Miss Jeanne Rainey, who is teaching at Kamiah, spent the week-end at home. She had as her guest Miss Maxine Miller of Nezperce. Miss Miller is teaching at Lapwai.

Mrs. Frank Rider and son Frank spent Sunday in Lewiston. Mrs. Geo. Leith was a Lewiston visitor Sunday.

B. G. Linderman, from Forks of the Salmon, Siskiyou county, Calif., was a visitor in Kendrick Wednesday, renewing old acquaintances. He is a former resident of Cedar ridge, having left here in 1918. He will be remembered by many. He says the old town looks natural, only cleaner, brighter and the trees bigger.

Mrs. Lester Crocker and sons David and Danny spent Friday and Saturday in Grangeville visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lyle, Jr., and family. The Lyles brought them home Sunday and spent the afternoon visiting friends here.

P. C. McCreary arrived home last Thursday after a two months' vacation spent in Colorado. Mrs. G. W. McKeever and Paula were Spokane visitors Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnston of Spokane came Saturday night, to spend Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Herres.

Mrs. E. B. Parks returned Monday from a Colfax hospital, where she has been the past eight days receiving medical aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert LaHatt and son and Fred Reid arrived Tuesday from Tacoma to spend some time visiting in the homes of Mrs. John Reid and Mr. and Mrs. L. S. LaHatt, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thomas and Noel and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jump and Marjorie drove to Winchester Sunday to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Alden Jump.

The Kendrick teachers all attended the Teachers' Institute in Lewiston over the week-end. Miss Grimm went on to her home on Clarkston Heights to be with her family Sunday, and Wm. Fitzpatrick spent Sunday in Spokane following the meeting. Miss Fattu and Ray Lamb returned here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Long drove to Moscow Sunday to visit Barbara, who is attending the U. of I.

Mrs. Don Miller and sons, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Crocker and Jean Crocker, were Lewiston visitors Friday.

Mrs. Laura Emmett visited from Thursday until Sunday in the Edgar Long home, after having spent the past five weeks touring Oregon and Washington with friends.

Rev. Wm. S. T. Gray, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dougherty and Mrs. Paul Lind spent Tuesday and Wednesday attending a District Conference for Ministers and Laymen from North Central Idaho, at Lewiston. Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Wm. Mattson drove down to join them Wednesday morning.

Kendrick Grade School Notes

The first and second grades are very enthusiastic about their Halloween party, and they are busy making caps and jack-o-lanterns for the occasion. They have nominated as their Carnival Queen candidate, Darlene Whitcomb.

The third and fourth grades held an election of officers this week. They are: Frank Dammarell, president; Douglas Christensen, vice-president; Patty Brocke, secretary-treasurer. Their Carnival Queen candidate is Patty Long.

Officers elected from the fifth and sixth grade room are: Doris Clemenhagen, president; Harlan Fey, vice-president; June Brown, secretary-treasurer; George Brocke and John Deobald, librarians. Their Carnival Queen candidate is Patty McCreary.

Officers elected from the seventh and eighth grade room are: Walter McCall, president; Jordan Kanikkeberg, vice-president; Helen Schrefler, secretary-treasurer; Pauline Kahler, reporter. Their candidate for Carnival Queen is Norman (Forky) Fry. Jordan Kanikkeberg and Noel Thomas are campaign managers.

"Forky" is very much interested in becoming Carnival Queen and is in the lead at present.

OPPORTUNITY
By Glenn Balch

If Idaho citizens are genuinely desirous of doing something to improve the state's system of public revenue and to bring them relief from unequal and unjust tax burdens when the legislature of 1941 will present a golden opportunity that should not be overlooked.

It is doubtful if at any time in recent history the citizens of this state have been so aroused over tax matters. One of the most comprehensive studies ever attempted of our tax structure is now being carried on by the committee appointed by the governor.

The citizens of Idaho are thinking taxes and talking taxes. They believe their taxes are too high, that government is costing too much. Practically everyone is agreed on that. But the question is: "What can be done about it?"

We are prone to shake our heads, answer "Nothing," and go on cursing the government and the country in general. That is the way we have done in the past. But that won't get the job done. Look where we are today with regard to taxes.

But something can be done. Any legislature is extremely sensitive to the will and desire of the public, and if the 1941 legislature is definitely and emphatically given to understand that Idaho citizens want something done about their taxes, and something constructive — than something will be done.

If Idaho voters send their representatives and senators to the state legislature next January with a very strong demand that taxes be lowered and the cost of government reduced, then there is a good chance that those things will be accomplished. The trouble has been in the past that the voters and the tax payers have been indifferent; they haven't asserted themselves and they haven't taken the interest they should in their government.

The 1941 legislature will be presented with the facts and figures obtained by a year-long study of our tax system. It will have at its command the work and recommendations of men who have devoted themselves to an earnest and honest attempt to work out a solution of our tax ills. It will have all the necessary foundation material for a thorough and constructive overhauling of our revenue laws.

The 1941 legislature can go down in history as the legislature which made sensible and beneficial changes in Idaho's tax structure. It can mark the beginning of a period of greater economy in government and greater equality in taxation. The 1941 legislature can do these things, and it will do them — but only if it is elected to office by a public which demands that it must.

Opportunity is knocking at Idaho's door now!

Wood Ties Still Needed

More than 2,500 patents have been granted in the last 50 years for railroad tie material other than wood, according to a recent publication, "Products of American Forests," issued by the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., United States Department of Agriculture. But in general, railway traffic continues to travel on wood foundations. It is estimated that about a billion wood ties are in service in the United States—enough, if laid end to end, to encircle the earth 70 times.

There is an annual renewal of about 100 ties to the mile, on the average, but several important railroads get along with a yearly renewal of 50 to 75 ties per mile. The longer life of the tie results from better roadbed, better construction methods, and chemical treatments with preservatives. In recent years railroads have been buying about 50 million ties a year, compared to nearly 150 million 30 years ago. Three-quarters of the ties are now treated with wood preservatives before they are laid.

Ties are cut from a number of kinds of wood and in nearly every state in the Union. Many are hewn from the logs by hand. The preference, however, is for the sawed ties because of its greater uniformity, its lower cost for treatment, and its better handling qualities.

Cheapness, strength, elasticity, resistance to shock, ease of treatment and electric insulating properties are qualities of wood ties that account for the demand that promises a continuing market for this staple product of American woodlands.

Watch Who Drives Car

If any person allows their car to be driven by a minor less than 14, or below 18, unless properly authorized by the department of law enforcement, they commit a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $300 or a jail sentence not exceeding six months, or both.

In addition, declares Harry M. Rayner, commissioner, car insurance may not be collected in case of an accident.

Minors between 14 and 18 may receive a restricted license to operate a car during daylight, but not at night.

Rayner said the department does not wish to cause anyone trouble or embarrassment, but the law must be observed; many complaints having been received charging non-conformance.

AND YOU PAY THE BILL
By Glenn Balch

It has become evident through the hearings of the tax committee that the levying of high taxes can develop into a vicious, confiscatory and ruinous circle. That condition is not imminent in Idaho, but it is generally agreed that it is high time something was done to prevent it.

High taxes can and often do defeat their end. It has been shown during the committee hearings that high taxes drive property from the rolls. People are unable to pay their taxes or refuse to pay them, and the property in question goes to the county by tax deed. And no property owned by a county or other governmental subdivision is included on the tax rolls.

Statistics presented to the committee show that since 1929 approximately 500,000 acres of land have disappeared from the tax rolls.

High taxes drive property from the rolls. People are unable to pay their taxes or refuse to pay them, and the property in question goes to the county by tax deed. And no property owned by a county or other governmental subdivision is included on the tax rolls.

Since 1929 Idaho's taxable wealth has decreased from 485 to 385 million dollars, or approximately 21 per cent.

Being an important mining state, there is no question but that Idaho loses large sums in governmental revenue each year because operators are forced to leave vast bodies of low-grade ores in their tunnels and stopes. Of course taxes are not the only cost of mining, but they make up about 8 per cent of it, roughly, and most operators in the state are working on a margin of profit much smaller than that.

High taxes prevent the growth and development of industries. High taxes drive investment capital from the state.

It therefore becomes obvious that there is a place in the progress of taxation where increased levies, instead of raising more revenue, raise less.

Property is driven from the rolls and becomes extinct, some of it permanently. Remaining property must pay still higher taxes. The increased burden results in more assessable wealth being eliminated. And the next year those taxpayers still in the struggle find that their levies have gone up again.

If such a suicidal process is persisted in year after year, it is evident that eventually there will be nothing left—neither property nor taxpayers, nor even government. The result would be unpredictable chaos.

The Big Union Fight

The American Federation of Labor has lost its control of Congress. The Congress of Industrial Organization rules the roost. The Congress fears the results that will follow in the coming election if the legislative body openly takes sides and deals with matters of legislation relating to the Wagner act and the National Labor Relations board. The National Administration, with the help of powerful members in the House and Senate, have edged proposals to amend the labor laws out of its "chances" to pass.

Watch For The Children

Thousands of little feet will soon be pattering along the roads, eager to get to school, eager to get home, eager to live.

Some motorists have not yet learned to stop when a school bus is letting children on or off. Whether a driver is meeting a school bus, or overtaking it—stop dead still.

The tragedies resulting from the gross violation of the school bus law are regrettable, says the bureau of safety. Let's all help to put an end to this criminal recklessness; assist by reporting every violation, giving number of registration plate, time and place, to the nearest state police representative.

FARM TOPICS GROWING CHICKS NEED GOOD FEED

Economy Measures Are Dangerous to Health.

By C. M. FERGUSON

Unfavorable feed prices start poultrymen figuring economy measures, but the calculations should not be carried to the point where economies in the feed bill jeopardize the health of chicks.

Milk is essential in the starting and growing rations for chicks and that its reduction below recommended amounts is almost certain to result in trouble unless some adequate substitute is provided. Milk is one of the best sources of vitamin G, which promotes growth, and it is doubtful if the reduction of milk below 5 per cent of the starting ration ever is advisable.

Even with 5 per cent of milk in the ration, some source of vitamin G must be provided as a substitute for the portion of milk omitted. High grade dehydrated alfalfa meal which has a rich green color and contains at least 19 per cent protein is the first substitute. Low grade alfalfa meal will not furnish much vitamin G.

The protein lost from the ration by the reduction of its milk content should be provided by a protein carrier which is low in minerals. Soybean meal with 41 per cent protein can be used. Mineralized soybean meal or meat scrap are not satisfactory substitutes for milk in the starting ration.

Dried whey can be substituted for dried milk at the rate of two pounds of whey for each three pounds of milk removed. A gallon of skim milk can replace nine-tenths of a pound of dried milk, and skim milk furnished as a drink for the chicks can replace all the dried milk in the starting ration.

Poultrymen who are mixing their own feeds should get prices from feed dealers on 10 or more of the ordinary ingredients and then calculate which combinations are the most economical at prevailing prices.

Green, succulent pastures and sunshine are without equals as growth and health promoters and as money savers. The chick range should provide green feed from spring until fall. Dried grasses do not provide vitamins needed by growing chicks.

Food Grown on Farms Has High Nutritive Value

Whether food production on the farm for use on the farm is worth while from the money angle has been debated widely. Soil, climate, and type of farming make real differences as between farm regions.

Looked at from the health and nutrition angle, as discussed in the new Yearbook of the department of agriculture, the case for gardening, orcharding and dairying for home consumption is clearer. "Few appreciate fully," say the food economists of the bureau of home economics, "the nutritive contributions of farm-furnished food to the family diet—nutritive values worth more than the amount of money involved and not ordinarily purchased even when there is plenty of money. If, as studies indicate, relatively more farm families than city and village families have diets that can be rated as good, this must be attributed to the use of home-produced food."

In a typical year, the bureau of agricultural economics estimates, farm families produced approximately $1,250,000,000 worth of food and fuel for home consumption by the farmers themselves.

Rural Briefs

Strong winds blowing against farm buildings tend to move them off their foundations. Braces that will hold the buildings down and tie them to their foundations are of greatest importance in good construction work.

Vaccinating poultry with the pigeon type of fowl pox vaccine is not as likely to cause a drop in egg production as treatment with the fowl strain of vaccine. The vaccine establishes immunity in about 10 days.

Newly housed pullets need careful watching to prevent feather picking and cannibalism. Liberal feeding, plenty of green feed, and a liberal supply of oats in the ration are suggested methods to prevent losses.

Average corn yields in the United States for the past three years have been five bushels an acre higher than yields during the preceding 10-year period.

If an auto or tractor must be run inside a building, pass the exhaust fumes to the outside with a rain-spout and elbow.

Adding yeast to the fattening ration for lambs was not found to be a profitable practice at the Illinois experiment station.

Average American Family Cannot Afford New Home

Most American housing is sold in a second-hand market and today 85 per cent of the homes being planned and erected are so costly that only one family in ten can afford to buy a house that is new, the research staff of International Correspondence schools says.

A study by the staff indicates that the home building plan or program today is missing its primary market of more than 500,000 families with incomes of from $1,000 to $2,000 a year. Most families in this group are forced to live in rented second-hand homes in congested areas, the study found. If they attempt to avoid tenancy and purchase homes, most of them are compelled to buy houses that are badly in need of improvements and maintenance.

America to keep abreast of its need for 700,000 new houses and 200,000 replacements, each year is building on an inverted scale, or a scale that answers the need of one family in ten. The other nine families must continue living in what they regard temporary quarters until they can acquire the means with which to buy a second-hand property.

Housing costs, it is pointed out in the research reports, seem to be on a 1929 scale, for not even a 20 per cent reduction in both labor and materials would enable more than 15 per cent of the families to purchase new homes. One out of every four families was satisfied or could acquire a suitable new house in the twenties.

Some construction authorities believe that large scale building projects will solve the problem, especially in heavily populated centers. Others pin their hopes on the prefabricated house. Still others recommend partly finished homes to which the owners can add modern conveniences as incomes will permit.

Highway Patrol Service Is Extended to All States

The past year saw every state maintaining highway patrol service, of varying sized personnel ranging from Pennsylvania's 950 to Nevada's eleven. Florida's division of state highway patrol, abolished in 1937, was re-created last year.

Pennsylvania led all states in expenditures for highway patrols, according to a report released by the National Highway Users conference. This state spent $3,393,892 for maintenance of the patrol division—had a personnel of 1,451 men in the service, of which 950 were classed as active highway officers. California was second in expenditures and New York third.

Duties of these highway patrols vary. Some states limit their officers to the enforcement of motor laws exclusively, true of Ohio. California includes the inspection of agricultural products and Florida officers perform the duties of weight inspectors. The majority of states authorize their state patrolmen to enforce other laws while giving primary attention to motor statutes.

No Bright Lights

Perhaps the most ultra-modern instrument employed by those delving with scientific exactness into the problems of wildlife, is the self-recording photo-electric cell, which automatically records light, the hours of sunlight, density, and so forth. This instrument enables the scientist to check on how certain wildlife species react to normal and unusual conditions of living. They can learn, for instance, that a certain species of wildlife will not thrive under the bright lights of Broadway—with the assistance of the sling psychrometer, the hygrothermograph, the anemometer—and the many other scientific devices adapted to wildlife research. Of course, the wildlife research experts also employ more familiar devices. To capture certain wildlife species needed for observation alive and unharmed they use special traps. Ear tags, leg bands, brooders and incubators—all more or less every day devices, are in constant use.

Texas Flax Growing

Successful growth for three consecutive years, has convinced the growers that new varieties of flax from Argentina, Brazil and India are adaptable to the Texas Gulf Coast region. Incidentally, this will supply raw materials to cotton oil mills to replace the declining quantities of cottonseed. It is an important fact that the yield per acre in Texas is 17 bushels whereas that of Minnesota and the Dakotas—states long established in flax production—averages only six bushels. The prime value of flax seed is its oil content which, as linseed oil, is one of the main elements used in manufacturing paint.

Butcher Bird Villain

The Shrike, also called the Butcher Bird, matches the bravest of the brave among birds of prey but is also very much of a villain in many ways. He is a feudal baron who holds his own undisputed sway and an ogre whose victims are so many more than he can eat that he actually keeps an outdoor storehouse by impaling or hanging them on a thorn or sharp twig. His menu consists of little birds, mice, grasshoppers, and other large insects and sometimes small snakes. He imitates with fenshish cleverness the call notes of little birds that appear in response and become his easy prey.

HAROLD THOMAS, Editor.

EDITORIAL

Well, Folks—It rather seems as if the weather man was going to relent and give us a bit of good weather now — good weather that would have meant many hundreds of dollars in bean cash to this section had it come two weeks ago—but then, there is no use in crying over spilled milk—it's one of those things that just can't be helped.

By the way, don't forget that next Saturday, October 12, is Kendrick's Annual Sales Day — as well as being it's birthday party, even if the birthday does not actually fall until October 15—and we want you all to come and share this day with us. And when you're in town, make the Creamery your headquarters—you are welcome, regardless of whether or not you desire to transact business with us. Come in and pass the time of day, anyhow.

And don't forget—we have locker boxes to rent. All sizes, all prices.

All kinds of social knowledge and graces are useful, but one of the best is to be able to yawn with your mouth closed.

When Johnny failed the second time in the same grade at school he said: "Next year I'll be a third-termer."

A colored couple called on a minister, asking to be married.

"Well," said the minister to the prospective bridegroom, "Do you mean that you want to take this woman as your lawfully wedded wife?"

"No, sah, Ah takes nothin'. I'se been tooked!"

Confucius say: "Grandma who used to wear night cap now drink it."
