Writes From Japan

Johnson Air Base
Trumagowa, Japan
6 December, 1949

Dear Bill:

I am a little late in writing to the Gazette, but I always say "better late than never." I read Ray Easterbrook's letter quite a while ago. I was going to write then, but I guess I just neglected it.

I am stationed about 30 miles south east of Tokyo, Japan. By train it is about a two-hour ride and by car it is about 40 to 45 minutes. On clear days it is very easy to see Mt. Fuji, and it is really beautiful. It has been snowing in the higher country but very seldom does it rain or snow down here — although they say we have had a lot of rain this winter. Lately the coldest it gets is 45 to 50 in the evenings, otherwise it stays warm.

I am a "typewriter jockie" or clerk-typist in an orderly room with all the "wheels" of the squadron. I am now taking care of all the airman's and officers' records. In other words, my job consists of not letting anyone know that I know everybody's business and nobody knowing my business, which in turn consists of knowing everybody else's business. Are you following me? If so, that is more than I can expect of anyone because I don't proof read my own letters!

I have been quite active in all sports since I have been over in this (X @ C * 1/2 1/4) place. I played football with the base team, playing fullback, and I didn't come out in tip-top shape. Service football is a little rougher than high school ball but I like it just the same.

I am on the 339th Fighter Squadron (Air) basketball team, which is off to another good start. Last year we won the base league and base tournament championship and got two trophies for our work.

By the way — what has been happening in Kendrick in the past year? Every time I get a Gazette I see where cupid has "struck" again. Marriage must be a wonderful thing, at least everyone is trying it. (No offense to the newly-weds.)

I don't know how much longer I will have to stay in Japan, but it will be in the "vicinity" of 16 more months. That is a long time to wait, but other people have done it, so I suppose I can too.

Have to close now and go to work. Jerry White.

My address is: Cpl. Gerald R. White, AF 18322246; Box 80; 339th Fighter Sqn (All Weather); APO 994, c/o Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif.

Our Note: Thanks for the letter, Jerry. First one we have had from any of you fellows in the service for a long, long time.

Clara Hamilton Taken By Death

Clara Jones Hamilton, 74, former Central ridge resident, died at 8:50 Thursday morning, Dec. 15, at St. Joseph's hospital, Lewiston. Death was due to a heart ailment.

Mrs. Hamilton was born Dec. 20, 1875, at Aurora, Neb. On Jan. 16, 1895, she was married to the late William Hamilton of Chariton, Iowa. Mr. Hamilton died in 1946.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton moved to Idaho in 1907. In 1919 they purchased land on Central ridge. They farmed there until 1938, when Mr. Hamilton retired and they moved to Lewiston. Their home was at 302 17th Ave.

Mrs. Hamilton is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Marie Dors, Spokane; Mrs. Genevieve McCracken, Nampa, and Mrs. Bernadine Olson, Lewiston. Also surviving are four sons, James, Seattle; Ted, Mohler; Oris, Pasco; and Leslie, Mohler; three sisters, Mrs. Edna Patterson, Derby, Iowa; Mrs. Maude Horton, Osceola, Iowa, and Minnie Jones, Lewiston; two brothers, Walter and Ernest Jones, Kendrick, and 14 grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted from the Brower-Wann chapel at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon by the Rev. Marvin E. Smith, with interment in Normal Hill cemetery.

Attending the services from Kendrick were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jones, Mrs. Johanna Nelson, Mrs. Eva Keene, A. W. Jones and sons Ray and Bernard and Miss Betty Maynard. George Jones, Kennewick, also was present for the services.

Vandaleers To Be Heard

U. of I., Moscow, Dec. 19 — The traditional Christmas candlelight service of the Vandaleers, outstanding choral group at the University of Idaho, will be given five times this season. The singers appeared in Wallace and in Spokane, gave two concerts in the university auditorium and will be broadcast over local radio stations throughout the state on Christmas eve. Gay Deobald, David Coulter and Robert Lind, Kendrick, are in the group.

Local stations broadcasting the program will be KRPL, Moscow and KRLC, Lewiston. Station KHQ in Spokane will also broadcast the service.

The Vandaleers were organized more than 15 years ago and have toured Idaho yearly, presenting concerts and programs in addition to their annual Candlelight services.

P.-T. A. Mixer Monday

About 100 loyal P.-T. A.'ers braved Monday's frigid temperature and icy roads and came out to witness the town team game with Genesee, and enjoy home movies and refreshments.

The P.-T. A. wishes to thank the town team for their generous gesture in turning proceeds of the game over to the organization — which will be used to purchase Hot Lunch kitchen equipment.

Glen Wegner and Gordon Peters deserve a vote of thanks, also, for showing their movies to the group, which were greatly enjoyed by all.

Pie and coffee were served at the close of the evening.

Mr. Arnett also turned over the proceeds from his popcorn machine, which was $3.00, making a total of $70.00 taken in.

Town team players from Genesee and Kendrick were "refreshment guests" at the P.-T. A., and the Genesee team stated that this was the first time anyone had ever extended the treats to them — and it was greatly appreciated.

PERSONAL MENTION

will be home later.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schupfer and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schupfer attended a Washington Water Power Christmas party at Moscow Tuesday evening.

G. A. Wayland, Juliaetta, was a Kendrick business visitor Wednesday morning.

Pr. Bud Fairfield arrived home Tuesday from Rapid City, South Dakota, to spend the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Fairfield.

Alan Trenkle, Air Force Cadet, arrived her Tuesday evening to spend the Christmas holidays with his mother, Mrs. Forrest Wetterow, and other relatives. He is stationed at Perin Field, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Renouf of Bellinham, Wash., arrived Thursday to spend the Christmas holidays in the home of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Wetterow and family.

High On Memorial Gift List

From the Idaho Cancer Society News for December, comes the following interesting item:

In Memoriam — As more and more friends of cancer control realize the value of "living memorials," more and more Memorial contributions are being brought and mailed to the Little Red Door for use in the fight against cancer.

When the permanent Memorial volume was started it was possible to list all donors who had made gifts in loving memory of family and friends. Such a listing no longer is possible. There isn't space enough in "Cancer News" to tell of each gift received. You'll see the reason when we tell you that from September 1, 1947, to August 31, 1948, just 32 memorial gifts were received.

But — from September 1, 1948, to August 31, 1949, there were 192 memorials received.

We do list here the names of those in whose memory gifts have been made, and the number of memorials given in the name of each. All donors are listed for permanent record in the beautiful red-leather-bound Memorial volume kept in the state office.

Of the 192 memorial gifts received from Sept. 1, 1948, to Aug. 31, 1949, the name of Mrs. J. H. Coulter, Kendrick, was far in the lead with 117.

Feeding Station Popular

The bird feeding station at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Long is a popular place since the deep snows have come.

These little feathered friends evidently have a good memory, for year after year they return to this haven when food becomes scarce — and small wonder, when Marvin will crack nuts for them, and grows sunflowers to lure them to the window front.

Mrs. Long says there are some "Varied Thrush" at the feeding station this week, and it is the first time this family has payed them a visit. They are a plump bird, comparing with a robin in looks.

The Longs find it fascinating to watch the birds and their antics, and each year welcome some new comers. They evidently pass the word along to their friends that Kendrick is a fine stopping place, and accommodations at the Long's "Birdtel" A-1.

Merry Christmas!

Is the wish of your Grange Lecturer to each and every one. A large crowd enjoyed the Grange Christmas party and program at the Fraternal Temple in Kendrick Tuesday evening, braving deep snow and icy roads.

The program was given by school and pre-school students and consisted of special musical numbers, poems and Christmas carols. The girls in the tap dancing class at Leland were attractive in their costumes and gave a very rhythmic routine. Congratulations, girls!

The singing of "Jingle Bells" gave Santa his cue to appear and distribute gifts and treats for all. The evening concluded with the serving of coffee and cookies.

Thermometer Goes "Boom"

Following the snow and rain storms of Saturday and Sunday, and another real snowstorm Monday morning, that left about four inches of snow on the ground in the canyon, and eight to ten inches on top the hills, skies began clearing, and Monday night thermometers about town recorded lows of from 2 to six above — and the snow fairly squeaked underfoot. During the latter part of the night, however, clouds rolled up and the temperature began rising, with 10 above about the standard reading.

Travel is hazardous in many areas, ice lying beneath the new fallen snow.

Really "Rolling The Mail"

Fred Stedman, local postmaster, reports that to date this is by far the largest Christmas mailing season every recorded at the local post-office. Each outgoing mail has averaged 12 bags.

He reports stamp sales to date as 4,000 1-centers; 20,000 2-centers and 7,000 3-centers.

Full figures will be given at a later date.

Entertains Young Folk

Mrs. Burton Souders entertained a group of young folks, friends of her son Burton's, last Saturday evening.

The group danced in the recreation room of their new home, and Mrs. Souders served them delightful refreshments at the close of the evening.

Community Church Choir

Mrs. Bob Magnuson, leader, announces that there will be no choir practice Thursday evening, but members of the choir will meet at the church at 6:30 Saturday evening for the evening service and go caroling at the close of the service.

AS OTHERS SEE YOU

You tell on yourself by the friends you seek,
 By the very manner in which you speak,
 By the way you employ your leisure time,
 By the use you make of dollar and dime.
 You tell what you are by the way you walk,
 By the things of which you delight to talk,
 By the manner in which you bear defeat,
 By so simple a thing as how you eat.
 You tell what you are by the things you wear,
 By the spirit in which you your burdens bear,
 By the kind of things at which you laugh,
 By the records you play on the phonograph.
 By the books you choose from the well-filled shelf,
 In these ways, and more, you tell on yourself.
 So there's really no particle of sense,
 In an effort to keep up false pretense

Many Pheasants Released

The state fish and game department reported today that 3540 broodstock pheasants were released in Idaho during the past week, the laying season at the Lapwai and Jerome bird farms having been finished.
 Conservation officers distributed the birds in areas of suitable habitat, the pheasants from Jerome being released the last day in May and those from Lapwai June 5. Arrangements for the distribution were made by William Enehi, Jerome; Homer Stever, Lapwai; and Maurice Lundy, bird biologist.
 Six hundred birds were turned loose in the Panhandle district; 600 in north-central Idaho, and 780 each in the three southern districts. In each case the average was one cock to four hens.
 The brooder stock was held at the hatcheries during the winter and spring, according to custom. Eggs they have produced are being hatched, and the chicks will be raised through the summer and liberated next fall. Some will be retained until after the shooting season to strengthen the stock for next year.
 Pheasant hunting dates for 1946 will be established by the commission in July.
 Conservation officer Hal Ebling, assisted by Marvin Long, distributed this areas quota of birds on June 7.

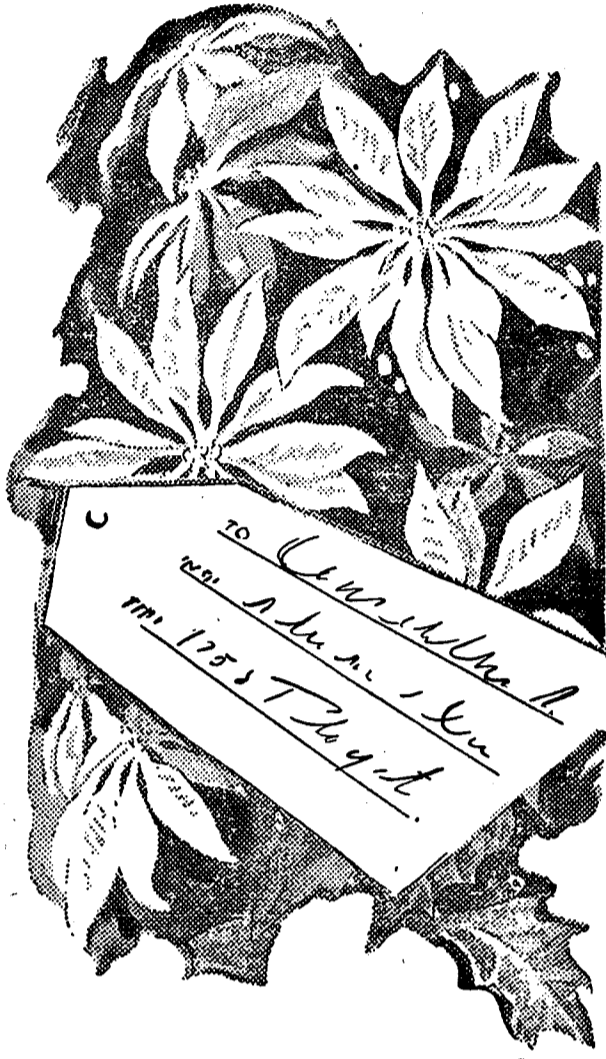

Old Chemicals Reliable

U. of I., Moscow — Two-four-D may have stolen the headlines in weed control news in recent years but sodium chlorate, carbon bisulfide and borax still are dependable old standbys on perennial weeds.
 Latest information on these weed killers, the conditions under which they are most effective, their limitations, and how to use them is contained in a new bulletin just issued by the U. of I. agricultural experiment station.

In this publication, Bulletin 271, C. I. Seely and K. H. Klages, agronomists at the experiment station, report on field trials carried on from 1936 to 1945 at a special field station near Genesee. In addition to sodium chlorate, which Idaho farmers have been using extensively since 1927, carbon bisulfide and borax, the Genesee tests involved arsenicals, sulfamates and thiocyanates.
 Weeds involved in this 10-year study include bindweed (wild morning glory), white top, Canada thistle, Russian knapweed, yellow toadflax, quackgrass, leafy spurge, blue flowering lettuce and St. Johnswort (goatweed).
 "As a result of these tests, sodium chlorate and carbon bisulfide are being recommended for general non-selective control of perennial weeds, and borax for the control of goatweed," the agronomists report.

 One of the new tricks in weed control suggested in this bulletin is the protective furrow — an inverted V — on the uphill side of a weed patch being treated with sodium chloride. This protective furrow will catch runoff water and drain it away from the chlorate-treated area, resulting in a more effective weed kill and less danger of damage to crops on the down-hill side from the washed-off chlorates.

Population Up — Cows Down

People get more numerous every year and cows get scarcer. The trend of dairy stock population is down, compared with population of the United States, a report to the University of Idaho extension service revealed this week. It figures out to one cow for every six and one-half persons. In years past the ratio was one cow to five persons. Better producing cows and better utilization of the milk supply means we still have milk enough to go around.

This year's estimate of 22,700,000 milk cows is off one percent from a year ago, according to G. C. Anderson, extension dairyman, who passed on a report from the USDA and the Dairy Products Marketing Association. Since 1944, when the peak was reached at nearly 26,000,000 head, dairy numbers have dropped about 12 percent.

"Compared with U. S. human population growth," the report declared, "the proportion of people to dairy cows continues to spread. Estimates indicate approximately 149,000,000 people in the country — almost 26 percent more than the 1925-29 average. Cow numbers, on the other hand, stand at only six percent above the average for the same period.

"When the war came the number rose abruptly, continued to rise until 1944, when the all-time record was set. Equally as abrupt, the downward reversal began and has continued until this year.

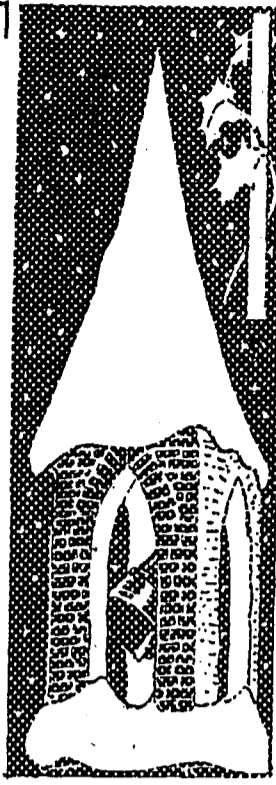

"Perhaps the decline is being stemmed now. It may be that the present leveling off is the first sign of another upward turn. Whatever the causes of fluctuating cow population, one thing is certain: The curve is sensitive and responds to changing conditions."

Wonderful Memories

It was the end of a wonderful and exhausting day — a family reunion to celebrate our grandparents' 50th wedding anniversary. On the porch steps two great-grandchildren fought loudly over a pair of roller skates; around the corner two "cowboys" chased an "Indian" relative; my sister's little girl was bewailing a skinned knee; from the kitchen came the laughter of children and grand-children washing dishes.

As I hurried past the two guests of honor, who sat rocking on the porch, I overheard Grandfather say to Grandmother: "Criminy, Mame, I sure wasn't almin' to start all this that night I asked you to ride home with me in my buggy after the ice cream social!" — Reader's Digest.

MODERN PIED PIPER IS NEEDED FOR MICE, RATS
That is exactly what will be needed if the invasion and resultant multiplication of mice of all shapes and sizes isn't halted soon in Latah county.
Many of the farmers of the area are alarmed at their increased presence. Orchards are girdled, transplants in windbreaks and nurseries killed, and root cellars and storage bins raided. These are the visible evidence of the damage the mice are doing. Left unseen, except to the trained eye, is the mounting damage to forage and grain crops.
Roy Nelson, who lives north of Troy, had about 70 percent of his orchard trees girdled last winter. The loss would have been serious if Roy hadn't done a little experimenting of his own. He sealed all girdled trunks with a heavy coat of grafting wax. The results appear to be excellent. The trees produced a very satisfactory crop of apples, added vigorous new growth, and there appears to be a new layer of bark forming underneath the protective coat.
Over at Potlatch the mice have destroyed many of the fir and ponderosa pine transplants in the 4-H demonstration forest. Similar damage has been very heavy in recently established windbreak plantings in the county.

Several reasons are advanced for the increased numbers of mice. The two most likely are: 1. Man has upset the balance of nature by trapping or otherwise killing all the natural enemies of the mice. Owls, hawks and coyotes used to depend on mice for the greater part of their diet — thus keeping the mouse population in check. With these predators gone, the mice are ever-increasing. 2. Conditions have been very favorable for the mice. Food has been plentiful and the amount of protective cover has increased, etc.

Leo Twitchell, Fish and Wildlife Service, reports that poison baits are most effective in the control of high mouse populations. Strychnine wheat or zinc phosphide rodenticide have obtained the best results. They should be placed in baiting stations in mouse runs. The bait is protected from the weather, and the mice like to crawl under something in foraging for their food.

Baiting stations are simple to make. You can use a single roll of tar paper, open at each end, and a No. 2 can with both ends out and the center indented, or a coffee can with four entrances cut opposite each other.
Supplies of poisoned bait made available at cost through the Fish and Game department, will be stocked at the County Agent's office. If you need bait or would like a little assistance in your rodent control planning — send a postcard to G. M. McProud, County Agent, Moscow, Idaho.

Plant Windbreaks Next Spring
With the government demanding reductions in cultivated crop acreages for 1950, there may be more room on Idaho farms for windbreaks and woodlot plantings when spring comes around again. If so, the University of Idaho forestry nursery is going to be ready to meet the increased demand for utility tree plantings, extension forester. There is a substantial increase in the number of trees the nursery will have to offer this year.

"Next spring ought to be a fine time for many of our farmers to make windbreak plantings, not only around their farm buildings but also on the windward side of their fields," Ravenscroft suggests. "We learned a long time ago that wind protection in our fields paid off in better crops and less erosion. Some of the farmers who gave this a try found that they produced as much as 15 percent more crop per acre on fields that were protected against the winds. There is still wind damage in some sections, and there is every reason to believe that protection now will bring the same return that is used to bring. "Breaks," of one tree species or another, will do well in all parts of Idaho, the forester declares.
