A large crowd attended Roy Morgan's sale Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan and daughter are moving to Lewiston Orchards this week, where they have purchased a home and tract of land. The family will be greatly missed in our neighborhood.

However, the good wishes of all go with them in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Perryman and son visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Galloway on Big Bear ridge Sunday.

Birthday greeting to boys from the ridge whose birthday anniversaries come in September: T-S Clem Lyons; P.C. Donald G. Fry; P.C. William Lloyd Israel and Donald E. Kuykendall CAX.

Mrs. Wilma McAntire delivered two loads of fat "porkers" to the Moscow market Monday.

A group of youngsters gathered at the Berreman home Friday to help Peggy celebrate her 14th birthday anniversary — and also, to honor Lois Morgan, who leaves soon. A wicker roast was one of the chief amusements of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Weaver also were evening guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Olin and family of Orofino spent two days here last week with the Berreman family. Mrs. Olin will be remembered here as Dorothy Tower.

Blast Off Point Friday

Friday morning of last week, the local highway and railroad crews co-operating, the bluff on the north side of the school house hill, where it tapers off at the railroad tracks, was shot off, Gust Luckens doing the powder work.

A very satisfactory result was secured, and this bluff, which long has obstructed the view of traffic traveling north and meeting south-bound trains, will bother no more.

We understand that the steps previously on the bluff will now be rebuilt and a new trail constructed over the hill.

TIGER TALES

PREPARED BY JOURNALISM CLASS OF KENDRICK HIGH SCHOOL

Proof of the pride which Kendrick takes in her school system is increasingly evident this year. A splendid music curriculum; new science equipment and installation of laboratory essentials; indexing and modernizing of the school library; pre-school refurnishing of the interior of the building; continuance of the hot lunch program; the activities of the newly formed football squad and the new suits with which they have been provided; the P-T. A. activities — these are some concrete samples of community cooperation, aided by the school faculty progressiveness.

To also aid in the further development of our community educational program is one of the first aims of these school reports. We hope that we will be able to show the appreciation of our student body for the education privileges with which we have been provided this year, by keeping our public informed of the "peg news" of the various school classes and activities.

We wish to thank the Kendrick Gazette for their cooperation in our Journalism project.

"TIGER TALES" is dedicated to the boys from Kendrick High school who are leaving or have left to join in our country's fight for freedom.

War Fund Drive Begins Oct. 9

On October 9, begins the real work of the Idaho War Fund Drive, with Laurence E. Huff of Moscow as the Latah County chairman.

Throughout the United States there will be about 10,000 campaigns similar to that in Latah county, through which we will raise in excess of $250,000,000. Considerably more than 50 per cent of this money will go to the U. S. O., United Seaman's Service and the War Prisoner's Aid.

The balance will be distributed in work among 16 participating agencies.

If the war in Europe should end suddenly, the need for this money would not be lessened, and possibly might be increased. Each person is the sole judge of what he desires to give, but there are great needs both in this country and abroad for this National War Fund money.

Please think it over; plan too give and give generously, and have your bill ready when the members of the local drive committee call upon you. For they, like yourself, are hard-pressed for time. Help them to help those in need.

Loses End Of Finger

Elmer Cuddy, Cedar ridge, was doing a bit of shooting with a 30-30 rifle last Sunday. The light didn't suit him on the front sight, so he lowered the rifle to remove the front sight guard. As the guard slipped off the muzzle the gun gave a jerk, and discharged.

Elmer's left forefinger was in just the right position for the bullet to clip off the nail and a good portion of the finger's end.

Red Cross News

There wasn't a very big turn-out at the Surgical Dressing Unit last week. More workers are needed. Won't you try and spend a few hours once a week in helping to get these dressings folded?

Mrs. A. O. Kanikkeberg, production chairman, is asking for more material for slippers. Old coats are best utilized.

New Arrival

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Watts, Moscow, are the proud parents of a 7-pound 4-ounce daughter, born to them September 20, at the Gritman hospital.

The little lady has been named Jane Anne, honoring her two grandmothers.

Mother and babe are doing nicely.

Meeting Not Held

A special Commercial Club meeting was scheduled for last Tuesday evening, but it seems members were just too busy to attend, for the lights were not even turned on in the City hall. A number who went, stated they waited for some time, but not enough gathered to make a quorum.

Finds Thanksgiving Is Not of American Origin

Thanksgiving day is not the purely American invention we usually consider it, says Dr. F. J. Tschan, professor of European history at the Pennsylvania State college. It's an old Roman custom, he said, and a tradition with the ancient Greeks, Chinese, Japanese, Jews, and Germanic peoples too.

"All through the Middle Ages and even today the church has fostered the idea of thanking God not only on one day but every day," Dr. Tschan added. "The Puritans, however, renewed the idea of feasting."

Thanksgiving festivals were held in China a thousand years before Christ, while the Roman feast of Ceres and the ancient Greeks' feast of Demeter were closely similar in spirit, he explained.

The Jews have been celebrating Moshannah Rabbah — Thanksgiving to God—for many centuries, and the Japs hold two harvest thanksgiving festivals each year. Other forerunners are the Germanic feast of the Harvest Home and the day of thanksgiving observed by the Norwegians on either the last Friday of October or the first Friday in November.

Citrus Fruits Help Combat Winter Colds

Increased intake of orange and grapefruit juice is advised by many doctors in combating winter respiratory colds.

The alkaline salts of citrus juices are very effective in restoring the normal alkaline balance of the body and in counteracting the overacid condition which many doctors agree makes our systems so much more susceptible to colds and influenza.

The citric acid in citrus juices, particularly grapefruit juice, keeps the blood cleansed and in a condition to resist colds, and when taken into the system "acid" fruits and foods become alkaline. Most doctors are agreed that the moment a cold or mild "grippe" or "flu" is contracted it is best to cut down on heavy and rich dishes, omit sweets and drink copiously of water and citrus juices. This will help cleanse the system, restore its normal condition and reduce danger of fever.

Before Dinner Bath Soothing

On cold and dreary winter evenings, when you come home from a long day of hard work, it often takes all the will power at your command to be a civil companion. Fatigue is the cause of many a display of temper, and certainly does not add to the popularity nor usefulness of any man or woman.

To recapture good humor and to rout or urinary weariness, why not take a soothing warm-water bath? Five minutes in the tub—scrubbing and lolling—will usually do the trick. If 10 minutes are available, take a longer soak or spend the extra time stretched out on the bed. Get into some cozy lounging gown, put on a new make-up, run a comb through your hair, and you will not only be in the mood for dinner but will eat with gusto.

Wash away your troubles and the day's grime at the same time, and get the most from your dinner and the evening hours of leisure.

World's Greatest Oaks

An important discovery was made by an expedition of the U. S. forestry service, surveying the timber wealth of Central and South America—a "lost forest" of the biggest oak trees in the world, extending for miles along the interoceanic divide, within 50 miles of San Jose, Costa Rica. Some of the trees are 8 feet in diameter.

The survey revealed a greater variety of trees than anywhere in the United States, with as many as 100 species to the acre. A hitherto unknown species of vantage will be useful in building the Inter-American highway. Timber surveyed may go far to meet Europe's postwar demand, estimated at 7,000,000,000 to 10,000,000,000 board feet a year.

Wood Cure

In 1508 a wood "cure" for man's more serious illnesses was introduced by the medical profession of Europe. This wood, imported from Cuba and supposedly endowed with miraculous powers, was named "lignum vitae" or wood of life. A favorite of the courtiers, a pound of this healing tree was sold for seven gold crowns and two centuries passed before its medicinal value was questioned.

Today, however, this strong, water-resistant wood is used in substantial pulley sheaves, castor wheels, stencil and chisel blocks, masthead trucks, and the bearings or brushing blocks used in lining the stern tubes or propeller shafts of steamships.

Banana Trade

The banana trade as we now know it is decidedly new. The first bananas to arrive in New York were brought there from Cuba in 1804. By 1830 occasional clipper ships were bringing small cargoes from Cuba and the Bahamas. This trickle gradually increased, but as recently as the Philadelphia Centennial of 1876, red bananas wrapped in tinfoil were sold as an exotic curiosity. It was not until the introduction of the modern refrigerated steamship at the turn of the century that the real banana industry was born.

Old Document Records Early Popularity of Tea

Confirmed tea drinkers may find academic interest in a bit of tea history recently discovered.

A reference that dates some three centuries earlier than the earliest literary reference to tea drinking commonly accepted by Sinologists, has been found. This occurs, of all places, in a contract for the purchase of a slave. The document bears a Chinese date which corresponds to February 18, 59 B. C. of our calendar.

Tea is casually mentioned twice in the T'ung yueh "contract for a slave," by Wang Pao, a writer who lived in the first century B. C. This is recounted in a humorous essay in verse form which describes, perhaps fictitiously, a visit by the author, a native of Chengtu in Szechwan, to a widow who owned an unruly male slave. Wang Pao requested that the slave, Plen-lao by name, be sent to buy some wine, but the slave refused to go, contending that his late master had not contracted for him to do errands for other gentlemen. Wang then offered to buy the slave, who promptly insisted that the purchase-contract-list every duty the new master would call on him to perform (apparently slaves had some rights in those days). The first mention of tea is in a list of preparations to be made for dinner parties. In addition to fetching wine and cooking various foods, the slave is instructed to "boil tea and fill the utensils." Then, in a description of the slave's marketing duties, it is instructed that "at Wu-yang he will buy tea."

Says Milk Supplies Calf With Early Food Needs

Calves raised in a market milk area often receive a limited amount of whole milk. This is all right, according to Dr. Olin L. Leopard, assistant professor of dairy husbandry at Rutgers university, provided you don't skimp to the point where it will be harmful to the young animals.

"We must remember that even though a calf has four stomachs, the one which is able to change coarse food, such as roughage and grain, into easily digested material does not function early in life," Dr. Leopard reminds dairymen. "The calf really is working on three cylinders, so to speak. Benefits which a calf receives from whole milk during the first four weeks before its rumen is able to function fully include an extra supply of vitamins, especially A, a very digestible type of protein, an ideal source of energy and a real allotment of minerals."

"We must see that the calf gets what it needs during this early period. The necessary amount varies considerably, but it is safe to say that most calves should receive at least 300 to 400 pounds of whole milk during the first two months. After this time, they can very safely and more economically be fed on dry feed and a good quality roughage."

People's Council

The People's Political council is a highly successful political experiment in wartime China. It deserves to be specially emphasized as an important step in the direction of the country's democratization. Created in 1938 by the Emergency Session of the Kuomintang National Congress to serve as a wartime political agency "to unify the national strength, to utilize the best minds of the nation, and to facilitate the formation and execution of national policies," the council has, during the past five years, proved its permanent value in enhancing the probability that successful democratic processes can be established in China. As the system now stands, the council is composed of 240 members. Sixty are selected by the Supreme National Defense council from among representatives of cultural and economic bodies, or from among leaders of various political groups and other persons long devoted to political activities. The rest are for the most part directly chosen by the newly created provincial or municipal assemblies.

Sacrificial Rabbit

Kempster K. Knight, a British writer (1881) states that Himalayan rabbits — snow-white little fellows with jet black tail, ears, feet and nose, were a sacrificial rabbit with the Chinese, who were said to have offered up 35,000 annually on 1,500 altars, with prayers that their crops and fruit generally might be as prolific as the rabbits. Another authority says that Chinese mythology has it that T'U, the rabbit lives in the moon, where it pounds up in a mortar the drugs from which the elixir of life is made. The same writer says that silver-gray rabbits first came from Siam and were found there in great numbers.

Poultry House

The old idea that any kind of rough, unpainted lumber will do for a poultry house has gone into the discard. It is now realized by experienced poultry raisers that rough, unpainted surfaces invite and provide harbors for lice, mites and bugs, as well as for microbes which promote some poultry diseases. Smooth, well-painted interior surfaces of poultry houses lend themselves to relatively easy cleaning, and if light colors are used, they may be a help in reflecting light and stimulating egg-laying during the winter months.

Post-War Forestry Planning

Regional Forester Evan W. Kelley has announced from the United States Forestry headquarters at Missoula, that the post-war planning work program of the forestry service in this region will be headed by Roy A. Phillips, supervisor on the Kankitsu National Forest, who is being transferred from Sandpoint to Missoula.

Anticipating a need for forest work projects to help fill an unemployment gap that may develop in the post-war adjustment period, the Forestry Service has prepared a work program aimed toward the protection and development of the resources of the 18 national forests in Region One. This program can be expanded or contracted to fit any national public works program that may be undertaken.

80,000 Tons Paper Saved

Thousands of unnecessary forms, charts and records eliminated by the Army Service forces, as a result of the completion of organizational divisions, will save 80,000 tons of badly needed paper by the end of the year, says an Army dispatch.

Note: We suggest the army move in on OPA, WPB, ODT, and a few other bureaus. The savings they could accomplish there would really be something!

A Real Price Reduction Today army ordinance produces TNT for approximately 7c a pound, as compared to 25 to 55 cents a pound during World War I.

I'll Tell The World KENDRICK Is A Mighty Good Place To Trade!

There are lots of good towns and some bad ones, perhaps — owing to the point of view. However, we are not knocking any town on earth — but simply BOOSTING one of them — your home town and mine — KENDRICK!

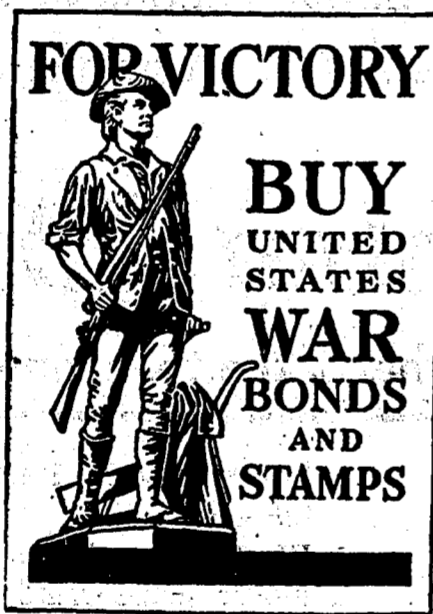

Co-operation among the residents of a community is what counts for most, in building a town of which all may well feel proud. The men who are devoting their effort and investing both time and money to provide a home-town market where you may come and do your buying and selling seek your co-operation.

They ask only that when you want anything that you try first to buy it at home. If the desired items cannot be obtained in Kendrick — then let them order it for you.

Remember — War times are difficult times for the merchant and the business man as well as yourself. A little patience will probably result in your getting the desired item or items, at a saving to you of dollars and cents as well as precious tires, gasoline and wasted time.

Remember — Kendrick merchants and business men are home-town friends who want to give you a full dollar's worth today — just as they did during peace times — for there is another day and another peace coming.

Think it over, won't you?

We are prompted to sponsor the above ad. through our desires to serve the war effort and our interest in community welfare.

Basic Metals Supply Balance
Supply and demand for basic metals for all essential military and civilian programs are more nearly in balance than at any time since Pearl Harbor, according to S. W. Anderson, program vice chairman of WPB and chairman of its Requirements Committee. Mr. Anderson cautioned, however, that in some metal mill products, balance is very precarious, because of manpower losses and expanding military needs for certain specialized items. Production of metal office chairs, desks, filing cabinets, etc., is one example of production that cannot be resumed in the immediate future, and the consumption of metal cans by packers was also placed under further regulation. In the critical lumber situation the estimated production for the first quarter of 1944 totaled 7,701,602,000 board feet, of which 4,433,628,000 board feet were produced in the east and 3,267,976,000 board feet in the west. Comparison with production for the first quarter of 1943 reveals an aggregate increase of 3 per cent.

MIRACLE BY YOU!

THE gaunt, weary creatures in the upper picture are boys from your home town. That isn't death in their strained eyes... but it's pretty near death—it's battle fatigue.

They're the same men in the lower picture. Rested. Smiling. A million miles from the agonizing experiences of a few hours before. Enjoying a U.S.O. Camp Show financed by you.

Yes, U.S.O. Camp Shows and more than 3,000 U.S.O. clubs and other units are made possible by your contributions to the Idaho War Fund.

This great war service helps in countless other ways. It makes life more bearable for American war prisoners. Aids Merchant Seamen. Provides food for starving Allies. Helps supply seeds, clothing and medicine for devastated countries. Every dollar eases war suffering somewhere where help is desperately needed.

You give only once for all these. Think of the miracles your money can perform and give every cent you can.

About one-third of the United States is forest land — and another third seems to be devoted to Burma-Shave signs.

Ruy bonds and savings stamps now.

More than half the national harvest of lumber is needed for boxing and crating during these war days. Wood containers are getting material to the fronts with a minimum of loss.

BUT WOODY'S READY FOR PEACE, TOO

OUR war equipment—from planes and jeeps to first aid kits—must be packaged and protected against loss in the long journey to distant war fronts.

Forest products, both wood and paper, are performing this service. Damage in transit has been cut to less than a tenth of what it was in the last war.

This is the chief reason why your new home must wait until the war is won.

But when peace comes, American forests will be ready to build new homes. Because wood is a crop, which renews itself under favorable conditions, and millions of acres of forestland are now being so managed as to insure future crops of wood.

The first football game of the season and the first game for Kendrick in many years, will be played at the local field in the west part of town on —

Friday, September 29, 1944 at 2:30 p. m.

Let's all go and show our support of the effort being made to give our boys proper physical training.

The war has shown the need for this sort of physical training. Everyone go and show the boys we are with them.

We will be closed from 2:00 to 5:00 p. m. — during this game.

After the game, take home a quart of delicious "Potlatch Chief" brand ice cream as a treat for the family. It's good and good for you.

Like ice cream? Try "Potlatch Chief." You'll find it the "tops."

At a football game there were two vendors; one energetic and one shiftless.

The energetic one, making his way through the crowd with his push-cart, and crying lustily: "Popcorn! Peanuts!! Candy!"

A short distance behind him, with shiftless lazy tread, the second vendor came, mumbling: "Same here; same here."

Buck Private: "Was it really cold up in the Aleutians?"

Second B. P.: "Cold? Cold!! Why, when I came home and the doctor took out my appendix — it was chapped!"

Employer (to new secretary): "Surely, Miss Dove, you know the King's English?"

Secretary: "Of course. Whoever said he wasn't?"

Caller: "Is your mother engaged?"

Little Boy: "I think she's married."

MORE ABOUT ARMED FORCES

amazed at a people who obey their laws.

But although they don't know by name all the recordings made by Sammy Kay, or are not up on all the witless gags that make American youth howl, they do know Rupert Brooke by heart. They know art and music. They know history (exclusive of the War of 1812). They are like them. They put up with a lot from us over here and they take a lot of ridicule from the lesser of our brethren. When an Englishman was asked what the main objection to Yanks was, he said: "They are over-fed, over-clothed, over-paid, over-sexed and over here!"

Our mother-tongue is crisp, full of hardness and sharply accented "d's" and "t's". Children of five or so do not talk, they orate. They pronounce each word and accent with a deliberate correctness that is suggestive of hours of drilling — and of the fear of the Lord if a syllable were slurred or stammered.

I started to write to Mac and Bill last April — got the letter half done and quit for lack of material and laid it away. It was not so long after that that we began operating as a hospital and then I was too busy to write more than short V-Mail home. Ruby has been goading me to get a letter to them as well as you. The four or five months of my spring and summer in England have slipped by like the fine sand they were. Life is a routine of getting up in the morning, working all day and into the night and going to bed. About one day per week I take off to visit the places of interest and amusement that I can reach in a day from one point. Usually there is a two or three hour period after supper when I go out for a bicycle ride or to town — and come back and go to work. I have lost the old conception of a "day's work." A clerk in the army is confronted with a different kind of a time clock — that of "get this done today." And if the job is half-way interesting, time can slip by.

This letter has lain around for three or four days waiting for me to mail it and date it — and finish it. Meanwhile, Dad's letter came with the sample film in it — which I like and will surely try if some is sent here.

My film size has changed, by the way, to 120 or 620 (either) since the old mail-order freak went to pieces. I have a pretty nice little Zeiss now (Ikon, model 521), one of the last few brought out of Germany before it became impossible to get any more. The lens is so color-perfect that it will record all shades of red and purple on Verichrome film. (If you send me some Kodacolor for it, you will really get some pictures!)

I am sending (soon) a few poses taken by the Zeiss, which will show you what it can do with detail.

Your letters come to me showing evidence of your belief that your mail is subject to censorship. Nothing is further from the fact, and this is so of all mail, including parcels. The only inspection any of it will receive is in front of you at the P. O.

I don't remember what my statement was any more concerning Manchester. I suppose I shouldn't try to talk about a place I've never been to — at least to someone who can catch my industrial geography at error. The only city of any size I know very well is Birmingham. It is a maze of narrow, steep, crooked streets, which seem to go nowhere, and there slowly. Main street of Kendrick is wider than any street in Birmingham. But I cannot say that the school house hill is steeper! even steeper than streets in the town which have street car tracks on them. It is a somewhat dingy city — in the center of a section known as the "Black County" because of the smoke from this England's "Pittsburgh." There are plenty of dirty kids running the streets, asking for gum and candy. Bobbies standing on the corners say "You cawn't miss it!" when asked where "such-and-such" is. Austins chug by, dodging bicycles, and dilapidated old delivery wagons, some horse-drawn, rattle along the rough brick streets. It is quaint, "Baltimoreish," but quite ancient and grown-up.

I suppose I might as well back down and admit I have been better off one I went straight home when Dad's letter came quietly addressed "Col." O. K. So here is the formal announcement of it. I still think "so what" about it!

You are going to get some Kodacolors soon. Return some prints to me — those of the street car operator, the nurse, and the thatched cottage — as I promised the owners to give them prints. It is 2:00 a. m. Until next time, with all the love, Yours: Leon.

Dear Mac and Bill:

Am receiving the Gazette regularly and enjoy it very much — but I have a new address already. I have been moved to Fort Jackson, S. C., and I sure don't like the place. It's pretty hot here, but I guess I can get used to it — and I shouldn't complain, because there are places much "hotter" in the world today — and it isn't all nature's heat either — and I suspect it's going to get much "hotter."

Thanks again for the paper, and please tell all the folks at Kendrick "hello" for me.

Sincerely

Pfc. Leonard H. Stuart.

Dear Bill:

I arrived at camp on time. I want to say I surely enjoyed those few days at home.

I have a different address now, and as you said it is just "standard operational practice" to have a change of address. I will put it on the back of this note.

I have been on maneuvers since I came back. I've got to go to chow, now (can't miss that) so till next time, keep 'em coming.

Sincerely yours

He said that on his return they flew over the very heart of the country where the storm hit, and that the destruction was a terrible sight.
