Mr. and Mrs. Herman Travis and family of Grangeville were Saturday visitors in the J. G. Travis home. Shirley and Wanda remained to spend the week with their grandparents.

Capt. and Mrs. Robert N. Olsen, who have been stationed at Riverside, Calif., arrived at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Peters, Saturday, for a visit. Capt. Olsen has a "month's delay en route" furlough.

More Or Less
The old saying, "It's an ill wind that blows no one any good," must be true. Within the last week we were listening to the radio and heard the announcement of the ten per cent increase on the cost of newsprint. We immediately reached for the aspirin, which, of course, helped the aspirin business. It seems as though everything is bound to help someone.

Sky Presents Orange Color
Tuesday evening local residents gazed at a color phenomenon — the whole country being bathed in a peculiar orange color. The western sky also presented a most unusual appearance, clouds banked in layers of white, orange, black and grey — with redish tints showing here and there — plus the deep blue of the open horizon.

Typhoid Fever Plentiful
Twenty cases of typhoid and paratyphoid fever have been reported to the state department of public health. "Compared with 23 cases for all of 1950, the rate of typhoid fever is too high for Idaho," said T. O. Carver, M. D., director of division of Preventative medicine.

Emphasizing that the prevalence of typhoid fever is the "sanitary intelligence" index of the community, Dr. Carver stated that the disease is found where there is a contaminated water or food supply. Typhoid fever is transmitted from one person to another by means of water, food or milk that has been contaminated from discharges from a person suffering from the disease, or apparently well typhoid carriers. He stressed the importance of safe water supplies, the pasteurization of milk, inspection of food and its preparation, and a close check on all known typhoid carriers.

Most Fires Man-caused
The St. Joe Forest has completed an analysis of man-caused fires during the past five years and found that smokers, camp fires, railroads and debris burning are the chief causes, in the order named. The above four classes account for 79.7 percent of man-caused fires, with 38.9 percent caused by smokers alone.

The most discouraging information disclosed by this analysis is the fact that local people are responsible for approximately 50 percent of the fires. With smokers leading the list and fire danger increasing, it is time again to warn the public that it is time again to throw away burning cigars, cigarettes or pipe dottle during the closed fire season in Idaho.

Shower
A bridal shower complimenting Mrs. Weldon Cleveland (nee Donna Knox) was given last Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Oscar Medalen, with Mrs. Eugene Brocke, Gwen Cook and Gerry Onstott as co-hostesses.

The bride received many lovely and useful gifts.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses at the close of the afternoon.

Mt. Ranier Accommodations Open
With the opening on June 30 of Sunrise Lodge, all accommodations in Mount Ranier National Park are ready for the 1951 travel season.

Paradise Inn and Paradise Lodge opened on June 25, and overnight facilities are also available at Longmire and Ohnapoosh.

Cafeteria, fountain service and campers' supplies are available at Sunrise Lodge, but no overnight accommodations are offered there.

Visitation to Mount Ranier so far this year shows a 111% increase over that recorded last year. In 67,288 automobiles, 245,086 people have visited the park to date this year. In 1950, 115,800 people in 32,995 cars were recorded for the same period.

Return in Relation To Feed Cost Down Beef, Hogs, Sheep Show Highest Feed-Cost Gain

The nation's farmers are not making as much from each dollar spent for feed as they have in the past few years. In fact, the return for each dollar spent for feed in the production of eggs and milk is below the 1935-39 average.

For each dollar of feed the farmer spent in the production of hogs, cattle and sheep, however, return is higher than the 1935-39 average.

In the production of eggs the farmers received $1.72 for each dollar spent on feed during 1935-39. But as of September, 1950, he was receiving only $1.56. The amount of

	1935-39 (AVERAGE)	SEPT. 15 1949	SEPT. 15 1950
EGGS	$1.72	$2.16	$1.56
MILK	$1.92	$1.95	$1.89
HOGS	$1.50	$2.03	$1.80
BEEF	$1.39	$2.01	$2.25
SHEEP	$1.44	$1.57	$1.92

The above chart shows the return for each dollar the farmer spent for feed in the production of the five farm commodities listed.

return in the milk industry was three cents less than the $1.92 average of 1935-39.

For each dollar spent for feed for hogs, the farmer's return in 1950 was $1.80, a drop of 23 cents from the 1949 return. The 1935-39 average return, however was even lower, only $1.50.

In beef production the average return as of September, 1950, was $2.25 for each dollar spent for feed. The 1935-39 average was $1.39 and the 1949 average $2.01.

Steps to Help Curb Swine Enteritis Are Outlined

The American Foundation for Animal Health outlines seven steps to help curb swine enteritis.

1. Isolate newly-purchased swine from the home herd for at least three weeks, until they are known to be free of disease.

2. Control internal and external parasites which weaken the animals' resistance.

3. Keep swine away from old hog lots, contaminated pastures, cow pastures, stagnant pools and other sources of infection.

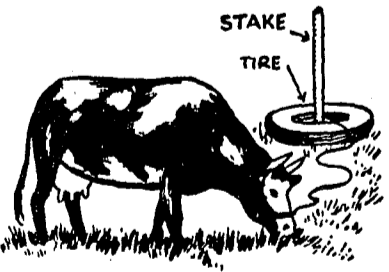

4. Keep feeding and watering equipment clean.

5. Check rations carefully, especially possible deficiency of B-complex vitamins. Prevent over-eating of rich concentrates.

6. Earmark sows and their litters to identify and weed out sow "carriers".

7. Watch for scouring, loss of weight, and failure to feed into gains. At the first sign of trouble, get a diagnosis and isolate the ailing animals from apparently healthy ones.

Tire Tether

Instead of tying a tether directly to the stake, fasten it to an old automobile tire casing and then drop in over the stake. The later, of course, should be much higher than ordinary so the animal will not pull the tire off the stake. This keeps cattle from winding the tether around the stake.

Chemical Blossom Thinning Raises Yield 15 Per Cent

Research men of the U.S. department of agriculture co-operating with orchardists of the northwest report that for the fifth successive season the chemical thinning of blossoms in golden delicious orchards has resulted in gains that average six boxes a tree or about 15 per cent.

The new thinners were used on an estimated 20,000 acres this past season.

U. S. MILITARY POLICY IS DEFINED BY GEN. BRADLEY

Because U. S. foreign policy has shifted from containing Communism to contesting the aggression of its followers, it is more important than ever before that the American people understand their military policy, according to General Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. To aid in this understanding General Bradley has prepared an article entitled, "U. S. Military Policy, 1950" which will appear simultaneously in the October Reader's Digest and October Combat Forces Journal. As chairman of the Military Committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Chairman of the Western Big Three's Standing Group, General Bradley addresses the article not only to American military men and civilians, but also to our friends in western Europe.

"The year 1950 has been a turning point in world affairs," he says, "the free peoples of the earth have decided to resist Communist aggression wherever it occurs, and by force of arms if necessary."

Because our foreign policy has shifted, our nation must have a long-range policy on which to base its preparedness. "This cannot be quickly improvised, nor waver with every wind that blows across the Elbe in Germany or down the Yangtze in China," he writes.

"The Communists have demonstrated that they know where they are going and are getting there as fast as they can. Korea indicates their willingness to provoke the use of arms to gain their ends, with indifference to peace or the reaction of non-Communist nations."

General Bradley thinks that neither diplomat nor soldier alone can lead the American people to wise international action. "Both voices, if the course pursued is to be realistic and effective, must be heard. The soldier can see strategic perils that the civilian might overlook. The soldier must not direct civilian policy, but the civilian must never over-commit the soldier. We must never have a foreign policy that sends our armed forces to world tasks beyond their capabilities."

Military policy must be constant, and at the same time flexible enough to adjust itself to the demands of foreign policy. Today these two are united on three basic objectives: (1) To maintain our form of government and our way of life at any cost. (2) To seek peace, but not appeasement. (3) To support the United Nations, for we are agreed that world peace is an integral part of American peace.

"This year is a turning point toward accomplishment of these objectives," he says. "In Asia we drew a line of defense against Communist aggression at considerable military risk. We chose to defend Korea when it was attacked, rather than watch aggressors 'pick it off' and then wait to see what country would be next."

Another crucial 1950 decision is that both foreign and military policy call for defense of Western Europe from the start, "not for a liberation of our friends after they have been over-run and their home occupied."

It was recognized, however, that American military capabilities should not be "unduly weakened" by involvement in areas of secondary importance and negligible strategic value. The whole vast semicircle of Asia from the China Sea to the Mediterranean Sea can be regarded as a range of volcanoes that can erupt into local wars at any moment if the Communists so choose.

Two principles should guide us in our attitude toward all such local wars: (1) We will recommend aid only to those people who are willing to fight Communist aggression. (2) We will refuse absolutely to allow local wars to divert us from our central task. "They must not be allowed to consume so much of our manpower and resources to destroy our strength and imperil our victory in a world war," he emphasizes.

"No enemy is likely to overcome us unless he first possesses western Europe, which is still the strategic pivot of the world." The defense of the United States is our primary aim, he says, and the defense of western Europe forwards that aim.

In discussing defense, General Bradley stresses the importance of the word "balance." As an example of the need for balance he cites that one of the greatest deterrents to an all-out attack on the United States has been our stock pile of atomic bombs and our long-range airplanes capable of delivering strategic bombing blows upon far-off vital targets.

"I nevertheless do not believe strategic bombing by itself can win a war," he says. "Our experience in Korea has emphasized the fact that we also need tactical air groups in support of ground troops."

The defense of our country requires a balance between our air, ground and naval forces, he continues. It requires a balanced development of all three — balance against the missions and assignments each to perform in our defense plan. Within our air effort itself we need a balance between strategic and tactical. We need a balance among the many different types of planes available.

"The nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have agreed that the defense of the North American area shall be effected on the principle of 'balanced collective forces,'" he states. "This involves treating the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as a pool of forces."

"This principle contends that each country contribute to the common defense of those forces — air, sea and land — which its geographical situation or its industrial capacity, or its resources and manpower make specially appropriate. These individual contributions would be rounded into a collective balanced whole; and thus the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would have a military strength which the present overlapping efforts of its members could never reach."

It would be logical for the United States, for instance, to make a specially large contribution of strategic bombers and for Britain to make a specially large contribution of jet tactical aircraft, in which it is extremely proficient. The United States and the United Kingdom would logically contribute the bulk of initial ground troops.

"The record of two World Wars says to Western Europe that we Americans do not flinch from fighting on the ground," he continues. "I think Korea conveys that same suggestion now."

"No man can foresee the end of this period of tremendous pressure against us," General Bradley concludes. "We only know that we must proceed unfalteringly... in full faith. Our enemy has faith in things material. I do not hesitate to say, as a soldier, that we must have faith in things spiritual."

Important Weed Conference Held

The annual convention of the Idaho Noxious Weed Association was held at Coeur d'Alene on July 24 and 25. The weed supervisors inspected results of a project in which beetles are used to destroy goatweed. The program was explained by Clarence Seeley of the agronomy department of the University of Idaho and William Barr of the department of entomology. A tour of the weed plots at the university followed.

Research work was emphasized at the sessions.

FARMERS' REVOLUTION!

The click of that switch marks the near-completion of a big job... the electrification of rural America! This important achievement is being celebrated throughout the country during the week of August 26.

The facts, simply, are these: today electricity is available to about 95% of occupied farms... where it can help with 350 different farm jobs... bring modern comfort and convenience to 4,900,000 farm homes!

About 80% of this electricity in the U.S.A. is furnished by private power companies. For many years America's business-managed, tax-paying electric light and power companies have worked closely and unceasingly with farmers. Teamwork has paid off in more farm production with less work and time.

WASHINGTON WATER POWER CO.

A SELF-SUPPORTING, TAX-PAYING BUSINESS ENTERPRISE

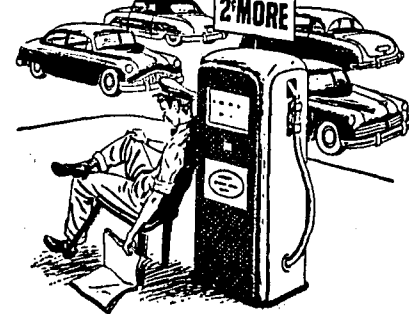

"Don't you big oil companies get together to set prices?"

The question of gasoline price affects every motorist: Standard Oil Company of California receives some letters along these lines: "When I drive downtown, the prices of all the major gasolines seem to be about the same. I've heard it said that the major oil companies get together to set prices. Isn't this true?"

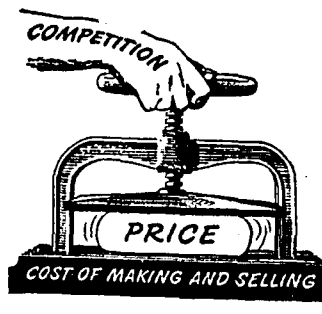

The answer is an unqualified NO. Oil companies do not get together to set prices, nor do we in any way set prices by agreement. But we do think it's in order to tell you about gasoline prices and how they're arrived at:

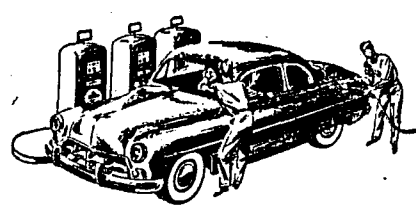

When you shop you find not only gas but many products of the same kind and about the same quality priced about alike. Prices just naturally tend to even up. Here's why—

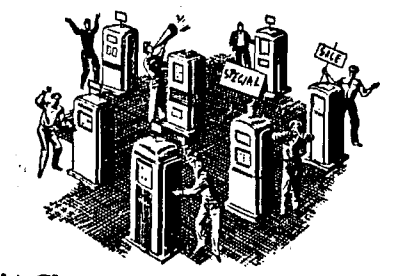

Suppose a gas dealer were forced to sell at 2c a gallon more than his neighbors. Business would soon pass him by. Or suppose he had to sell for 2c a gallon less, still giving full quality and service. As his competitors cut price to hold customers, his income falls. In time he would go broke.

These imaginary examples of set-price policy show what any gas seller is actually up against. He must sell for enough to cover his costs and make a living, yet if he charges too much he'll drive business away. It's as simple as that.

We "set prices" only at stations we own and operate—Standard Stations, Inc. Experience shows what to charge to cover cost of product and service, yet sell in competition.

At Chevron Gas Stations the operators are completely independent. They make up their own minds about price. You occasionally see a range of gasoline prices for the same or different brands in a single area, until competition finally forces the prices of similar products and services back to a common level.

The result: better products at low cost, the benefit you always get when free competition is allowed to work. Note this: aside from taxes, and in spite of inflation, gasoline today costs about what it did in 1919, yet two gallons now do the work that required three then.

I'd Like to Know... Many people write to Standard asking pertinent questions about the Company. We answer all letters individually, but some points seem of general interest. We take this way of discussing them for everyone. If you have a question, we urge you to write in care of: "I'D LIKE TO KNOW," 225 Bush Street, San Francisco 20, California.

Labradors, Dog-Detectives, Get Buckingham Palace Duty

Four descendants of some sharp-scented, cold-nosed North Americans have taken up guard duty at England's Buckingham palace.

Recent robberies there brought the quick assignment of several canine cops to reinforce a 30-man police unit, charged with the protection of his Britannic majesty's London residence. The new world police dogs are the field-famed Labrador retrievers, who rank among the top sporting dogs of the world.

The Labradors were found to be natural "detectives" during World War II. They were outstanding in tracking down land mines, reputedly doing the job quicker and better than any other breed. In 1946 six of them were assigned to the London metropolitan police force.

Gentle and friendly by nature, the animals were never trained to attack man but were used solely to pick up the elusive clues of human scent and follow their remarkable noses to the culprits.

For just such skill in detecting, the Labrador retriever has taken more first place honors in the past two decades of United States field trials than all other breeds of hunting dogs put together. It rates among the four most popular dogs bred by the British for export.

In spite of its name, however, the retriever was not first known as a native of Labrador. It was one of two breeds brought to Newfoundland by early traders and was referred to in the last century as the Lesser or St. John's Newfoundland, or as the St. John's Water Dog. The people of the region used the sturdy, thick-haired dog to haul wood and retrieve wild fowl and also fish that became unhooked just prior to being landed.

New Flight Training at U. of I.

A new division of training—flight operations—will be offered in the University of Idaho Air Force ROTC program this fall. Lt. Col. O. J. Mosman, professor of air science and tactics, announced today.

The new division will give students at the university a wide choice of training, as the university also has Air Force ROTC units in administration and communications, besides Navy-Marine ROTC and Army ROTC including both infantry and engineer units.

To enroll in the new Air Force ROTC unit, students must state that they desire flying training and must pass a physical examination qualifying them for flying. During the junior year, courses will specialize in pre-flight training, including navigation, engineering, meteorology and aerodynamics.

"It is contemplated that students will receive a certain number of actual flying hours during the senior year of study," said Colonel Mosman. If and when flying is made a part of the flight operations option, the actual training will be done through contract with a CAA approved flying school.

This new University of Idaho option will prepare men to go directly into the air force flight training program as officers where they will earn their wings and be qualified to pilot either Air Force bombers or the super-sonic jets.

Offers Four Pointers for Bonuses for Hired Help

If you're thinking of putting your hired man on a wage-plus-bonus plan, here are four points to keep in mind.

J. B. Cunningham, farm management man in the Illinois college of agriculture, says an incentive plan succeeds best if the hired man receives the going wage plus a bonus.

Second, the incentive payment should be based on gross production or income rather than on net farm income. It might be two to four cents for every bushel of grain produced, eight to 12 per cent of each dairy check, three to seven per cent of gross hog returns and so on.

Cunningham also suggests that on dairy farms the hired man receive his bonus payments during the year as milk checks come in. On grain farms, where payment comes at the end of the year, the hired man should get his proportionate share of the bonus if he has to quit before the end of the year for no reason of his own.

Finally, the wage-plus-bonus agreement should be in writing. You can either write your own, or get a farm manager, attorney or some other person to do the job for you.

ERP Nations Gain

Substantial increases in productivity, as measured by output per man-year, have occurred in all countries participating in the European Recovery Program and have played a vital role in their reconstruction and economic progress in the last few years, according to the 1950 report of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation. American aid has been a fundamental factor in making these gains possible. Of the 14 participating nations, six have increased their productivity above the prewar 1938 level. They are France, Ireland, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, and the United Kingdom. Productivity in Belgium, Denmark, Greece and Norway was rated about the same as in 1938, while the Netherlands was lower. Considerably lower productivity than in 1938 was found in Austria, Italy and Western Germany.

Lions, Too, Never Forget

Elephants are not the only beasts that never forget. If you don't believe it, try operating on a lion's ingrown toenail sometime without an anesthetic, challenges Dr. J. A. Campbell of Toronto, Ont. You'll be viciously remembered for years, he warns. Writing in Canada's national journal of veterinary medicine, Dr. Campbell says that skilled use of anesthetics has made life easier and safer for zoo veterinarians as well as the animals, because the patients have no revenge-inspiring memory of what happened. He reported that it takes about four pounds of chloroform to prepare a lion for surgery.

Hens Need Protein

If you feed a 20 per cent protein mash, your hens should get about one pound of grain for every pound of mash you feed. This will figure out about a 15 per cent protein ration, as most grain mixtures run about 10 per cent protein. In case a 26 per cent protein mash is used, about 2 1/4 pounds of grain to each pound of mash will average out about 15 per cent protein for the ration. Hens may need a little more grain in real cold weather to supply heat and energy to withstand the cold.

Potlatch Chief Sez

Published by the Kendrick Creamery

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS —

Sure, we know it's hot — in fact, just a little hotter than hot. And when the temperature gets that way, there's one sure way of getting comfort — get a cone, quart or gallon of Potlatch Chief Ice Cream. Eat the cone on the way home — and have the rest for dessert or between-the-meals snacks. It's just the tops in flavor and smoothness. One trial will convince you!

Sales Clerk: "Those men's pajamas? They're $42.50; would you like to buy a pair?"

Old Maid: "At $42.50? No, ma'am. For that price they should have a man in 'em."

Please bring that cream in often. This hot weather don't wait for a can full, or any certain quantity. Bring or send it in at the earliest possible opportunity. You can always depend on it that the better the cream the better the check!

Son: "Nope. I'm not going back to that job until they take back what they said."

Dad: "And what was that?"

Son: "You're fired!"

A sandwich is tasteless without butter. So — when making sandwiches for that picnic or fishing trip, be sure you use Potlatch Chief Butter. It's your assurance of quality, flavor and purity. Always ask for it by name. Don't just say "butter."

Visitor: "How's your daughter's golf?"

Mother: "Oh, she goes around in less and less."

Visitor: "Yes, I know, but how's her golf?"

Groom: "Have you kissed the bride?"

Best Man (absently): "Oh, yes, hundreds of times!"
