The local troop was accompanied to Lewiston by Henry Jones, assistant Scoutmaster.

It is a real "feather in the cap of the local troop" to win in the face of such competition — but it shows what patience and the desire to learn can accomplish.

Practice Makes Perfect

Last Thursday evening the Cub Scouts practiced for the big parade and jamboree in Lewiston, Saturday, by parading down Main street in their float, "The Mayflower." They unloaded and landed on Plymouth Rock (the park) with serious dignity and knelt in prayer of thanksgiving for a safe landing, as did their forefathers so long ago.

Those who witnessed the parade were thrilled with the clever entry. The "Mayflower," a replica of the original, and each boy dressed as a Pilgrim, his costume complete from hat to buckled shoe, gave proof that many hands worked together to insure its success. The costumes were made by the boys' mothers and the "Mayflower" was erected in the shop of Ben P. Cook, assisted by Ed. Nelson, Bob Magnuson, Manning Onstott and Ross Armitage. The Cub Scouts are Leonard Eldridge, Robyn Magnuson, Denny Abrams, LeRoy Brocke, Jerry Armitage, Raymond Onstott, Gerald Bateman, Jackie Ware, David Johnson, Richard Nelson, Billy Dammarell and Norman Wilson.

Their leader is Ross Armitage, and the Den Mothers Mrs. Kenneth Brocke and Mrs. Wm. Johnson.

The following group accompanied the Cub Scouts to Lewiston Saturday morning, working with them all day to get their entry in the parade properly lined up, etc.: Mrs. Kenneth Brocke, Mrs. F. Abrams, Mr. and Mrs. Manning Onstott, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Magnuson, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Armitage, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Johnson, Grant Bateman and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Nelson. Those going down in the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jones, Elmo Eldridge and Mrs. Lloyd Ware.

This clever entry of the local Cub Scout troop was good for a second prize in the big jamboree — and drew round after round of applause from the audience.

FORTY-FIVE PRESENT AT LATAH C. OF C. MEETING

There were but forty-five members present at the Latah County Chambers of Commerce meeting held in the basement of the Community church Wednesday evening of last week — probably the smallest number at such a gathering in many months.

Two guest speakers appeared on the program, the first of these being Don Herring, Latah County Weed Control supervisor.

Mr. Herring spoke briefly, but right to the point on the problems and cost of weed control. He stated that the value of agricultural products in the county approximated $8,100,000 per year, and that out of this sum must come the costs of weed control, which were close to $2,000,000 — a staggering figure.

This $2,000,000 cost included keeping weeds out of summerfallow; the use of 2,4-D, sodium chlorate and other weed control costs.

As a suggestion for cutting this cost was co-operation between farmer neighbors; cities, villages, and the county, through concentrated efforts — all applied at one time, so that the drifting of seed and the carrying of roots could be greatly cut down.

He added that residents of towns should be as weed conscious as the farmer population, and they, too, should work together.

Next speaker on the program was Mrs. Guy Wicks, of Moscow, who brought to the group the following talk regarding conditions at the Latah County Boarding Home (sometimes known as "the poor farm.") The gist of Mrs. Wicks' talk follows:

"Thank you for letting me talk to you about the Latah County Boarding Home. I became interested in the Home about two years ago when some of my folks visited a former hired man there and found him very ill and unaware of his duty in this matter. It is so easy for everybody's business to be nobody's business. The Moscow Council of Church Women decided to sponsor me and sent me to all the church groups in town to let people know about the Home. I have talked to these people and many others besides, until now I estimate I have reached some 2,000 ears. Never in any of these listening groups have I found an unsympathetic response or had a mean question asked me. Folks haven't meant this to be — they have just been unaware.

"I went to the County Commissioners and learned that they felt that we did not want to make any changes at the Home. They had no way to believe that we were unwilling to have an increase in taxes for this purpose, and they were confused by a letter from the Attorney General regarding this problem. Their thinking went like this: 'They tried to get a new courthouse a few years ago and the bond issue was voted down. That looked to them like we didn't want to spend any money for county buildings. They, secondly, felt that when the Old Age Pension Act was passed that this should take care of the matter of care for the aged. And in a large part it does — but our county does not have enough private nursing homes to take all the pensioners in. So they go to the Home. The number of inmates between 23 and 33. We also have some seven to ten county charges who are not eligible for the pension. So we find them housing some 30 to 40 people, counting the manager's family. Thirdly: The commissioners felt that the state law was confusing. They know that the law provides that a 1 1/2-mill levy may be made for the purpose 'of erecting a county hospital, or other necessary hospital building.' They wrote the Attorney General and asked him if they could levy this tax for the purpose of erecting a better County Boarding Home. The answer was 'No.' The building must be a hospital and answer hospital specifications. That stopped them.

"However, one of the commissioners consulted a private attorney, and further questions were asked our county attorney, and it was learned that while the law would not cover a levy for a 'Boarding Home,' it would cover a levy for a 'rest hospital,' or 'convalescent hospital.' This means that the specifications which must be reached are entirely different from those for a general or medical hospital. You may ask, 'Would the home in its present form be legally a rest hospital?' 'Yes,' our advisors say. The state code specifies that a rest hospital, convalescent hospital, or nursing home is a dwelling where two or more persons are housed for the purpose of care who are not kin of the owner or manager who supplies that care. I pointed this matter out to the commissioners and they then told me that it was largely a case of getting the people of the county to know about the need. If they felt

Suffers Severe Cut On Arm

LeRoy Brocke, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brocke received a nasty gash in his left arm Monday, when he slipped while standing on the bumper of his uncle's car. He threw up his arm to catch himself and in doing so encountered the "bomb sight" radiator ornament, which was sharp, and tore the gash in his arm. It required seven stitches to close the wound.

Grange Met Tuesday Eve

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Kendrick Grange was held on Tuesday evening, with 68 present, one officer being absent.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Davis were initiated as new members.

At the business session the Grange voted approval of a 4th of July celebration, should the Kendrick Commercial club decide to hold it.

An impressive Memorial Service was conducted by Chaplain Jessie Bateman, and refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

There will be no Grange meeting the first week in July, as that is the 4th and a legal holiday.

Locust Trees In Bloom

Thursday of last week the locust trees which line Kendrick's Main street from end to end, began bursting into bloom, and by Sunday, the street was a bower of white blossoms, their scent hanging heavy in the still warm air — for warm it became, Sunday's thermometer reading showing a high of 90 degrees.

These trees may be dirty and a pest to many, but they certainly produce "ahs and ohs" of wonder from the stranger who visits during their blossoming time, and they have formed the subject for countless pictures by camera enthusiasts.

Weather Cools Off Bit

Following a high of 90 degrees on Sunday, thermometers began dropping a bit, and by Tuesday morning a fine felt mighty good, and some rain fell Tuesday, just enough to dampen the streets, but on fields and lawns it could not be seen.

A good rain is badly needed now in this area, not only by the spring grain, but by beans, potatoes, and in fact, all crops. A steady soaker of two to three days duration would be quite welcome.

Tuesday afternoon rain began falling, and continued all night and most of Wednesday morning — for the first installment of "that million dollar rain."

New Appliance Store

In this week's issue will be found the announcement ad. of the Julietta Appliance Center, at Julietta.

The new store is located across the street from the former Julietta Garage, and is a credit to the town, and to any town for that matter.

The exterior as well as the interior of the building has been completely rebuilt, and is attractive with its modern styling and displays of new merchandise.

Rattlesnake Bites Cow

The family milch cow belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jean of Julietta had been the cause of some concern to her owners for a couple of days, when she appeared ill and refused to eat, and her milk flow disappeared almost completely.

A vet. was called in, and he discovered the bite of a rattlesnake on the left front leg. Treatment was given and "bossy" will recover.

Work Train Leaves

The N. P. work train that has been stationed here the past few months, left Wednesday morning. While the job isn't completed, funds gave out, and the repair project will be carried over until next year.

Sacajawea Not "Bird Woman"

The "Bird Woman" who guided the Lewis and Clark Expedition into Idaho was not a bird woman at all, according to John D. Giles of Salt Lake City, secretary of the Utah Pioneer Trails and Landmarks association. He said "Boat Pusher" was the correct translation of "Sacajawea." Mr. Giles also pointed out that Lemhi, as applied to Old Fort Lemhi, Lemhi county and Lemhi Valley, was originally Lemhi, so named from a Book of Mormon King and corrupted to "Lemhi" by popular usage.

Farallons, Bird Refuge, Now Closed to Civilians

California's Farallon islands, whose 1950 U.S. census count of an even 30 inhabitants was reported complete before the April 1 official census started, found human traffic there far greater in the 19th century than it has been in the first half of the 20th.

Russian sealers occupied the bleak group, 26 miles west of San Francisco's Golden Gate, from 1812 to 1833, notes the National Geographic society. Drafting Indians and Aleuts as labor, they reduced seals from abundance to scarcity, taking close to 200,000 skins for the China trade. Sir Francis Drake had restocked his vessel with seal meat at the Farallons in 1579.

During the 1849 gold rush in California, food was scarce in San Francisco. Egg-gathering from the nests of gulls and murres on the Farallons became profitable and well organized, and the traffic continued for many years. Finally, bird lovers stepped in, and the islands are now a bird refuge, closed to civilians from April to August.

The Farallons, known but little even to mainland Californians, consist of three pinpoint groups of rocky islets spreading over seven miles of the Pacific ocean on air and water lanes of trans-Pacific travel. Paradoxically, although they are officially part of the City of San Francisco, the mayor and other city officials may not set foot on them without special permission.

The permission must come from the 12th coast guard district based in San Francisco. It provides the personnel that maintains the powerful beacon 358 feet above sea level atop Southeast Farallon, the only inhabited island of the group.

The lighthouse-keeping families live in neat, white houses at the foot of the high beacon cliff. A radar station and an automatic fog-signal horn complete the island's important navigation aid equipment.

Human Regard for Criminal Modern Idea, Says Educator

The idea that the legal offender shares a common humanity with his nonoffender brother is a relatively novel conception and regards the criminal as a human being and not subhuman, specialhuman, superhuman, inhuman, robothuman, or extrahuman, Dr. Robert Lindner, clinical psychologist at Harlem Lodge, Catonsville, Maryland, told the first session of the third annual institute on crime and delinquency which University of California extension held in Los Angeles recently.

Declaring that "Offenders, too, are human," Dr. Lindner pointed out that the modern view of the criminal historically succeeds the primitive, theological, philosophical, mechanical, and psychiatric views. "The modern view is based on a total approach to the offender, including the whole person and his history in the world; it is based upon scientific knowledge that is reaching a level of maturity; its sources are biological, anthropological, sociological, and psychological. Among these, the psychoanalytical appears to be the most fruitful and comprehensive."

Study Hydrogen Bonds

While other scientists the nation over concern themselves with hydrogen bombs, Dr. Joseph W. Ellis and Dr. Leonard Glatt of the physics department of the University of California are busy with hydrogen bonds—a study more closely related to everyday life. Hydrogen bonds are links which assist in holding together the long molecular chains found in many of the substances we use in our daily life. These links are formed by the sharing of a proton (hydrogen nucleus) between two units of the same or different molecules. Examples of substances they bind together are liquid water, proteins, and many plastics, including nylon.

From Everywhere

The ingredients of paint products literally come from the world's four corners. Take, for example, a quarter pint can of varnish stain. It's packed in a shipping case made from fibre that may have come from Norway. The paper for the label may have come from the same place. The tin for the can probably came from either Bolivia or Malaya. The contents may consist of linseed oil that came from Argentina, the drier from Asia, tung oil from China, resin from Africa and dyes from England. Skillfully combined by American know-how, the user benefits from world-wide activity which he seldom realizes.

Making Good Soils

"Somehow the notion gets around," says Dr. Charles E. Kellogg of the U. S. department of agriculture, "that originally our farm soils were highly productive; that is, productive when first plowed. Many of them were, like the black lands in our Middle West and in central Eurasia, for example, and in some of the great deltas and alluvial valleys. But most soils are not. It is through liming and fertilization, drainage, irrigation, the introduction of legumes, and a host of other practices, that farmers have made their soils productive," explains Dr. Kellogg.

Condition of Land Vital to Economy Good Farming Practices Aid Conservation Work

That the condition of the land and its productivity affect the vigor and vitality of the national economy is a fact becoming more generally recognized by farmers, business men and industrialists alike.

And, according to W. R. Tascher, extension soil conservationist of Washington, D.C., there is a certain point in land deterioration which when reached becomes the principal factor in influencing the nation's economy.

In the United States about two-thirds of all raw materials come from the land for the country's total industrial production, Tascher said. About 60 per cent of all manufacturing plants in this country depend upon the soil for their principal raw materials.

This photo shows the kind of land use and development which is vital to the condition of the soil.

It is obvious, he continued, that scarcely a segment of the nation's economy can assume continued survival without the care of its land resources in such a way as to insure continued adequate production.

Spud Harvest Study Would Cut Damages

Preliminary work to determine the points in potato harvesting and handling where bruising injury occurs, with a view to developing methods for avoiding such damage, was started in North Dakota last fall, Perry V. Hemphill, associate agricultural economist of the North Dakota experiment station, reports.

A survey was made by the experiment station in cooperation with regional potato laboratory in East Grant Forks. Samples were taken immediately after digging, from the picker sacks standing in the field, from sacks on the truck at the warehouse before unloading, and from the bins immediately after unloading.

It was noted that the percentage of bruising increased during each operation. After digging it was found 11 per cent of the potatoes were bruised, after picking 17 per cent were bruised, after trucking the percentage bruised went up to 18, and after binning 41 per cent were bruised. It was noted an increase of 23 per cent may be due to the binning process alone.

Applying Shingles

In applying asphalt shingles over an old wood shingle roof, first nail down loose shingles. Split warped shingles and nail down the segments. Place beveled wood "feathering" strips along the butts of each course of old shingles. Apply an "eaves flashing strip" of asphalt roll roofing. Use six nails in each three-tab, square-but.

Overhead Water System Creating Wide Interest

The use of overhead sprinkling systems for irrigated farming has created widespread interest in areas where artificial watering is necessary to crop production.

Among the merits of overhead sprinkler systems is that land leveling—which removes valuable top soil from high spots, is not necessary, and ground ordinarily used for ditches can be utilized for growing crops.

Shoe Styles of Early Day Revealed by Researcher

Nothing that the shoe industry has dreamed up in the last half century can match the footwear of our ancestors, who really stepped high and wide, if not handsome, according to William H. Dooley, writer for the World Book encyclopedia, and author of the book, "History of Costume."

Dooley reports that the peak of shoe fashion in the 1300's was the "crakow," which had a toe so long and pointed that it required a chain to hold it up so the wearer could walk. Pointed toes had been regarded as a mark of distinction, from early Roman times, and the aristocratic Frenchwoman of the 1700's favored a slipper with a sharply pointed toe, and a slender heel that threw her foot up to nearly a 60 degree angle.

Two centuries earlier, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth of England, a little model called the "duck-bill" featured wide soles—the wider the better. A law finally was passed to limit the width to five and one-half inches. It was at about this time that members of the wooden shoe set literally "lifted themselves by their bootstraps." Their footwear had iron rings attached, so that the wearers could use them to pull their feet out of the mud.

The shape of the human foot had very little to do with the creations of cobblers in the Middle Ages. Emphasis was on decoration and unusual effects—and let the corns and bunions come where they may.

And while our ancestors may have known which way they were going, they couldn't tell one foot from the other—not from looking at their shoes, that is. Right and left shoes did not become popular until the 1850's.

Check Alfalfa Caterpillar With Airplane Virus Spray

The alfalfa caterpillar can be controlled by airplane application of a polyherd virus, spreading an epidemic of wilt disease among the pests.

This was indicated in experiments carried out at the University of California by Drs. Clarence G. Thompson and Edward A. Steinhaus of the division of biological control.

The virus disease occurs naturally but usually affects the caterpillars after serious damage to the alfalfa has been done. By artificial spread of the virus the pest can be controlled before it seriously damages the crop. The virus is completely harmless to humans, animals, and plants.

The two insect pathologists sprayed some 80 acres of alfalfa fields in two airplane application tests. The incidence of the pest is calculated by counting the number of insect larvae caught in two net sweeps. Twenty larvae per sweep is considered a level where the insect may become economically harmful. In both airplane sprayings the number of larvae was reduced to under 20 per sweep, some six to nine days after application, while they rose as high as 400 per sweep in the untreated check plots in one of the tests.

Timing of application is critical, however, and the college of agriculture men are now working on a project in the hope of assisting alfalfa growers to determine just when and how the virus should be used.

Rail Transport of Troops

From December 1, 1941, to the end of August, 1945, the railroads transported approximately 43,700,000 members of the United States army, navy, marines, and coast guard in special troop or hospital trains, or in special cars attached to regular trains. The average monthly movement during this forty-five month period was 971,110 troops. This was more than twice the average monthly movement during World War I. The foregoing figures do not include many millions of railway trips made by uniformed men and women traveling singly or in small groups in line of duty or on furlough, nor do they include servicemen and women returning to their homes after being discharged from the service. Military travel under orders or on furlough thus was a considerable part of the total travel on the railroads in wartime.

Railroad Brotherhoods

There are 21 so-called "standard" railroad labor unions or brotherhoods in this country. It is estimated that between 85 and 90 per cent of all regular railroad employees are represented by labor unions. The Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which was organized in 1863 at Detroit, Michigan, as the Brotherhood of the Footboard, is the oldest railway labor organization in the United States.

Coatings For Bricks

Brick structures are frequently painted, particularly after they have aged for several years. This treatment gives a better outward appearance and also prevents moisture seepage and further deterioration. It has been demonstrated by scientific experimentation that painted brick structures are less humid inside. Bricks are sometimes given a clear waterproof coating in order to prevent water seepage and still retain the normal appearance of the brick.

The story of the Goose that laid the Golden Egg *

Do you remember the story?

A goose once laid a golden egg. Every morning the same thing happened, making its owner rich. Soon, however, the farmer dreamed of getting all the gold at once. Killing the goose, he opened it only to find—nothing!

If you are dreaming of "getting all the gold at once," remember—the American way of private enterprise gives you and your children MORE goods and services, MORE freedom and opportunity, than any way of life the world knows! TAKE A STAND NOW against socialist control of your electric service. REMEMBER, in England "socializing" of the electric industry was followed by socialist government monopoly of one industry and profession after another. PREVENT that happening here!

U.S. Eyes Tasty Truffle, Europe's Ancient Delicacy

"Please pass the truffles" may eventually find a place in American table talk, if current projects should prove successful in developing low-cost U.S. mass production of this European delicacy.

The undertaking became known with the recent arrival at New York of a shipment of fresh truffles from Italy, a portion of which is to be used in agricultural experiments to determine the feasibility of truffle growing in American soil.

Truffles belong to the simple fungus group of plants. They are related to the mushrooms, and to the less appetizing family members, the molds, the mildews, and rusts, the yeasts and toadstools.

Like potatoes, truffles are tubers. They grow in clusters a few inches or more underground. Unlike potatoes, however, they have no apparent roots or upper parts showing.

Hence gathering truffles is more like mining than farming. Although cracks in the ground sometimes indicate their presence, "deposits" are usually located by trained pigs and dogs, whose sense of smell serves as a kind of Geiger counter.

The truffle odor is a distinctive one. It has been described as "fruity fragrance," when taken in small quantities, and more specifically as something like pimientos soaked in olive oil and sprinkled with garlic. The aromatic flavor long has made it popular in sauces, stuffings, and garnishes. One modern Italian recipe calls for baking potatoes and truffles in alternate layers, with grated cheese.

Caution Urged in the Use of Urea for Cattle Feeding

Urea is a valuable protein substitute in rations for cattle and sheep, but poisoning may result when large amounts are fed for extended periods.

This is the verdict of Oklahoma livestock health investigators.

Steers force-fed very large amounts of urea developed muscular tremors, gasped, frothed at the mouth, and died in less than two hours. The investigators pointed out, however, that there is little likelihood cattle will willingly consume enough of the chemical to suffer fatal illness.

The animals don't object to small servings of this substitute feed—safe amounts such as are generally recommended—but they may shun feed heavily fortified with the chemical.

Urea acts as a protein-saver in rations by causing bacteria naturally present in the rumen to multiply and build their own protein, which is then digested by the animal. Ammonia is produced in the process of urea breakdown in the rumen.

Small amounts of ammonia are not harmful, but large amounts that accumulate from excessive urea feeding cause chronic or acute poisoning.

Determining Sea Levels

Sea level is not the same all along the coast. The U.S. coast and geodetic survey maintains along both east and west coasts of the country a number of tide-gage stations where the hourly heights of the tide over a period of several years are averaged. Leveling surveys over land between the stations have shown that there are variations in the average level of the ocean at different points of as much as a foot or more. Such deviations are ascribed to differences in prevailing winds, atmospheric pressure, saltiness of the water, oceanic currents and other factors. The "mean sea level," from which altitudes throughout the nation are measured, has been set by geographers after careful consideration of the levels actually observed at various points along both coasts.

Electric Lamp Life

Is the life of an electric lamp increased or decreased if it is turned on and off frequently, e. g., at one-second intervals? This would cause a decrease in the life of the lamp, for two reasons. First, the frequent changes in temperature of the filament would cause alternate expansion and contraction and it would deteriorate mechanically. Also, immediately after it is turned on, the cold filament has a lower electrical resistance than after it is glowing. Thus, in the first instant, the current that flows through it is relatively large, and this causes electrical deterioration of the filament supports and the leads to it.

King of Crustaceans

The succulent shrimp wears a popularity crown. He is king of the crustaceans that adorn dinner menus. By weight, the shrimp catch in American waters far exceeds that of any other shell-fish variety. The postwar shrimp average—180 million pounds a year—is more than one-third of the shellfish total. Crabs, in second place, run two-thirds of the shrimp poundage. Oysters weigh less than half. Clams, lobsters, and scallops are lightweights, comparatively.

New Chemicals Make Plants Insect-Proof Federal Entomologists In Experimental Study

New chemicals that make plants toxic to insects for short periods are being tested by scientists of the U.S. department of agriculture. These chemicals kill insects that suck the juices of treated plants. They are known to the entomologists as "systemic poisons" and should not be used by the public until further tests have been made.

Studies now are in progress to determine if these insecticidal chemicals will break down into harmless compounds within a few days or weeks. If they do, a new approach will be available to American agriculture in the control of some of the most difficult insect pests, according to entomologists of the federal bureau of entomology and plant quarantine.

Beef Herd Decision Problem in Corn Belt

Whether or not to have a beef herd is a long-time decision for the corn belt farmer.

Under average corn belt conditions, a cow can be credited for a 450 pound calf at weaning time. For instance, if you had a 30-cow beef herd on a corn belt farm and a 90 per cent calf crop, you'd have 27 calves worth around $135 each. Or, at 30 cents per pound, a gross income of about $3,600. If four replacement heifers were kept back, there'd be 23 calves worth $3,100 and four cull cows, worth about $1,000, to sell.

There would be a gross income of $4,100 to cover the cost of maintaining a herd of 35 mature animals, including 30 cows, four heifers and one bull, or about $117 per animal per year. If you used the average value of cows and calves over the past 15 years as a yardstick, your gross income would be about half of $4,100.

Clothes From Sacks

With feed manufacturers vying with each other to create pleasing bag designs, rural America has the opportunity to turn these sacks into many glamorous garments. Here, Jackie Frehand, member of the Wanchese 4-H club on Roanoke Island, N. C., feeds chickens from one of the flowered feed bags, especially designed for re-use by customers.

Summer Eggs Must Always Be Kept Cool, Odor-Free

The poor quality of summer eggs is not the fault of the hen. "Hot-weather" eggs, with their thin whites and flat, weak yolks cause many people to stop buying them. This waste could be prevented, top poultrymen say, if farmers would gather eggs at least three times a day in hot weather. All handlers of eggs need to keep them cool at all times, and away from odors.

Controlled Storage Keeps Apples Prime Regulated Atmosphere System Is Recommended

The answer to whether apples will taste as good in May as they do in September is "yes"—if they are apples from specially constructed controlled-atmosphere storage. That is the opinion of Prof. R.M. Smock, of Cornell university's agricultural experiment station.

More than 100,000 bushels of apples are in 15 such storages in New York state, the first of their kind in the country. "When they come out in April or May or June," Smock says, "the apples are expected to be of prime quality."

It sort of puts the apple to sleep and it never awakens until brought out into store temperature.

Results of 10 years of experiments show that controlled-atmosphere storage will double the ordinary storage life of McIntosh, provided the rooms are properly constructed and operated. Good results also were obtained with Delicious and Northern Spy when the varieties were stored separately.

Sweet Potatoes Make Valuable Farm Crop

Many North Carolina farmers who have never planted sweet potatoes for market should be able to increase their farm income this year through the cultivation and sale of this root crop, according to H. M. Covington, extension horticulture specialist for the state college extension service.

The U.S. department of agriculture has requested farmers to increase their production of sweet potatoes by 12 per cent. Even if such an increase is planted, production would still be about 10 per cent under the 1937-46 annual average.

Farmers who plan to increase their sweet potato acreage this year to have some for sale, should consider market outlets before planting, Covington states.

Automatic Defroster

A household device which automatically defrosts the refrigerator and is a fine electric clock has been put on the market.

The defroster, the company stated, eliminates the housewife's periodic, usually messy defrosting chores which are so often put off until she finds time and a thick, insulating coat of frost has accumulated on the freezing unit.

Automatically, the defroster turns the refrigerator off at 1 a.m. each day, and then, again automatically, switches it back on after the thin skin of frost is removed from the unit.

During the shut-off periods, moisture created by the melting film is circulated through the box.

With the defroster, which is a precision timing instrument, any electric refrigerator, old or new, easily can be made self-defrosting.

Chlordane Is Effective Ant, Cockroach Killer

The newest and most effective insecticide against cockroaches and certain kinds of ants is "chlordane."

Two-per cent chlordane sprays, with oil or water base, now are for sale in many department, drug and hardware stores.

These sprays leave an invisible, odorless film on surfaces to kill pests which come in contact with it.

A BIT OF IDAHO HISTORY

When the second Territorial Legislature met in 1864, there were few school children in Idaho, but the big-hearted mountain men immediately provided for the maintenance of common schools so that education of the young would not be neglected.

The principal of all moneys received from the sale of federal land given to the Territory was set aside as an "irreducible fund," the interest and earnings of which were to be divided among the school districts according to the number of children enrolled.

In order to establish as well as maintain public schools, the county commissioners were charged with setting aside 5 percent of all money paid into the county treasury for education.

In addition to these provisions for raising school funds, a levy of 1 percent on the gross proceeds of toll roads, bridges and ferries was collected and set aside as a general school fund.

This last levy was an important one, for there were few public roads or bridges, and the traveler was forced to use private roads which exacted heavy tolls.

The Second Territorial Legislature, for instance, granted a group the right to build a toll road from Elk City to the Montana line and charge each vehicle $2 for each 20 miles of the road, 75c for each additional team or pack animal, 50c for each loose animal and 25c for each head of cattle.

Bridges were built across the Boise river, and ferries were given franchises across the Snake, Kootenai, Clark's Fork, Clearwater, Spokane, Pack and other rivers. Toll roads were granted from Placerville to Pioneer City; Clearwater to Elk City; Brown's Mountain House to Florence, and others.

Fees for ferrying varied according to width of the rivers, but toll rates for roads or trails were about the same over the Territory. All the bridges collected tolls, for each vehicle or animal crossing them.

Thus the early school system of Idaho was established through tax funds. A little later collections of fines for penal offenses were added to the school or education income, and finally property was assessed as the public school system spread over the state.

Fresh frozen fruits, berries, juices, vegetables, fish and poultry are obtainable at Blawett's Grocery-Market. Remember: "For a Better Buy, Buy Bird's Eye." 1-adv.

that we wanted a change, we should so indicate it to them, and then they can act.

"Let us examine a bit more the set-up at the farm. Well, we own 120 acres of land two miles north of Moscow. This is rented to a couple who manage the place, farming the land, caring for the county indigents housed there, and giving board, room and laundry to the old age pensioners who wish to be there. The buildings for the people consist of an out-grown old farm house, a small cottage on a corner of the yard for the women (food must be carried to the patients across this yard, and during cold weather it must get pretty cold) and the woodshed, which is an open shed with both ends finished 'shack style.' This is without any plumbing. The house, however, is the dangerous unit. You see, there are eight bedrooms upstairs, reached by a steep staircase. Until last fall there was no adequate fire escape — at that time a metal chute was installed leading down from the front porch roof. This means that these old folks, if they had to try to get out from a fire, must in cold weather cross that icy porch roof, without a hand rail, mind you, and lower themselves down this chute. What luck do you think they'd have being some 80 years old? These old fellows smoke, nearly all of them — and sometime — or any time — some old pipe will hit a mattress.

"Just two of these upstairs rooms are heated. During the last winter Mrs. Dahl, the manager, hung two broilers in the middle of the two other rooms so they'd not ignite the walls, to partially heat two more rooms. The rest went cold. You say, 'Why couldn't they go down stairs into the living room?' Well, it wouldn't hold a third of them and hasn't a single easy chair. During the cold the floors could not be mopped — ice froze before the scrubbing could be done. I could go on and on about this dwelling, but suffice it to say it is a fire-trap and cold in winter.

"This 1 1/2-mill levy would remedy the situation. It would yield about $24,000.00 a year. For each of us it would not be too heavy — if you pay $10.00 tax, it would mean 15c — if $50.00, it would mean 75c — if $100 it would mean $1.50. Yielding this much, we would not have to have it levied but three or four years, even under present construction costs, to give enough money to build a decent habitation where a standard of public health could be reached. You see, the Home has not been licensed for over two years. The State Department of Public Health is bringing pressure to bear to get us to act — they'd close the place except that it would mean casting these old people out without a place to lay their heads.

"The way to help, is to let the commissioners of this, your county, know how you feel."

Mrs. Wicks was followed by County Commissioner Rudolph Nordby, who substantiated what Mrs. Wicks had said, and added briefly that the commissioners were digging more deeply into the legal aspects of the matter — and hoped that a solution in the near future, with the approval of the taxpayers, would be possible.

Mr. Nordby added that indigents outside the home were costing Latah county taxpayers approximately $41,650.00 per year. Those at the Farm Boarding home about $18,000 per year, plus medical fees of about $1,700.00 per year.

Wins High Award

Atlantic City, N. J., June 7 — The Washington Water Power company has been named second-time winner of the electric light and power industry's highest award — the Charles A. Coffin Medal for Public Service.

The award was made at the 18th annual convention of the Edison Electric Institute held in Atlantic City, N. J., last night.

Sponsored by a special foundation of the General Electric company, the tribute was awarded WWP for "distinguished contribution to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry."

President of W. W. P., Kinsey M. Robinson, accepted the gold medal award and a $1,000 cash prize for the company.

In winning the Coffin Medal this year, W. W. P. became the first company in the 28-year history of the award to receive it twice, having been honored for the first time ten years ago, in the spring of 1940.

The company was selected from a total of 34 other operating electric companies, representing every section of the nation. A special nominating panel limited the final competition to W. W. P. and four other utilities.

Top officials of EEI and GE said the Washington Water Power was selected by the judges because of its "excellent service in the face of power shortages and unfavorable weather conditions, for its advanced methods of administration including continued improvement of customer service, and for the establishment of sound public relations in the face of pressure groups seeking to socialize electric power in the Northwest."
