4th Of July Picnic

At a special committee meeting of the Kendrick Commercial Club, held Monday evening of this week in the Farmers Bank, it was decided, in response to many requests — to hold a public picnic in the city park on July 4th — at which time there will be a prominent speaker (yet to be chosen), plus other entertainment — the Area Living War Memorial Swimming Pool will be open — there will be a picture show — concessions — and an evening dance in the gymnasium.

The committee in charge (Roy Glenn, Tom Keene, A. O. Kanikkeberg, E. M. White and Ross Armistead) wishes to emphasize that this is not in any sense of the word a 4th of July Celebration — but just what the name indicates — a 4th of July Picnic.

No activities of any kind had been planned for the day, but the pressure of popular demand was too much — hence the picnic. As we go to press the speaker has not yet been selected, nor other entertainment arranged for — but complete details will appear in our issue of next week.

MORE INFORMATION ON TRAIN AND MAIL SERVICE

News About Trains

Fred Stedman, local postmaster, and a member of the Kendrick Commercial Club committee fighting to keep our trains and mail service as they are, received word from Estes & Felton, attorneys of Moscow, that pending a hearing on the matter scheduled for July 20, service would be continued as usual. Mr. Stedman was also notified that Paul Hyatt of Lewiston, attorney, had been engaged to represent a group of interested Lewiston business men and would co-operate with the Latah county group.

Notices Go Up On Train Cut

Pullman, Wash., June 17 — Northern Pacific railway has posted notices in the Pullman depot announcing that a train will be dropped from the Spokane-Lewiston run on July 9. The train is No. 312 and 313, the night train out of Spokane and the noon train back. The service is being dropped "because of lack of patronage," the announcement said. In the meantime, postoffice officials are informed that the postoffice plans to put on a mail truck, leaving Spokane about midnight, to replace the train service. The truck will pick up and deliver pouches from Spokane, Oakesdale, Garfield, Palouse, Pullman, Moscow and Lewiston.

Moscow and Lewiston have opposed the railway's plan to drop the train and have asked for a hearing before the Idaho Public Service commission at Moscow on June 21.

Pullman Chamber of Commerce and Washington State College are jointly seeking to obtain improved local mail service as well as replacement for the train.

In a recent complaint to the postoffice department President Wilson Compton said the local mail service was often referred to as "delivery by freight."

Local postal employees are investigating the complaints with the idea that possible additional facilities and personnel can be made available here.

It was noted that it takes as much as three days to send mail from Pullman to a rural boxholder at Colton, only 18 miles away. — Spokane Review (Sunday, June 18).

Our Note: Fred Stedman, local postmaster, is in receipt of a letter from the postoffice department at Spokane, advising him that should the train be removed, mail would be brought through Kendrick on a Star Route from Spokane, arriving here in the early morning hours. Although the Pullman dispatch does not mention Idaho, in all probability this Star route would follow the present rail route from Pullman, through Moscow, Troy, Kendrick, Juliaetta, and on to Lewiston.

Freak Rain Hits Kendrick

A freak rainstorm hit Kendrick and vicinity Monday afternoon. In the east part of town, beginning about the middle of the Kendrick Creamery, just a scattering few drops of rain fell — while to the west, it can be said to have "poured" for about 20 minutes, water cascading from roofs throughout the west section of town — the line apparently being drawn on an almost due north-south bearing. At the Ed. Hinrich ranch south of town, rain fell in sheets, while the sun still shone. At the Paul Dageforde ranch close by, no rain fell, but the sky was cloudy.

Mrs. Ella Donaldson of Pomeroy, Wn., writes as follows about the ancient "Registry Receipt" in possession of Elton McCoy, as follows: "Mary A. Gurnsey was my mother. I would like very much to have that paper. How the paper got to the John Less place is a mystery to me."

SURVEY REVEALS BUSINESS TAXES FALL ON PUBLIC

The influence of taxes on the American family will be uppermost in the minds of members of Congress for the next few weeks. They are seeking the answer to this $64-question:

How can they satisfy increasing public demands for tax reductions and at the same time find other taxes to offset such a reduction. Their problem is made doubly hard by the fact that Uncle Sam wants to spend $5 1/2 billion above his income next year.

The Council of State Chambers of Commerce this week pointed up the problem in a special study by its Washington staff. It found that the $40 1/2 billion in all taxes collected by the Federal government last year came from these sources: 44 1/2 per cent from personal income taxes; 23 1/2 per cent from corporation income taxes; 6 per cent from social security taxes and the balance of 21 per cent from a great variety of excise and miscellaneous taxes.

A tax study issued this month by the Brookings Institute, an impartial research organization, reveals that three-fifths of all manufacturing corporations take the corporate income tax into account in determining the prices of their products. This means that the consumer pays a large part of corporation taxes, too.

Ernest Breech, executive vice president of the Ford Motor Co., in reply to a question whether the price of cars would go down if his company's taxes were cut, said:

"Certainly it would cut prices. In the long run, every corporation must price its products so as to make a reasonable return after taxes in order to survive and grow. In the final analysis, income taxes are just as much a cost of doing business as payroll."

A group of congressmen, doing some rough figuring on their own, recently concluded that a family of three persons with an income of $3,000, pays $201.60 of that income in corporation income taxes which are included in the prices of the things they buy. A family of four with an income of $5,000 pays $316, and the same sized family with an income of $7,500 pays $414.00.

As an added bit of information here are some facts:

Federal expenditures have risen from $3.4 billion in 1930 to $9.3 billion in 1940 and $42 billion in 1950.

The number of civilian employees on the Federal government's payroll increased from 563,805 in December of 1932 to 1,981,156 in December of 1949. Total annual salaries and wages paid to these employees have soared from $1 billion in 1932 to over $6 1/2 billion today.

A House appropriations committee disclosed that in one year the Federal Bureau of Internal Revenue printed 500 million tax forms and 115 million instruction sheets to supply 47 million taxpayers. Hundreds of millions of such forms, long outdated and no longer useful, were found stored in a leased building.

The extent to which surplus inventories of stock are built up by some federal agencies was recently pointed out to the House appropriations committee by Jess Larson, general services administrator. He said one agency had a supply of tracing cloth which would last them nine years; enough fluorescent light tubes to last 93 years; sufficient ruled filler paper to last 168 years, and a stock of loose-leaf binders which would last them 247 years!

New Fish Biologist

Leon Murphy has been assigned to north-central Idaho as fisheries biologist for the Idaho Fish and Game department, effective June 1, fish culturist James C. Simpson, announced this week. Murphy will headquarter at Grangeville.

The new biologist is a graduate of the University of Washington school of fisheries and has worked with the Idaho department for a year. He has covered a wide range of fisheries activities, including fish planting, spawn taking, hatchery operation and general survey work.

Last summer, Murphy operated a chinook spawning station. Fry hatched from the eggs taken at this station are planted in the Clearwater river above the Lewiston power dam.

Simpson said that the addition of a biologist to District 2 will enable the fisheries division to keep in better contact with specific fishery problems and developments throughout the five district counties. Murphy will assist with fish planting this summer.

To Charge For Some Areas

Missoula, Mont., June 1. The Forest Service will continue to make a small charge for public use of some of the larger national forest recreational areas, it was announced today by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Lyle F. Watts, chief of the Forest Service, stated that the charge is a continuation of the experimental policy started in 1949, and that it would be levied in some 50 to 60 of the largest public recreational areas where the conveniences and services justify a charge. The remainder of the 4,500 national forest camp and picnic areas will be free, as in the past.

Charges will be the same as last year. Campers will pay 50c a day for a car party of not more than six persons. Picnickers will pay from 25c to 50c for a party of not more than six.

Final Cancer Drive Report

From Mrs. Roy L. Handlin, Latah County Cancer Drive chairman comes a note of thanks to the people in this area, as follows:

"I would like to personally express to the people of the Kendrick vicinity my thanks for the splendid amount contributed to the American Cancer Society during the recent campaign.

"From your immediate community $460.07 was given to this worthy cause.

"Complete reports from Latah County show that we went far over our quota and more than $1,000.00 over last year's contribution. This is a splendid showing and everyone in the county is to be congratulated."

Temperature Climbing

Temperatures, following the heavy rains of last week, having been climbing steadily higher, reaching into the high eighties, and with them has come a steady baking of ground pounded by the rain. This crust is from a half to three-quarters of an inch thick wherever the ground is bare, particularly in bean fields, and beans are not yet large enough to stand cultivating in most fields.

Spring sown, clover fields also are said to be "hard as bricks" on top, but in the latter cases many farmers are using rollers to break the crust.

Underneath the ground is said to be moist and mellow. Another rain, if not too hard, would be a real benefit.

Game Law Violations Down

Fifty-nine persons were arrested for game law violations during the month of May, reports the state fish and game department.

Most of the violations were for fishing in closed waters. Largest fine levied was a $75 stipend for shooting steelhead in the Clearwater river.

Arrests for May this year showed a reduction from last year's total of 89.

Legislature May Grow Larger
Idaho's legislature, patterned after the National Congress, may increase its numbers following the taking of the 1950 census. There will be no change in the state senate, one member being elected from each of the state's 44 counties. The house is composed of one member from each county for every 2,500 votes or major fraction thereof, cast at the preceding general election, according to the Idaho Encyclopedia. The house of representatives now has 59 members. Others contend, however, that the determining factor is the official census taken every ten years, and which will be taken in 1950.

The attorney general's office has expressed an opinion that the census will be the guiding factor, but that official action must be taken by the legislature itself in regular session. For instance, the 1950 census will have been taken when the legislature meets in regular biennial session in January, 1951. At that time the legislature may decide to increase the membership of the house, or it may reallocate the present 59 members as the national house of representatives did in Washington, D. C., in 1920.

Many counties, such as Canyon, Ada, Twin Falls, Bonneville, and others, are expected to show a large gain when the 1950 census is completed. Under the present arrangement these counties would be entitled to one or more additional members in the state house of representatives. The Idaho law is not self-executing, however, and the legislature itself will have to act before there are any changes made, regardless of what the census shows, the attorney general's office has advised.

Light Bulb System Hastens Vegetables Speed Up Development In Backyard Hotbeds

Burn 25-watt light bulbs in a backyard hotbed and you'll eat your own early June peas next May.

That advice for home gardeners comes from Robert L. Zahour, Westinghouse lamp engineer. Such miniature "greenhouses" warmed by low-power bulbs hurry vegetables to the table 10 days ahead of regular seed plantings outdoors. Flower seeds started in hotbeds are brought to bloom one month earlier, he added.

The 25-watt bulb is best for hotbeds because higher wattage bulbs are more apt to create hot spots in the soil, stunting seed growth or scorching the tender young plants.

Seedlings coddled in electric hotbeds like these hurry vegetables to the table 10 days earlier and bring flowers to bloom a month earlier.

The cost of a bulb-heated hotbed averages only three-tenths of a cent per plant for electricity during the entire six-weeks season in northern United States, the engineer calculated. This is 30 per cent less than the cost of soil heated by electric cable and only half the cost of manure. Manure, which requires soil preparation such as digging into frozen ground, depends upon fermentation for its heating effect in a hotbed.

Term 'Hybrid' in Swine Applicable to Offspring

The term "hybrid" has come to mean superior producing ability to the corn grower. It is natural, therefore, that the terms "hybrid hog" and "hybrid boar" should interest corn belt pork producers. It seems quite clear, most agriculturists are agreed, that "hybrid vigor" eventually will increase greatly the efficiency of livestock production. Informed breeders, however, believe that there are not yet available adequate dependable sources of boars for producing hybrid hogs.

Furthermore, the name "hybrid" in the accepted sense of the term should be reserved for the litters produced by the market-hog farmer.

Organic Matter Loss

Maybe you don't need a trip-hammer to work your land. But if you have a hard time plowing the ground, don't blame it on the weather or your implements. The trouble may be due to loss of organic matter from the soil.

G. P. Walker, Purdue University extension agronomist, says that when soils can't take plowing readily, it's a sign they are dangerously low in organic matter.

Walker's advice is more sod crops in the rotation to give the soil an easily worked texture. Sod crops well fed with nitrogen, phosphate and potash put life in the soil and build up its organic matter supply. They improve structure and tilth.

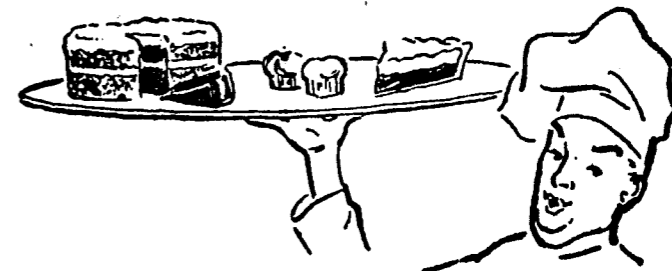

Farmers Given Warning Of Newcastle Disease

Bold Ellis, poultry specialist of the Wyoming agricultural extension service, discloses that many farmers may be acquiring a false sense of security over the threat of Newcastle disease to their poultry flocks.

He pointed out that the disease has spread to every state in the union, and although there is less talk about it today than there was casualties are still very heavy.

Rightly Suspicious
Emptying her husband's pockets before sending his clothes to the cleaners, a housewife found a slip of paper on which a telephone number was written. Curiosity being what it is, she dialed the number. Busy. She waited and dialed it again. Another busy signal. Dialing the third time, she happened to notice the number in the center of her own dial — her husband had made a memo of their own new number. — Reader's Digest.

Standard develops peacetime use for atomic energy

Salt Lake Pipe Line Company (a Standard Oil Company of California subsidiary) is completing a 566-mile pipe line between Salt Lake City and Pasco, Washington. The line will serve many points with a variety of petroleum products.

How could these products be kept separated...products ranging from diesel fuel to high-octane gasoline ...as they follow each other through this common carrier line? This problem has been solved efficiently by using atomic energy.

Each time a change to a new product is made, very minute amounts of radioactive tracer material are put into the line...tracer material prepared especially for this use in the Government atomic pile at Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Using a Geiger Counter, operators at the destination can tell exactly when the radioactive tracer arrives in the pipe...and they can switch the new stream of gasoline or oil into the proper tank. The radioactive tracer is so diluted in each batch of products that only the recording made by a Geiger Counter can tell you it's there. Its radioactivity will be far less than that of a luminous watch dial.

This is one of the first commercial uses of atomic energy in American industry. But it won't be the last.

Our scientists...and those of other companies...are fast learning how to make this great development work for peaceful purposes. You'll see the results of this knowledge soon...not only in improved methods of transportation but in new and useful products.

Elves and Leprechauns Took Blame for Everything

It may not be on the official unemployment records, but the fact is that there are hundreds of shees, leprechauns, and elves out of a job. Since each one of them has a long history of diligent service to humanity, it seems a real shame they can't be put back to work. Each of us needs one to take the rap for the petty annoyances of daily living. These out of the way, we could devote ourselves to the big problems.

According to the Childcraft reference library, our ancestors used the little people to full advantage. They let them take the responsibility of souring the milk, rattling the windows and creaking the stairs, and breaking Aunt Nellie's best china.

A nice feature of the little scamps, too, is their wide range of nationality.

Did your parents come from Scandinavia? Then you will want to select an elf. This pint-sized creature will live in your home and help keep the kitchen neat. If he occasionally cracks a dinner plate or burns the toast, you can't very well complain. That's what you want him for, to take the blame, isn't it.

Pixies are your choice if you have British ties, and there is a fine assortment of shees for you Scottish folks. If you are Irish you may select between the revelry-loving shees and the rather dour leprechauns, who, incidentally, are apt to ignore you as they spend most of their time making shoes for the shees.

If you favor France you will have to get along with a goblin. But maybe he's better than a German poltergeist, who is downright rowdy. He will cause no end of commotion until someone bakes him a spice cake.

Just a word of warning before you adopt one of these little chaps—they believe in people, and definitely expect people to believe in them.

Life Expectancy for Man Reaches 65-Year Average

Man once shared the life expectancy of a pack-donkey, but over a 2,000 year period has attained a 65-year average—almost rivaling the 70-year expectancy of the whale, the longest-lived mammal in the life chart.

But this increased age has drawbacks in the form of cancer, diabetes and heart disease.

The average Roman of about 50 B. C. lived only 25 years. Modern medicine and sanitation now give man at least 40 more years—and a greater chance of having one of the diseases usually associated with the aging of the human body.

Human progress up the life-expectancy ladder is something of a triumph for man, who is not too well endowed with protective equipment. He is the only mammal in the higher brackets who is without some form of protective armor. For example, he ranks with the whale, 70; the elephant, 60; the hippopotamus, 40; and the alligator, 40 years.

Domesticated mammals range in life expectancy from the dog, 10 years, to the cow and horse, 20 years, and the burro, 25. Lowest mammal in the chart is the mouse, who lives from 2 to 6 years.

"Breaking Up" Water

Water, which consists of hydrogen and oxygen, can be broken up into these elements by electrolysis. If two wires, carrying a direct electrical current, are placed in water, bubbles of oxygen form around the one connected to the negative side of the battery or generator, while oxygen forms around the wire connected to the positive terminal. Usually a small amount of acid must be added to the water to make it conductive of electricity. Also, if water, in the form of steam, is heated to a very high temperature, around 3500 F, it separates into hydrogen and oxygen. These recombine to form water as the temperature is lowered again.

Longer Life for Sheets

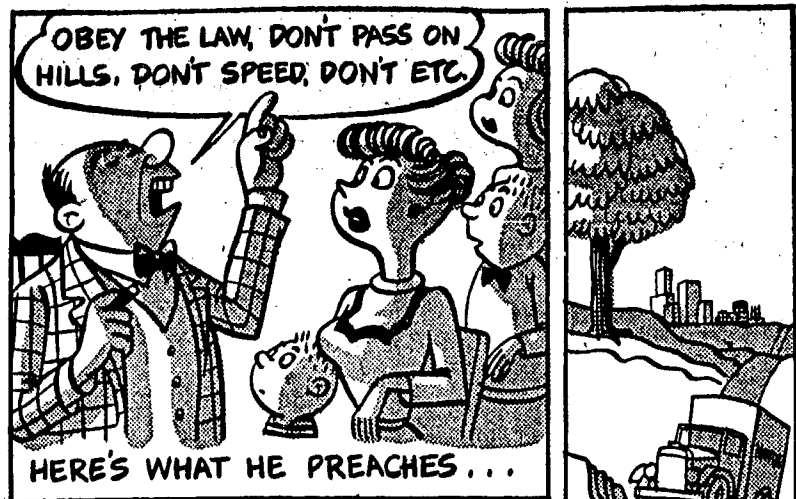

To lengthen the life of sheets follow these suggestions. Reverse sheets every other time by putting a bottom hem at the top. Cover bare springs with heavy sheet or sheeting to avoid snagging bed linens. And check all beds for needed carpentry. Put a mattress pad between the sheet and the mattress to avoid the abrasive action of the rough ticking against the sheet. Loosen the edges of the sheet until all around before stripping the bed. Use mild solution of bleaches and zine thoroughly, or better still, let the sunshine do your bleaching. Always rinse thoroughly to remove traces of soap and soap powders.

Study Premature Babies

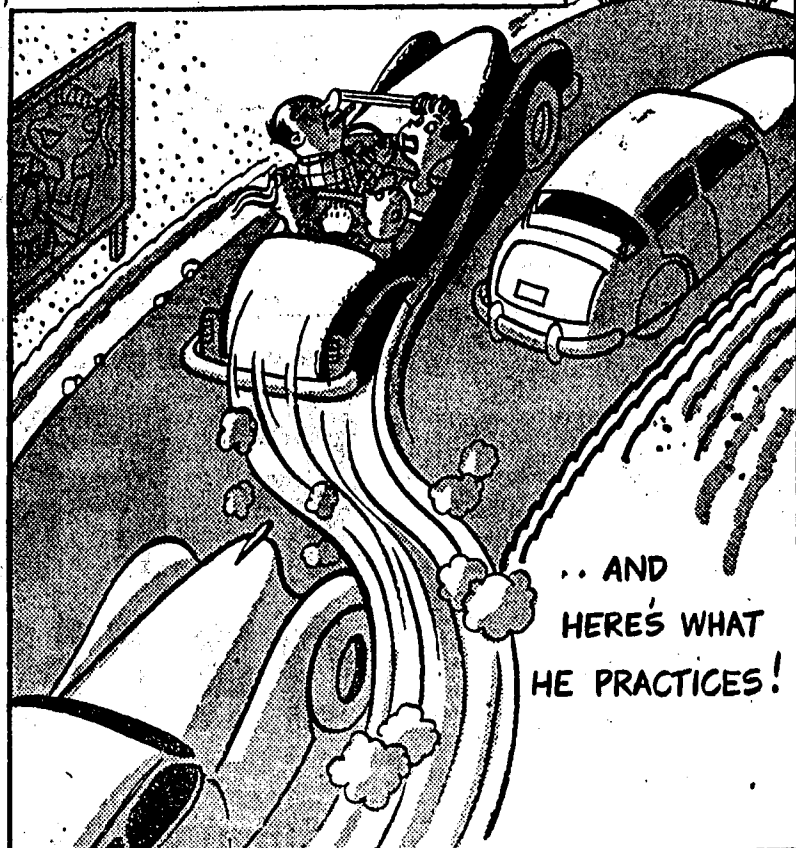

An instrument corresponding to a miniature iron lung has been used by University of Michigan researchers in studying premature babies. Object of the studies was to find out why premature babies breath irregularly—in gasps or jerks. The research has shown that the cause of this irregular breathing is that oxygen is not reaching the tissue of the brain center which controls respiration.

NEW HEARING AID BATTERY CHARGER CUTS HEARING COSTS
The new Mercury battery devised for the armed services, and constantly improved during the last four years, is now safe to charge. The RM 1 is the smallest battery ever made for a hearing aid, being less than a thimble in size, and the charger cuts the cost of operation to a new low. The Mercury battery differs from the carbon type by giving a full level tone from the time you start using it, until it is finished. It can be charged from 2 to 8 times. Select Boulder, Colorado, For High Altitude Study

Physics and astrophysics — natural sciences that have captured public imagination since the atomic-power revelations — are taking to the hills these days. The selected site for the proposed new radio-propagation laboratory of the U.S. bureau of standards is in lofty Colorado, the state with the country's highest average elevation of 6,800 feet.

Boulder, Colorado, where the laboratory is to be built is 5,350 feet up, notes the National Geographic society. This resort and college town, home of the University of Colorado, is cradled in the high Rockies, about 25 air miles northwest of Denver.

Such mountain heights offer special advantages to scientists studying the mysterious actions of cosmic rays and the manifestations of the sun as it affects radio communications.

The greater the altitude, it has been found, the stronger are the cosmic rays — those invisible, highly penetrating particles that are constantly bombarding the earth. Hence, a few years ago, a permanent cosmic ray station was set up by cooperating universities on the summit of Colorado's 14,260-foot Mount Evans. It is 36 miles from Boulder.

At Climax, Colorado, 85 miles southwest of Boulder, is the Harvard-Colorado university coronagraph. This apparatus is a specially designed telescope which produces artificial eclipse conditions by blocking out direct sunlight, and thus permits scientific observations and photographs of the sun's surrounding gaseous glow.

Acid Soil Fixes Phosphate And Makes Soil Infertile

What makes acid soils infertile? To find an answer to this question, John M. Heslep investigated two types of acid soils in northern California and reported his findings in his dissertation.

Heslep found that one of the main reasons for infertility is the tremendous power of acid soil to fix phosphate. So tightly is phosphate held by the soil that it would require a forbidding amount of fertilizer to satisfy the phosphate needs of the soil and make the element available to plants.

Using Romain lettuce as test plants, the investigations disproved two theories of what causes infertility in acid soils; manganese toxicity while present in acid soils is not responsible for the slow plant growth, and neither is lack of calcium. Calcium applications in the form of lime do neutralize the acid in soil and produce good growth, but infertility apparently is caused by soil acidity rather than by lack of calcium.

Heslep's work was the first study of infertility in acid soils in California. It was limited to two types of soil, and it remains to be seen whether his findings also apply to the several hundred other kinds of acid soils in the state.

Threat to Cattle

Owners should be particularly watchful at this time of the year for signs of prussic acid poisoning in cattle, the American Veterinary Medical association advises. Wilted, drooping, or frost causes the formation, in certain kinds of plants, of large amounts of prussic acid — which contains deadly cyanide — and cattle that feed on these plants become sick and usually die if not treated immediately. Sudan grass, chokecherry, wild cherry, flax cane, velvet grass, arrow grass, and Johnson grass are specifically mentioned by the AVMA as common sources of cattle poisoning. Owners are advised to suspect prussic acid poisoning when animals having access to such plants froth at the mouth, breathe hard, and stagger. Affected animals should be placed under the care of a veterinarian without delay, the association says.

Why Rubber Bounces

What makes a rubber ball bounce? This is due to its elasticity, which is the ability of rubber to restore itself to shape after it has been deformed. Where the ball touches the ground, the rubber is pushed toward the center. Then the elastic forces push it back, raising it off the ground again. Some energy is lost, by frictional heating inside the rubber. So even in a vacuum, with no air resistance, the ball could not bounce as high as the point from which it was dropped. Materials like ordinary putty are inelastic. They will not bounce because when they are deformed they tend to stay that way.

Utility Farm Dog

The question of which one of the hundred breeds of dogs in this country makes the best general utility farm dog has often been asked. The most suitable type of dog for use on a diversified farm would belong to the large, long haired breeds such as the Collie, Shepherd, German shepherd, and Airedale. These breeds are suitable for watchdog duties and, when trained, can be used for driving cattle, sheep, and horses. They have natural hunting instinct and rid the farm of many harmful varmints.

4-H Club Girls And Dairy Foods

June is dairy month. Milk production hits its annual high, and according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, this month may set the all-time high.

Trying for a record, too, are some 500 Idaho 4-H girls who are thinking of new ways to use the abundant supply of milk. They are participating in the 1950 National 4-H Dairy Foods demonstration program, and will vie for top honors in county as well as in state and national competition.

Under guidance of local club leaders and extension agents, the 4-Hers work individually and in teams to show club members and other groups the latest methods of preparing tasty and nutritious dairy foods. Favorites in the summertime menus for Idaho 4-H families are ice cream, milk drinks, frozen desserts and cottage cheese dishes.

While a demonstration looks easy, it is by no means easy to achieve, reports a national champion. Many hours of study and practice go into perfecting a demonstration before the girls are ready to step up on the stage in their crisp white uniforms — poised, confident and sure of their subject. They must also be ready to answer questions from the audience afterwards.

The program is arranged by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club work and supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Do Not Touch Fawn

Wednesday of last week Hal Ebling, state game conservation officer, placed under arrest Dan Kottki of Princeton, Idaho, for having in his possession a fawn. Mr. Kottki was fined $25.00 and costs of $4.50 in the court of Justice of the Peace Ray Nolan at Potlatch.

Mr. Ebling stated that it is against the law to disturb or molest fawn under any circumstances.

He advises — leave them alone — strictly — should you see any in the woods. Do not worry about them being "lost" or abandoned. Nine chances out of ten the mother is watching you!
