

KENDRICK GAZETTE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST HERE TWENTY YEARS AGO

Richard Winegardner if Leland is selling his farm equipment at auction at Leland next Wednesday. He has purchased an acreage tract near Lewiston and expects to move there soon after his sale.

Adolph Wegner, who has had charge of the Bovill drug store for a few weeks, while the proprietor was taking a vacation, returned to Kendrick the first of the week for a visit with home folks.

Martin Thomas, James Langdon and John Stephens left last Sunday on an elk hunt in the upper regions of the Clearwater river. They expect to be gone a month or more. They will make most of the trip by pack train.

Carl Stanton and Everett Crocker left last week to work in the woods near Bovill.

Billy May suffered the loss of the end of a finger last week while working on the new highway between Bovill and Clarkia. The finger was caught between the end of a log and the point of a logging tong, and neatly pinched off.

W. A. Hartung and family left the first of the week for Spokane, where they will make their home.

R. C. Himgartner bought 106 acres of land from Walker Helton and Mrs. Ziegler, the deal being closed last week. The land is located in the Fairview community on Potlatch ridge and is one of the choice farms in this part of the country. It is all under cultivation. The consideration was $13,500. Mr. Helton will dispose of his farming equipment at public auction next Monday. He has not made any definite plans for the future.

Jim Cain of American ridge had a narrow escape last week from serious injury. He was lying in the feeder of a separator, tightening the teeth. In turning the cylinder he started the engine. Before the engine could be stopped his hand and arm had been drawn into the machine and one thumb badly crushed. It was most fortunate that the machine stopped quickly or the accident could have been a very serious one.

A dream which has been fondly cherished by Kendrick boosters for the past twenty years or more is at last being realized. The contractors who have charge of the construction work and macadamizing the streets of the town have arrived and are now busy at work grading in the lower end of town. They also have set up a steam drill near the Potlatch bridge, back of the Robert Eigham place, and are getting rock ready for the crusher. With good weather conditions it is hoped the work will be completed in the early part of the winter. The contract calls for grading and surfacing with crushed rock, practically all of the streets of the town.

The Students' association of the Kendrick school has been reorganized and its officers for the coming year have been elected, as follows: President, Merit Smith; vice-president, Nell Ameling, and secretary-treasurer, Bina Raby. Nell Ameling has been appointed school librarian and Beulah Long, newspaper correspondent.

Mr. and Mrs. Byard Davidson and family of Colton, Wash., spent the weekend on American ridge with relatives.

Mrs. Paul Lind returned Sunday from Potlatch, where she spent a few days with her husband. Mr. Lind is working there.

Miss Martha Silflow and Gus Kruger, two popular young people of Cameron, were married Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The ceremony taking place in the Cameron church, in the presence of immediate relatives and members of the Luther League. The happy couple will make their home on one of the Silflow farms near Leland.

Mrs. Paul Dagefoerde, Nina and Paul, Jr., and Mrs. J. M. Woodward were Lewiston visitors Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Parks and Ronald were Lewiston visitors Friday.

Mrs. Wilber Corkill and children called on Mrs. Harold Parks Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oney Walker and C. E. Walker were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Woodward.

Quite a number of important items are to come before the club, including Sales Day and Junk Rally reports, so lay your plans to leave this evening open for attendance at the meeting.

KENDRICK SALES DAY TO BE HELD OCTOBER 10TH

The inside pages of this issue will be found literally packed with Sales Day and Junk Rally advertisements from local merchants — together with the big advertisements carrying the revised premium lists for the day and the Junk Rally as well — and remember, a $5.00 prize will be awarded for the largest load of junk brought in to Kendrick during the period September 18 to October 10 — inclusive.

Lay plans now to attend this annual event. There will be an auction, sports, exhibits, band music — and an opportunity to meet your friends and spend the day visiting, if nothing more.

As you are probably aware, there is a real and immediate need for scrap of all sorts — iron, steel, brass, aluminum, copper, in short — junk of all kinds. Nine carloads of this type has already been shipped from Kendrick to date, but there must be a number of carloads more in this vicinity so scrape out all the old fence corners, the attic, the blacksmith shop, and bring in anything you can possibly spare. Who knows, maybe that old binder wheel will end up in the streets of Tokyo! The Japs have always wanted our scrap iron — let's give it to them — via bombs and shells.

All are asked to bring in surplus items for the auction early — the earlier the better, for listing by Edgar Long.

This year Roy Glenn is the auctioneer, and when seen in town Monday he stated he was practicing daily on his pigs, in order to bring his voice to the peak of perfection for this sale.

See the premium list and program and junk rally advertisement on the inside of this issue.

"Missing Man" Returns

Saturday afternoon of last week Mrs. Joe Ayer and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohman, received a very pleasant and unexpected surprise, when Mr. Ayer arrived at the Lohman home for a short visit with his wife and her parents.

Mr. Ayer, who has been in the Alaska country, employed by the U. S. government, and stationed with a contracting concern, had not been heard from since July 16, and as a boat he was supposed to be on had been torpedoed, hope had almost been abandoned that he was alive.

However, for reasons not publicly known, he did not take passage on the torpedoed boat, but that same boat is presumed to have carried word of his remaining to his wife — a communication she did not, of course, receive, and he had been unable since that time to send out word. Nor did he send word of his coming, since he said he could get home personally as fast as any message.

Mrs. Ayre had nothing to say of where he had been stationed, or of his adventures, since secrecy is a necessity in war time.

He left Monday for Salt Lake City, Utah, where he will again report for duty.

KENDRICK CO-OP. CREAMERY NOW IN OPERATION

The Kendrick Co-operative Creamery, under the management of Frank Harris, began formal operations on its own last Thursday morning, Oct. 1st, and to date Mr. Harris expresses himself as satisfied with the cream flow, as this is a very busy season for all.

A program of alterations and remodeling will be undertaken as soon as workmen are available for the job. Present plans call for replastering with cement plaster, repainting inside and out, and other renovations.

In a business of this kind reorganization and the picking up of speed are of necessity slow, but will be rushed as fast as possible.

Mr. Harris stated that as soon as conditions permit butter, buttermilk, cottage cheese, ice cream and other creamery products will be produced in the plant.

On the back page of this issue, in the same space formerly used by the Thomas Creamery, will be found the opening statements by the new organization.

Mr. Harris wants it understood that the "Bull Cut" is a new one — and the business policies of the organization will also follow the new and co-operative line.

Volunteers Meet Sunday

The second meeting of Company 2-K-1 Idaho Volunteers, was held at the ball park Sunday afternoon at 2:00, with 34 officers and men in attendance, a decrease of seven over that of the previous Sunday.

It should be mentioned that a number present a week ago were absent, and a number in attendance for their first drill.

Company 8-K-9 of Leland came down, put on an exhibition drill and assisted with the forming and drilling of squads, a help that is really appreciated by the new company, and it is to be regretted that more local men were not present. However, hunting season and the late bean harvest are cutting deep into the attendance.

The next meeting of Company 2-K-1 will be held at the Juliaetta ball park next Sunday at 2:00 o'clock, and C. W. McKeever, commander, asks all who have enlisted to make a special effort to be present, in order that they may be assigned to squads. This action must be taken so that state reports of squads and their officers may be filed.

So if you have signed up — please make a real effort to be present at Juliaetta next Sunday.

Measles There are several children ill with measles in Juliaetta, and it is suggested by the Public Health nurse that they remain at home and perhaps an epidemic may be averted.

"A susceptible child who has been exposed to a case of measles, the diagnosis should be suspected on appearance of the fever and catarrhal symptoms, without waiting for confirmatory eruptions, and isolation precautions should be instituted at once.

"The immunization of infants and children under three years of age with immune globulin or convalescent serum in families where cases of measles occur in older children or adults is encouraged by the department of health and private physicians."—Control of Communicable Diseases, State of Idaho Department of Public Health.

Perhaps it would be best for small children and infants not to be taken out into crowds for the next few weeks. This applies to Kendrick and other communities as well as Juliaetta, where the disease has already appeared.

Roy Long Heard From Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Long recently received word from their son, Lieut. Roy Long, who is now with Uncle Sam's men "down under" that he was again receiving the Gazette and seemed to appreciate it more than when he was at his home in Kendrick — even though it was near "ancient history" by the time he received it.

He stated that he was well, feeling fine, and, we suppose, like most of the other boys who are with the colors, getting fat.

We are always glad to hear from the home boys, and while they are unable to say much regarding where they are or what they are doing, it is mighty nice to know they are well and well taken care of, insofar as their physical well-being is concerned, at least.

Lester C. Slead Writes Dear Mac and Folks: I have been getting the paper every week. I do appreciate it very much. Thank you a lot.

Again I have a new address. Anyone who would care to write may get my address from my Mother, or friends in Juliaetta. Letters are always appreciated.

I like it here fine. I think it is the best place yet, and I did like it in school in San Diego. I think I'll like my work in the hospital, too. It is interesting work, if one can do it well.

Again, thanks a lot for the paper. Sincerely yours, Lester C. Slead.

Home Making Club The Homemaking Club will meet Thursday afternoon, October 15, at 1:30 p. m., at Juliaetta, in the home of Mrs. Cecil Gruell. Plan to come and answer roll call with an idea for Thanksgiving.

A short business session was held in which it was voted by the group to serve a lunch Sales Day, and hold a Rummage sale. Committees were named to take care of the matter.

A motion was made and carried to take the tea money received from this meeting and send it along with the Christmas box Mrs. Havens had ready, to the Tacoma Community House.

Mrs. Murray, who had charge of the program, presented a very interesting program on Latin America. Those taking part were Mrs. George Brocke, Mrs. E. Pearson and Mrs. Murray, with Mrs. H. C. Schupfer at the piano. There was also a very colorful display of hand work from Latin America.

Another Double Feature

This week's offering at the local theatre will be still another double feature. The first of these will be Roy Rogers in "South Of Santa Fe." Which is another of those westerns so enjoyed by many theatre goers. This picture is just what the name implies.

The second offering of the evening is a timely one, entitled "Remember Pearl Harbor," starring Donald M. Barry, Alan Curtis, Fay McKenzie and Sig Ruman. It's a story filled to the brim with action and romance, and one that will not soon be forgotten.

In addition the usual cartoon will also be shown.

Are you an ichthyophagist?

IN CASE you've forgotten, ichthyophagist simply means "fish eater". And if that describes you, here's good news: Out of the waters of the blue Pacific and the rivers of the Pacific Northwest, fishermen are pulling 'em in by the boatload... salmon-halibut-cod-tuna-sea bass-swordfish-and dozens of other species. Fresh, frozen and canned Pacific seafood will reach your plate in perfect condition via the Northern Pacific Railway-which annually hauls hundreds of carloads of seafood East from the coasts of Oregon and Washington.

This year, a big new customer for seafood shipped by Northern Pacific is Uncle Sam. To fill his orders and yours promptly, we'll be working 'round the clock to maintain the service that has made this railway "The Main Street of the Northwest".

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The "Stovepipe," as the 60-millimeter trench mortar is commonly known, is used by our infantry for close-in fighting. It fires a 2.4-pound shell at the rate of about 35 a minute.

The mortar fires its projectile in a U-shaped arc and for this reason may be successfully camouflaged behind an obstruction. It costs about $500. You and your neighbors, joining together, can buy many of these effective weapons for use of our Army. Investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday will do the job. Christmas Mail Deadline Set

Nov. 1 has been set as the deadline for mailing Christmas parcels overseas and to stations in the north. It has been announced by the thirteenth naval district in a communication to the Gazette. Also announced were restrictions on overseas parcel post. They must not exceed 11 pounds in weight, 18 inches in length and 42 inches combined length and girth. However, the public is being urged to voluntarily observe the following limitations.

Volume not to exceed that of an ordinary shoe box or weight not to exceed six pounds. If this size of package is voluntarily adhered to, the navy points out, it will greatly increase the chances of all the men at sea receiving their Christmas gifts.

The package should be sturdy in order to withstand handling and piling. The articles themselves should be easily portable and useful in any climate. Food should not be sent under any circumstances, although such items as vitamin pills are acceptable. Clothing should not be sent unless it has been specifically requested. The address must be complete in all respects and a return address given. The same regulations in regard to addresses apply to parcel post as to letters. People residing in the western states should address their packages in care of Post Master, San Francisco, unless they are certain that the man is stationed in Alaska. If the latter is the case, he may be addressed at his station. If he is on a ship in the north, he may be addressed in care of the fleet post office, Seattle.

"A MARINE"

You can have your army khaki; You can have your navy blues; But there is still another, That I will introduce to you.

The uniform is different, The best you have ever seen; The Huns call him the "Devil Dog," But the name is just "Marine."

He's trained at San Diego, The land that God forgot; Where the sand is nine feet deep, And the sun is scorching hot.

He has set full many a table, And many a dish he's dried; He has learned to make a bed, And a broom to smoothly glide.

He's peeled a million onions, Twice as many spuds; And he spends his leisure time, A'washing up his duds.

Now girls take a little tip, I am sending it to you; Just find yourself a nice Marine, There is nothing he can't do.

And when he goes to Heaven, To St. Peter he will yell; "A good Marine reporting in, I've served my time in Hell!"

—Adrian Schoonover
Ed's Note: The above poetry was written by Mrs. Fred Stedman's nephew, who is in the Marine Corps, and reached us via a letter to her.

What Happened To Bertha?

Twenty years ago, Bertha, Minnesota, was little more than a "tank town," the country around it a howling wilderness of stumps. Today, you find modern improvements, fine modern stores, churches and schools, prosperous, well-dressed people. What made the change? It was the dairy cow, says an exchange. A recent annual report of the Bertha Creamery company gave the names of 104 patrons to whom the creamery paid during one year more than $1,000 each for their butter-fat. Again: the average payments to each of these 104 patrons that year was more than $1,500 — $13,000 of new money rolling into that little community every month — $156,000 every year. Think of it, you bankers, farmers and merchants, in communities where "times are hard," "money is tight," "collections are slow."

(The above article was copied from the Gazette of September 8, 1922, when times were really tight. Think of it farmers, if that much money could be garnered in in those days, when everything was much cheaper than today, why will not our local creamery pay out many more dollars for the same amount of cream?)

One electric dry shaver will keep one man well-groomed, but the copper in a hundred electric dry shavers would make a smoke-tank for an airplane—a smoke tank which, by throwing a screen around a fighting ship, might save many American lives.

A REAL JOB

War has brought new and vitally important jobs to the retailers of this country. The pinch of shortages is only just beginning to be felt by the bulk of consumers. Stocks of certain kinds of goods which are no longer manufactured are dwindling fast. Even in the food line, many items will disappear. In all fields, the consumer will have a smaller range of choice than he has been accustomed to.

So one of the retailer's new tasks is to help the consuming public make, with as little discomfort as possible, the great adjustments in living standards resulting from war's enormous demands on our productive resources. And most retailers of the country, little ones as well as big, are cooperating to the limit of their abilities in doing that. They are featuring abundant, reasonably-priced foods and manufactured goods. They are helping the consumer choose suitable and satisfactory substitutes for scarce and costly items. They are showing us how we may avoid waste, and make what we buy go farther.

On top of that they are co-operating with the government in fighting speculation, profiteering and hoarding. They have accepted great responsibilities, and they are discharging them fully.

Our local retail merchants are protecting our standard of living to the greatest possible extent. While they can't keep us supplied with "luxuries as usual" in these times, they are doing a real job, a vital job, in our interest — and they deserve our support.

American Woods For Pipes

Hitler's blitzkrieg is producing a small revolution among pipe smokers in this country. With the collapse of France, the supply of brier root has stopped and pipe manufacturers are again turning to the American woods, says the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wisconsin.

The Laboratory research men point out that American woods make just as good pipes as does the foreign brier. The chief reason the majority of smokers use the brier pipe is that they have practically been brought up on that kind of a pipe, and it is accordingly hard to wean them over to the American woods.

Because a similar shortage of brier occurred during the first World War, the Laboratory is frequently being consulted in regard to substitutes for brier as well as to the seasoning of the different kinds of American pipe woods. One of the substitutes is mountain laurel root, an easily obtained wood, which the mountaineers of western North Carolina and West Virginia are now busy collecting. California wild lilac, madrone, rhododendron, and apple also produce good burls for pipes, equal in workability and beauty of grain and the equal, or better in smoking qualities, to imported brier. Another handsome burl wood is the mountain mahogany of the Sierras, but the wood is hard to cut on a lathe and that may make it too expensive to work. Applewood, probably more largely used in cheap American pipes than any other wood, ranks high because of smooth working, ability to take a high finish, and fair resistance to burning.

One of the principal problems in using American woods for pipe making has been the seasoning of the blanks without undue losses from splitting and warping. Making the finished pipes fire resistant during the "breaking in" period has been another major problem. Wood experts at the Laboratory deem it probable that research will shortly reveal a process of seasoning these woods with practically no losses due to degrade, and at the same time will make them fire resistant at a cost that can compete with the brier blanks. Once the pipe-smoking public becomes thoroughly familiar with American pipe woods it may be unnecessary to again turn to the imported wood after the present emergency.

Monoxide Gas Dangerous

"Afton, Wyo.—Donna Mae Nield, 19, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Benjamin Nield was asphyxiated and her companion, LaMar Haderlie, 19, son of Clifford Haderlie, was left in a serious condition from the effects of monoxide gas last week as they sat in a coupe in front of the Nield residence. The young couple had attended a dance. Because of the zero weather they had stopped the car but left the motor running and gas filled the car from a defective exhaust pipe, the investigating officers said."

Carbon monoxide gas is an odorless, tasteless and colorless poisonous gas found in motor exhausts, and it causes many of the unexplained deaths in the fall and winter months. It escapes from defective gaskets or mufflers and can enter the body of the car through slots around the pedals or steering post or through loose floor boards. Headaches are the first warning of this gas, but the driver so afflicted usually ascribes the warning headache to some other cause than the carbon monoxide, due to the fact that it is odorless and tasteless.

Following are listed precautions against this poisonous gas:

1. Keep the engine in the best of operating condition.
2. Open the garage doors before starting the motor.
3. Never run the motor of a stationary vehicle to keep warm.
4. If muffler is defective, replace it.
5. Let some fresh air in even in the coldest weather.
6. Avoid following another vehicle closely.
7. Stop for fresh air when you feel drowsy.
8. Remember that carbon monoxide is a deadly gas.

Some Good Advice

"You always seem so cheerful and happy," said a woman to her maid. "What is your recipe?" "Simple and easy," was the reply. "When I work, I work hard. When I sit, I sit loose. When I start to worry, I go to sleep."

How To Handle An Accident

"Keep Cool!" That is the advice and warning given to motorists by the Department of Law Enforcement if they become involved in an automobile accident. Cases where motorists have become panic stricken and have left the scene of an accident in which they were involved have been reported to the department. When a driver is involved in an accident there are six things he should do:

1. Stop immediately.
2. Render assistance to injured persons and call for medical help.
3. Arrange for the carrying of injured persons to a hospital if necessary.
4. Exchange name, address and car license number with opposite driver, display driver's license if requested.
5. Remain at the scene of the accident until nothing further can be done at that time.
6. Report full details to the local authorities immediately. If death, injury, or property loss, estimated at $50 or more, is involved the accident must be reported within 24 hours after the accident to Sheriffs, police officers or State Police. The car owner's nearest insurance representative should be notified as soon as possible. Excitement frequently renders matters worse. Someone should take charge at the scene of the accident to see that injured persons are given first aid, curious crowds are kept at a safe distance and proper information is exchanged. The person who can keep cool and remain calm and collected is more likely to do things right.

Coffee Sales Restricted

The war production board has placed restrictions on the distribution of the entire United States coffee supply. The order reduces the amount of coffee which may be delivered by roasters, and the amount which may be accepted by wholesale receivers during any month to 75 per cent of deliveries during the corresponding period of 1941. The action was taken to conserve supplies now on hand for the army, navy and civilian population, and to make future supplies go as far as possible.

Mining Gets Back On Its Feet
Idaho's mining industry long has been the victim of what it considers discriminatory legislation. As some of its leaders have pointed out from time to time, the reason the industry periodically takes a beating in legislative halls is because it fails to present its case to the public in a favorable light. It has failed to explain to the public that it furnishes employment for many thousands of Idaho citizens; it has failed to point out the millions of dollars it has paid for support of government and public institutions such as schools and hospitals. In short, its public relations have not been favorable.

The industry has seen its mistakes of the past and has taken steps to remedy them. Early this year the Idaho Mining Association published an illustrated booklet designed to inform the public of the industry's history, problems and future. It was prepared with such care and written in such simple language that it is now widely used throughout the state in schools as a reference book in geography and history classes. The booklet has accomplished much in improving public understanding of mining's problems.

Following up the publication of this booklet, the association is now sponsoring in newspapers throughout the state a series of advertisements designed to strengthen the feeling of good will which started growing only recently. The advertisements point out that today the mining industry is more important than ever before in Idaho's history.

"Never before was the need of the employment which it furnishes and the income it provides for thousands of families so urgent."
The advertisements conclude with the statement that "any injury to this industry is a direct blow at the security of not only thousands of workers and business men directly dependent upon mining but at the security of every Idaho citizen."
Mining is asking and it deserves no special favors. It merely seeks a chance to do business like any other industry without discriminatory legislation. With the defense program creating a better price for metals, the industry has a better chance—after a good many lean years—to make a fair profit. The temptation to soak the industry with excessive taxation just because it happens to be getting on its feet again and can pay more taxes will doubtless be strong. Unfair taxes stifle new enterprise and compress payrolls, to the detriment of everybody.

Great risks always must be taken in bringing a mine into production, and capital isn't interested in taking those risks unless it knows there is a chance to realize a fair profit without being taxed out of existence.—Idaho Sunday Statesman.

Americanism Be Taught
The curriculum for a new course in Americanism, which will be taught in Idaho schools, has been worked out during the summer, according to C. E. Roberts, state superintendent of public instruction.

"I'm inclined to believe," Roberts said, "that we have a tendency to make light of patriotism. Our courses will treat the subject, not as a course in American History, but as a course in the principles of Democratic living."

The course was worked out this summer at the University of Idaho. Its foundation was laid when a group of teachers met there early this year for summer studies. Later, bibliographies were prepared by students attending the university.

Among the things to be taught are principles of Democracy, the constitution and preamble to the constitution—their history, and what they mean to every American living in this country.

The courses will be introduced in the Idaho educational system this coming semester, giving students vocational and moral guidance.

Programs which will help students determine more adequately their niche in the various professions and industries in this country will be inaugurated along with courses designed to give students a "moral lift."

The "moral lift" will aid students to keep a sense of balance and a healthy perspective in a world full of chaos and trouble.

Doctors Find Easier Way Of Mending Torn Nerves
One of the hardest tricks in surgery is the repair of torn nerves. Every human being has a fixed number of nerve cells at birth, and, unlike other cells, they do not multiply. Torn nerve fibers heal only by sending forth tendrils toward the severed ends. In stitching together jagged nerve ends, a surgeon must be careful not to pull the nerve taut, must draw the silk through the petal-thin nerve sheath, not through its body.

Zoologists J. Z. Young and P. B. Medawar of Oxford university suggested an easier means of mending torn nerves: a biological "glue."

To prepare a glue, the scientists withdrew blood from an artery of a young cock, spun it in a centrifuge. The heavy red blood cells were thrown away and the clear plasma packed on ice where it stayed fresh for six weeks. Into the plasma the experimenters poured a few drops of chicken embryo extract, a "powerful clotting agent."

Then they cut the large nerves in the legs of several rabbits and dogs, held the stumps close with forceps, dribbled the plasma over them from a pipette. Within two minutes, the plasma thickened to a firm jelly which stuck to the nerves and united the stumps. The jelly held for several days, long enough for the growing nerves to twine themselves on to the cut ends, like vines on a trellis. Healing took about ten days. Next step: use of the blood glue on torn human nerves.

Treatment for Broken Leg Always the Same
There are five different ways to break a leg. They range all the way from a "green-stick" fracture, where the bone is cracked half through and split longitudinally, to a compound fracture, where the shattered bone juts through the skin. No matter what the break, treatment is always the same: first setting and immobilization, then proper exercise.

Recently Southern newspapers hailed the fracture treatment of Dr. Rettig Arnold Griswold of the City hospital in Louisville, Ky.

Dr. Griswold's treatment, called "double pin skeletal fixation," is painless, but it looks bad. First a patient's leg is anesthetized. Then two long steel pins, one-eighth of an inch thick, are hammered through the leg, above and below the fracture. A small steel mallet is used, and the pins are driven directly through flesh and bone, protruding about an inch on either side.

Next, the leg is set in a "Griswold machine"—a Twentieth-century model of the rack. The pins are connected on both sides to a kind of caliper and the leg is gently stretched until the two broken ends snap into place. While a surgeon "reduces" the fracture, his assistant watches the bone through a fluoroscope to make sure the ends are fitted. The leg stays in the machine a day or two.

As soon as swelling disappears, a soft plaster cast is wound directly over both leg and pins. Several days later, depending on the type of fracture, the patient is fitted with a "walking iron"—a narrow, U-shaped strip of iron about one and a half feet long. The base slips under the instep like a stirrup, the two long arms are bound with more plaster.

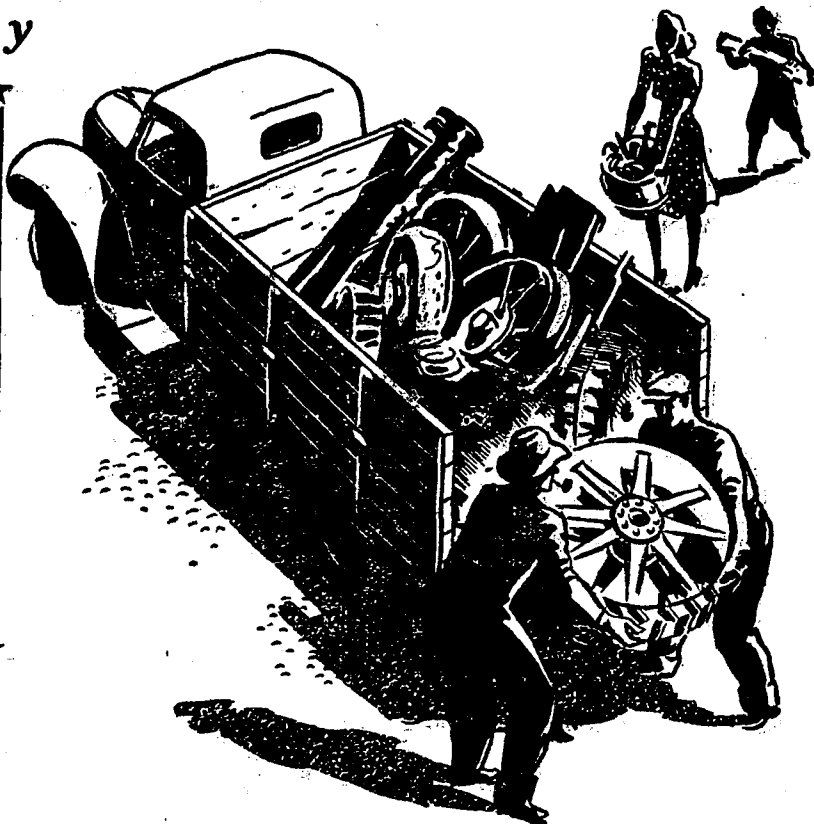

A person with a bad compound fracture can usually walk on the iron, with a crutch, about ten days after his accident.

Census Bureau Reports U. S. Area Expanding

The census bureau has applied a topographical tape measure to Uncle Sam's waistline and found it had expanded by some 3,352 square miles during the past 60 years.

Completing the first measurement of continental United States since 1880, the bureau reported that the land area of the nation had increased by this amount.

There are two reasons. One is that the water area of the country has shrunk somewhat through drainage of swamps and other projects. The second is that the bureau had better maps to work with in computing the land area in 1941 than it did back in the eighties.

Counting both land and water area, the latest official total is given as 3,022,387 square miles.

The state of Texas, which didn't need it, is now 1,246 square miles larger. Tiny Rhode Island, which really could have used a chunk of new land, lost nine square miles.

The bureau also put a stop to the practice of some coastal states in bragging about how much water surface comes within their boundaries. Some of these states extended their boundaries as much as 20 miles into coastal waters to make themselves look bigger in the maps. The bureau simply refused to recognize such claims.

Plain Nourishing Food

Young men of high school age and their active sisters can well follow the diet of Giles Steadman, commander of the new American passenger ship, America, to their profit. Although the commander can have his choice of caviar and every kind of elaborate hors d'oeuvres, food cooked in rich sauces, fattening entrees and regal desserts from frozen puddings to crepes Suzette, he limits himself to clear soups, broiled or roasted meats, plain vegetables, salads, and stewed or fresh fruits in large quantities. Great quantities of fruit are important. For economy's sake, some of the weekly fruit allowance should be dried and stewed. Bananas are a good and inexpensive standby. There should be some citrus fruit in the diet every day. Tomatoes are an excellent source of vitamin C. Canned grapefruit juice is equally good for vitamin C. At least two vegetables a day should be included in your foods. The vitamin content of canned vegetables is usually very high.

Blondes Are Worst Speakers

Blondes are more careless in their speech than brunettes.

Women make fewer grammatical mistakes than men.

Bad English is spoken more commonly in the East than in the West.

The author of these statements is Edwin Maxwell, veteran stage actor and director and foremost Hollywood dialogue director. Maxwell made these observations after interviewing more than 1,000 players for a recent picture, during which chore he made copious notes, rounding out material for a forthcoming book. "Blondes—blonde women especially—are more slovenly in their speech than brunettes because they are conscious of their eye appeal and therefore expect a listener, particularly a male listener, to overlook their bad grammar because of the ameliorating effect their appearance has on the listener," he says.

More Females—Perhaps

For the first time in its history, the U. S. may presently have more females than males in its population—due to not receiving foreign immigrants who were predominantly males and also to aging of the population, in which women are favored in survival. In most countries, females predominate, due principally to wars which decimate the males.

British Chemist Invented Synthetic Rubber in 1882

Many people know that most of Germany's army trucks, armored cars, gun carriages and motorcycles roll on synthetic rubber. Fewer people are aware that throughout U. S. industry for some time synthetic rubbers—expensive but highly resistant to oil, acid, sunlight, water—have been doing many small jobs better than natural rubber can do them.

In 1860 a British chemist named Greville Williams broke down natural rubber by distillation, obtained a hydrocarbon compound called isoprene. In 1882 William Tilden, also of Britain, made isoprene by cracking turpentine vapor in a red-hot tube. The Germans, blockaded from the natural rubbers of Malaya and Ceylon, made some solid tires of synthetic rubber in World War I.

Polymerization (the process of linking molecules together in long chains) is the key to successful artificial rubber. In natural rubber such molecular chains hold the substance together when it stretches. When chemists stopped trying to duplicate natural rubber's chemical composition, and set out to duplicate its structure and mechanical action, results followed.

'Real McCoy'

"The real McCoy," meaning something definitely established, beyond doubt, is itself the subject of dispute. According to Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York state and presidential candidate, the phrase had its origin in a certain wise man in New York. "The oracle of the Bowery many years ago," says Mr. Smith, "was a man by the name of McCoy, so that when any matter came up for discussion the expression, 'It's the real McCoy,' came into being and usually in this manner: 'Well, I will give you the low down on that; I will give you the inside story, the real McCoy.'" Another explanation finds its origin in the name of Kid McCoy, middleweight boxing "champion," who fought lustily, made and lost a fortune, married nine times, served a prison term for killing a sweetheart and died a suicide last year in protest against the "world's madness." Decades ago (legend states), while fighting in New York, Kid McCoy (Norman Selby) heard a boxer in San Francisco was using the same ring name. He rushed to the Pacific coast and had himself introduced as "the real McCoy."

Earthworm In Tuberculosis War

Citing the case of the earthworms as the one tiny gleam of hope in the fight to find some curative drug for tuberculosis, Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the National Tuberculosis association, outlined the many years of research that have gone before and are yet to come before a tuberculosis cure is discovered.

"In the cranberry bogs in New Jersey," Dr. Emerson said, "we have discovered a substance which can be isolated. It is something about which we have still to learn a good deal. But we do know that it is a substance, almost unknown, which has a powerful action on germs."

"Our next step was to put earthworms into this soil after the soil had been infected liberally with tuberculosis germs. After living in the infected soil, we found the earthworms alive and cheerful and fully without tuberculosis."

PUBLISHED BY THE KENDRICK CO-OPERATIVE CREAMERY

TO ALL CREAM PRODUCERS:

On Oct. 1st, your company, the Kendrick Co-operative Creamery, Inc., took over the assets of the Thomas Creamery, including the building, lockers and creamery machinery.

As you no doubt are aware the Federal Security Administration, a branch of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, is advancing 80% of the funds for the purchase and operation of this business. Their assistance in starting this business is invaluable. You company has been organized and is being operated on exactly the same plan in use by many of the large, successful co-operative associations—namely, the pool plan.

On this plan all cream received during a calendar month is placed in a pool and all receipts from the sale of this cream or butter made from it, are credited back to it, and on the 5th of each month following the close of the pool the price to be paid for this pool will be set by the board of directors.

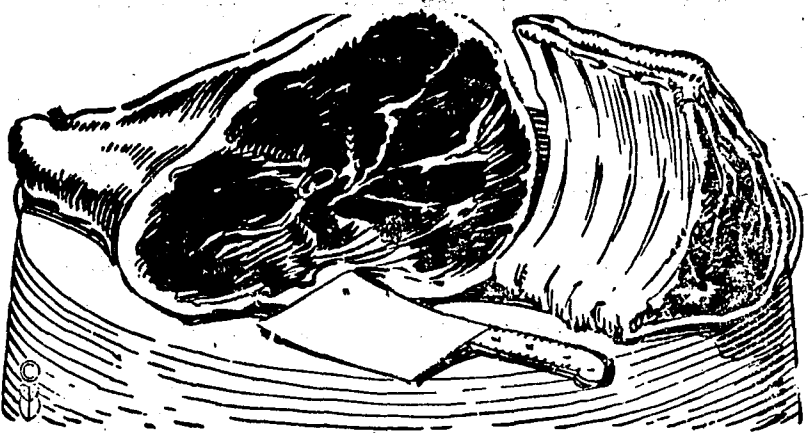

after taking into consideration the expenses incurred in handling it. In ordinary operations this should be above the prevailing market price.

Now this plan does not mean you cannot get money on your cream until the 10th of the month following delivery. Provision has been made for the advancement of money in proportion to your deliveries if you so desire. Non-members and members must be treated alike on this plan. Remember, this plan means lower operating costs, therefore more dollars in your pockets, because it is a co-operative company and the profits are yours.

Let's co-operate and make this the biggest and best co-operative in north Idaho. Remember, we need volume, so bring your cream and your neighbor's, too. Join the pool — the road to more profits.

If you're not using one of our cold lockers — why not?

Idaho Bean Forecast 2,250,000 Bags

Hot weather during most of August did not favor bean development. In local areas some damage to yield was experienced. Most of the damage occurred, however, in the poorer fields. In general, very good yields are expected, although lighter than last year.

The total bean yield this year is greatly influenced by increased acreages of high yielding varieties. Harvesting is well under way. Fields of early maturing garden seed varieties and fields of poor stands or weedy fields had already been cut by September 1.
