In renewing their subscription to the Gazette, Mrs. Leslie Jones of Antioch, Calif., says in part: "Even though we have been away from that part of the country for 17 years, we enjoy reading about our friends and relatives. We look forward to visiting in that part of Idaho soon. We formerly lived at Gold Hill and Southwick."

Search, and mas is now Idaho, was originally a part of Oregon Territory, which comprised all the land west of the continental divide and north of Utah and Nevada. When the Washington Territory was carved out, Idaho was a part of it. Later, when Washington became a state, the present western boundary of Idaho was determined. It was generally believed that the Territory of Idaho would include all the land between the western boundary as > then established, and the continental divide on the east, which would have taken in a part of western Wyoming and a part of western Montana. Just where or why the surveyors went wrong may never be known, but the story prevails that a group of shrewd Helena business men decided that the new Idaho Territory should > not include Butte, "the richest hill on earth," Anaconda, and other land known to contain rich ores. Had the continental divide been followed the lush and fertile farms of the Bitter Root valley, the city of Missoula, the Flathead lake territory and most of what is now Glacier National Park would have been in The Helena men are said to have met with others in Butte and decided to get acquainted with the surveyors. The program was worked out, and the surveyors were greeted with the utmost hospitality. The Montana group accompanied the surveyors from the point where Mostana, Idaho and Wyoming join. For a time the surveyors followed the continental divide, but when they came to Gibbon's Pass, in Lemhi county, they took off along the Bitterroot range. The result is that by following the Bitterroots, the panhandle of Idaho was narrowed until ed with the utmost hospitality. The handle of Idaho was narrowed until it would have come to a point had not the surveyors suddenly started north for the Canadian border.

"Perhaps," says Murphy, "Idaho got cheated. But that's the way the boundaries were set." Walks With Broken Ankle Ernest McGuire, well known farmers and hunter in the Cavendish district performed the almost herculean feat of walking from the bottom of Louse Creek canyon to the highway, a distance of about four miles, with a broken right ankle Thursday of last week.

Mr. McGuire was hunting coyotes and was alone in the bottom of the canyon when he slipped on a smooth rock and fell, fracturing the ankle. Realizing that he would not be missed for some hours, he sat down, laced his boot tightly, unloaded his rifie, and using it as a crutch, began the painful treak to the canyon rim. After getting part way up he reached a fence, and tore off a part of a brace, which he whittled crutch than his rifle, crawled through the fence, and hobbled across the fields to the edge of the road, where he was picked up and brought to town by Ernest Reece.

Dr. Christensen reduced the fracture, which was a severe one — and Mr. McGuire will be "wearing a crutch for some weeks."

Church Is Filled For Program The Kendrick Community church was filled to capacity Sunday evening to witness the musical and play, "Why The Chimes Rang," presented by the High school speech class and Glee Club, the program for which appeared in our last week's issue. The presentation was thoroughly enjoyed, and the glee club, speech class and art class, the latter making the scenery, and their instructors, Mrs. Werner Brammer and Mrs. J. H. Coulter, are all to be congratulated.

Had the weather been good, it is probable the church could not have accomodated the crowd — but rain was falling in torrents, and this doubtlessly kept many at home.

Christmas Windows Pretty Quite a number of good looking store windows have made their appearance during the past week — but our vote for No. 1 goes to the Kendrick Co-operative Creamery where a winter church scene, planned and executed by Helen Mattoon and Maribel Schupfer is one of which anyone could be proud.

A number of outdoor illuminated Christmas trees, including that of the Village in the city park. The big Rochdale Company illuminated star and many small home window decorations also herald the yule season. Local merchants report a brisk Christmas trade the past ten days - a trade which was slow in beginning, due in all probability to the rainy weather, which has done anything but incubate the Christmas Cars Collide In Juliaetta Wednesday of last week a car belonging to Wm. Johnson, Kendrick, and pickup owned by Jack Hammond of Juliaetta collided at an intersection at Juliaetta. The Johnson car, containg William Johnson and Mrs. Eileen Jones was proceeding toward Lewiston, and the Hammond pickup making a U-turn on the Main street when the collision occurred. No one was hurt, but both ve hicles suffered damage.

Santa Was Welcomed Saturday Santa, under the auspices of the Kendrick Commercial club, made his annual visit to Kendrick under smiling skies — and was right on time despite his long trip. Following a brief program near the illuminated community tree in the park, 230 treats were distributed by Santa and his helpers.

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS:

About Christmas Dinner:

Christmas dinner is a part of Christmas that many of us look forward to for months. It means turkey, and all that goes with it — and it is especially the time when we want the very best for our family and friends.

nour family and friends.

Remember that the best is "Potlatch Chief" butter for those delicious hot rolls; ice cold "Potlatch Chief" milk, and as a special treat for dessert — "Potlatch Chief's new pumpkin ice cream.

And Please:

Remember, too, that our delivery man wants all day to enjoy his turkey and dressing, so please plan to get your supply on Wednesday — since there will be no delivery on Thursday.

Always insist on Potlatch Chief dairy products, they insure freshness as well as quality.

The days are gone when one could peer through any of a hundred knotholes at a ball game — as all lumber of this description is now being put into $15,000

Businessesses large and small have struggled under increasing costs of wages and materials. The latter having shot up wholesale quotations 40 percent in less than a year and a half. There is no denying the fact, as much as we hate to admit it, that there is a lot of inflation in a lot of places.

There is plenty of employment in the country, as shown by the fact that 60,000,000 persons are employed.

Nevertheless, high wages and plenty of industrial activity has boosted the nation to higher levels. Maybe this is a poor illustration, but wise statisticians tell us that meat wise statisticians tell us that meat consumption formerly leveled off at
