A PARTIAL EXPLANATION CURRENT BUTTER SHORTAGE

Meeting in joint conference with officials of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and O. P. A., the executive ative Milk Producers Federation on January 5 demanded (1) immediate decision and announcement of a long-time government policy on milk con-time government governm trol and price ceilings, and (2) an immediate announcement of a dairy farm income goal to be coupled with the recently announced production operations are prevalent; and that the government has provided no way of equitably providing butter for consumers as long as milk and cream are being diverted to channels of higher income and black market operations.

They pointed to the "unfairness" of butter ceilings when the cream from which it can be made is celling free. They declared that consumer demand for butter in the face of this ceiling-free market for fresh of this ceiling-free market for fresh and plastic cream is resulting in a gigantic growth of small home-churning operations and in prices of as high as $1.00 to $1.20 per pound on cream for home churning.

"The break-down of price control in dairy products demands government recognition of an uncontrollable situation and remedial government action without delay," declared John Brandt, Litchfield. Minn., president of the organization. "If immediate action is not taken, a special meeting of the board of directors and member associations of the National Co-operative Milk Producers Federation must be called to lay the dairy farmers' grievances before Congress.'

Immediate decision and announcement on long-time government policies are essential (1) so that farmers can plan their production programs, and (2) in order to halt dispersal sales of herds and closing down of dairy farms in all parts of the country.

Prospects for needed changes in parity seem brighter now than at nual meeting, asked for immediate revision of the parity formula to include farm wage rates, and to adjust parity prices of individual products according to actual prices of the ten preceding years. The American Farm Bureau Federation, recognizing, particularly, the inequitable treatment of livestock products under the present formula, will support a formula "that is fairer and more defensible than the present parity for any or all basic crops. President E. A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said at his annual meeting: "The most promising proposal I have heard is to take the actual average price for the ten preceding years and then adjust it to reflect the economic balance that existed between agriculture and industry during the base period of 1919-1914.

Failure of the Federal government and butter has contributed to the governor.

Fred Mielke, 85, beloved pioneer resident of Cameron, where he had made his home since 1901, and prominently identified with farming interests of Potlatch ridge, died at his home there Friday morning at 6:00 o'clock, the immediate cause of death being the infirmities of old

Mr. Mielke was born at Green Isle, Minnesota, Nov. 11, 1860, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mielke. On July 24, 1888, he was united in mar-riage to Miss Theresa Hartung at Arlington, Minnesota. She preceded him in death, passing away October 5, 1940.

In the year 1901 the family settled at Cameron, and had since made their home on the family farm. Mr. Mielke was always progressive both on his farm and in the working for betterments in the community, such as roads, schools and church affairs, and his helping hand will be greatly missed.

Mr. Mielke was a communicant of the Lutheran church. Survivors are his seven children:

Silflow, Gus Kruger, Herman Meyer and August Brammer, accompanied and August Brammer, accompanied some of these days — I hope! | I hope! by Mrs. Theodore Meske, organist. Friends filled the church, and the host of beautiful floral offerings showed the high esteem in which Mr. Mielke was held.

Interment was at the Cameron Dear Mac: cemeters with the following acting as pallbearers: W. A. Brunseik, Herman Silflow, August Brammer, George Wilken, Walter Koepp and charge. August F. Wegner.

OLD JUDGE: "It's funny you asked that, Dick... I was just reading a piece about it." DICK: "What did it say?"

OLD JUDGE: "A very sensible statement. It said the beverage distillers are fully aware of this problem and are cooperating in every way possible to help solve it. The alcoholic is to the beverage distilling industry what the reckless driver is to the automobile industry. There is nothing wrong with the automobile, but in the hands of a man who doesn't know how to drive it or is reckless, it becomes a menace. Likewise, it's not the use but the abuse of alcoholic beverages that causes trouble."

DICK: "Wonder why it is most men can drink moderately and others can't?"

OLD JUDGE: "Intensive research at a great university has shown that most excessive drinkers are really sick people. They are suffering from some physical, social or emotional upset. And great strides have been made in developing clinical methods of helping these unfortunate people."

Better Soil Grows Healthier Livestock

Cattle Prefer Hay From Fertilized Soil

Cattle have sense enough to show armers whether their pasture land is properly fertilized or not, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee.

"That was demonstrated by a recent experiment reported by Dr. William A. Albrecht, head of the Fertilized hay that pays.

Soils department of the University of Missouri," says the statement.

"The cattle were turned loose in a field in which there were two stacks of hay. The grasses were the same species; the curing was the same. The hay looked and smelled the same. But the cattle ate the stack from the treated area first and ignored the other until "The hay from the stacks was analyzed in a laboratory. Then it was discovered that that stack contained much more calcium and phosphorus - two minerals cattle must have for good health. The good hay came from soil that had been treated with lime and fertilizer. The poor hay came from untreated land.

Following experiments at the University of California, an electric debeaker for poultry has been placed on the market by the Lyon Rural Electric company, San Diego, Calif. It eliminates picking and cannibalsm, reduces feed loss and birds' nervousness and increases the quality of birds in general.

Enriched Tomatoes

Tomatoes with 10 times as much vitamin A value as is contained in varieties now offered on the market may be developed, according to Dr. F. P. Zschiele of the University of Chicago.

While rapid strides have been made in the development of varieties, Dr. Zschiele looks for considerable improvement in the postwar era, to such a point that tomatoes may be graded upon their vitamin content.

Increased Profits and Yields by Rotation

Erosion Controlled by Proper Farm Planning

The growing of intertilled crops such as corn and soybeans not only uses plant food faster, but the loss from erosion is greater too, on rolling land, according to careful checks made at Iowa State college. To overcome this condition rotation is important. The first requirement of a good crop rotation is that it contains plenty of legumes. Sod crops of legume-grass combination produce much feed per acre, and in addition, they:

Increase the yields of other crops in the rotation.

Help maintain soil fertility, particularly the nitrogen and organic matter.

Produce good soil tilth.

Help control erosion. Where corn was grown in a fouryear rotation of corn, oats, followed by clover and timothy for two years, the yield of corn was 32 bushels higher than when grown in a corn-oats rotation. In poor crop years, the difference in yield may be smaller than those obtained in the good crop years of 1942 to 1944. However, the difference between the poor and good rotations will probably become greater the longer the treatments are continued. One of the most important reasons why crop yields decrease when down motion of the plunger accomland is kept in grain crops such plishes the same result as the backas corn and oats is that these crops lower the nitrogen and organic matter content of soils.

Legumes in rotation increase the yield of corn. Marshall silt loam, Soil Conservation Experimental Farm, Clarinda, Ia. (Years 1942-44.)

Calf Parentage Proven

By Blood Test Method

the blood test made by the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. I. Hendrick, veterinarian of Owensboro, Ky., who is the "Dr. Dafoe" of the quad calves, stated that he could find no record of the birth of four healthy, normal calves at one time by a single cow. Quadruplets have been borne by cows but have only survived a few hours or days, Dr. Hendrick says.

Supplement to Urea

Urea, the nitrogen compound, known as a "protein" substitute for cud-chewing animals, works well for growing heifers in a ration made up of roughage, molasses, urea and a small amount of either protein or

Molasses, urea and low-protein roughage does not constitute a good ration alone but should be supplemented by some such protein as casein. The molasses does not stay in the animal's rumen long enough for micro-organisms to convert efficiently the molasses and urea into protein. It is for this reason that some other form of protein must be added.

Food-and-Mouth Fear

A warning to livestock owners to be on the alert against the possible appearance of foot-and-mouth disease has been issued by the American Veterinary Medical association. It is believed that the disease may become a "fellow traveler" to the hundreds of thousands of soldiers returning from overseas areas where foot-and-mouth disease is widespread among livestock. The disease has been completely eradicated from

White House First Public Structure in Washington

The White House was the first public structure erected in Washington, the cornerstone being laid, with impressive ceremonies, on October 13, 1792. The design of the mansion and the terraces has been largely influenced by the palace of the Duke of Leinster in Dublin, Ireland. The architect was James Hoban, a native of Ireland.

The first occupants of the White House were President and Mrs. John Adams. They moved in before the interior had been quite completed, in November, 1800. The burning of the mansion 14 years later de-stroyed part of the walls and the interior. Reconstruction was started in the spring of 1815. President Monroe took occupancy in December, 1817. In 1824, the south portico was finished, and in 1829 the north portico was completed.

The executive office, three stories in height, about 40 feet long and 100 feet wide, was added in 1902 to provide offices for the president and his White House staff. The new east wing was built in 1942 after the United States entered the war, to provide necessary additional office space. It is also three stories high and is approximately 156 feet long by 100 feet wide. The main part of the White House has four floors and is approximately 170 feet long by 85 feet wide. The east terrace is one story high and approximatelely 215 feet long and 35 feet wide. When large receptions are held it is used for entrance and cloakroom purposes. The west terrace, also one story high is approximately 165 feet long by 35 feet wide and includes the president's swimming pool and some small offices used by a part of the White House personnel. The White House buildings and grounds occupy about 16 acres.

Short Soaking Relieves Washboard Scrubbing

Washboard scrubbing is hard on the clothes as well as on the back, according to home management specialists. Better all-round results can be accomplished by a brief soaking period and good, brisk action with a hand suction plunger.

Soak the clothes for 5 to 10 minutes in clear, lukewarm water long soaking is not recommended, as it tends to set stains and gives the loosened dirt a chance to settle right back into the material again.

Wash in hot water below 160 degrees, with just enough soap to make a good standing suds. Use the suction plunger when available rather than a washboard. The up-andand-forth churning of a machine, but does it with less wear. It forces the sudsy water through the fibers of the cloth. Badly soiled, stubborn spots may need some brushing or hand rubbing. Rub the material gently between the hands or with brush and in the soapsuds. Do not rub soap directly on the spot. It does little good in the way of cleaning, tends to injure the fabric and wastes soap.

Store Fruit Juices

Fruit juices for jelly or beverages may be canned or frozen and kept until needed. The juice can then be "made up" in small batches as needed. Flavor and color will be better for beverage juice if sugar is used at the rate of 1 cup to 8 cups of juice, but juice for jelly should be preserved without sugar so that later measurements may be accurate. Always use stainless steel knives, wooden spoons, kettles and containers of heat-proof glass, and good quality aluminum or enamelware. Copper or iron utensils cause loss of vitamin C and give the juice a metallic flavor. Select well-ripened fruit if the juice is to be used as a beverage, and slightly under-ripe fruit if for jelly. Never use over - ripe, off - flavored or moldy fruit, as a very small amount will cause off flavors in the entire lot.

Emergency Knife

When a flyer is hurt during combat operations, his wounds must be treated quickly. Removing his heavy flying clothing takes valuable time and might subject him to weather and shock. Besides, it would be hard to dress him again. An answer to the problem has been found in an emergency knife with a twoinch blade of stainless steel which can speedily rip through several layers of clothing. After the wound is treated, the ripped section can easily be bound together. The knife has a wooden handle and the rustresistant stainless steel blade is perforated, so that the knife will be light enough to float if the plane must be abandoned. It is attached to a leather sheath by a cord.

Fish Eaters

After rice, the Japanese people eat more fish than any other food. It is their chief source of protein. They consume it raw and cooked: fresh, dried, salted and canned: in soups, pastes and sauces. Popular seafood includes sardine, salmon, mackerel, herring, tuna, bonita, flounder, carp and various kinds of shellfish. Squid, eel, octopus, shark, edible seaweed, and other marine products considered too exotic for most American taste, are made use of in Japan. In all, it has been estimated that prewar Japan ate fish at the annual rate of more than 100 pounds per person.

Better Handling of Range Helps Forage

Grazing Plans Aid to Natural Reseeding

More than 73,244,000 acres of gran ing lands are being conserved, developed and utilized under range management plans which are a part of the government's agricultural conservation program.

Better forage for livestock is a natural result of better handling of accessible range. At the same time. soil on the range and on nearby cropland receives increased protection.

Proper utilization of rangeland requires a carefully worked-out "use plan" involving a number of factors. In widest use are such practices as rotating grazing, natural reseeding through deferred grazing, artificial reseeding by drilling, broadcasting and harrowing in suitable locations, development of properly spaced, adequate and dependable water supplies, eradication of destructive plants, proper fencing to facilitate uniform distribution of stock, and water spreading measures to divert run-off water and prevent erosive action.

Proper management of one range area may require only a few of these practices, while another will need many or all of them in order to return the range soil to its original fertility. Reseeding, both natural and artificial, is an essential to most rangeland.

While natural reseeding through deferred grazing is held to be the most practical method, excell sults are reported from artificial reseeding on lands where sufficient remnants of desirable forage plants

Extension Oil Can

Oil Can Equipped with Wire.

There are usually one or two oil holes on all machinery that the average oil can will not reach. This can be remedied by taking a copper wire about three inches longer than the spout and bend at right angles, as shown in the illustration. The bent end is inserted into the can, and spout is placed over the wire. The bent piece will prevent wire from falling out but will allow the oil to follow wire into oil hole de-

Postwar Machinery Harvester

Postwar harvesting will be taken care of by self-propelled harvesters. The self-propelled feature on this machine designed by the Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement company, makes possible the harvest of all crops at lower cost.

Unusual engineering development makes the feature adaptable in harvesting all types of grain including rice.

Alfalfa Meal Valuable

Alfalfa meal has been found of high value as a source of the watersoluble vitamins in hog feeding.

A supplement of 10 to 12 per cent alfalfa meal in a basal diet to sows in the gestation and lactation period resulted in 82.5 per cent of their pigs reaching weaning stage. This trial showed superior results when compared with ground yellow corn, soybean meal, tankage, fish meal tankage and dried corn distillers' solu-

The butter situation is serious. The diversion of butterfat from the areas of high production with a corresponding decrease in butter make, has created a very difficult situation. Large plants that are handling is being made into a variety of dairy products other than butter. In some places people are buying whipping cream, which they are churning into butter at a cost whole milk are separating this milk and shipping the sweet cream to the industrial areas where it approximating $1.50 per pound.

This has resulted in an increasing pressure on small plants buying farm separated cream from which they can make butter only. We therefore ask that the people of this area co-operate with us by not mailing butter out of the area in large quantities. This will enable us to make an effort to secure equal distribution in this area, so everyone will have
