Goofy, am I?

Go ahead—that's your privilege—thinking I'm just plain hipped on everlastingly keeping this engine's insides OIL-PLATED with Conoco Nth oil. Maybe there is and maybe there isn't sixty other ways that would have kept engine acids from raising Ned with this pre-Pearl Harbor limousine. But one thing I know is this: it's still running swell on nothing but Conoco Nth motor oil. You needn't be a scientist to know that acids from every explosion are forever trying to spoil an engine. Looks like the proper idea is to try blockading those acids by getting your engine OIL-PLATED. I learned there's a modern synthetic in Conoco Nth oil that reminds you of magnetism, because it makes inside surfaces attract a shield of OIL-PLATING. Acids can't so easily tear right into this. Then your OIL-PLATED engine has an extra chance to last you. When new cars arrive, hurrah! But a real advanced improvement right now is to switch to Conoco Nth motor oil, see.

New Tent Poles
G. I. Joes who have skinned knuckles countless times in striking camp, will welcome the newly developed wood tent pole now being issued by the Quartermaster Corps. The new pole, designated in army terminology as the "pole, tent, single section" is a far departure from the old issue pole for shelter tents. Its sections are interchangeable and separate, they are not hooked together by hinges, sliding sleeves or other moving parts.
Another advantage which should give heart to the soldier is that the three separate sections of the new-type poles weigh slightly more than half as much as the old three-section jointed job, the new one weighing about 7 1/2 ounces.

FIVE QUESTIONS ABOUT FARMER CO-OPERATIVES

1. What is a farmer cooperative? It is a form of voluntary business organization set up by farmers to perform services on a cost-of-doing-business basis in such fields as the purchasing of farm supplies and the marketing of farm products.
2. When did farmer cooperation start in America? It started when our forefathers swapped work to help one another raise barns or kill hogs or do other jobs that one farmer could not do well alone. Later as more and more of his crop and livestock production went to the people in the cities and less and less was consumed at home, the farmer faced many problems beyond his fence line that were too big for him to handle efficiently by himself — problems in the assembling, grading, processing, transporting and marketing of farm products, and problems in the purchasing of farm production supplies. To meet these problems he formalized early American cooperation, and as early as 1810 we had cooperative cheese factories in America. These early American cooperatives preceded by more than a quarter of a century the founding of the Rochdale Cooperative in England.
3. Who owns and controls a farmer cooperative? The members who use its services. Their ownership is usually represented in membership certificates, stock, or some other evidence of the members' investment in the cooperative. Control of the cooperative is distributed democratically among the membership — usually on the basis of "one man, one vote."
4. How does a farmer cooperative work? A farmer cooperative acts as the agent for its farmer members. They use it to provide themselves with services on a cost-of-doing-business basis. Usually to cover their cooperative's operating costs plus a margin of safety, the members provide operating advances in amounts about equal to the going trade margins for similar services. When the year's operation is over and the books have been closed, they get back as patronage refunds the difference between what they advanced for the services and what the services actually cost. These refunds may be in cash or — in cases where members are adding to their cooperatives working capital — in the form of stock or certificates of equity. Interest rates on such member-invested capital is limited.
5. Why are farmer cooperatives needed? Because farming, though highly important to the nation's economy, is actually a business of more than 6,000,000 individual family farms. These farms, averaging only 87 tillable acres, are faced with as many problems of buying and processing and selling as the big corporations have — and without their concentration of money, specialized manpower or facilities. Only by joining together in voluntary cooperatives can farmers provide themselves with the capital, manpower and facilities needed for efficient operation. Only through organization can farmers meet other organized groups on an equal basis. Only by working together can farmers carry on research and develop new ideas that will benefit all people — the consumers of food as well as the producers. — National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

Crisp Greens
A watery salad or a limp one — wins no friends. So wash greens and drain carefully before you put them in the refrigerator to crisp. Whether you tear or cut them, make salad-making a last-minute job — otherwise you open the way to vitamin loss. And make the pieces of "largish-bite size," no long ribbons, please — especially for the men-folks.

1/4th OF YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE BILL GOES FOR TAXES

Here are two facts to remember when you pay your next electric bill:
First—25¢ of every dollar you pay for electric service is for taxes; only 75 cents of that dollar is for electricity. These taxes go to help pay the cost of winning this war, for government, for schools, roads, police and fire protection.
Second—when you take into consideration the tax contained in your electric bill your rates for electric service are lower than the so-called standard retail rates established by Bonneville for government power.
Two facts worth thinking about!

REMEMBER, FOLKS:

Harvest is nearly over, and from all reports it has not been a bad year for the farmer — for which we are thankful. But over a period of 10 or 15 years the farmer who has milked cows, raised chickens and hogs, as well as grain, is the man that is in the best shape financially today. The returns on all these things are increased by marketing them the co-operative way. The co-operative method of marketing gives the farmer the profit from the growing and processing, both of which he is certainly entitled to.

Manufacturers of automobiles, for instance, produce the raw materials and control them to the finished car or truck. The farmer can do likewise in his sale of produce through a co-operative marketing association. Our aim in this organization is to bring the biggest possible return to the farmer.

A fidgety little man was searching the floor beneath his theatre seat. Finally the woman next to him exclaimed, "What in the world is the matter with you? Have you lost something?"

"Yes'm," said the little man meekly, "a caramel."

"Do you mean to tell me you are making all that fuss over a caramel?"

"Oh no, ma'am — it had my teeth in it."

MORE ABOUT ARMED FORCES

Well, Bill, guess this will be all for now. Please say "hello" to everybody for me.

As ever

Tup Baker.

Tup: So far as we know you are the only Kendrick fellow stationed in that area. About your only navy bet would be Wayland Davis, who we know makes N. Y. once in a while. He is on a destroyer. Will see if I can't send his address to you. Nearest permanent station is Lieut. Rex Blewett, at Fort Meade, Maryland — and that's not close.

Dear Bill:
I take great pleasure in thanking you and all concerned for sending me the home-town paper. Even the reading of a May paper in August seems like a letter from that part of the country. After twenty-nine months of hopping from rock to rock, I rather lose track of the boys I once knew.

Well, Bill, it won't be long anymore until I'll be coming back and make a "big beachhead on some U. S. O. I can see my outfit forming spearhead right now. The rotation plan is one hundred per cent pure, but it's like some of our old men — "it's pretty slow."

"Bill I see you to thank you personally for the paper, this will have to substitute.

Cordially yours
S-Sgt. Homer H. Jones.

Note: Thanks for the letter, Homer. It's been many long months since we had heard from you. We can well imagine how good the soil of the U. S. A. will look to you.

About Soldier Votes

It is not necessary for a soldier to write and request a ballot, it may be requested for him by any relative or friend. The deadline on these ballots is September 5, so better take care of that matter at once. As a local convenience, you may leave the ballot request, together with his complete address at the Kendrick Bean Growers. It will be forwarded from there to Moscow or Lewiston as the case may be. — But hurry!

If you prefer, forward the request to county clerk at Moscow or Lewiston, the ballots will be air-mailed out from those offices immediately. Be sure to give full and correct address.

Fluffy Mashed Potatoes

In making mashed potatoes, use hot milk — it makes them soft and fluffy, whereas cold milk turns them soggy.
