A. met on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Harley Perryman. During the business meeting it was decided to contribute clothing to the Kansas Flood Relief drive. Particulars were obtained from Dr. McKeever, and Mrs. James Holt from Kendrick volunteered to collect the accumulated clothing (which she did on Saturday, and delivered it to Dr. McKeever, who sent it on to Moscow). At the close of the meeting Mrs. Perryman served delicious refreshments to the group. Following the refreshments much time was spent admiring the lawn and flowers, which are as beautiful as ever — despite the drought.

Following a nice vacation — let's have a good turn-out!

Discovers Ancient Catalogue

A short time ago, while doing some remodeling at the old family home on Big Bear ridge, W. E. Hecht discovered an ancient catalogue, issued by the Montgomery-Ward Co. Mr. Hecht says he has no idea how old this "wishing book" but believes it was put out some time in the late 1890's. He purchased the ranch almost 50 years ago, and the house was then standing as it is now, this being the first remodeling done on this section since that time.

The catalogue, found carefully folded between a couple of rafters, is in an excellent state of preservation. It measures 4 1/4 x 9 1/2 inches, and is about a quarter of an inch in thickness. The address given on the cover is "18th and Campbell Streets, Kansas City."

We quote a few of the prices: a 20-lb. pail of new Blood Red Alaska Salmon for $2.18; a 15-lb. pail of Norway Mackerel for $1.74; Best Calicos, 10-yard dress pattern length, 38; 50-inch Fine Table Damask, yard 65c; a 16x24-foot stack cover, 10-oz. duck, $8.58; Genuine Cowhide Traveling Bag, $1.50; six pairs of Women's Silk Embroidered Hose for 75c; Our Royal Twin Auto Seat Buggy, $63.50 — and so it goes. Bill says he is going to Portland, Oregon, one of these days, and will take this catalogue with him "to do some shopping!"

Completes Week of Training

The Rev. F. C. Schmidt, Kendrick, has completed a week of graduate study in theology, evangelism and philosophy at the College of Puget Sound, Tacoma. Upwards of 200 ministers from the Portland area attended the graduate school of ministerial training. They heard four visiting lecturers challenge them to greater efforts in the church labors.

Gives Party For Children

Mrs. F. C. Schmidt, assisted by Mrs. Elmo Eldridge, entertained their Bible School classes with a party in the home of Mrs. Schmidt Thursday afternoon.

Games were played and delicious refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon.

Highlight of the afternoon was a display of hand work done by the Indians in Alaska, where the Schmidts served for many years. Among the articles were various shaped baskets with intricate designs woven in, also some beautiful hand carved items, among which a miniature totem pole held special interest.

Those present were Denny Abrams, Jerry Armitage, Robin Magnuson, Leonard Eldridge, Diane Benscoter, Randy Wallace, Ray Onstott and LeRoy Brocke.

Birthday Party

Mrs. George Brocke, Jr. honored her little son Dean's fourth birthday anniversary with a party in the park last Thursday afternoon.

Games were played, after which birthday cake and ice cream were served.

Those present were Dana and Dee Magnuson, Ricky and Kokko Keene, Bobby Wilson, Richard Abrams, Andrea Sue Cox, Linda Brocke, Diane Lind, Billy and Danny Fey and Ida Glenn.

Suffers Heart Attack

Mrs. Lester Crocker received a telephone call Monday from her sister, Mrs. Ward Howell in Tacoma, saying her husband had suffered a severe heart attack (coronary thrombosis) that morning and was in a hospital in a grave condition.

The Howells are well known here, Mrs. Howell having grown to young womanhood on American ridge, and after their marriage lived at Leland, where he taught school.

All hope for his speedy recovery.

Weather Holding Steady

The weather this past week might be termed "ideal harvest weather." It has been warm, but not hot, and still continued dry. The daily temperatures, with the exception of last Friday, have been moderate, hitting along in the middle 80's. Last Friday, however, the column said a modest 92.

No trace of moisture has fallen here, despite the predicted "thunder showers."

Goodly Crowd X-Rayed

We understand that 426 persons availed themselves of the opportunity for a free chest X-ray while the mobile unit was here last Thursday and Friday.

Considering that this was really the rush season, the number of pictures taken was quite satisfactory. Results will be evaluated and the person having been X-rayed will receive a letter.

Pot-Luck Supper In Park

The Kendrick W. S. C. S. are sponsoring a family pot-luck supper in the park tonight (Thursday, Aug. 16) at 6:00 p. m. to honor Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brocke and family, who are moving to Troy.

All members, their families and friends are invited to be present. Bring a covered dish and sandwiches for your family. Also dishes and silverware.

United In Marriage

Louise Smith, Juliaetta, and Daniel Wilson, Lapwai, were married Friday evening at the Lewiston Trinity Lutheran church. The bride's brother, the Rev. Ed. Smith of the Assembly of God church at Moscow, officiated at the ceremony.

Parents Of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnston (nee Eleanor Herres) of Spokane, are the proud parents of a baby daughter, born to them at 6:30 a. m., Friday, Aug. 10, weight 5-lbs. 6-oz. The little lady has been named Mary Katherine.

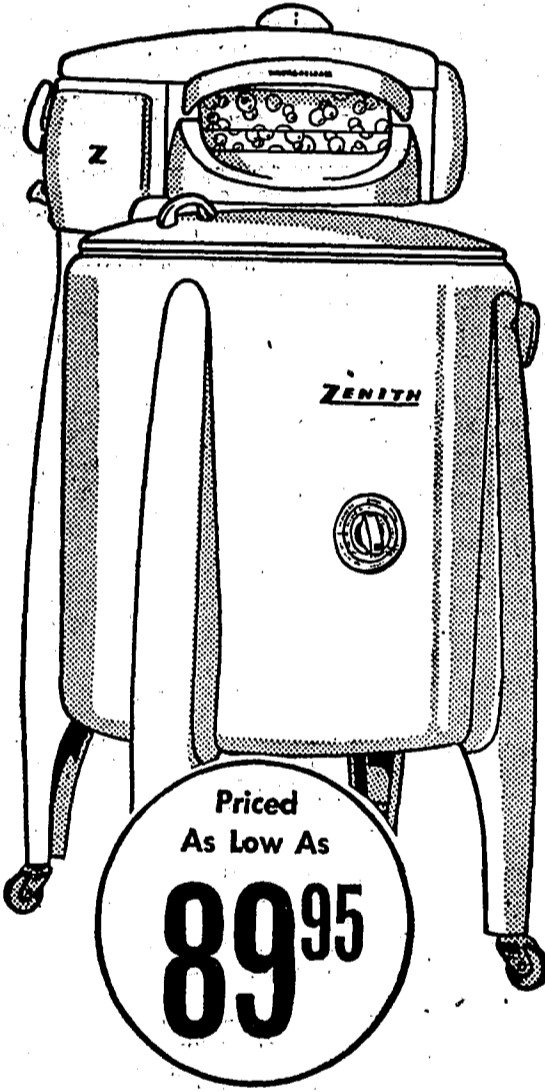

Taken To Hospital

Wallace Emmett was taken to the St. Joseph's hospital, Lewiston, last Saturday for treatment of a heart condition.

At last report he was doing nicely.

Social Security Act - Covers Farm Workers

Half-Million Eligible For Insurance Benefits

As of January 1, about 500,000 regularly employed workers on farms and in farm households became eligible for social security. This means they became eligible for the first time for old-age-insurance benefits—pensions—and for benefits paid to survivors if a wage earner dies.
Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Social Security administration said the new program covers anyone who does planting, cultivating, or harvesting of crops; raises or tends livestock, bees, or fur-bearing animals; prepares, processes, or delivers crops or livestock to market or storage; cooks or does other household work on farms, or does their general farm work. However, each worker must "qualify" first. Farm owners or operators are not covered. Wages paid by an employer to his children under 21 do not count, nor do other payments within a family.

A total of 500,000 farm workers became eligible for social security benefits with the extension of the Social Security Act of January 1.

Altmeyer said employers of farm workers covered by the extension of the law should get instructions from their local collectors of internal revenue concerning when payments should be made and methods for keeping records.

Disaster Relief Program For Farmers Expanding

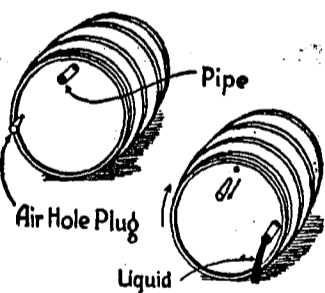

The government announced recently that the simple relief measure started in 1949 to aid snow-bound ranchers in the west has mushroomed into a tremendous business. It has grown into a $33,000,000 business and covers parts of 37 states and Puerto Rico.

The farmers home administration, in charge of the program, reports more than 26,000 loans have been made to farmers. They average about $1,192 each, although there is no limit on the amount a farmer may borrow if he qualifies as a "disaster victim" and can put up sufficient collateral. The largest loan approved to date was $400,000 to a Mississippi farmer.

One of the most recent disaster areas was the entire state of Mississippi where the cotton crop was damaged by bad weather and weevils.

"The end isn't in sight," one official said. "It looks like the program is here to stay—unless the government starts taking losses like it did in the feed-and-seed-loan program of the depression era."

Oil Barrel Rig

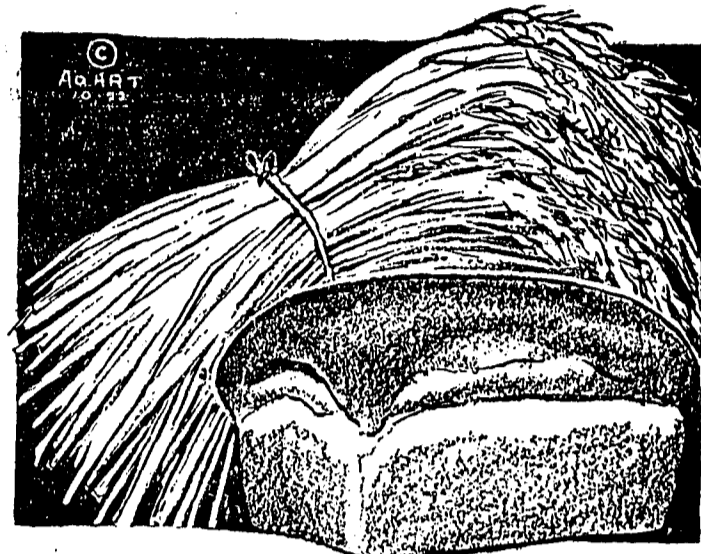

Men on farms and ranches have many heavy barrels containing oil, sheep dip, kerosene, etc., to empty and at times a faucet may not be at hand. Here is an easy way to overcome that difficulty. Secure a piece of 3/4 inch pipe with one end threaded, eight to 12 inches long. Place a chunk under one end of the barrel so contents will fall away from the upper portion of the head near the chime. Then bore a hole through the head with a 7/8 inch bit. Thread portion of the pipe into this hole. When ready to draw off any of the contents just roll the barrel a little until the liquid starts to run. When sufficient has been drawn, roll the barrel back to a position where the pipe is uppermost and contents will stop flowing.

Dehydrated Cheese Is Put On Sale in Netherlands

Cheese in powdered and tablet form is being marketed in the Netherlands, according to the U.S. department of agriculture. The new dehydrated cheese product is made from Gouda and Edam cheeses under a process which is said to reduce the volume of the cheese by one half. The report says that a variety of flavors can be obtained depending upon the age of the cheese used for dehydrating.

How To Go Straight and Save Money

You might as well pitch pennies out of your car window while you drive along as to drive with wheels that are out of line or out of balance. If any wheel travels even slightly out of line, it's bound to scuff off the tread quickly, giving you less tire mileage. Get the most for your tire dollar by having your tires checked regularly to detect mechanical causes of excessive wear.

Unbalanced wheels can cause excessive wear in the form of worn spots or cups in the tread.

Too much toe-in or toe-out of front wheels can cut thousands of miles off your tire life.

Free Inspection Drive in today!

It takes an expert to find the exact cause of excessive tread wear. Our trained service men can inspect your tires thoroughly in a short time. There's no charge, of course. The inspection is part of our job in helping you get the most mileage from your tires. Stop in the next chance you get!

deal lower than appeasement in the scale of futility. Its purpose, indeed, is to bring about a condition of relatively balanced strength to induce the Soviets to accept appeasement. In effect, we are fighting and dying and spending for the great privilege of appeasing the enemy.

Another aspect of the folly of containment needs underscoring. We are beginning to think and act in terms of political and psychological warfare; propaganda and subversion geared to undermine the Soviet regimes and make allies of their subjects. We are making a strong bid for the friendship of the peoples in the Soviet sphere. But containment obviously is incompatible with such warfare. We cannot at the same time promote the liberation of the Kremlin's victims and seek negotiations to make their subjection permanent.

There will be no hope for a relatively free and stable world until we seize the initiative in full consciousness of the risks involved — until we give up the hopeless attempt to contain world communism and apply ourselves frankly, fully, decisively to the job of weakening and ultimately defeating world communism.

Hannchen Barley Plentiful

The seed of Hannchen barley, favorite of the nation's brewers and malters, will be in good supply next year. Some 22,000 pounds of the foundation Hannchen seed went out of the University this spring for increase on farms that grow certified seed.

With all the Hannchen seed ready for certification this summer and with good use of the variety for the next three or four years, Idaho's entire production of malting barley will be Hannchen, says K. H. Klages, agronomist at the university. He named Idaho, Lewis, Nez Perce and Latah as the counties that had built up reputations for growing malting barley.

The agronomist warned against the reintroduction of other varieties than Hannchen into those areas where Hannchen is grown. Such introduction would increase the difficulty of preserving a pure supply of Hannchen seed, he said. Bringing in two-rowed, non-malting barleys is especially to be guarded against if the Hannchen seed strain is to be kept pure.

THE FOLLY OF CONTAINMENT OF COMMUNISM

By Eugene Lyons
(Editor of "Readers Digest")

The Kremlin acts, America reacts. This has been the substance of American foreign policy vis-a-vis Soviet Russia since we have reluctantly acknowledged the existence of a cold war.

Moscow provokes a civil war in Greece—we improvise a Truman Doctrine by way of answer. Moscow blockades Berlin—we respond with a spectacular airlift. Moscow unlooses an invasion of South Korea—we throw in our major military strength to check the aggression.

In short, Stalin starts fires at will and this country rushes fire brigades to the scene, now on one side of the globe, now on the other. One conflagration having been brought under temporary control, we wait in panic anxiety for the next outbreak at some time and place of the Kremlin's choosing. This bizarre American behavior apparently rests on the theory that the way to deal with a pyromaniac is to create a huge and highly mobile fire department.

As American policy it could scarcely be more to Stalin's taste if he had prescribed it personally. For it amounts to a guarantee that the Soviets will retain the initiative; that they can keep us so busy putting out local fires that we will have neither the time nor the resources for dealing effectively with the incendiary. The cost to the Kremlin is negligible: a couple of guards to block the roads into Berlin, Balkan guerrillas, North Korean and Chinese troops, as the case may be. The cost to us is exorbitant, in American blood and substance.

This frustrating, humiliating, indecisive procedure used to be dignified with a grandiose title: the Doctrine of Containment. People like George Kennan and Barbara Ward were its theorists, Dean Acheson and General Marshall its implementers. Since Korea, however, the title is not often mentioned. It is so obviously futile and shabby that our statesmen have become rather embarrassed about it. A "Life" editorial (June 18) even announced rashly that the policy is "dead."

But though the name is soft-pedaled, the reality remains. The determination to contain the Korean episode within Korea, by ruling out obvious counter-measures against Communist China, is proof enough. Certainly the mood of containment—purely defensive conduct, a trembling avoidance of the risks of taking the initiative anywhere—still prevails.

And as long as this is the case, the Politburo can relax, knowing there can be no blows directed against its own survival. In fact, the more individual actions of containment Stalin manages to impose upon us, the more scattered they are geographically, the better the picture becomes from his standpoint. Without staking his own major forces, without involving risks for his own sphere of dominion, he creates a permanent emergency for us. Economically, as we are already well aware, containment siphons off our vitality on an ever larger scale. Strategically—and of this most Americans are still unaware—containment obliges us to build up all conceivable types of military forces, to subsidize all kinds of allies, so that we may be prepared for flare-ups in an almost infinite number and variety of theatres.

Since even opulent America does not have inexhaustible resources and productive capacity, and a positive dearth of manpower, it means that we are precluded from concentrating on the military force best suited for action against the instigator of all the miscellaneous mischief. Greece yesterday, Korea today, Iran tomorrow, are for the Kremlin a species of insurance against the development of the kind and amount of American force that would be essential for a showdown contest.

Containment, to put the matter another way, commits the United States and its associates to dealing with symptoms while ignoring causes. It commits us to fighting and winning battles rather than winning the war. In the measure that it diverts our wealth and energies and technology to isolated, scattered and indecisive enterprises, it squanders strength that might otherwise be husbanded for the main job.

Supposing containment is successful—what can we hope to get for our huge investment? At best, what Secretary Acheson in earnest and Joe Stalin with tongue in cheek have called "co-existence" of the Soviet and non-Soviet worlds; an uneasy equilibrium for as long as Moscow is willing to desist from upsetting it again. The very aim of containment, as one of its advocates frankly put it, "is not to drive the enemy to defeat, but to secure a settlement from him."

As national policy this is a good

98% of the FARM HOMES IN WASHINGTON AND IDAHO are ELECTRIFIED!

The big job of bringing electricity to farm homes in the two states is practically completed. Private electric companies which laid the groundwork for electrical development and the REA with federal funds have worked hard to make this possible. Today, 98 out of every 100 farm homes in Idaho and Washington have electric service available.

The Washington Water Power Company pioneered farm electrification in the Inland Empire. Way back in 1906 when horses and buggies, muddy roads, and outdoor plumbing were common, records show that the first W.W.P. lines were starting to reach Inland Empire farms. In those years electricity was used only for light, and few farms were in the market for electricity. In 1935 the REA backed with federal funds speeded farm electrification. Today the big job is nearly done.

Potlatch Chief Sez

Published by the Kendrick Creamery

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS —

Yes, the hot, dry weather and the busy harvest season are still with us. Are you taking advantage of the short-cuts made possible by this creamery, to save yourself time and labor?

Here's one: Instead of canning that fruit, why not rent a locker from us and freeze it?

Another: Are you serving Potlatch Chief Ice Cream as often as you should for dessert or for those "snacks"? You know it's delicious and good for you, too.

Another: Are you selling that cream to us? You see, we return a steam-sterilized, ready to use can. You don't have to spend time scrubbing and preparing it for use again. Try it!

Telephone Operator: "I'm sorry, sir — but that number has been taken out."

Trucker (on phone): "Oh, is that so? Well, can you give me any information as to just who has taken her out?"

Going fishing or picnicking? Sure you are, the first chance you get. Well, when that happens, be sure to make those sandwiches with Potlatch Chief Butter. It's pure, sweet, flavorful. It's made only from pasteurized cream. You are sure to like it!

"Mother," asked little Johnny while at the circus, "was that clown ever a little boy?"

"Oh, yes, certainly, dear," his mother replied.

"That's funny," said Johnny. "I've never seen one like him."

Don't forget to take home at least a quart of Potlatch Chief Ice Cream next trip to town — or maybe a gallon would be a better quantity.

Locker Box for fruit, meat, etc? Of course. Everybody needs one — and we have them to rent.
