He started up stairs but found the whole of the upper story in flames, It was but a short time until the entire building and its contents were turned to ashes. Insurance to the amount of $100 was carried on the house. The loss is conservatively estimated at $3,000. The house was a large frame structure built about six years ago by P. Powell. # FARM

U.S. HAS 'SLUMS' IN RURAL AREAS

Serious Conditions Revealed By Housing Survey.

A department of agriculture survey of almost 600,000 farm houses scattered through 46 states discloses that many families live in houses as bad as, or worse than, those found in city slums. Only 14 per cent had water piped into the house. In many cases the water supply was inadequate and insanitary. Only 9 per cent of the houses surveyed had indoor toilets. Many of them had no toilet facilities whatever, even of the most primitive sort. As a result, in some rural areas as high as 50 per cent of the school children are infected by hookworm. More than 25 per cent of the houses had no screens to keep out diseasecarrying insects. Forty per cent were unpainted.

Serious conditions in rural housing have not attracted as much attention as city slums, and comparatively little has been done to alleviate them, says the Farm Security administration. But the FSA, in connection with its program for rehabilitating low-income farm families, has had to face the rural housing problem. It has built or directed the building of more than 12,000 houses in the last few years.

In an effort to find good but cheap housing materials as well as plans and construction methods, the FSA has done considerable experimenting. It has tried conventional lumber houses of many different kinds, steel houses, adobe houses, native stones, brick, and even cotton in one or two cases.

No final appraisal of these experimental houses will be made by FSA engineers until they have been thoroughly tested under actual living conditions. Meanwhile, the engineers point to their simply constructed and planned lumber houses as the best low-cost rural housing ever developed.

Grasshopper Threat

Is Less Than 1939 Grasshoppers are a much less serious crop threat this year than in 1939 or 1938, according to Dr. Lee A. Strong, chief of the United States department of agriculture bureau of entomology and plant quarantine. Nevertheless, enough hoppers will hatch in many parts of the great plains to do a great deal of damage, unless adverse weather or control measures stop them. Dr. Strong says that concerted efforts by all farmers in the grasshopper infested states, aided by federal and state agencies, are needed to control a plague that has cost U. S. farmers millions since the first settlers entered the West. The co-operating state agencies estimate that crops valued at $128,-000,000 were saved by the co-operative control work of last season which cost $2,500,000, exclusive of labor and other contributed assistance. More than 153,000 tons of poison bait were spread over about 25,000,000 acres in 24 states, through the co-operative efforts of the United States department of agriculture, the states, local agencies, and 235,-000 farmers.

Crop damage by grasshoppers in 1939—estimated at $48,000,000—is materially less than in any year since 1934, when these insects became a national problem and the federal-state control program was started.

Fence Post Tips

For fence posts pick the tree which grows where the "going is is a good rule suggested by tough" T. E. Shaw, Purdue university extension forester. Trees grow faster in the open than under crowded conditions but their wood is less durable than that of trees grown in competition with others. Aside from osage orange, which is not so plentiful, the black locust, red cedar, mulberry, northern white cedar, catalpa and chestnut are the best sources of fence post material in the order named.

Eradicating Fleas

To rid a farm of fleas, give close attention to the two favorite hosts, the dog and the hog. Destroy all old bedding from the quarters of these animals. Turn the hogs out on pasture and spray their pens and shelters with a strong dip of equal parts of kerosene and used crankcase or crude oil. Repeat the spray after a few days. The dogs meanwhile can be treated with a good flea powder.

Life of Dams

Check dams of brush have a relatively short life while rock dams last the longest, according to experience with soil erosion control work. Although check dams may hold only two and one-half to three years, they are in long enough for vegetation to grow on the silt accumulated in the gullies behind them. Better than brush dams are pole dams, which may last a year or so longer. Eventually, however, the poles decay.

Yes. We Have Bananas, Iceland's Theme Song

"Yes, we have no bananas" seems to be a true theme song for the hardy people of Iceland, for their frozen kingdom on the edge of the Arctic circle is a desolate combination of vast "neves," or ice fields, and barren volcanic rock. Yet this is the place science has chosen to raise tropical banana trees.

Off hand it might seem as absurd to grow bananas in Iceland as to build rowboats in the Sahara, but stranger things have been managed. This time it is the volcanic energy that is to be harnessed. Iceland is dotted with hot springs, the steam of which for centuries has been escaping uselessly. The intention of science is to take advantage of the island's natural system of steam heating and cultivate banana groves on the outskirts of these hot "oases."

Experiments have already proved that it can be done. The only problem is just when the banana groves will be planted, and who will provide financial backing for such a strange venture as growing tropical trees in the frigid North. The scientists hope to settle these details

It is quite possible that Iceland had a tropical climate a million years ago. This is indicated by the recent discovery of dinosaur bones on the eastern shore of Greenland, near Scoresby sound.

Naturialists know that these dinosaurs could not have existed without tropical vegetation, and would have quickly frozen to death in subzero temperature.

Just how big the prehistoric mon-sters were won't be known until the bones are assembled.

Travels 30,000 Miles Without Spending Cent

Without spending a cent for transportation, Harold Eckes, a University of California graduate, has hitch-hiked 30,000 miles in the United States and Canada.

Eckes holds an electrician's union card and says he has worked in every state.

Born in Denver, Colo., he has lived in Hollywood since he was three years old. He was graduated from U. C. L. A. in 1930 with a degree in electrical engineering and later followed his profession in the movie industry.

But when hard times hit the movies in December, 1938, Eckes was laid off. He found another electrical job in Texas and hitch-hiked there. The mode of travel was to his liking and he has been at it ever since.

He declares he is the only man who can prove he has "hitched" a ride in an airplane. That was some time ago he picked up a 261-mile ride from Miami, Fla., to Havana,

His most unusual hitch? A threemile ride from Cristo, Mexico, to Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, in an oxcart.

Younger Officers Needed America needs younger army officers, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, believes.

Testifying in behalf of a bill for promotion of comparatively young men with World war experience, the chief of staff said these officers need training in positions of greater responsibility.
"In war," Marshall added, "much depends on the individual officer. "Under the present setup officers would be so old and limited in experience in the upper ranks that it would be very unfortunate for them to assume high command."

Observers recalled that since the outbreak of war in Europe, President Roosevelt has shown a marked tendency to choose young men for promotion in both the army and navy in hopes of adding vigor to the military services.

Silent Photo Trays

No longer need the amateur photographer who does his own developing and printing get himself in wrong with the little woman who is trying to sleep, but is kept awake by the clanking of developing trays in the kitchen sink. The Colux company of Detroit have just brought out a metal developing tray covered with noise absorbing rubber.

Not only are the trays noiseless but are impervious to chemicals, clean easily, dry quickly, and are marked in such a way that different solutions are easily identified in the dark room.

Originators of rubber covered developing equipment, the Colux company is offering three trays, a funnel and rubber covered tongs to members of local camera clubs at a special member's price.

Farmers Migrating

Increasing mechanization of the farm is the largest single cause of today's migrancy, Jesse Epstein, executive director of the Seattle Housing authority, informed members of the National Association of Housing Officials.

"While the mechanization of farms in the East and Middle West is prying farmers loose from their homes. increasing mechanization in the western areas to which these farmers flee is fast lowering the number of migratory workers needed year by year, crop by crop. Not more than half of all migratory families in the nation are able to find work; there is not enough work to go around; another five or ten years ter feeding, habitat development. will push the needed percentage and wildlife restoration, the Nation-even lower, he reported." al Wildlife Federation reports.

Everybody Should Be

Labeled, Says Doctor

Everybody ought to wear permanent tags or have tattooed on their stomachs or somewhere one piece of personal information, according to a suggestion to the London Lancet by Dr. J. Nicholl of Lewes, England. This is the chemical type of the wearer's blood. After an air raid in war or some peace-time catastrophe such as an earthquake this precaution might save thousands of lives. Divers and others who work habitually in compressed air often carry cards telling the policeman or a bystander what to do if the wearer suddenly falls helpless with an attack of the disease called bends. Similar information about blood types might be even more useful and for everybody. One of the commonest operations nowadays for people seriously ill or injured is a blood transfusion but this cannot be done until the blood types of both the recipient and the donor of the blood have been matched.

Recently some hospitals have begun to keep "blood tanks," containing blood taken in advance, labeled for type and stored, but this still leaves the necessity of making laboratory tests of the blood type of the patient into whom the stored blood is to be injected. Sometimes this means fatal delay. In any general emergency it would use up time of experts badly needed for other tasks.

If everybody always went around labeled somewhere with the type of his blood, all that the hurried surgeon would need to do would be to roll the victim over until the mark was visible, find somebody else with the same mark and go ahead.

Since the passage of the Social Security law in this country, hundreds of Americans have subjected themselves to the tattooist's needle to have their Social Security number permanently etched in some conspicuous, or inconspicuous, place on their persons.

This, too, may save a lot of time and trouble if the owner of the number becomes an accident victim, or suffers an attack of amnesia.

Senator, an Amateur Chef, Serves a 'Rattler' Cocktail

Senator "Honest Vic" Donahey of Ohio is quite an amateur chef, and once invited a group of newspaper friends to partake of his culinary skill. First item on the menu was what Donahey called a "rare deli-cacy." But he smilingly refused to divulge its ingredients until the guests had tasted it.

"This is one of my masterpieces," proclaimed the senator. "It's something none of you, I'm sure, has ever tasted before. I want to get your reactions."

The boys were a bit chary at first. But after a few exploratory nibbles found the dish savory, and ate with gusto. As he signaled for the next course, Donahey asked, "Well, how do you like it?'

"Fine," said one of the newsmen. "Tasted a little like chicken. What was it, senator?'

"Rattlesnake meat," replied Donahey, grinning at the gasps of his guests.

Play Foe of Intolerance If children are taught to play together they will learn to live to-

This was the thesis developed at a conference between Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders at the Y. W. C. A. sponsored by the recreation division of the Council of Social Agencies and the Washington Round Table, National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"Unless we can instill in our young people a respect and tolerance for different people, then we are headed for the kind of chaos Europe is experiencing," said Miss Anna Rose Kimball, field secretary of Youth National Council of Catholic Women.

Julius Bisno, executive secretary of the national Jewish youth organization, Aleph Zadik Aleph, said that Jewish recreational programs are helping native-born Jewish population to synthesize American culture with their own Jewish heritage.

The conferees agreed that ignorance is the chief cause of intoler-

Lumber Profiteers The cost of lumber in Britain has risen 40 per cent since the beginning of the war. And on top of that dealers have taken the maximum prices fixed by law and made them the minimum prices. Moreover it takes a lot of red tape in the matter of filling out a form in order to purchase $100 worth of lumber. The purchaser has to apply to a local area officer. The area sends a form. The form is returned. The officer returns the form, duly approved. The form goes to the supplier for signature. The supplier signs the form and sends it back. The purchaser returns the finished form to the area officer. After that he can go ahead and buy the timber.

Boys Learn

By a plan advocated by A. W. Short, chief of the game management section of the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources, sportsmen of the Buckeye state are taking boys of grade school age to their meetings and showing the town boys the fine points of winal Wildlife Federation reports.

Canton People Revere Artist Dead 31 Years

People in Canton, N. Y., never tire of thinking and talking about Frederic Remington, the artist. His colorful personality left a seemingly indelible imprint upon the commu-

Remington was born in Canton on October 4, 1861, says the Watertown Times. In 1883 he took matters into his own hands. He purchased & ranch near Kansas City in the then rough and ready West. He married Miss Eva Adele Caten of Glovers-ville, N. Y. His bride and he went Finally Harper's Weekly accepted one of his drawings. So popular was his work in the East that he was offered a lucrative contract by Harper's. He was "in." Theodore Roosevelt, a rover, too, asked him to illustrate one of his books on the West. He returned East and during the next decade he was associated with every major writer of Western: themes—Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Bret Harte, Richard Harding Davis, Frank Norris, Julian Ralph, Owen Wister and Col. Richard I. Dodge. By this time he had shifted from pen and ink to oils.

If the medical world had known more of appendicitis, Remington would probably not have died the day after Christmas in 1909 at his Greenwich, Conn., home. He had been ill for two weeks and physicians seemed to help him little. He tried a special diet, but that was of no assistance. He was 48 years old. He was taken back to Canton and buried in Evergreen cemetery. His wife, who died in 1918, lies beside

Blankets Remain Fluffy

When Washed Carefully In washing blankets at home, care should be taken to keep them soft and fluffy since a matted blanket is stiff and scratchy. Blankets should always be washed before they are put away for the summer. Clean blankets are not nearly as likely to be attacked by moths.

The important thing to remember in washing are to have plenty of suds and almost cool water. Never use hot water-it shrinks wool and fades colors. If the binding is more soiled than the rest of the blanket, lay it on a table first and go over it with a face cloth, using dry soft soap flakes. Then wash the whole blanket. Use enough soft soap flakes to get about four inches of suds. Squeeze the suds through and through and rinse well in at least three lukewarm waters. Rinse in clear water, being sure not to leave any suds in. And be sure the rinse waters are the same temperature as the Euds.

If you prefer you can put your blanket in a washing machine, but don't run the washer more than three minutes or the blanket may shrink and get stiff. Don't rub with cake soap, because it will mat your blankets.

When you hang your blanket to dry, put two lines parallel and about two feet apart. Spread the blanket over these, lengthwise, so as to divide the weight. Square up the corners and shake it gently now and then while it's drying. When it is dry, brush lightly to raise the nap. and press the binding with a warm

Ducks Deer, Saves Life Earl Brownell, assessor at Doris and Butte Valley, Calif., probably saved his life by quick thinking when an enraged pet deer charged After youngsters had goaded the animal, a large five-year-old buck, into a killing rage, it lowered its horns and attacked Brownell from the rear. The assessor "bulldogged" the animal and after a furious struggle submerged his head in the waters of the creek.

Thinking the fight had been taken out of his attacker, Brownell released the deer only to bear the brunt of another charge. It was only after an exhaustive struggle that he succeeded in holding the buck's head under water until the animal became limp.

Animals Adapt Themselves The four-toed kangaroo rats, or bannertails, of the hottest deserts of southwestern United States, are a remarkable example of animal adaptability, according to an article in Natural History, the magazine of the American museum. Their fur-soled feet make for speed across the desert, and also serve as pick and shovel with which they make the sand fly in burrowing, while a sort of folding hood keeps it out of their highly sensitive ears. Their black eyes are specialized for night work, when the deserts are cool, although they can see perfectly well in the daytime so as to be on the lookout for potential enemies who probably could not spot them anyway because their coloring blends with the sand so as to make them almost invisible.

'Dean' of Patients
Francis Pask, "dean" of patients in the Sherman hospital, celebrated his eightieth birthday. He walked into the hospital in 1913 saying: "I fell off a scaffold while I was painting a barn. I'm hurt." He figured maybe a few days in the hospital would fix him up. He's been there 27 years. His back injury turned out to be paralysis that made it impossible for him ever to walk again.

YOU FORGET KENDRICK.... YOU BUY ELSEWHERE How Long Can We Both Endure?

Money spent out of town is gone, never to return. It helps the other fellow, miles away, but doesn't help your town. It doesn't raise taxes for better schools, it doesn't cut down your tax bill by bringing increased prosperity to your town, it doesn't help the local merchant carry larger stocks to make your selection easier. On the contrary, the reverse is true. It helps the fellow you spent the money with to become a stronger menace to your community, and to your schools and churches.

Perhaps you may consider these strong words—and they are — but they are true words. The more Kendrick business houses prosper the better town it will be. The better the town, the better the school, the better the churches, the better the roads, and the more your farm is worth in actual land value!

Kendrick business and professional men are ready and willing to serve you. They know you - you- know them. Their word, services and advice are good. Isn't it an ideal combination for all? Why not make up your mind to trade in Kendrick during this season? Let's all work together for mutual benefit! It's worth a try, isn't it?

We are prompted to sponsor this message to the people of Kendrick and vicinity through our interest in community welfare.

Stocks of Canadian wheat in North America, however, at the first of March, were still large with an estimated total of 637,337,000 bushels available for export or carry-over compared with 393,640,000 bushels a year earlier. #### Should Arrange Affairs

Idaho local boards today were instructed by Gen. M. G. McConnel, state director of selective service, to warn all registrants ordered to report for induction under the selective service system to arrange their affairs so as to prevent undue personal hardship if they are rejected at army induction stations. Pointing out that there are instances when men sent to induction stations by local boards are rejected on physical or other grounds by army examiners, Director Mc-Connel said that it is the intention of state headquarters to reduce to a minimum any injustices to registrants involved in such cases.

One of the outstanding possibilities of inequity to rejected registrants centers on the fact that they may have severed their employment connections when ordered to report for induction, Director McConnel

Local boards, therefore, should advise registrants when they are notified of their call that they should point out to their employer the possibly that they may not be accepted at the induction station. The employer can then be prepared to replace the man if he is accepted or to continue his employment if he is rejected. He also suggested that registrants be advised that in the event of their rejction at the army induction station they should immediately notify their employers of the rejection.

Sister, Three Brothers, Have Strange Reunion

One of the most remarkable family reunions ever held in this country took place not very long ago in a little farmhouse near Kos-

ciusko, Miss., when three brothers and a sister who, literally, were strangers sat down for their first meal together, although the youngest was 23 years old.

A week before this reunion, the youngest boy had never seen his older brothers. He didn't even know of their existence. The two older brothers had not seen one another, or their sister, for 23 years.

Ernest and Joe Parsons, the two elder brothers, had met a few days before. Joe, who had married a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jackson of Oakland, Miss., was at the Jackson home when the talk switched to the nearby school.

"There's a kid named Parsons down at the school who has eyes just like yours, Joe," Mr. Jackson remarked.

"Where does he live?" Joe asked. When told that the little Parsons boy lived on a nearby farm, Joe and his wife went to visit his parents. The father was Ernest Parsons, Joe's long lost brother-and they had lived only 15 miles apart nearly 20 years.

The strange story was published by the Yalobusha county paper and then by the Jackson Clarion-Ledger. John McCrory, case worker at the Mississippi hospital at nearby Whitfield, read it and remembered that his name was really Parsons. He called Joe Parsons by long distance telephone, and learned that he, too, was a brother of the two men.

Government Insurance Proves Boon to Thrifty

More money was saved and more people saved money last year, according to officials of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance corporation because the savings were protected by the government.

Private savings put in the care of the institutions now amount to $1,748,000,000, as compared with $1,398,000,000 saved by 2,044,000 persons in 1938, the report states. More than 2,000 institutions are now insuring their savers' accounts up to $5,000, an increase of 104 during the year.

The prospective owner asked for a speed demonstration and Snyder obliged. But with such alarming consequence that the sale was lost. The rumble of steam in the boiler and the bumpety bump of the steam carriage over the rough roadway, was enough—his prospect literally fled in terror.
