Visit in Kendrick
Dr. Wm. F. (Bill) and Mrs. Swindler of Moscow were Thursday afternoon visitors for an hour or so in Kendrick, their visit being caused by the "throwing" of an engine tire just about the time the train reached the depot, which necessitated sending for another engine to finish the trip from Spokane to Lewiston for the train, Lewiston being the Swindler's destination.
Dr. Swindler is secretary of the Idaho State Editorial association and a journalism instructor at the University of Idaho — and they naturally drifted toward the Gazette office.

WE INVITE INDUSTRY TO LOCATE IN THE NORTHWEST

National magazines and Eastern newspapers are now carrying advertisements inviting industry and capital to locate in post-war Washington.

Sponsored by The Washington Water Power Company and three other electric companies serving the state, this campaign is designed (1) to help create jobs — both for returning war veterans, and for those now employed — and (2) keep the war plants working after the war.

This National Advertising featuring Washington the State is now appearing in national magazines and metropolitan newspapers, including ...

- * MODERN INDUSTRY
- * MANUFACTURER'S RECORD
- * CHICAGO JOURNAL OF COMMERCE
- * AND OTHERS

One of the advertisements of the post-war industrial development campaign, sponsored by the state's electric companies is reproduced here.

Earwigs
A common insect pest, with which many are familiar and one which will probably be familiar to all of us in a few more years, is the European earwig.

The European earwig is important, chiefly from the standpoint of its obnoxiousness. It is often found in houses, where its presence, because of its unsanitary and filthy habits, is a menace to health. It will feed to some extent on most flowers and befalls vegetables such as celery, lettuce and corn, which provide a hiding place for it. Ripe fruits also serve as food, and peaches are especially attractive. Earwigs hide in dark places in the daytime and are active only at night.

The mature earwig is about five-eighths of an inch in length. The general body color is a dark, reddish brown. Although it appears to be wingless, a close examination will reveal the short wing covers, beneath which are folded the delicate hind wings. The insect is readily distinguished by the presence of a pair of prominent forceps on the rear end of the body. Immature earwigs resemble the adults except in size.

W. E. Shull, extension entomologist for the University of Idaho, says that earwigs are easily controlled since they will feed readily on a poisoned bait made of the following ingredients: Bran, 12 pounds; sodium fluosilicate, 1/2 pounds; and fish oil, 1 quart. Dr. Shull further states that this bait should be mixed thoroughly and then scattered thinly over the entire yard and garden. Special attention should be given to the baiting along board fences and about trees, telephone poles, wood piles, and other places where earwigs are known to lurk in numbers.

Further bulletins on their control can be obtained from your county agent.

Philosophy Of Fascism
Mussolini seems to have been the father of Fascism — at least he made the public conscious of the word, although the aims he sought under that title are as old as history. Fascism has been bittily described as "the philosophy that political officeholders should run the people, instead of the people running the political officeholders."

Mussolini sought power for officialism under one brand of ballyhoo. In our own country, we have witnessed the drive to glorify officialism carried in under another brand of ballyhoo.

The National Resources Planning Board program recently presented to congress proposes the formation of a federal agency of corporation "to guide the development and use of electric power in the public interest." In the United States, electric power has already reached the highest peak of development and serves a greater portion of the population than in any other country. It didn't take tax-exempt government industries to accomplish that result.

Within the program of the Board are the blueprints for ultimate government ownership or control of many of our basic industries, following the absorption of the electric industry.

While the present drive for national socialism is apparently aimed at the electric industry, its consummation could only mean destruction of individual liberty and opportunity. The taste of official restrictions we have experienced as a war necessity is but a sample of the restrictions we would be subjected to if bureaucrats dominate in the management of our post-war industrial-political structure.

Cabbage Worms
Have you associated those white butterflies that begin to fly about the garden in early spring with the green caterpillars that you find on your cabbage? They are one and the same insect.

This insect over-winters in the pupal stage and early in the spring the white butterflies merge from the pupae to fly about, alighting frequently to lay an egg on the underside of a leaf of cabbage or related plant. One female butterfly will lay several hundred eggs. Each egg gives rise in about a week to a very small greenish caterpillar which feeds voraciously on the leaves and reaches a length of an inch or more in about two weeks. The caterpillars are intensely green, except for a slender orange stripe down the middle of the back, and they have a velvety appearance, due to numerous close-set short hairs which clothe the body.

All are familiar with the damage this insect causes, so use paris green or lead arsenate to kill them. The outer leaves should be removed before the cabbages are used in order to remove any poison residue.

Farmers May Sell Meat
Moscow, May 30 — All restrictions on farm slaughter of livestock and delivery of meat to off-farm customers were lifted today, according to G. I. Roper, area supervisor of the W. F. A., O. O. D.

The action was taken by the W. F. A., Roper said, to facilitate movement of heavy supplies of livestock now on farms into consumer channels. Direct delivery of meat from the farm to neighboring communities is expected to help the farmer, and improve rural meat supplies.

Farmers were previously required to obtain permits to slaughter and deliver meat to persons not living on a farm. Restrictions on the slaughter and delivery of hogs were revoked some time ago, but until now permits were required for the slaughter and delivery of all other livestock.

I am of the firm conviction that Idaho must do everything possible for our men and women in the armed forces when they return. Plans must be made to provide employment that will make it possible for them to re-establish themselves, to own their own homes, and to find individual security in the American way for which they have been fighting. If nominated and elected governor, I will do everything in my power to work out such a program and to co-operate in the general program of rehabilitation.

A Switch in Time saved Nine...

I remember from school.

I once had to do a composition about the world's greatest invention being wheels. Just think of gear-wheels, water-wheels, and especially all the wheels for transportation! But right now the greatest thing of all, I'd say, is to keep wheels going; keeping your car in service, for instance. There's this and that to help you. There's one motor oil and another. Now from what I know, the explosions in any engine must produce acids, which brings up the bright idea of safely OIL-PLATING your engine's insides with Conoco Nth motor oil. You want to prevent damage from acids... internal corrosion! Some things are specially good at fighting corrosion, and OIL-PLATING comes in that class. Even chromium plating, just for comparison, couldn't stay closer to working parts than this protective OIL-PLATING. It battles corrosion, so as to help you preserve your transportation as soon as you switch to Conoco Nth oil.

Wealthy Islands Strung Along Mexican Coast

Mexico, one of the most prodigal storehouses of natural riches in the world, has another source of untapped mineral and forest wealth in hundreds of romantic, little-known islands off her Pacific coast, some within a few hours' easy sailing of the mainland. Many of these virtually unexplored islands are closely linked with Mexico's past history and traditions, while their strategic location along the coast gives them great potential importance in American defense and Mexico's future development as a nation.

Remotest of the islands are those in the volcanic Revilla Gigedo group, about 500 miles due west of Manzanillo, consisting of Socorro, San Benito, Clarion, Boca Partida, Roca de la Pasion and numerous smaller islands. From the time of their discovery by Baron de Humboldt until 1868 they were unoccupied and ignored. In that year Mexico sent an expedition under Francisco de la Cueva to investigate their possibilities as a penal colony, but their distance from the mainland led to abandonment of the plan in favor of the island of Maria Madre.

Socorro, the largest of the group, is at the same time the most fertile; San Benito has a long stretch of good beach along its eastern shore, while semiarid Clarion offers fishermen good anchorage in Azufre bay and unlimited possibilities for game and commercial fishing.

Once Neglected Seaweed Now Being Cultivated

Seaweeds, as long neglected by Americans as land weeds, are under close scrutiny at the University of California as possible sources of food. In rather crude form they are traditional articles of diet in Japan, and it is considered not impossible that with better processing they might be made palatable to Americans and Europeans.

In the botanical laboratories a Chinese scientist, Dr. C. K. Tseng, has transplanted a number of species from offshore rocks to tanks of sea water, where they can be studied under known and controlled conditions. His idea eventually is to establish a "submarine agriculture," with large scale cultivation and regular harvesting methods.

A South African botanist at the university, Dr. George Papenfus, says that several seaweed species along the coasts of his native land have been found to be good sources of agar, a kind of vegetable gelatin needed for laboratory culturing of bacteria and other micro-organisms. Before the war agar was supplied practically altogether from Japan, and the lack of it has been a serious handicap in hospitals and research laboratories.

Test Poultry

The most useful tool for poultry improvement and greater egg production today is the family test for breeding birds, in which the breeders are judged on the performance of sisters, brothers and offspring.

This kind of testing involves much care and work. As a result the producer of hatching eggs or baby chicks can often improve his stock best by purchase of eggs from family-tested birds from specialists in that work.

Before introducing the birds grown from these eggs into his own selected strain of breeding birds, he should observe them for the first year of laying, to make sure they are better than the old stock. In the second year, the birds of the better strain can then be added to the breeder flock to improve it. To avoid disease, it is safest to introduce hatching eggs or baby chicks, not grown birds. Two or three strains should be tested.

Sorghum Syrup

Crushed through home-made rollers and boiled on the back of the kitchen stove, vitamin-rich, sugar-full sorghum syrup is often the main "sweetener" in southern diets. The "home-grown" variety seldom reaches a commercial market, but is grown, made and consumed by the small farm family.

Even bagasse—the waste, or squeezed-dry stalks from the rollers—has its use. Spread over the ground, it feeds the soil for next year's crop. Chopped up and mixed with other feed, it is fed to cattle. Bagasse, like the fully matured green plant, is "safe" feed, but the young tender shoots, still in the developing stage, contain prussic acid and cattle must be kept from planted fields.

Indian 'Green'

Bruised or gashed milkweed leaves, wrapped around pieces of meat prior to cooking, have been used as tenderizers by the Mexicans for years. Early American pioneers cooked the young green floss-filled pods with their buffalo meat. They learned it from the Indians.

Young clusters of budding milkweed flowers were boiled by the Indians for "greens." The leaves, gathered young, and boiled in two waters, served in some localities as a substitute for spinach, while spring shoots were often boiled and served like asparagus. French Canadians made sugar from milkweed. They boiled down the honey-filled dew which dripped from the flowers gathered early in the morning.

Federal Bureaus Inefficient

Inefficiency of the countless federal bureaus has made the war cost at least twice as much as it should, in the opinion of Senator Harry F. Byrd, distinguished democratic senator from Virginia.

Byrd, who is chairman of the joint congressional economy committee, recently told a delegation from the New Jersey Taxpayers' Association that if President Roosevelt's most recent budget requests were accepted, the total appropriation for war purposes would be $428,000,000,000 as compared with $40,000,000,000 for the last war.

He estimated that this federal bureaucracy now has 3,068,379 paid employees exclusive of the armed services, and the annual payroll exceeds $8,000,000,000. Today the federal government has one civilian employee for every two and a half men in the armed services.

"Congress is the hope of America today," declared Senator Byrd. "When this war is over people will thank God for the congress of the United States, as this congress, elected by the people, is the only thing that can stand between government by elected democracy on the one hand and government by dictatorship on the other."

Senator Byrd estimated that if all appropriations asked by the president were authorized, the federal debt would approximate $385,000,000,000 by July 1, 1946.

Prevention Best Method For Controlling Mastitis

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of treatment for mastitis (garget) in dairy herds, according to the department of animal pathology and hygiene, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

However, there is no known treatment that repairs the damage caused by mastitis, nor does it increase the resistance of treated animals to reinfection.

Eyes Wobble

That vision goes up and down when the eyes are held in close attention on an object can be demonstrated by many experiments.

This ebb and flow of sensations is found in the other senses as well as in vision. If a watch is placed at a distance so that its ticking is just audible, after a few seconds the ticking will fade and reappear at regular intervals.

Egg Market Improves
The egg market looks better, with the government buying up the surplus and shipping them out — and production has fallen off about 50% so far. This improved condition will relieve the pressure on the markets.

Remember:

Dear Friends:
Just a few lines to let you know that I have changed addresses again. I have been in the hospital for the past two weeks with a fractured elbow; but it's coming along in good shape, so guess I'll be going back to duty before too long — and will be glad to get out of the hospital. It's surely plenty hot here and doesn't cool off very fast at night. We have had a few thunder showers in the past week, which cool things off some.

It's about chow time now, so will sign off for this time.
Your friend
Harold A. Bartlett.

Kirtland Field, Albuquerque, N. M.

Dear Mac and Bill:
I've been receiving the paper alright and certainly appreciate it. Thanks a lot.

The B-24 has sort of got me covered up. I think the "slot machine company" and the 24 manufacturers have something in common — more lines and wires. It's a nice plane but those rudders — they are like two brick walls.

The post itself is pretty nice. Best of all is the long runways. And the state, so-called "Land of Enchantment," isn't too bad.

Thanks again for the paper.
Sincerely
Bill Deobald.

Dear Friends:

As usual am writing to have the address on the paper changed to this base. I finished basic at Lancaster, Cal. two weeks ago and have been transferred here for advanced schooling. This time our planes are twin-engine jobs. Receive our wings at the completion of this course, about two months from now.

At the present we have a very full training schedule and are surely busy trying to keep up with it. A lot of things must be done here before graduation.

Is there anyone from Kendrick or vicinity stationed here?

Again I wish to extend to you my appreciation for the paper, with its news of friends at home and elsewhere. I thoroughly enjoy every copy of it.

Sincerely

A.-C. Garth Hill.

Garth: We're sorry to say that we know of no local boys stationed anywhere near you. Maybe there will be after your next move.

From an Eighth AAF Fighter Station, England — Comes an official picture and dispatch as follows: Crew mates assemble a new Mustang engine at Col. Avelin P. Tacon's fighter base in England. The six experts are Cpl. John McDonald, assistant crew chief, Newton, Mass.; S-Sgt. Louis P. Morin, mechanic, Fort Kent, Maine; S-Sgt. Everett L. Fey, crew chief, Kendrick, Idaho; S-Sgt. Donald J. Ziegler, sheet metal worker, Scottville, Mich.; S-Sgt. Raymond Grunke, electrician, Flandreau, S. D.; and T-Sgt. Andrew C. Ellenz, electrician, Wichita, Kans.

Note: We regret very much being unable to reproduce this picture for our columns, but have made the next best use of it — given it to his father, Chas. Fey.

How was the news of the great invasion received in Kendrick?

There was no cheering, no fire siren ringing, only a quiet confidence that the boys from America, could and would do the job. On the mailing list of the Kendrick Gazette are the names of 81 local boys with a New York post office address. Of course some of them are in Italy, some in Africa, some on Atlantic islands, but the larger percentage of them are, or were, in England — and to them as well as to all others overseas goes the wish of all: "Good Luck."

Vance Penland, Chief Petty Officer, Sea Bees, was the only man at home in uniform, so far as we know, and his comment was: "God, but I wish I was with them."

Hobbs, New Mex.

Dear Mac and Bill:

Have been receiving the paper every week and appreciate it very much. It sure keeps we fellows up on the home-town news and the whereabouts of our fellow soldiers.

I have a little change in my address, but not in scenery. Although I have been here in this place for over eighteen months I can think of places lots worse.

The whole field here last month got in over 16,000 flying hours. A few more trained pilots to drop the bombs on the Axis is the result.

Sincerely
Cpl. Laurence Bartlett.

The Gazette acknowledge with thanks the receipt of $20.00 to go toward helping send the Gazette to men in our armed forces. This sum was raised at a Crescent community dance and supper last week by the sale of the suppers.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

dents of university and this spring was elected May queen.

George and Frank Brocke are remodeling the interior of the building east of the New Kendrick theatre and will open a confectionery and lunch room. They expect to be ready for business soon after the middle of this month. They have ordered a fountain, tables and all other equipment that goes with a first-class confectionery. The show cases are being made at Moscow by E. E. Bechtol. The new firm will handle all kinds of confectionery goods, soft drinks, ice cream and will make a specialty of lunches. According to plans which they have outlined they will have a strictly up-to-date confectionery in every way and will soon be ready for business.

Members of the Village council inspected the spring in the draw above the Vollmer-Clearwater war house Wednesday and found there is sufficient water to fill an inch pipe and perhaps more. The company owns the spring but has given the town permission to use it to increase the water supply for the local system. This spring, added to the present supply, should be adequate for all purposes. There has been no shortage of water so far, but continued dry weather would probably decrease the flow of the springs until there might be insufficient water to supply all demands for lawns and gardens. The council will in all probability have the new spring put on the pipe line in the near future.

Never go into the water alone.

No More Information Received

We have received several inquiries regarding the old "Weekly Rationing News" we used to receive, telling what stamps are good for what items and when. We regret to state that we no longer receive this official news service.

However, we do receive many, many government issues on the condition of the Idaho Onion and Bean crop (south Idaho) of course; report after report on the amount of creamery butter, cheese, etc., in storage in the United States — information which means nothing to anyone here with the exception of the local creamery.
