WHY NOT A PPD?

This PUD-WWP affair encourages the editor to reveal, at last, his long-cherished and spectacular plan for the formation of a state-wide PPD, with headquarters in Whitman county.

PPD? Haven't you guessed? That's right, it stands for Public Pea District, and would furnish us with the means of forcing — er we mean, passing on the benefits — of the Palouse country dry pea to the public.

Private enterprise has failed miserably in putting split pea soup on every housewife's table — it has failed to bring cheap split pea soup to the home of the lumberjack, the undertaker, the haberdasher, the raconteur, the connoisseur, etc. It's failed to fully develop the pea resources of the Palouse country. It's high time the people took over, since peas belong to the people!

We can start by forming a Whitman county PPD to provide cheap peas for every home and we know that southern part of Spokane county and Latah county, Idaho, will immediately form their own PPD's.

Then just as soon as the legislature passes a law, and the governor signs it (on promise that we won't take over more than one private pea company) we can begin dickering with American Pea and Legume Co., a holding company, to buy their common stock in the Washington Withered Pea Co., and take over the pea business in all of western Washington. Of course, we can pay them twice what it's worth and slip a little commission to P. Markuter, the broker.

Once the deal is put through, the Whitman county PPD will have the rest of the state where it wants them — we'll furnish 'em peas and pea soup until it runs out of their ears — we'll teach the public the great benefits of pea-eating and pass on the savings of a PPD to them. We'll even agree to pay some "in lieu" of taxes to make up for the taxes the private pea companies will no longer be paying.

Long live the PPD! (Even sounds better than PU-D, doesn't it!) — Colfax Gazette-Commoner, 2/22/51.

Our Note: The above was written by Bill Wilmot former Kendrick resident, now editor of the Gazette-Commoner.

Fire Siren Sounds

Last Saturday about 12:30 p. m., the local fire siren sounded, and residents watched to see where the big truck might go — but were puzzled when it failed to leave.

It was later found that the fire was at the Jasper Nutting home about a mile and a half west of town, so the truck was unable to answer the call. However, a number of the firemen took some equipment and went in their own cars.

On arrival they found that Mr. Nutting had the fire out, it having just begun to blaze in the wall paper above the stove pipe in their living room — and a couple of buckets of water did the trick.

Henry Jones, deputy state fire warden also answered the call, but found the same situation on his arrival as did local volunteers.

Hi-Hope Club Meeting

The Hi-Hope Club will meet on March 15 at the home of Mrs. Geo. Havens, with six members and Miss Betty Jo Baker to prepare an oven dinner — the rest of the members are to arrive at noon to help eat it. After dinner a discussion of the meal will be given. All who are planning to attend are asked to call Mrs. Havens before March 13. And, just as a reminder, bring your old magazines to be sent to the Gooding hospital and Veterans' hospital. All will answer roll call with: "Why I am Glad for the Coming of Spring."

To Entertain Pamona Grange Kendrick Grange will entertain the Latah County Pamona Grange next Saturday evening beginning with a 6:30 dinner in the Fraternal Temple.

All Grangers are urged to be present for the dinner — which will be followed by a business session.

Card Of Thanks

I wish to thank each one of my friends and neighbors who were so kind and thoughtful while I was in the hospital. — W. F. Jennings.

Taxes And History

With tax payment time at hand (first half of real taxes due Christmas Day), and income taxes staring everyone in the face, a little delving into Idaho history may prove interesting, the following coming from the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce:

Although Idaho has never attained the taxless era, there were high hopes that diminution of school taxes to next to nothing would come with statehood. The Territory of Idaho had no land grants, but with statehood the federal government handed over some 3,340,000 acres, valued at $10 an acre, or a total of $33,400,000.00.

The university grant included 46,000 acres; penitentiary lands were 160 acres; agricultural college land, 90,000 acres; scientific school lands, 100,000 acres; normal school lands, 100,000 acres; charitable institutions, 300,000 acres, and public buildings, 32,000 acres.

"As the school tax constitutes a large part of the expense of government, and as the revenue derived from school lands will enable the legislature in a short time to reduce the school levies to almost nothing, it is easy to see that your taxes will be greatly reduced, in this respect, by a state government."

Thus wrote W. J. McConnell, pioneer statesman and one of Idaho's early governors. He continued:

"The proceeds from the sale of these lands will provide all necessary buildings for the respective purposes mentioned, and eventually furnish a sufficient income for their maintenance."

McConnell estimated that during the first 10 years of statehood, Idaho could sell 25 sections, 16,000 acres, annually. In 10 years there would be a total of $1,600,000 realized, which would yield, at 6 per cent interest, an annual income of $96,000.

"Besides this revenue, the lands thus sold are immediately subject to taxation, and the revenue obtained from these lands in the way of taxes will decrease the general annual levies," McConnell estimated.

But 60 years after statehood was granted, Idaho is still grappling with school taxes. Somehow, things did not work out quite as well as the pioneers had planned.

New Radio Equipment

The Northern Pacific railway announced this week it has ordered equipment costing $150,000 to provide end-to-end radio communication on through freight trains operating between Dilworth, Minn., and Glendive, Mont., a distance of 410 miles.

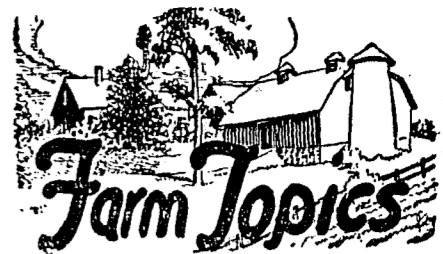

The equipment, scheduled for delivery this year will be installed on 14 diesel road locomotives and 33 cabooses. The installation will cover the entire main line of the Fargo division and the eastern portion of the Yellowstone division main line.

While the primary purpose is to provide end-to-end radio service on freight trains, 10 wayside stations on the Fargo division also will be equipped so that radio contact with trains will be continuously possible over the entire Fargo division main line.

F.F.A. Star Regional Farmers Are Selected

Named for Achievements In Vocational Agriculture

Three Future Farmers of America members were named regional star farmers for 1950 for outstanding achievement in agriculture. Each received a check for $500.

Budd Ott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Ott, Bangor, Pa., was named star farmer of the North Atlantic region. His activities include operating a 300-acre dairy farm in partnership with his parents. The farm features 70 head of holstein of which 44 are in producing age.

Rolland E. Turnow, 20, another regional winner, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Turnow, Curtice, O. He is farming in one-third partnership with his father and brother. They operate two farms totaling 812 acres near Toledo. Major crops are sugar beets, tomatoes and cucumbers. They have a small herd of 12 dairy cattle and raise some grain and feed crops.

Paul Crawford, 20 of Moore, Utah, star farmer of the Pacific region, operates a large ranch in partnership with his father, featuring the production of high quality registered hereford cattle, range beef cattle and a few dairy cows.

Poultry Outlook Depends On Government Decision

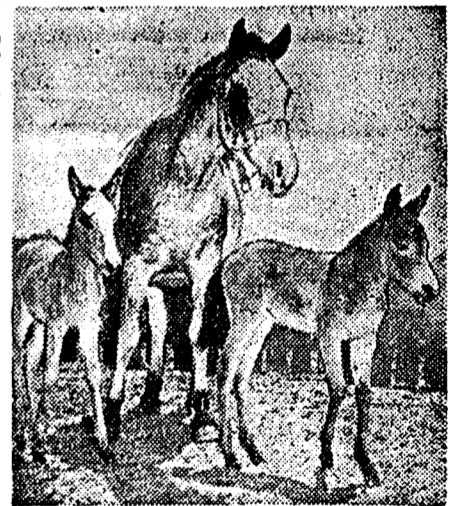

What the government does—or fails to do—to get increased meat production next year will greatly influence incomes of poultry farmers.

This is the view taken by farm officials at the annual agricultural-outlook conference which was sponsored by the agriculture department. A government price-support program could be expected to boost production of hogs above present prospective levels.

The more pork there is, the lower the prices of both meat and poultry products are likely to be. They are highly inter-changeable in the American diet, and hence compete for consumers' dollars.

The gross income of poultrymen next year is likely to be somewhat higher than this year, the department said. But the net income—returns left after payment of production costs—will not rise as much as gross income.

Fantastic Possibility

For a horse to have twins is not unusual. But this appaloosa mare is shown with twins, one of which is a horse foal and the other (right) a donkey foal. Don L. Steadman, Crescent, Utah, owner of the mare, says she was bred to a palomino stallion at the same time that she occupied a pasture with a small jackass owned by Steadman. Mr. Steadman says: "We suppose the stallion is the father of the horse, and the donkey is the father of the mule". He calls them a "Morse" and a "Hule." Dr. John MacLeod of Cornell University, said that under certain conditions such a birth is a "fantastic possibility."

Lights on Farm Machinery Will Cut Down Accidents

Highway authorities through the country have urged that farmers have bright headlights and taillight on farm machinery. Bright lights will help you avoid accidents when driving farm machinery on highways at dusk or after dark this fall and winter.

Safety engineers recommend lights that can be seen at least from a distance of 500 feet.

Flag Shop Owner Made Flag For Gen. George Washington

Betsy Ross wasn't the only American woman of the Revolutionary war period who gained fame for her flagmaking prowess.

According to Childcraft books, a young maoron named Rebecca Young made the flag that General George Washington carried when the Continental army took part in the siege of Boston.

Mrs. Young, who had a flag shop in Philadelphia, was noted in the colonies for her exquisite needlework. Her fine stitching, embroidered scallops, and beautiful patchwork quilts were the talk of the countryside.

The flag that General Washington requisitioned Mrs. Young to make had thirteen alternate red and white stripes. Applied on the blue field in the upper left-hand corner were crosses of Saint Andrew and Saint George—a design which represented the union of Scotland and England.

It was named the "Grand Union Flag" by General Washington, and flown by troops of the Continental army for the first time about January 1, 1776.

Like Betsy Ross, who is credited with having made the country's first official flag, Mrs. Young did not design the flag General Washington ordered from her. He is said to have adopted the design for it from an ensign that had been raised by John Paul Jones from the deck of the ship Alfred on December 3, 1775.

Mrs. Young worked on General Washington's battle flag with loving care. She stitched together the thick stripes of red and white bunting by hand and sewed in the blue field with a precision that guaranteed perfection.

Anesthesia for Livestock Marked Important Advance

The year 1950 marked the 100th anniversary of painless surgery for animals.

It was just 100 years ago that veterinarians first reported successful use of anesthetics for operations on animals. The development came a short time after physicians and dentists began to use nitrous oxide, ether, and chloroform in eliminating the pain of human surgery.

Veterinary medical leaders say that the introduction of anesthesia in veterinary medicine stands as one of the most important advances in man's age-old fight against the ailments of livestock and pets.

Horses and dogs were the first animal patients for anesthesia. Horses were put to sleep with chloroform during operations for lameness, and a dog was anesthetized for removal of growths in its mouth.

An early bar to use of anesthetics was failure to properly restrain the patient. After inhaling ether, horses sometimes went wild, endangering the lives of the veterinarian and onlookers.

In recent years, new types of anesthesia have been developed which put animals to sleep gradually, without violence or nervous reactions. Nerve blocking is being used now for such common farm operations as dehorning, thereby saving animals much pain and distress.

Lorgnettes Come Back

Lorgnettes, those spectacles-with-a-handle which our grandmothers used to good effect, are making a comeback. The modern version is a small, attractive visual aid which folds to a size that will not cause an ordinary purse to bulge unduly. Women find the little glasses helpful in looking up telephone numbers under poor light, in reading theater programs, and on numerous other occasions when it is simpler to use them than to don spectacles. Lorgnettes had a curious origin. The earliest spectacles lacked a satisfactory method of being attached to the face, for they were without ear pieces or nose clasps. Therefore, they were held before the eyes by hand, and were distant ancestors of the lorgnette.

How Coccidiosis Works

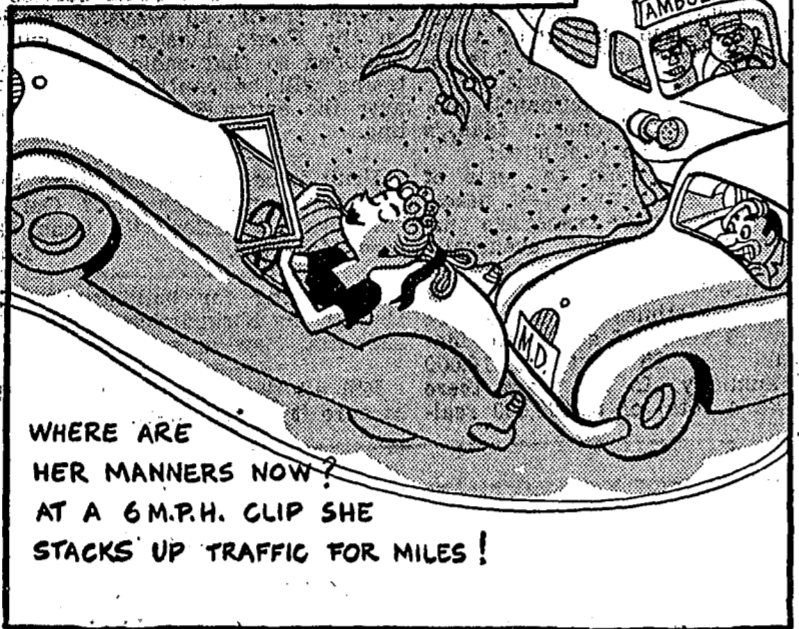

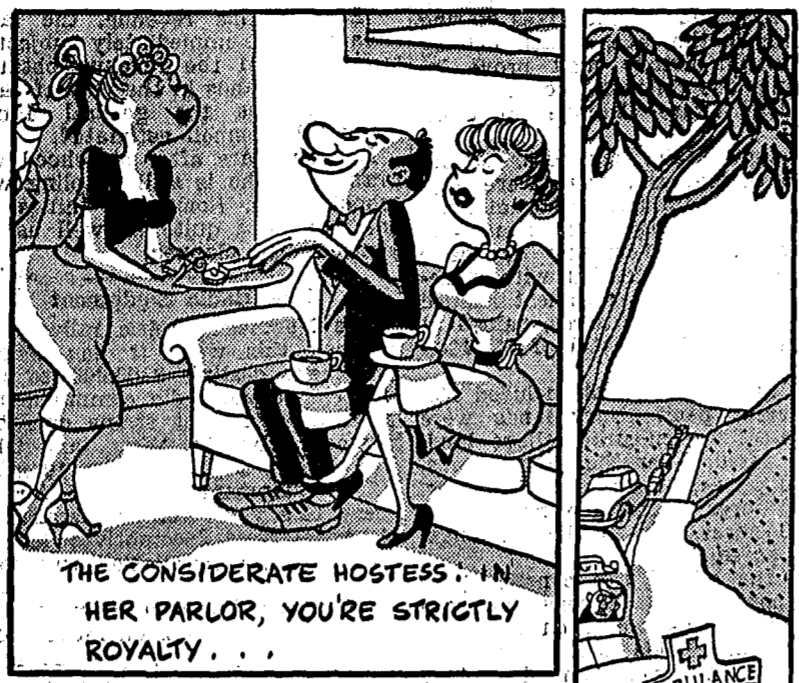

Poultry growers have long known that chicken infected with coccidiosis lose appetite and get weak, but the reason has never been clear. Now veterinary medical scientists have turned up evidence that the coccidiosis parasites upset the body's ability to use sugar. This means that the birds fail to get energy from the sugar that is naturally present in feedstuffs. Besides that, it has been found that these parasites also may affect the delicate body mechanisms that control temperature, metabolic rate, muscle contraction, and muscle nutrition.

When Buying Toys

When buying toys for the baby or toddler bear these facts in mind: Avoid stuffed animals with glass or button eyes. Examine toys to see that there are no removable parts which could be swallowed. Buy sturdy rattles, blocks with rounded corners, soft balls and dolls, and push-and-pull toys with rounded handles. Do not endanger your child with shooting or target toys, sharp scissors or poorly built wagons or carts. Also, buyers should pass up toys that are too heavy or complicated for the receiver.

Trailblazer Banquet Scheduled
Arrangements for the Washington Water Power Co.'s 13th annual Trailblazer banquet, to be held in Spokane March 17, in honor of 397 veteran employees, are now under way, according to H. C. Schupfer, local manager for the pioneer hydro-electric firm.

The annual banquet will highlight the company's celebration of the 62nd anniversary of its founding on March 13, 1889. It will be attended by veteran employees from this area and other sections of the Inland Empire, who have completed 20 or more years of service.

J. E. E. Royer, vice president and general manager for the WWP, will be toastmaster for the event and will present special Trailblazer pins to 15 employees who became eligible for membership in the group this year. Forty-nine other employees will be similarly honored for having completed from 25 to 50 years of service.

Car And Truck Licenses Due
All motor vehicle owners should remember that 1951 car and truck, as well as trailer and motorcycle licenses expire on March 15 — and should make their application immediately.

Potlatch Chief Sez

Published by the Kendrick Creamery

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS:

Some Winter, eh?

Yes, folks, we are definitely having our second winter — and it's just about as good as our first one. Now on this score, let us make a suggestion: "Give old bossy an extra fortful or two of hay. It'll produce more milk; more milk means more cream — and more cream means more money in your pocket. Bring that cream in to us. We do the rest, including the return of a steam-sterilized, ready-to-use can."

Old Lady: "My word! Doesn't that little Jones boy swear terribly?"

Little Joe: "Yes'm he sure does. He knows the words all right, but he doesn't put no expression in 'em."

Hot biscuits, streaming with melted butter and honey — just the thing during this "second winter of ours" — but be sure the butter is "Potlatch Chief" brand, your assurance of quality and purity. It's made from pasteurized cream.

The family had overslept, and Mrs. Smith woke with a start at the clanking of cans down the street. She remembered that the garbage had not been put out — and raced to the front door in her bathrobe. "Yoo hoo," she called, "am I too late for the garbage?" "No," shouted the collector. "Jump right in!"

Are you drinking all the milk you should have for your health's sake? Adults need at least a pint a day, growing children at least a quart. And be sure it's "Potlatch Chief." It's pasteurized.

Even in these days of super-sonic speeds, nothing has been invented that can keep up with a politician dodging an issue!

Guests in the evening were Rev. and Mrs. Meske and family, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Parks and family, Mr. and Mrs. Steinberg and family, Mr. and Mrs. Reinhard Wilken and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rell. The party honored Mr. Meyer on his birthday anniversary.

Suit Styles Change

The graceful, pyramid silhouette is showing up again in women's 1951 coat styles as Idaho homemakers turn to wide, full skirts, narrower tapering shoulders, sleeves set into a curved dolman seam coming from the yoke, and tiny high collars. The fitted suit with rounded, padded hips is the fashion cornerstone of the spring suit collection.

There is focus on the one-button suit with either straight or cutaway front. Softer suit styles bloused and belted, are appearing in numbers. Double-breasted closings identify some of the suit fashions.

"Delight" the observations of many will be the inch shorter skirt," says Miss Esther Nystrom, clothing specialist for the University of Idaho extension service. "The present long, tight-fitting styles of skirt will release their choking hold on women's hips and legs by flaring out in 1951."

Miss Nystrom explains that jackets will simulate the shortness of the Eisenhower jacket in men's clothing, except that they won't fasten at the waist. The jackets will flare out in the back and can either be fastened or left open around the neck.

National Forest Earnings

Missoula, Mont. — Seventeen Northern Region national forests contributed a total of $1,749,917.83 to the federal treasury during the last half of 1950. P. D. Hanson, regional forester, said this week. This is $669,508.69 more than was earned by the same forests during the same 6-month period in 1949. The increase in revenue came from the sale of saw timber and other wood products.

For the seventeen Northern Region forests in Montana, northern Idaho, northeastern Washington and northwestern South Dakota, the books show that $1,708,607.37 worth of timber was sold from July through December, 1950. Livestock grazing fees brought in $18,074.02. Land use rentals paid $18,849.45, and power permits were worth $3,386.99.
