of the project.

The state's property is adjacent to the United States Bureau of Fisheries hatchery in the valley and when all the work on the project is completed, more than 1,200 acres will be included in the federal and state game preserve.

SHOULD KEEP WATCH FOR SWINE SCAB IN HOG HERD
 Many cases of swine mange, commonly called "swine scab," have been reported recently to the office of the director of Bureau of Animal Industry. This infestation seems to be more prevalent in central western Idaho.

The parasite which causes this condition is a small whitish-colored mite called "sarcoptes scabiei suis." This disease is spread from herd to herd by hogs infested with this mite. Close contact between the hogs causes mange to spread rapidly in the herd and the sleeping quarters become an important source of infestation. The symptoms are as follows: The skin over the face, ears, neck and other parts of the body becomes inflamed and swollen. The intense irritation or itching may cause the hogs to rub the skin until it is moist and red. The injured skin finally becomes thickened, wrinkled and grayish in appearance. Hogs badly infested do not thrive, and become thin, due largely to the irritated skin and restlessness.

The treatment consists in applying lime-sulphur, crude petroleum or a processed crude petroleum to the skin by hand or dipping. These should be used in accordance with the directions on the container. If a dipping vat is not obtainable, the herd may be divided into groups of 10 to 20 hogs, crowded into a pen deeply bedded with straw, and sprinkled or sprayed with the preparation. If liquid lime-sulphur is not available, dry lime-sulphur may be added to water (four pounds to one gallon of water) and heated to about 120 degrees Fahrenheit for about 30 minutes. The dip may be prepared by diluting it with water in the proportion of 1 to 25. Three or more treatments at intervals of one week are necessary to control mange.

The United States Department of Agriculture Farmers' Bulletin No. 1085, gives an excellent discussion on this disease, its treatment and control.

Swine growers selling or buying swine for any purpose other than immediate slaughter, should be very careful to note that these animals are not affected with scab, and all cases should be reported at once to the office of the state veterinarian or your local veterinarian.

 about Cheap Electric Service

The users of electricity are showing how much they get telling our representatives, for each monthly bill! Above day after day, that electric is an actual comment by one service is cheap. And our of our customers. There are customers prove it, by thousands like it.

Electric rates have always been "reasonable" in the Inland Empire...for many years they've been among the lowest in the United States! Consistent rate reductions...such as the $300,000 reduction in April...have kept the cost of electric service traveling downward.

Well Folks—Seems like the hot weather is here to stay—and with it has come canning season. We can't help but wonder if you are canning the modern way—by freezing. Why toll over a hot stove for strawberry, raspberry, logan berry, pea and bean canning? Put 'em up the modern way—in one of our locker boxes. You'll find that it's lots quicker, easier and cheaper to can by ice instead of fire.

And with hot weather, why bother to church at home? Let us do it for you. Bring in your cream, sell it to us and then take home what butter you need. We believe you'll enjoy "passing the buck" to us. Try it for yourself.

And remember, we sell pure sweet milk and cream.
