Information About Motor Oil
 The American Petroleum Institute recently set up three new grades to help buyers to know what quality of oil they're getting. These new grades are different from the commonly used SAE numbers. The three new grades are:

Regular motor oil — This is an oil with no chemical added. It's generally suitable for use in internal combustion engines under moderate operating conditions. This includes most passenger cars and farm trucks as well as the farm tractor in ordinary service.

The term "Premium Oil" designates an oil which has been stabilized by chemicals. Oils of this type are recommended for internal combustion engines where operating conditions are such that the regular motor oil will not give satisfactory service. Motor oil users will find that this oil gives superior service in passenger cars, trucks and tractors.

The term "Heavy Duty Oil" means an oil of high stability. It contains properties which prevent corrosion and help keep the engine clean. The degree of stabilization of this oil is superior to that of premium oil. It will give generally good service in high-speed diesel and gasoline engines operating under severe heavy duty conditions.

Motor oils designated by the new grade system have been proven in laboratory tests. If there's any doubt as to what type of oil is being purchased or the grade you should have, be sure to talk it over with your local petroleum supplier.

VERNON R. RICH APPOINTED GAME COORDINATOR

Boise—Appointment of Vernon R. Rich of Ashton, conservation officer for several years and veteran of World War II, as state co-ordinator of federal aid projects for wildlife restoration was announced today by T. B. Murray, director of the Idaho fish and game department. The appointment is effective June 1.

Rich succeeds John J. Boyle who has been in charge of the federal aid division since 1939. Boyle has resigned to take a field position as conservation officer. He has been assigned to Valley county with headquarters at Cascade.

In his new position Rich will manage Idaho wildlife projects under the Pittman - Robertson act by which states receive federal funds for advancement of big game and big game birds. A bill is now pending in congress to include game fish in the program. Principal work is creation and improvement of game refuges. Idaho spends approximately $80,000 annually on such restoration, of which 75 percent is paid from federal funds received from a tax on guns and ammunition.

The new co-ordinator was selected from three candidates, all members of the fish and game department, who qualified by merit system examination. Rich was then selected by federal officers who submitted the three men to further tests.

Rich served in the Navy during the war. On his return he resumed his conservation officer position at Ashton. He will move to Boise as soon as living accommodations for his family can be obtained.

A replacement for Rich in the Ashton area will be made soon. O. R. Christenson, chief conservation officer at Idaho Falls, said every effort would be made to fill the vacancy by June 4 when trout season begins.

Descriptive literature about the Pacific Northwest, including the 10 counties which comprise the North Idaho Scenic-Land Assn., Inc., was placed in the hands of some 150,000 prospective visitors at the three recent travel exhibitions in Cincinnati, Detroit, and Chicago.

Rich was appointed a conservation officer in 1940 after receiving a degree in forestry from Utah State Agricultural college and spending several years in forest service employment. As a game officer he was stationed in North-Eastern Idaho, an area of fishing and hunting intensity. He was commended by his superiors as one of the most able men in the department.

A replacement for Rich in the Ashton area will be made soon. O. R. Christenson, chief conservation officer at Idaho Falls, said every effort would be made to fill the vacancy by June 4 when trout season begins.

Splendid prizes are again offered, ranging from medal to $200.00 college scholarships.

In Idaho county winners were named last year in Benewah, Bingham, Bonner, Clearwater, Idaho, Latah, Nez Perce and Jefferson counties.

If interested in this type of work consult your nearest 4-H club leader or county agent.

Department Of Law Enforcement

Each session of the legislature writes new laws, changes or repeals old ones, leaving the enforcement of regulations to the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement. The head of the department is a commissioner named by the governor, and under him are bureau heads.

Idaho's commissioner of law enforcement is R. C. Lewis, of Pocatello, formerly with the Union Pacific railroad. His department is divided into bureaus of motor vehicle, driver's license, caravan, auto transportation, athletics, motor fuels, occupational license, beer and malt revenue, kilowatt-hour and mine tax, and liquor law enforcement.

Only a small portion of the department is devoted to "running down criminals," although the state police are often called in for that purpose. Rather, the department's biggest duty is licensing. Whether you want a driver's license or an occupational (business) license, it is the department of law enforcement which investigates your qualifications and issues or denies the permit. The operation of one motor vehicle or a caravan involves motor fuels as well as licenses.

Duties of the department are set by law. The department cooperates with county and city officials and with the office of the attorney general.

4-H Clubbers Raise Chickens

Forty-three state winners in the 1946 National 4-H Poultry achievement activity raised a total of 90,680 fowl during the club work, which ranged from three to ten years, the national committee has announced.

The winners comprised 30 boys and 13 girls. The average age of the group in 1946 was 17 years. They won $2,118.00 in cash prizes on their poultry exhibits, which brought the estimated value of all their 4-H projects to $271,700.00. Incomes from their poultry alone ranged from $448.00 to $20,700.00.

In Idaho county winners were named last year in Benewah, Bingham, Bonner, Clearwater, Idaho, Latah, Nez Perce and Jefferson counties.

If interested in this type of work consult your nearest 4-H club leader or county agent.

Laborers told 'War is Over'

High school and college students were warned that they cannot expect to be paid wartime wages in Idaho this summer. Bruce A. Meyer, manager of the Payette office of the Idaho state employment service, stated last week that the "war is over" so far as high wages to unskilled workers are concerned.

"Young people on their first jobs cannot expect to receive the high wages they heard about during the war," he said.

Meyer urged employers in stores and on farms to provide jobs for "the young Americans" who attend school and want to work during their vacation periods.

Fire Jumpers In Training

"Getting there fustest" is the aim of the firefighters in the Payette national forest. Fifty smoke jumpers will begin training June 2 near McCall. Of the group, 23 are new men who will have a complete "juniper" course of 20 days. Shorter refresher courses will be given those who have "jumped" before. None of the airborne firefighters will be available to fight fires before July 1st.

IDAHO DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH IS IMPORTANT

The Idaho department of public health is one of few not affected by changes in administration, for all of the personnel are under the merit system, or civil service. The department's function is to serve the people of the state in matters of health without encroaching on the practice of physicians. Mainly, the department cooperates in projects to prevent illness, to help those who are crippled or ill, and to provide more healthful surroundings for all.

The program of the department is divided into 7 divisions—administrative, local health service, vital statistics, maternal and child health, nursing and laboratories. Under these divisions, a total of 135 trained people are employed. Funds for operation are received from the following sources: Federal, 57 per cent; state, 26 per cent; and local (cities and towns), 17 per cent. Five local health units, located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Boise, Twin Falls, and Pocatello, serve 47 per cent of Idaho's residents.

Administrative director is L. J. Peterson, Boise, whose office serves as a clearing house for all public health functions. L. J. Lull, M. D., is director of local health services. Dr. Lull is also in charge of the venereal disease section which operates the rapid treatment center. John W. Wright, formerly of Montpelier, is director of the division of vital statistics. Director of engineering is H. C. Clare, formerly of Cambridge, whose staff of sanitarians inspects water, dairy products, and other foods, and aids in planning sewage disposal systems and other health safeguards.

Maternal and child health, including crippled children's service is directed by Ruth J. Raattama, M. D. Florence V. Whipple, R. N., Boise, is director of nursing. The laboratories of the department assist the medical profession through their technical personnel and often supply biologicals and drugs without cost to Idaho residents.

Home Repair Needs Large

Latah County's non-farm home owners will spend an estimated $394,000 on repair and modernization work during 1947.

At least a third and probably more than half of all dwellings in the county will be improved or repaired this year, according to estimates released by the Tile Council of America. "Increased supplies of building materials and easing of restrictions should make possible a record volume of home modernization throughout the country," said F. B. Ortman, chairman of the Council's Residential Construction Committee.

The county's 4,757 single-family homes will account for most expenditures, the study revealed. Painting is the most often wanted improvement, with about a third of all owners planning to redecorate home exteriors or some room of the interior. About 13 per cent of all dwellings need new roofs or roofing repairs, and large numbers will have water-pipes repaired, bathrooms tiled or showers installed during the year, according to the report.

As evidence of the increase in building supplies, Ortman pointed out that floor and wall tile volume is expected to hit an all-time high this year. "Stepped-up production of materials means that the construction industry can both build record numbers of houses and do the repair work neglected during the war," he said.

Watch Your Hay Derricks

As haying season gets into full swing in this area, Herman Schupfer, local manager for the Washington Water Power company issues a strict warning to operators of hay derricks whose activities require moving them under electric power lines. "The only safe way to make such moves is to lower the derrick boom before approaching the power line crossing," he states. "Never guess at clearance between an upright boom and a power line."

The power company manager has pointed out that several deaths have occurred in the Inland Empire in the last 12 months from the tangling of derricks in power lines, and others have been fortunate to escape without serious injury. In addition to such negligence being a danger to human life, wires broken from such contact may set fire to crops or timber upon striking the ground. If heavy equipment must be moved under a power line, power company officials ask that they be notified. "Rather than expose anyone to danger, we are willing to take the line out of service temporarily in cases where there isn't sufficient clearance between equipment and high voltage wires," the WP men said.

AFL Lashes At Controls

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, addressing the convention of the Building and Construction Trades department in Chicago last month, sounded a strong demand for "less government control" on matters affecting wages and prices, according to the Idaho Labor News.

"We are asking less government control because we have learned, by experience, our own lesson," said Green. "Government has failed miserably in labor relations and wage and price controls."

Bees Essential to Agricultural Needs

Winter Care to Save Crops for Next Year

By W. J. DRYDEN

Hundreds of hives of bees died during the past season. Many crops depend upon bees for pollination. In order to insure production during next year, it is essential that the bees be saved this winter.

Wintering of bees is not merely a matter of protecting colonies from low temperatures, feeding is essential. Starvation is the principal cause of losses throughout the country.

Bees should be prepared for winter so that they will need no attention until early spring.

While bees survive the cold of winter by clinging together in a great ball, the bees on the inside frequently change place with those on the cold outside.

In most sections of the country, bees were unable to store sufficient food to last this winter, so it becomes necessary to supplement their rations by hand feeding during the winter months. Allowances of sugar may be secured from local ration boards during this emergency.

KNOW YOUR BREED

Hampshires

By W. J. DRYDEN

Of English origin, Hampshires were at one time called Thin Rind hogs and classed as a bacon breed. They are now known as a lard type.

Prolific, good sucklers and good grazers, with head and jaws small and narrow, they have good flesh quality and are welcomed on the market.

The Hampshire is black with a white belt around the body at the shoulder, which extends down over the forelegs. They are medium in size. Emphasis is placed upon uniformity in width, neatly laid shoulders, ample width at the rump and deep and plump hams. Neat, clean-cut quality bone is important. Extremes in length and narrow width should be avoided. Coarseness in any part is not favored.

Phenothiazine Proves

New Drug Sensation

Phenothiazine, the sensational chemical compound that controls more kinds of internal parasites in more kinds of animals than any other drug known, has found a new field of economic usefulness—as an insecticide for control of the codling moth. Combined with arsenate, it has given outstanding control of this devastating pest in numerous experiments conducted in many eastern and southern states.

Use Lights to Boost Production of Eggs

Winter Health Better When Day Is Increased

By W. J. DRYDEN

Egg production may be increased 60 per cent during the winter months by proper use of electric lights to increase the laying hen's working day to 13 or 14 hours.

Feed consumption per bird will be higher but the amount of feed to produce a dozen eggs will be less when lights are provided. Later hatched pullets also will profit. Their sexual maturity will be hastened.

Real purpose of lights in the fall and winter months is to stimulate the egg-laying organs. They serve another purpose, however, as in recent tests it has been found that health of the laying flock is improved.

Size of bulbs will depend upon the house construction, number of bulbs used and color of the walls. The lighter the walls the less light is needed. Reflectors should be so placed that the floor, feed hoppers water containers and roosts are well lighted. Wide-angle reflectors about 12 inches in diameter, should be used to obtain maximum efficiency.

KNOW YOUR BREED

Red Sindhi

By W. J. DRYDEN

Similar to all other breeds of Brahman cattle in appearance and characteristics, the Red Sindhi has the added advantage of better developed udders and will produce at least 2,500 pounds of milk.

A recent importation from India by the U.S.D.A. will make it possible to use the improved dairy strain of Indian cattle to combine the Brahman qualities of resistance to heat, pests and drought with the dairy qualities of our domestic dairy cattle.

Considerable evidence exists to indicate that crossing the Red Sindhi with the Jersey breed may aid in developing a more desirable dairy animal for the tropical and subtropical areas of the United States. Crosses with Jersey bulls and purebred Red Sindhi cows have been made at the Allahabad institute, India, for more than 14 years, with apparently favorable results.

Brands Prove Value In the United States

President Theodore Roosevelt believed in registration or recording of cattle brands. Not only as a mark of distinction but also as a means of protection, Teddy advo-

Ranchman Theodore Roosevelt

ated the branding and registering of cattle. Tattooing and ear tags have supplemented branding, each having some advantage. The pride of a farm operator in his brand has resulted in a high quality breed or strain.

Lopped Comb Serves as Conditioning Indicator

When chickens are confined for fattening and fed soft mash to encourage fat production, combs of the birds gradually enlarge in size. The condition of the comb changes as the size increases, taking on a smoother external surface. As the size increases, the comb also tends to lop over to the side. Such condition is therefore an indication of the bird making good use of the feed eaten, for market purposes.

Increase Milk With Electrical Deicers

Higher Production Can Be Secured With Control

Of all the problems which livestock farmers face during the winter, one of the most annoying is the task of preventing ice from coating the surface of their stock tanks.

An adequate year-round water supply is essential to enable dairy cows to continue top milk production and to maintain economical gains on beef cattle and hogs. A pressure water system will do the job most of the year, but what about those freezing months farmers now are facing?

The following results of tests conducted by Purdue university help in approaching the problem: There is no advantage in actually warming water for stock; the maintenance of an ice-free drinking hole is sufficient; water under pressure eliminates the necessity of having large capacity storage tanks.

Given these findings, agricultural engineers have turned to electricity as a means of overcoming winter stock tank worries. Research has shown that electric heaters, with wattages rated as low as 300, are capable of keeping ice-free holes open in small tanks without difficulty. Among newly developed electric stock tank heaters, operating at low cost, is a device which is designed to float on the surface of the water. It consists of a hollow metal disk, encircled by a heating element and containing a thermostat. Tests show that it can keep a recommended drinking hole open in temperatures far below zero.

KNOW YOUR BREED

Texas Longhorns

By W. J. DRYDEN

This ancient breed of cattle, which used to roam in the southwest in vast herds, is being successfully rescued from threatened extinction by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

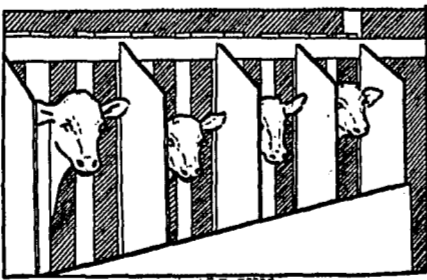

Texas Longhorns first were introduced to this continent in 1521 by

Gregorio Villalobos, a governor-general of "New Spain."

With the introduction of heavier, beefier cattle, the Longhorns began to disappear.

Shelter for Calves

Shelters for calves and heifers should be dry and well-bedded. The Washington State college individual pens about 24 to 30 square feet in area may be used for small calves. They help prevent the calves from sucking each other, make it easier to feed the calves individually and help to prevent spread of disease.

Penicillin Fails as Pear Blight Control

While penicillin has proven the wonder drug of the century, it has proven utterly unsuited to control pear and walnut blights, according to work done by Dr. B. A. Rudolph, University of California deciduous fruit station at San Jose. Large concentrations failed completely to check the disease when injected into the trees. It is believed that excessive dilution of the drug by the sap stream is responsible.

Not So Good!
A report on production of passenger cars by General Motors in the United States, issued from Detroit the last week, showed that the organization maintained its pace of the three previous weeks, but was still falling almost 50 per cent below the normal weekly output in 1941.

Total passenger car production in August was somewhat more than 23,000 cars a week. This year GM has turned out 316,615 passenger cars in the U. S. compared with 1,385,905 produced by the corporation up to this time in 1941. Truck production is also far below 1941 standards, but again went up in the last week with 9,988 units turned out, a small gain over the previous week.

Urge Caution in Use of DDT on Domestic Animals
Owners of farm animals and domestic pets are advised to exercise at least "ordinary caution" when they use DDT to protect their animals against insects and parasites. Although federal regulations do not require that DDT be labeled "poison" but only with the word "caution," the American Foundation for Animal Health recommends a conservative policy in use of the new insecticide, especially around milk cows.
Because cattle and cats commonly lick themselves, they are probably more likely than other animals to suffer toxic effects from DDT sprayed or powdered on their bodies, the American foundation warns. Furthermore, it is known that DDT, when consumed in excess, is excreted in the milk of cows. It appears unlikely that a cow would absorb enough to poison the milk, but there is much yet to be learned on this potential hazard. In the meantime, the cautious use of DDT is recommended.
Farmers are advised to use DDT only in a water solution or powdered form when applying it direct to animals. Oily solutions of the insecticide are absorbed through the skin to a degree that might prove dangerous.

Australia Supports 16 Times As Many Sheep as People
In Australia there are nearly 16 times as many sheep as people, Prof. J. F. Wilson of the University of California points out. Some 7 1/2 million people live on the vast sub-continent, mostly along the sea coasts.
The Australian wool clip is the world's best, Wilson asserted. This is made possible because of the high and rigid standards imposed. The production of wool is of primary importance with lamb production secondary. Wilson saw one lot of 25 rams which averaged 31 pounds of wool and a thousand wethers whose fleece weights averaged 22 pounds.
Drouth and rabbits are two factors to contend with, Wilson said. A drouth may in one year cause the death of thousands of sheep. Rabbits are a perpetual menace. Five will eat as much as one sheep and 250,000 miles of rabbit-proof fence have been built.

Urge Care in Deodorants
The careless use of non-perspirants or deodorants may do as much or more damage to garments than perspiration, according to textile and clothing specialists of the department of agriculture. When a good dress goes to pieces under the arm or changes color, even skillful patching may not make it wearable again. In using these chemicals women should be careful to follow directions on the label. Any chemical strong enough to stop perspiration may rot fabric or cause the dye to fade or change in color. Cotton and rayon fabrics especially are likely to be rotted by preparations that have an acid reaction.

Range Land
Slightly more than half of the range land in the 11 far western states, including Nevada, is now in private ownership, according to a report on livestock production in relation to land use in irrigation made by the bureau of agricultural economics. About 10 per cent of the range land is in state and county ownership, and the remaining 40 per cent in federal ownership. Much of the range is still unfenced open country although more and more is being fenced. Grazing on most of the publicly owned range is now controlled by public agencies.

British Union
For more than a thousand years history and geography have combined both to link and to separate England and Wales, notes the National Geographic society. Into the Welsh hills the early Britons fled before the Anglo-Saxon invasion. There, in the shelter of narrow, isolated valleys, these Celtic people maintained their independence until near the end of the 13th century, when Edward I of England brought about submission. It was at this time - as a result of Edward's naming his infant son the "Prince of Wales" - that the familiar title for England's heirs to the throne originated.

Attack V. D.
Using a new publicity approach, Louisville public health officers aided by the U. S. Public Health Service have discovered 433 cases of venereal disease in the first 1,740 persons examined during the city's current anti-V.D. drive. The American Municipal association reports that the primary aim of the all-out campaign against V.D. is to teach people through all publicity media to recognize the first symptoms of venereal disease and to come to public clinics or their private physicians for treatment. In seven other cities where anti-V.D. drives have been waged recently, publicity encouraged all citizens to appear at clinics for blood tests. Although this approach is being used also in Louisville, more emphasis is being placed on clarifying V.D. symptoms. This accounts in great measure for the high V.D. rage among those tested in Louisville.

Insurance May Be Extended
Recent legislation provides that World War I veterans may extend their United States Government Life Insurance for another five-year term, the Veterans Administration announces.
Applications for renewal must be made before the expiration of the present term, the VA cautions. Premiums will be based on the present age of the veteran and no medical examination will be required.
Veterans may apply at their local VA contact office for application forms and assistance in preparing them.
Information as to a particular USGLI policy status may be obtained from the VA's central office, Washington, D. C. Insurance files for World War I veterans have not been centralized to the branch offices which handle National Service Life Insurance issued to World War II veterans.
Peak enrollments expected this fall will make it difficult for veterans returning to school for the first time, the Veterans Administration reports.
Veterans planning to enter college this fall should make immediate application for entrance, the VA urges. A delay may mean being "shut out".
Approximately 62,000 Northwest veterans are now attending institutions of higher education and an even greater number are expected to take advantage of their G. I. privileges this fall.
Veterans are also advised to obtain a certificate of eligibility from the VA. The certificate, when returned to the VA by the school after the veteran has been enrolled, becomes the basis for payment of tuition, fees and subsistence.

Federal Payroll Declining
Last summer when the federal pay raise bill was before congress, the bureau of the budget gave assurances that by June 30 of this year, the civilian payroll in the executive branch would be reduced to 1,611,000. This was intended partially to offset increased personnel costs. It is now apparent that federal departments will miss this mark by more than 500,000.
The U. S. civil service commission has just reported that as of March 31, 1947, total paid civilian employment was 2,254,551. In the continental United States there were 1,944,372 employees, and 310,179 outside the boundaries and in foreign countries. There was a net decrease of 32,418 during March. Paid employment in the Washington area totaled 217,984, showing that curtailment is only slowly approaching the 100,000 level prevalent in pre-war times. All of the bureaus, commissions and agencies are resisting proposed reductions at hearings on appropriation bills, and many of them are actually requesting increases in personnel and in operating funds for the next fiscal year.

Want A Fish Pond?
Would you like to have a pond full of fish on your place? Well, it's not too difficult to arrange if you've got a place for it.
A bulletin put out recently by the USDA tells all about it. Of course, an important part of soil and moisture conservation is making the best use of every acre on the farm. Where a good site for a farm pond exists, no better use can be made of it than to develop it to produce fish for your family. That is, if the pond is built properly. Also, the recreation the pond affords adds a lot to the pleasure of life.
Thousands of farms have good pond sites. Properly developed and

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS:

Annual Stockholders' Meeting—

We would like to announce that the 6th Annual Stockholders Meeting of the Kendrick Co-operative Creamery will be held in the Kendrick Theatre, Saturday, June 28, 1947. The meeting will begin at 1:00 p. m., with a short program of entertainment following the business meeting.

May we urge all members to attend this meeting, and also any new dairymen who have recently moved to this vicinity.

Remember — One week from this coming Saturday is the date — so plan to be there.

And Don't Forget—

Don't forget to get your supply of Potlatch Chief Dairy Products when you are in town today, doing your shopping. No meal is complete without them — get your supply without delay. Included are: Butter, Cottage

Cheese, Cream, Milk, Buttermilk and eggs.

Personnel Manager: "Have you any references?"

Applicant: "Sure, here's one; 'To whom it may concern — Mr. Jones worked for us one week and we're satisfied.'"

Business Man: "I saw your wife today with a black patch over one eye. What's wrong with her?"

Friend: "Nothing — that's her new hat!"

Store Clerk: "How much mince meat do you want?"

Bride: "About half a pound, and please cut it off a nice, tender mince."

Co-ed: "A girl has to be an excellent actress these days." Friend: "Yep. She has to act insulted if a man makes a pass at her, and conceal her disappointment if he doesn't!"
