TAKE A VICTORY BOND — IT COSTS YOU NOTHING

I have heard people sigh at word of the Victory Loan Campaign, and say, "I suppose I have to buy another bond. But I don't see how I can afford it."

This is just like saying, "I suppose I really ought to start saving money, but it's an awfully expensive thing to do."

The fact is, of course, that you don't buy bonds. As W. B. Bachman, a Detroit writer, forcefully pointed out the other day, the speakers on the radio and the poster artists and the advertising writers have been using the wrong word for four long years. They have been asking the public to do something that is impossible. You can't spend money on bonds. You simply take them. They cost you nothing.

My E bonds are nothing but certificates showing that the Barton family has made a deposit in the U. S. Treasury instead of in a bank or a cookie jar. When we take an E bond, we transfer a bank deposit to the safest depository in the world — the U. S. Treasury. We put in non-interest notes and we get an interest-bearing note as our deposit slip!

To take a bond — note that word "take" — is still a patriotic act. That alone is inducement enough for any American. Just as your money in the bank pays for loans and investments and all the bank's manifold activities, so your money in the U. S. Treasury helps to care for the wounded, to end war contracts, to maintain armies of occupation, to bring home returning fighters, to prevent inflation. Your bonds brought about the mighty atomic blasts that put a period to this war. Your bonds today are returning flesh to the bones of those who survived wounds or prison camp torture — of Wainwright, of Boyington, of unknown thousands of our men who played their own gallant part in the total defeat of our enemies.

I remember reading the typical experience of George Lott, whose two arms were shredded by a mortar on the Lorraine front. From his battalion aid station Lott was transported 4,500 miles in easy stages, by ambulance, train and plane. He passed through three field dressing stations and five hospitals in France and England before being returned to the United States for final treatment and recovery. Your bonds paid for the care of all the George Lotts of this war.

And yet you can count on getting back $4 for every $3 you put in!

So get bonds today — get them regularly — and hold onto them. That is about as close as you are likely to come in this life of having your cake and eating it too. — Bruce Barton.

No School Monday Afternoon Due to the failure of the stoker at the schoolhouse Monday shortly after noon, school was dismissed for the balance of the day.

The big boiler can be hand-fired, but as repairs had to be made to the stoker, no heat was possible, and so the pupils enjoyed a half-holiday.

REPRODUCTION OF FOREST LANDS VITALLY IMPORTANT

Today's most important news concerning the American Forest Products Industries pertains to the uniting of efforts to insure increased reproduction and growth in U. S. forest lands, said C. L. Billings, vice president and general manager of Potlatch Forests, Inc.

Mr. Billings, home from an executive meeting of the American Forest Products Industries, Inc., held in Chicago on May 15th, reported that the announcement of a nine-point program to improve production in U. S. woodlands has been agreed upon by the American Paper & Pulp Association, the American Pulpmulwood Association and the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

The three associations have been united in their efforts to improve production in U. S. woodlands by the Forest Industries Council, formed in 1943 to act as an instrument for common action by the three industries. The council represents the producers of over two-thirds of all U. S. forest products, Billings asserted. Membership includes 225 pulp and paper manufacturers, approximately 175 producers of pulpmulwood, and some 11,000 lumber manufacturers in all parts of the United States.

The new, common standard for forest management, adopted by the council members, calls for private industrial users of commercial forests to seek greatly increased fire protection for all lands, adopt and extend measures for continuous production and reforestation of cut-over lands, encourage private ownership for all lands which can be profitably operated for continuous production, seek public acquisition of lands which cannot be operated privately, advocate taxes which encourage private ownership of timberland, support public regulation of cutting practices, where necessary under state law, seek adequate financing for state forestry organizations, and develop more complete utilization of wood now being harvested.

The U. S. has sufficient forest-type land to produce a sustained harvest equal to our normal requirements of wood, Billings said, and this new program should go a long way toward assuring a capacity growth and abundance of forest products of all kinds continuously.

The Forest Industries Council, according to Billings, pledges united leadership for betterment of America's forests, and the attainment of continuous production.

The nine points of the agreed program are:

1. Promote the extension of permanent and dependable protection against fire to all forest lands, irrespective of ownership.
2. Urge all forest owners and forest operators to develop and adopt forest practices designed to insure the continuous production of timber on all areas as harvested, irrespective of ownership.
3. Confirm the sound economic policy of encouraging private ownership of lands which are being or can be profitably managed for continuous production of forest crops, and encourage a national land policy to include the sale and exchange of public lands in order to restore desirable lands to private ownership as well as to consolidate public holdings.
4. Encourage public ownership and practical management of forest land, which is incapable of producing sufficient wood to maintain profitable private ownership.
5. Advocate equalization of state and local taxes on forest lands that reasonably support their fair proportion of local responsibilities, and that encourage private ownership of forest lands.
6. Support in each forested state a competent, adequately staffed and financed state forestry organization, qualified to manage state-owned forest lands, to administer and enforce state laws relative to privately owned forest lands, and to provide adequate cooperation with all timberland owners in the state in solving forestry problems.
7. Support public regulation when necessary or desirable, to be administered under state law. The need or desirability of such regulation and its scope if undertaken to be determined by the people of each state.
8. Cooperate with public and private agencies in the control or abatement of major forest insects and diseases.
9. Develop more complete utilization of forest products.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

By Joan Stedman

"WE'RE tired of the camp and we're going to move on. See?"

Orrek Gordon lifted his head. "Going to walk out on me and quit? Your wages are good here."

The foreman of the lumber gang sneered. "Say, money ain't everything. We want to get back to town and we're going." He slouched back to the tent and joined the crowd of surly men around the great campfire.

From the log bungalow beyond the camp twinkled many lights. Orrek stared at the Christmas candles. Marcia had placed them there, saying they brought peace to the household. And now, with his men walking out on him, Marcia would be lost to him.

A skimming sound on the firm snow aroused him and Marcia, a gay little figure in her white furs, caught at his arm and came to a standstill on her skis. "Why stay out here when I want you, Orrek? We're making up a bridge table."

"Why stay out here when I want you?"

A bridge table when his future career was toppling down!

"Orrek, what's wrong with the men?" she asked. "My maid told me there had been a row there."

Orrek's eyes blazed as he tucked the small hand under his arm. How he loved her! In a few brief sentences he told her of the discontent among his men. "It's the loneliness that gets them," he finished, "the lack of amusement."

"If they walk out you cannot keep your contract. That will queer you with the owners." She turned and left him in silence.

Back at the bungalow Marcia tumbled the contents of her clothes closet while talking rapidly to her maid, Ninette. "Isn't it lucky that I taught you those chords, Ninette?"

The camp men, grumbling around the fire, fell into a sudden silence as the gay plink-a-plunk of a banjo sounded in the clearing.

Gebert, surly gang leader, jerked out his pipe. "Listen, boys!"

Down the hill Marcia came gaily, her fingers bringing jolly notes from the strings. The frosty air echoed and re-echoed as Ninette joined in.

"I know that," declared Gebert. Carried along by memories, the men joined in, forgetting the loneliness of the Christmas eve, forgetting their fancied troubles.

Marcia had come to the very edge of the great fire and stood there picking at the strings. Above her towered the man she loved, just beyond her stood the men in a semicircle, their unshaven faces lighted by a mutual love of music.

"How many of you play small instruments?" she asked softly.

The answers brought a quick smile to her lips. "I thought there would be many of you to help me out," she cried.

"I want to have a string-band," hurried on Marcia, "and I need volunteers. A violin, maybe two or three. A guitar—"

"I play the flute," interrupted Jacques.

"At home I have an accordion," came a wistful voice, "but—"

"Fine," interrupted Marcia. "I have, tonight, made out an order that should have been mailed sooner. It is my Christmas gift to our men. The order is for musical instruments. I wish each man would write down his instrument and give it to me. With luck we should have the orders filled in three days and we'll practice hard so that New Year's day may find us ready. How about it?"

There was an instant response as hardened palms came together. Just beyond the pines a wolf howled, but Marcia was looking up into her lover's eyes.

Wrapping Small Gifts

An unusual way to wrap a number of small gifts that are to be given in a good-sized Christmas box is to tuck each one in an envelope made of either plain red, holly, silver or gold paper. Wrap each gift first in plain white tissue paper, folded in envelope style, and seal the flaps of both the inner and outer envelopes with contrasting seals. Patterns for the envelopes can be cut from ordinary envelopes by tearing one apart and either enlarging on it or trimming it down.

The SPUR of the Moment

A CHRISTMAS EPISODE by J.A. WALDROD

EVERYBODY except confirmed bachelors and spinsters from choice is interested in domestic phenomena. And the marital happiness of others is a matter of wonder and inquiry on the part of matrimonial parties who have missed it.

The Vanners—Rose and John—had been married two years and had lived at a hotel all of that period except the weeks devoted to honeymoon travel. They were happy, and this state in a hotel is unusual with married pairs for any considerable period.

After Mrs. Vanner's women friends had discussed the matter among themselves without solution one of them made bold to ask her about it. "A man and a woman can be happy anywhere if they are in love with each other and if they are truthful—absolutely truthful—with each other," was Mrs. Vanner's explanation.

Not that they prided themselves on their veracity, or paraded virtues. It just happened that they were such good pals that deceit had no place in their association. And while each before marriage, had been lively enough in a decent way, they were so well satisfied with each other that they were seldom apart, except as business called Vanner or auction bridge or some other pastime engaged Mrs. Vanner.

The holidays were approaching. The Vanners were dining together at the hotel as usual when Mrs. Vanner asked: "Have you any plan for Christmas eve?"

"Not a plan," Vanner replied. "Want tickets for the theater?"

"No. We go to the theater all the time."

"Well, make your own plan." "If you are keen for some mutual enjoyment, make one yourself. Think up something. But if you are not, I've an idea I should like to play bridge that evening if you could find something congenial!"

"The idea suggests one to me. Friends at the Sojourners' club have been trying for weeks to get me into a poker game. They are all 'alones' and live at the club. I think I can make a date for Christmas eve with them."

"Merry Christmas," she cried.

"But you wouldn't go into the game as a regular thing, dear?"

"Oh, no!"

"Isn't poker a gambling game?"

"No more a gambling game than bridge, Rose."

"Shall you play late?"

"I shall probably be home by midnight."

"Well, we shall play but four rubbers. No doubt I'll be in bed and asleep when you come in. Just go to your room, and we'll see which of us wishes 'A Merry Christmas' first in the morning."

And so it was planned. The Vanners had dinner together at the hotel, as usual. Then Vanner went off to the Sojourners' club, and Mrs. Vanner started to drum up her trio of bridge devotees. But her plan did not carry. One of the women was suddenly called out of town, and another became just ill enough to eliminate the game. Mrs. Vanner finished a novel she was reading and went to bed. She was always a sound sleeper until very early in the morning.

The Sojourners' club bunch were amazed at Vanner's luck at poker. At midnight he had most of the chips, and in decency he had to play on. At 4 a. m. he insisted upon cashing in and started wearily for his hotel. He wished there might be some way to keep the knowledge of this innocent delinquency from Mrs. Vanner.

He got to his room in the hotel safely. Apparently Mrs. Vanner was slumbering peacefully in her room. He shed his coat and vest and was at work on his collar when he saw Mrs. Vanner at his door with a wrap over her night robe.

"Merry Christmas!" she cried.

"Merry Christmas, dear!" he responded. The chimes of a neighboring cathedral rang out, foretelling the early Christmas service.

"But why are you dressing so early, John?" she asked.

Vanner suddenly became wide awake. "Oh, I thought it would be a treat to go over to the cathedral and hear the wonderful music," he replied.

"Of course you were going to call me to go!"

"Of course, honey!" Vanner yawned audibly. "Run along and dress."

Sub Crews Religious And Superstitious Seamen

Submariners, who are constantly brushing with death while on under-seas prowls for enemy ships, are perhaps the most religious of all classes of fighting men. They are the most superstitious, too. There are many odd traditions by which the underseas bluejacket woos the Goddess of Fortuna.

For instance, submariners toss coins into the sea for luck before they set forth on a war patrol. Not just pennies. Silver dollars go in, glinting first in the sunlight and then in the water. Buddhas are apparently the fetish of torpedomen. It's an old custom for the wife or sweetheart of a sub captain to present two figures of the oriental deity, one for each of the torpedo rooms. Just before firing, the torpedomen in charge will quietly rub the protruding stomach of the little figures. They say it brings luck.

Headgear aboard a sub is a fascinating subject in itself. Nearly every crewman has a "battle bonnet." It comes out of hiding the minute an attack is rumored. Like magic, such things appear as sunshades, baseball caps, civilian felts and cloth caps, white sailor caps and varied versions of stocking caps cut in strange shapes and unorthodox patterns.

Light Continues Vexing Mystery of Science

Although light is used for seeing by our eyes every minute we are awake, nobody knows exactly what light is, says the Better Vision institute. However, we know a lot about light and by following definite rules can design efficient light conditioning devices to assist weak eyes to see better, and to extend the powers of vision of normal eyes.

Sir Isaac Newton who lived about 300 years ago believed that light consists of a stream of little particles. For about two centuries that idea was generally accepted without qualification, and it furnished a good basis for rules in the development of optical science. However, Newton's theory did not explain satisfactorily certain curious facts.

During the last 50 years much knowledge has been gained about electricity and energy radiations. From this new knowledge it has been demonstrated that light definitely is a wave motion. Thus, instead of clearing up scientific thought, recent research on light has made the situation more complicated. Sometimes light acts like little bundles of energy; other times it acts like a wave motion. Light has become a sort of scientific Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Tidy Cover

You can make a kind of glorified antimacassar or "tidy" cover for your chairs from usable pieces of discarded fabric. The idea is to tailor shorties, which fit snugly over the upper third of the back, and separately fitted "sleeve" pieces for the arms. Thus an old or dark chair is brightened up, you have protection for the areas which get most soiled, and the shorties take only a few minutes to wash and iron if you are careful to choose washable fabrics. Use checks, stripes, and plaids to give a modern lift to old pieces; or, if you prefer a floral, choose a color or accent which blends with the main color of the chair. Use creamy, thick suds and lukewarm water when you launder these; if they are extra soiled, use a hand brush instead of rubbing to loosen the soil. Roll in a towel for a moment to absorb excess moisture so colors won't run, then hang to dry in the shade. These miniature slip covers will have a more professional look if the edges are bound with contrasting tape or cord, but do be sure these are fast color.

Sugar Substitutes

Home economists point out that 1 pound of granulated sugar measures 2 1/8 cups; brown, 2 3/4 cups; and confectioners' 2 3/4 cups. In the quantities used in most recipes, however, these weight differences are not of great importance. Either brown or confectioners' sugar may be used measure for measure for granulated sugar in puddings, pie fillings and baked custards. For plain or fruit flavored ice creams, powdered sugar may be used; and for chocolate, mocha, or butterscotch, brown sugar is satisfactory. When brown sugar is used in cakes, it is advisable to use a recipe especially planned for it, because sugar greatly influences cake texture. Since texture of cookies depends more on amount of sugar than kind, either brown or confectioners' sugar may be substituted for granulated in the same proportion.

Chinese Language

The Chinese language has characters but not words. Chinese learn how to say these characters "by ear." The Chinese words we see are for the benefit of students of the Chinese language, to enable them to give the proper pronunciation. Sir Thomas Wade (1818-1895), an Englishman associated with the British legation in China for many years, developed a method of phonetics to aid students in pronouncing the Chinese language. His method is based on the Mandarin dialect of Peiping. Four-fifths of the population of China speak the Mandarin dialect while the remainder speaks the Cantonese dialect. At present a national language is taught in the schools of China, based on the Mandarin dialect.

Contour Cultivation Grows on U. S. Farms

Bigger Yields Result From Soil Protection

Expansion of contour cultivation under the Agricultural Adjustment agency program has been rapid during the war years. Assistance for contour practices was given on a record total of 29,217,806 acres last year, including contouring inter-tilled crops, contouring drilled crops, contour listing, furrowing, chiseling, and subsoiling, and contour strip cropping. This method of farming "around the slope" instead of up and down the hill cuts down erosion by preventing water from carrying off the soil. It increases acre-yield of crops, maintains their quality by holding the fertile topsoil in place, and increases the moisture content of the land. Combined with other better farming practices, it has been found to add to their effectiveness. States in the north central area more than tripled their acreage of contour drilled crops and almost doubled their acreage of contour inter-tilled crops, reports show. Three southern states — Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas — raised their acreage of small grain and other drilled crops on the contour by about 50 per cent.

Studies have brought out that when contouring cuts the speed of the water run-off in half, for example, its capacity for carrying soil drops about 75 per cent.

Some startling increases in acre yield have been reported in specific areas as a direct result of the conservation of moisture, soil and plant nutrients through contouring. An increase of 23 bushels more corn an acre in one Iowa area, 6.2 bushels of soybeans per acre in Illinois, 44 more bushels of potatoes per acre in New York, an increase of four bushels of wheat per acre in the Great Plains, and 29 pounds more cotton per contoured acre in Texas.

Postwar Machinery Haymaker

The haymaker cuts the hay and passes it directly from the mower cutter bar by means of a pickup attachment to a pair of rollers to crack the stems. The haymaker, designed by John Bean Manufacturing company, has a seven-foot cut, with mower built into the machine, operated from the power takeoff by any full two-plow tractor. Has hydraulic lift and reduces the time of drying at least 50 per cent.

Ideal Leather Punch

Belt Punch Made of Cartridge Shell. By using the size rifle cartridge shell desired, leather punches may be made. Holes cut in the side of the shell enable the emptying of leather without trouble.

Treat Pullet Ills

Pullet flocks often are affected by a strange malady known as Pullet Disease, or Blue Comb. Individual birds may show darkened combs, labored breathing, inactivity and sleepiness and the legs have a dry withered appearance. Rutgers university recommends for an emergency treatment that 2 tablespoonfuls of muriate of potash be placed in each gallon of drinking water. To prevent the disease 1½ pounds can be added to 100 pounds of mash.

17-Year Locusts Live Long Life Underground

It's the periodic cicada to the scientist, but the garden variety of American still regards it as the 17-year locust. This pop-eyed, greenish-bodied bug with gauzy wings has a quadruple distinction — it is peculiar to the United States, it lives most of its life underground, its life span is probably the longest in the insect world, and it has one of the most complex musical instruments in all nature. It begins life in a tree, continues for 13 to 17 years underground, and ends in a tree. Eggs are placed in double rows by the female in openings made in twigs or branches with her sawlike ovipositor. The eggs hatch in a few weeks, the grubs push out of their woody nests, and tumble to the ground. Then begins the long, solitary subterranean life. Each grub digs an earthen home near a sap-filled rootlet, and rarely changes abode unless the food source fails. When instinct warns the cicada that it has served its time in the earth, it emerges and climbs the nearest tree. There it casts off its old garments, expands its wings, and changes color — all in a few hours. Males make a shrill, attention-getting sound by vibrating membranes tightly stretched over two abdominal cavities. Volume is regulated by movable sounding boards. "Happy," said Xenarchus, an ancient Greek, "are cicadas' lives, for they all have silent wives." Digestive organs of the male are simple, but are well developed in the female.

Wearing Qualities of Shirts Can Be Extended

To extend the wearing period for shirts, home specialists suggest these timely tips: Turn collars and cuffs when the edges are frayed. Cut patches from the shirt tails and reinforce points of stress, or patch worn places with them. When cutting patches, why not just even the shirt tail? Then the garment can serve equally well with tail worn outside or tucked in. If you have two shirts alike that are partially worn, combine them to make one good one. Use strong parts of a worn shirt to make a smaller model for one of the younger boys in the family. Restitch rips in seams as soon as they occur, and rework torn or too large buttonholes. Remember that all repair work should be done before laundering, as a small rip may become an unsightly tear in laundering and thereby make the shirt useless. When the shirt is too worn to wear, it still may have its possibilities. Use strong sections for aprons and for children's pinafores, or make a dickey for the teen-ager's sweater or suit.

Sugar Substitutes

According to food specialists, in most recipes one sugar may be substituted for another, measure for measure. This is true for making puddings, pie fillings and baked custards. With brown sugar the flavor will be delicately caramel and the color somewhat darker. Since brown sugar custards tend to curdle, it is especially important that baking temperature be kept low. Brown or confectioner's sugar may be substituted for granulated in cookie recipes; but with cakes you'd better use the kind the recipe calls for. Remember that the kind of sugar greatly affects texture of cakes and substitutions may cause failure. Ice cream—either plain or fruit-flavored—can be satisfactorily sweetened with confectioner's sugar. Brown sugar is good in chocolate, mocha or butterscotch ice cream.

Prevent Scurvy

Vitamin C from pine needles helped to keep the Russian army free from scurvy during the war, says "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry." Investigated and used also was the unripe fruit of the walnut. Pine needles are widespread and accessible during the winter months, explains the journal. The vitamin C content is not high, but it is said to exceed five times that of lemons. The meat of unripe walnuts contains about 2 per cent vitamin C. To obtain the anti-scurvitic material, the pine needles were covered with water containing about 0.5 to 1 per cent of liquid bread yeast, and this mixture was kept for two or three days at 86 or 90 degrees F. Use of "vitapine," it was said, prevented an outbreak of scurvy in the Russian forces, in which there were 280,000 cases during the First World war.

Washing Blankets

When your blankets become soiled enough to need washing, here are a few simple but necessary rules that must be followed to prevent shrinkage and felting. Have plenty of tepid water (100 degrees) for washing. If possible prepare two rinse waters of the same temperature as the wash water. Add mild soap to the wash water and dissolve it thoroughly to make a standing suds. Place the blankets in the suds and water loosely and do not wash longer than two or three minutes. Squeeze the water from the blanket by hand if you are not using a mechanical washer with a centrifugal-type dryer. Never twist a blanket; do not put it through a wringer.

Men Come In Packages

Every man is a package of human merchandise. Wrapped up in his personality are the qualities that make him a success, or a failure.

In employing men, the wise executive considers each man as a package of abilities, talents and characteristics. He strives to buy only human packages of efficiency and leadership.

What are some of the qualities each person should strive to wrap up in the human package he is offering the world?

Quality human packages should contain: The habit of hard work. Absolute loyalty. The study habit. The ability to think constructively. A cheerful, victorious attitude. Faith and self-confidence. A spirit of co-operation. Ambition and perseverance. Dynamic good will toward all. Courage. A knowledge of how to get along with people. Human packages containing these qualities are never on the shelf for long. Executives grab them up in a hurry! They are fast sellers! — Wilfred A. Peterson.
