SONS

To press my lips Upon a fair cheek, or a brown, Of my young sons So long have I stooped down.

But suddenly today, to my surprise, I find that I must lift my eyes To meet their eyes; That I must stand on toe tips And reach up To kiss their lips. These tall young sons —
Each straight as any pine —
Can they be mine?

Soon I must share them. Soon I know that they will go, But oh, I am so glad That I have had Small sons to stoop to, Tall sons to reach to, Clean sons to give That other sons may live.

- Grace Noll Crowell. The above poem was brought to the Gazette office by Mrs. Paul Lind, who at this time has three sons in our country's service, and we reproduce it, since it seems to fit the sacrifices of war today.

ights of New York by L. L. STEVENSON

Because we are usually gadding about the big town these nights we seldom have a chance to listen to radio programs. But the other evening, the first free time in a long while, we heard "Cheers From the Camps." The program is entirely different from the usual run of soldier shows. It struck us that it was planned definitely to build up the morale of those at home. Ordinarily when the word "morale" comes into mind, we apply it to our men in uniform and rightly so since the zeal, the spirit, the entire mental state of our men of the fighting forces is of the utmost importance. But so is the morale of those left at home, the folks for whom our men are fighting, though that fact may be lost sight of on occasions.

A little investigating showed me that that is exactly the idea behind "Cheers From the Camps," which is under the direct supervision of the war department, though there is a commercial sponsor. The programs which have been on the air for some time now, are most carefully planned and timed, not only in the script writing and material, but as to those who take part. Surveys are made of camps all over the country and available talent is listed and classified so that there will be proper balance. If a boy can play a musical instrument or sing a song, he is given a place. If he is a comedian, he is sure of one. The camp band takes part. Camp incidents are dramatized with real action. Names are always given of course and as there is advance notice as to the camp from which the program originates, families and friends know when to listen.

The entertainment, however, is merely the skeleton. The meat is news from the boys. Ordinarily when a soldier sits down to write a letter he merely says that he is well, working hard and getting plenty to eat. Those making the survey, pick a soldier with a good voice. Everything possible about his relatives, his friends, his home interests is learned. These intimate touches are included in the letter which he reads over the air. So his folks get real news and so do the folks of other boys because, through being told what is going on, they know what is happening to their sons. That's the idea of the program-a 60-minute letter home. And news, especially when it is personal and cheering, is a mighty builder of party at the Waldorf-Astoria may seem somewhat of a leap, but there is a direct connection. The honor guest was Irene Dunne. Miss Dunne left Hollywood for New York city to take part in that great movie war bond sale drive, and war bonds are a mighty help to our fighting men. The last time I saw Miss Dunne was at the Kentucky Derby when the picture, "My Favorite Wife," in which she starred with Cary Grant, had its world premiere, Louisville having been selected for the event since that city is her home town. Many well-knowns were at the party and the lovely Miss Dunne, her diamond earrings flashing, flitted here and there greeting friends.

Managed to corral her long enough to find out that she is now working for three studios and that her next picture will be "Angel Street." Of course "Missy" entered into the conversation, "Missy" being a very important person since she is Miss Dunne's little daughter. Being a mother, Miss Dunne naturally had a date picture of "Missy," one she made herself, though she did have to call on Margaret Ettinge to find it for her. It was astonishing to note how much "Missy" had grown in the past two years.

Having been one myself, I have a working knowledge what a small boy may carry in his pockets. But my best efforts were far exceeded by a well-dressed, colored boy, possibly 10 years old, in the subway the other afternoon. First he produced a flashlight which he proved to be in working order by testing it on the dirty wall as the train rushed up town. Next came two fishlines equipped with hooks and sinkers followed by possibly a dozen marbles and a glass shooter. After that, he found a package of chewing gum which he laid aside, then opened a soiled handkerchief thus revealing a promising beginning of a foreign stamp collection. After a brief pause in which he consumed some candy, he took out a comb, three pieces of chalk, more candy and finally what he apparently had been searching for — a harmonica on which he played merrily with the pounding of a flat wheel as an obli-

Modern Plants Have Been Produced by Crossing

Could you have walked into the finest garden in England in the days of Good Queen Bess, you would have been shocked at the poverty of the plants and flowers.

Needless to say, most of the flowers which adorn a modern garden would have been absent, for they had not yet been brought to England. But even those growing and blooming-the roses, pinks, wallflowers and the like-would have seemed small, single, poor in color and texture, compared with mod-

And the same with vegetables. Gardeners owe an enormous debt, not only to the plant-hunters who have brought from abroad such lovely flowers as dahlias, chrysanthemums, azaleas, and rhododen-drons, but also to the clever and careful experimenters who have invented new plants.

These are the people who take two different flowers and cross them, forming a new plant which is perhaps quite unlike either parent. All our lovely modern roses, carnations and sweet peas—to name only three varieties—have been produced by crossing. Yet the hybridizer has a thousand failures for one success.

The most valuable work in this direction has been done on food plants. For instance, it has just been announced that research workers for the Canadian government have produced a perennial wheatthat is, a wheat which does not need to be sown afresh each spring, but which grows up each year like a hay crop, from the same roots.

Another curious invention is a perennial cotton plant which is being grown in Portuguese East Af-

Famous Moscow Kremlin Covers Acres of Land

We hear more about the Kremlin at Moscow because it is the largest, the best preserved and the most famous Kremlin still surviving.

Originally it consisted of a great pile of buildings—palaces, cathedrals, churches, convents, museums, barracks and market boothssurrounded by a brick and stone wall ranging in width from 12 to 15 feet and in height from 30 to 50 feet.

It is shaped like a triangle, one side paralleling the Moscow river, and it covers an area of about 63

The walls, pierced by five gates, are surmounted with battlements and towers.

Outside the Kremlin opposite the celebrated Gate of Salvation, is the beautiful Red square.

During the 1917 revolution the White army had its headquarters in From soldier camps to a cocktail | the Kremlin and it was seriously damaged when the Bolshevists hombarded it.

This damage, however, was later repaired, and until the present war the Soviets used the Kremlin for government offices and as a meeting place for the national congress and the Communist Internationale.

Bark Beetles Some varieties of bark beetles are monogamous while others are polygamous. With the former, it is the feminine beetle which digs the "bridal chamber" and is then joined by her male consort. With the latter, the masculine beetle is the home builder. He soon gathers about him a number of "wives." In either case, the "wives" proceed to dig tunnels out from the "bridal chamber," the number of these depending upon the number of "wives." In these tunnels, the mother beetles lay their eggs. Sometimes, a "family" spends the entire summer egg-laying season in a single diggings, but in other cases may move as many as four times, boring out a new abode and laying more eggs each time. The polygamous male usually spends most all his time in the entrance tunnel, pushing out borings and defending his insect harem. Often he dies or is killed there, blocking the entrance against his foe with his Farm Living More Healthful Figures compiled by Dr. James J. Short of the New York Postgraduate Medical school, agree with the old contention that farm living is more healthful than city living. Fiftyseven per cent of rural people and 68 per cent of city dwellers use tobacco. Forty-two per cent of rural and 60 per cent of city populations use alcohol. About 3 per cent of rural as contrasted to 7 per cent of the city dwellers have a pulse rate of 90 or more. However, 31/2 per cent of rural and only 21/2 per cent of urban dwellers have enlarged hearts. High blood pressure is equally prevalent in both popula-

CREAM IS MORE AND MORE IMPORTANT

As the crescendo of war rises to a higher and higher pitch with the coming of spring and sum-mer, it is more important than ever that you produce and market all the cream possible.

Our fighting men must be fed—and the better they are fed the better they can fight.

To produce the best in cream give proper feed and attention to your cows - and when you have the cream, care for it. Keep it cool and sweet, and bring or send it to us as often as possible. Remember, sweet cream makes the best butter. Remember to give the same care to your eggs — and market them, too, as often as possible.

And remember — never ask for butter, always say: "Potlatch
