Keep a Proven Executive In The Governor's Office

Cast Your Vote for Governor BOTTOLFSEN

Governor Bottolfsen's administration has been clean and above board. Republicans and Democrats alike all over Idaho have said repeatedly that he is 100 per cent honest in his dealings and his administration of state affairs.

Governor Bottolfsen's administration gave us the $5.00 Auto License Fee which saved the taxpayers $2,400,000 in 1939 and 1940. It took relief out of politics... it budgeted the school fund and appropriated $1,000,000 a year for school equalization purposes... it gave back to the counties $2,000,000 from gasoline taxes to be used for Farm-to-Market roads.

Let's continue the good work of this administration. Let's give Governor Bottolfsen another two years in office and support him with Republican state officials and a Republican Legislature.

bars on his books but when he died he asked that all accounts be burned, Keene said. Trappers are believed to be the first white persons to visit the site of Kendrick. The next were those of the Capt. E. D. Pierce expedition, who, led by Jane Silcott, Indian Princess, went through there to make their gold discovery at Pierce City in July, 1860. Jane led the party over the Lewiston hill to the Moscow area and thence through the Kendrick district. John P. Vollmer, pioneer Lewiston merchant and banker, earned the gratitude of early citizens and those to come when he donated to the city the timbered slopes rising from the town on its south. Known as Vollmer park, it will be maintained in perpetuity and the timber is never to be cut. This assures that one of the village's greatest scenic assets will never be lost. Vollmer had extensive holdings in Kendrick. Half of Kendrick is today known as Addison's addition, having been named after the father of Walter Addison, Lewiston taxi owner. Of all the men Kendrick produced, ex-Congressman Burton L. French, distinguished his community the most. Respect for him in his home town and congressional district kept him in congress a quarter of a century. He is now head of the political science department of Miami University, Miami, Ohio.

Sex In Advertising

A Budapest bookseller knew how to get results. He advertised a book about "What Every Young Woman About To Marry Should Know." Copy was discreet, almost secretive and purchasers were informed the book would be shipped "under plain cover."

Thousands of persons bought the book and then complained to the courts that they had been swindled. The book's subtitle was: "Lazy Little Lulu Learns To Cook." The courts acquitted the bookseller on his plea that every woman about to marry should know how to cook.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST OASH WHEAT MARKETS STEADY

els the same time last year. Marketing of Canadian wheat dropped off sharply in October, with farmers storing to obtain the government payment amounting to 1/2 cent per bushel each 22 1/2-day period. Present government quotas permit farmers to deliver 239,149,000 bushels, or 51.4 per cent of the marketable surplus. Only 64 per cent of this quota has been filled on October 4, due largely to delay in harvesting in Alberta.

Beans—On October 1, it was estimated that the U. S. bean crop would total 14,977,000 bags of 100 pounds each this year. A crop this size would be about 7 per cent larger than last year's crop and the 10-year (1929-38) average.

The Idaho bean crop on October 1 was estimated to be 1,500,000 bags, or approximately 260,000 bags less than the estimated production on September 1. The latest estimate is about the same as last year's production and 2 per cent above the 1929-1938 average production. Heavy and continuous rains during September were the cause for the reduction of the Idaho crops. Yields in some areas were reported good, and it is expected that the bad weather will affect the grade.

Bean prices to Idaho growers are still low. For the week ending on October 9, dealers were offering beans for $2.65 to $2.75 f. o. b. shipping point, or about the same as a month earlier. With such low prices many growers are reluctant to sell, and are holding for better prices. A favorable factor in the outlook, offsetting in part the large supply, is a better demand situation influenced by increased industrial activity and mobilization of men into various branches of the defense forces.

THUMB-NAIL IDAHO HISTORY
By Glenn Balch

There must have been a certain amount of nervous tension between three men riding the trail from Whitman Mission to Umatilla that fall afternoon in 1847. One was a Catholic priest. The second was a half-breed convert. The third was a Cayuse Indian.

The Cayuse had been a member of the band which staged the Whitman massacre. The priest and his helper had only that day succeeded in getting Dr. Whitman and his assistants buried.

The priest and the half-breed were not fighting men, and they had recently experienced a sickening sight of blood and gore. Doubtless they would have preferred to be free of the presence of the third member of the party. Doubtless, too, he had not asked their permission to travel with them and cared but little for their preferences.

The Cayuse was accompanying the priest and the half-breed for the express purpose of killing another man.

When they were preparing to leave the Mission, Eliza Spalding, ten-year-old daughter of Henry Spalding, and then a prisoner, had asked the half-breed, in whom she thought she could place some trust, to tell her father not to come to the Mission "for the Indians would surely kill him."

Overhearing this, the Cayuse had brutally announced his intention of killing Spalding. He said that he would accompany the priest and the half-breed until they met the missionary, who was expected to return that day from Umatilla. He exhibited to the girl the flint-lock pistol with which he proposed to murder her father.

It was because of the Indian's avowed murderous intentions that nervous tension was high among the three as they traveled along.

Presently the Indian stuffed his pipe. He looked for a match but could find none. If his companions had any, they did not offer them. After a time the Indian made an effort to light his pipe with his use of the flint in his pistol. He succeeded in accidentally discharging the weapon. And a minute later, before he could reload, they met Mr. Spalding.

Spalding stopped the party, anxiously inquired concerning the Whitmans. While Spalding was being informed of the fate of the Whitmans, the Cayuse, scowling darkly, withdrew around a bend in the trail.

Immediately the half-breed warned Spalding not to continue to the Whitman Mission because the Indian would likely be lying in wait for him somewhere along the trail with a reloaded gun. Spalding heeded the warning, changed his course and swam the river and eventually reached his own mission on the Clearwater river safely.

Thus an Indian's desire for his pipe is credited by history with the saving of a missionary's life.

"Yesterday I went into a big department store downtown and the counter I visited was so busy I couldn't get waited on. Right across the aisle stood a salesman doin' nothin'. Do you think I could get him to wait on me? No, sir, it wasn't his department! I think all salesmen should get their trainin' in a small town store."

"I remember when I worked in the general store down home, a lady called up one day and said, 'Send me a bucket of lard, tell my husband to come home, send a spool of No. 60 white cotton thread and vote the State Republican ticket for me.'" — Bob Burns.

"Millions For Defense"

The old slogan "millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute," can probably be changed to read "billions for defense," but we ought to get something for our billions more than armament on order. It all reminds us of one of our friends, who tells us that his son failed to graduate from college this year, but that the young man tells him he has a diploma "on order."

NOTICE OF GENERAL ELECTION, 1940

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on the Tuesday following the first Monday of November next, (November 5, 1940) at ..... Precinct in the County of Latah and State of Idaho, an election will be held for Presidential Electors, Members of Congress, State Legislative, County and Precinct officers, Constitutional Amendments and Initiative Measures as follows:

'Man Without a Country'

Flys His Flag of Peace

George Dibbern, literally the "man without a country," has solved the problem of how to live a life of peace, in a world of turmoil and uncertainty.

When his 32-foot ketch passed through the Golden Gate and headed for anchorage in San Francisco bay, customs officials flashed out the request of "Who are you?"

Dibbern flashed back the reply, "Te Rapunga."

That didn't tell customs officials much.

So they flashed back, "What country?"

Dibbern promptly replied: "No country."

"What flag?" the customs officials persisted.

Dibbern promptly ran up his flag. The flag had a white square, a circle and a star.

Customs officials had never seen or heard of such a flag and so far as they knew it was not registered in any part of the world.

So, eventually, they got together with Dibbern and threshed out the mystery.

The name of the ship, Te Rapunga, Dibbern explained, means in Maori, "just before dawn."

He told them how it came about that he has neither a country nor a home except his ketch. He further explained that the flag, which he had hoisted, was his own, as he is not entitled to raise the flag of any nation.

The white square on his own flag, he said, stands for "World Friendliness"; the circle "Unity," and the star "Humanity's aspiration."

Then he told how it had all come about.

For nine years he has sailed the seas under his self-created emblem. The flag has puzzled customs and immigration officers.

A dozen nations refused to recognize it, but that is all right with Dibbern, because none of them has a right to take it from him, because he is a man without a country, a citizen of the world, and no nation has any jurisdiction over him.

Weather Bureau Extends Winter Sports Services

So popular was the winter sports service of the United States weather bureau in the northeastern states last winter that it is being continued this year as far south as Pennsylvania and New Jersey and extended to the Michigan-Wisconsin-Minnesota area.

Although individual offices of the weather bureau have issued reports on conditions at skiing fields and have issued winter sports forecasts from time to time for many years, the general regional service was first offered in winter months of last year because of the need for reliable and unbiased information on skiing, tobogganing, skating, and other winter sports conditions.

In recent winters thousands of persons in New York and other cities have found the relaxation they need in week-end sports. Better roads and special trains have made it possible for a city worker to go many miles to snow-covered winter playgrounds and be back at his desk on Monday morning. Often, however, weather conditions such as a thaw or an unusually heavy snow leave imperfect conditions for winter sports in some areas. But in another direction week-end conditions may be perfect. The actual conditions that may prevail in any area on a Saturday morning are given in the sports weather service.

Each Friday morning volunteer "trail reporters" wire conditions in their area to weather bureau district centers. Supervisors there combine all reports and relay them to all other district offices for the sports region. A summary of conditions for the entire region is available Saturday morning for newspapers, radio broadcasts, and in bulletins.

In general the reports give depth and condition of snow and ice for each area, as well as conditions for snow and ice sports. The service, reports to the weather bureau indicate, is used by thousands of persons each week as far south as Washington, D. C.

Improved Refrigeration Aids Food Preservation

Uniform and economical cold storage and freezing temperatures are increasingly available to farm families who are interested in preserving their home-raised food supply, reports K. F. Warner, of the federal department of agriculture. With the improvement of automatic controls for most types of refrigeration equipment, needed temperatures—down to zero—can be maintained throughout the 24 hours without the expense of a night and day attendant. Refrigeration machinery adapted to the needs of a family, a large ranch or plantation, a small community, or a populous trading center is on the market.

Better methods for selecting, preparing, packaging, and freezing foods are being discovered, enabling families to hold foods in freezers for longer periods without loss of quality.

Ten years ago there were only a few scattered locker plants in three or four states where patrons could store a bundle or basket of food at temperatures slightly below freezing. Today there are more than 1,650 plants in 38 states where families keep homegrown foods at near-zero temperatures.

Paralleling this growth of locker plants has been the expansion of the commercial freezing industry. Already commercially quick-frozen vegetables have reached an annual tonnage of 100 million pounds and frozen fish almost twice that figure. Frozen foods are increasingly available to families in retail or wholesale quantities, giving additional variety to the home-grown supplies in their locker.

Chemical Dehydrators Used in Drying Fruits

Before the canning industry was developed, drying was the method most frequently used for preserving fruits. Today, fruits are dried either by direct exposure to the sun or in specially constructed dehydrators, according to a recent issue of Hygeia.

Some fruits, such as apricots and peaches, are exposed to the fumes of sulfur dioxide before drying to prevent discoloration. Others, such as prunes and figs, are dipped in lye before drying to tenderize the skin and thus facilitate the drying process. A large proportion of the residues remaining on the fruit from the sulfur and lye treatment is removed by water sprays, to which the fruit is subjected after drying. More of the residue is removed in the kitchen, such as when soaking in water.

Excessive sulfuring is objectionable because it permits the marketing of watery dried fruits, not because of any danger of harm from eating them.

Dried fruits are more concentrated in food value and have a greater caloric value than fresh fruits. A pound of fresh prunes provides 420 calories; a pound of dried prunes provides 1,400 calories.

Ending Overtime Classes

John Seery's Northwestern university classmates at Evanston, Ill., no longer will be subjected to over-doses of learning. "I owe it all to my alarm clock," the Jamaica Plains, Mass., sophomore said. Students in an accounting class complained that every period there was 10 or 15 minutes too long because the instructor said he was unable to hear the bell ending the period. To remedy the faintness of the school bell, Seery brought an alarm clock to class. Promptly at 3:50 the bell began to clang tinnily from behind its barricade of overcoats. The instructor assured students that thereafter they would be released on time—and without need of an alarm clock.

Fish Herders

Game wardens at Theresa, N. Y., assisted by representatives of sportsmen's clubs, maintain each spring a 24-hour guard over the thousands of wall-eyed pike that jam in the small tributaries to Indian river and Black lake. Following tradition of centuries these game fish trek from the deep waters of Black lake and the Lower Indian river to spawn in the small tributaries, some hardly ankle deep. They swim a distance of 20 miles or more, against strong currents, jump the falls over two 15-foot dams and after spending about two weeks in the shallows return again to the deep water.

Most Extensive Man Hunt

The most extensive man hunt in history was for the three De Autremont brothers who held up a mail train in Oregon on October 11, 1923. Not only were circulars in a hundred languages sent throughout the world, says Collier's Weekly, but special descriptions of their teeth went to dentists, of their watches to jewelers, of their eye-glasses to oculists and of their literary tastes to librarians. They were captured in 1927 after a search that cost $500,000.

Diamonds From the Sky

Diamonds fall from the sky, it has been proved by an X-ray examination of the hard, black crystals in a specimen from the meteor crater in Arizona. The specimen was obtained by Smithsonian institution and turned over to mineralogists of the geophysical laboratory of Carnegie institution for examination. Although not of gem quality, the particles are good black diamonds of the kind used in industry, being even more valuable than medium-rate gems, says Popular Mechanics. Many years ago when the presence of diamonds was suspected, futile efforts were made to drill into the meteor crater in the hope that a big diamond mass would be discovered. After going down for about 1,200 feet the drills hit material which they could not penetrate. Efforts to sink a shaft were defeated by striking water.

Bacteria Cause Explosions

Scotland Yard for months was puzzled by mysterious explosions in gasoline storage tanks holding wartime fuel. Sabotage was suspected but unproved. Finally a kerosene tank blew up. A quick examination after the explosion showed bubbles of gas rising from the layer of water at the tank's bottom on which the kerosene had been floating. Taking some of the water and sediment to a laboratory, it was discovered a new kind of bacteria which can live in kerosene and ferment it into 10 per cent ethane and 90 per cent methane. It was the explosive methane and ethane gas generated by these bacteria which caused the explosions.

Big Double Bill Another of those "two-for-one" shows will be given in the Kendrick Theatre this week-end. The Jones family, with their usual amount of trouble and humor, top the list. Their usual amount of misfortunes overtake them. Pa Jones is in the hospital and Ma sells the home, salvages the family car and $400 in cash, and hopes. Later the boys trade the car and trailer for a bungalow court, advertise apartments for families with children-and then the fun starts.

The next feature is "Wagons Westward." As youngsters, Dave and Tom Cook twins, are vastly different. Later Tom goes to Mexico and becomes a ruffian, while his brother stays at home and takes care of their widowed mother. Tom says: I hate my brother; I hate the world. Western story; western action.

MINING Was Idaho's First Industry Ever since the discovery of gold in 1860 mining has been of foremost importance to our state. It has furnished employment for many thousands of our citizens. It has paid millions of dollars for support of our government and our public institutions, such as schools and hospitals. And today-contrary to the belief of many-the mining industry is more important than ever before in Idaho's history. Never before was the need of the employment which it furnishes and the income it provides for thousands of families so urgent. ANY INJURY TO THIS INDUSTRY IS A DIRECT BLOW AT THE SECURITY OF NOT ONLY THOUSANDS OF WORKERS AND BUSINESS MEN DIRECTLY DEPENDENT UPON MINING BUT AT THE SECURITY OF EVERY IDAHO CITIZEN. WE NEED MORE CONTENTED COWS
HAROLD THOMAS, Editor

Well Folks—Seems like the past few days have been trying desperately to make up for the wet, wet weather of early this month when thousands of dollars worth of good Potlatch beans were rained into oblivion. Of course, their entire value is not lost, for there is no finer fertilizer, but the “cash this year” income to their growers is gone. You know, that’s one nice thing about milking cows, the wet weather doesn’t spoil the product in the least. In fact, it improves it, due to improved pasture feed. And you can bring a good many dollars worth in in just small containers. There is no sack bill, no threshing bill and no trucking bill — and there’s always a spot cash market here with us. Try us, be convinced. And don’t forget, “Pride O’The Potlatch Creamery butter is obtainable at all the local stores or from us if you prefer.

First Negro: “Where’d you-all git dat derby hat?”
Second Negro: “Hit’s a surprise fum mah wife.”
First Negro: “A surprise?”
Second Negro: “Ah cums hum de odder night unexpected an’ found it on de table.”
“These lovely cakes,” gushed the visitor. “I don’t know how many I’ve had.”
“Six,” said the small son of the house.
First Boy: “What was wrong at your house this morning. As I was passing I heard somebody cussin’ something awful.”
Second Boy: “Oh that was my dad. He was late for church and couldn’t find his prayer book.”

ENTIRE WORLD ON VERGE OF BANKRUPTCY AND RUIN

News from Europe, especially the views of the military and political experts, has changed decidedly in tone during the past few weeks. Gloom has given place to hope in the minds and breasts of those who favor the fight of Great Britain against the totalitarian powers.
Due to the fact that Hitler has not yet invaded England and the winter season is coming on, coupled with the diplomatic exchanges between Berlin and Rome, it is believed that the totalitarian nations are being compelled to change their strategy because they have found the problem of invading England a tougher nut to crack than they had expected.
There are some military experts who now believe that Great Britain will eventually win the war. They think that Hitler will finally exhaust his resources, and that there may be revolution in the countries he has conquered in Europe, perhaps even in Germany itself. Many of them base their opinions too on the belief that the United States will be in the war next spring, and indeed anyone who is not too blind to read the signs of the times can see that we are steadily drifting into war, although drifting is not perhaps the correct word.
One fact however, is not to be lost sight of. If Great Britain succeeds in repelling Hitler's attack and overcoming the dictator through the help of the United States, or without such aid, the winning of the war is bound to be a hollow victory. Nothing will be left but monuments of debt to take the place of the monuments of stone which may be destroyed in the meantime. Germany and Italy have no territorial possessions, no money which might enrich John Bull if he finally wins the struggle. On the other hand, if Hitler should finally prevail, he would have nothing but ruins, European bankruptcy and starvation! Such a victory would be hollow indeed.
This is not to be taken to mean there will be no winner to this present mad war. The triumphant one will be Josef Stalin. The aim of Russia is to spread Communism everywhere, and Communism thrives only on hate, despair, bankruptcy and revolution.
Stalin's strategy is to keep the war going as long as possible, so that there will be no one left, but he, to pick up the pieces.
