BETTY COLWELL BECOMES BRIDE OF JACK MUSTOE

Betty Lee Colwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Colwell, Kendrick, became the bride of Jack Donald Mustoe, Southwick, Friday, Oct. 5, at 7:00 p. m. in the Kendrick Community Church, at a beautiful candle-light service. Bishop R. D. Baird of the L. D. S. church in Lewiston performed the impressive double-ring ceremony.

Large baskets of pink and white gladiolus flanked by candelabra decorated the altar and made a lovely background for the ceremony. Janice Cantrell and Diane Cantrell of Orofino, cousins of the bride, were dainty little candle lighters. Their dresses were of pink and yellow taffeta respectively, and each wore a wrist corsage of gladiolus complimenting their dresses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white taffeta floor-length gown which was fashioned with a fitted bodice and had insets of crushed lace net over the shoulders. The bouffant skirt flared into a wide hemline, and was inset with a wide band of pink satin. This was overlaid with shimmering net, the net being repeated on the lower part of the skirt in a deep plained ruffle. The pink satin detail was carried out in the bodice also. She wore a fingertip veil of net which was fastened to a little halo head wreath, and carried a bouquet of white stephanotis and pink rosebuds.

Miss Barbara Colwell, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a taffeta floor-length gown of electric blue with a net over skirt. Her bouquet was pink rosebuds, cream colored gladiolus and stephanotis.

The bridesmaids, school chums of the bride, were Gwen Cook, who was attired in an orchid satin dress, and Verna Easterbrook, who wore a blue satin dress. Their bouquets were the same as that of the maid of honor.

Mrs. Foster McFadden of Cream ridge was the pianist and played incidental music as well as the procession and recessional. She also accompanied Burke Sower when he sang "Because" and "Always."

The groom was attired in a brown suit and wore a white boutonniere. He chose for his best man his brother, Carl Mustoe. Ushers were Orville Halseith and Charles Taylor, close friends.

Mrs. Colwell, mother of the bride, was attractive in a charcoal crepe afternoon dress with wine accessories, and wore a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Mustoe chose for her sons wedding a brown suit with matching accessories. Her corsage was of tallisman roses.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlors with 125 friends and relatives present.

The brides' table was centered with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake, decorated in pink and white. After the bride and groom had cut the traditional first piece her aunt, Mrs. Don Cantrell, and sister-in-law, Mrs. Jack Mustoe, finished cutting and serving the cake. Mrs. Pete and Dorothy Kruger.

Mrs. John Schwarz, Mrs. Ida Stoneburner, Miss Emma Hartung and Miss Helen Mielke spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Herbert Schwarz and daughter JoAnn, helping JoAnn celebrate her third birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Schultz of Juliaetta were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kruger, Thursday.

Fellowship Meeting

All are cordially invited to come, bring your family and enjoy a fellowship meeting. Bring a covered dish and sandwiches — and your own dishes.

"Hits The Dirt"

Mrs. Roy Davis departed from her husband's company Sunday — and quite suddenly, too! They were out driving on American ridge, when rounding a corner with considerable speed, Mrs. Davis left the jeep in which they were riding quite suddenly, in fact she "slipped out."

Falling in the gravel at the roadside, her arms were badly skinned and she suffered bruises and scratches on her back — no serious injuries, however.

Breaks Right Wrist
Mrs. Lester Weaver, Linden, suffered a broken right wrist Thursday, Oct. 4, when she slipped on a sidewalk at the home of a friend, and fell. Dr. Christensen reduced the fracture, and she is getting along nicely.

WRITES INTERESTING LETTER ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schupfer have received the following very interesting letter from their daughter, Beverly, a Fullbright scholarship student, now in Austria, as follows: "Aboard S. S. Independence, Sept. 18, 1951.

"Dear Folks: Yesterday was really an exciting day. About 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon we sighted land — Africa, and then came closer and closer until we were in the Strait of Gibraltar, with Africa on the right side and Spain on the left. Africa didn't look like I imagined. The Atlas mountain range just drops right into the sea. We also saw the city of Tangiers in Spanish Morocco. We passed through the Strait for about an hour before we saw Gibraltar. There were porpoise jumping out of the water all around us.

"There is a beautiful port in Gibraltar and the rock is bigger than I thought. We anchored out in the bay for about an hour and a half, and as soon as the ship stopped we were besieged by hordes of small boats peddling trinkets and souvenirs. Everyone on the ship crowded around the rail and each little boat threw up a line with a big basket to haul the money down and the junk up. They sold colored scarfs, antique looking bracelets, French berets, etc. The peddlers, who were Spanish, also sold real Tabu perfume for $2.00 for a good-sized bottle, Phillip Morris and Camel cigarettes for $1.00 a carton, figs, grapes, cognac wine, trinkets, etc. Prices really dropped toward the end of the hour. At first bracelets were 3 for $1.00, but went down to 10 for a $1.00.

"The Captain's dinner was last night. The dining room was decorated with hundreds of balloons, streamers, serpentine, etc., and everyone had paper hats and noise-makers at his place, as well as a bunch of serpentine to throw. It was like a New Year's party. The dinner was special — filet mignon.

"Tuesday evening — This evening before dinner the Captain gave a party for the Fullbright Students. We had group pictures taken and refreshments and entertainment — also the left-over balloons, pom-poms, serpentine and funny hats from last night.

"Wednesday — About 2:30 in the afternoon we landed at Naples, which has the reputation of being one of the 'thievingest cities' in Europe. Stealing is an occupation there, as there is no industry, and people can't earn otherwise. Clutching our possessions with both hands, we all got off the ship, and one of the Fullbright students made arrangements for about 35 of us to go to Pompeii, about 15 miles from Naples. We went in cabs holding six people — old-fashioned black things like you see in pictures. We held our breath while we went through the traffic in Naples — anything goes — pass on either side, no lights or signs, just everyone for himself — and that includes pedestrians. The main section is nice, but we could see into the narrow side streets, and it was all squalor and filth. All along the road out of town we saw Shell and Esso signs.

"Pompeii was very interesting. You can see both Greek and Roman civilization, dating back to 79 B. C. Old temples, baths and villas, and all kinds of marble statues, pictures, etc. On our way back from Pompeii our cab had a flat tire on one of the main streets of Naples. We weren't far from the dock so we walked the rest of the way. The walk down the street was very interesting. The shops were beautiful and they have everything we have, even American products. The Italian money, called 'lire' looks like play money and its like playing 'Monopoly' to spend it.

"We landed at Genoa about 7:00 o'clock Thursday evening and were met by an American Express official who took care of everything. We had a special table in the Customs house, and since we are all Fullbright Students there was absolutely no red tape. Then we were loaded into two big buses and taken to a hotel for the night.

"At 1:30 Friday we got on the train headed for Vienna. The coach we had was first class and very nice. We arrived in Vienna Saturday and were taken to our hotel. Our room was very nice, old but spotless. The furniture is immense and the ceilings very high.

"Saturday evening Dr. Schlag showed a group of us around. We were right off the 'Ring,' which is the heart of the city. Inside the Ring are the parliament buildings, the opera house and the castle. There are many courtyards, squares and monuments in the Ring.

"Coffee is very expensive. About 6 Schillings for a large cup, but you can get two good-sized slices of roast beef for 6 1/2 Schillings. Meat and vegetables are the cheapest food by far, and the meat is very well cooked and has a wonderful flavor. We have been eating our meals with no liquids. It is taken for granted that you will have wine. They only ask you which you will have — red or white. I haven't yet seen a glass of water on a restaurant table.

"Monday evening we are invited to a press reception; Wednesday to a reception at the Austrian Minister of Education's, and Friday with the U. S. High Commissioner in Austria.

"I like it here very much and seem to be one of the few not bothered with the blues. Life here is so easy — no one hurries.

"We will probably go to Graz next Monday, and will write more later.

— Love, Beverly Anne."

Making Use of Fine Weather

All the farmers in this area (who are not away hunting) are taking full advantage of the wonderful weather we have had so far this week. Some are plowing, some seeding, some discing, weeding and repairing fences — but regardless of what you are doing, all will have to admit that starting Friday of last week, we have been having some wonderful weather.

Days have been sunny and warm, and the night cool, but as yet no killing frost has hit in the canyon, although it has in some sections on top the hills.

KENDRICK SCHOOL NOTES
 Friday, Oct. 5th, the Kendrick Tigers traveled to Orofino to meet the Maniacs — the score: Kendrick 0, Orofino 28.
 During the first half-hour of play the Maniacs tallied 21 points. Many of their running plays centered around Gillmer, a fast-running, shifty back, who carried the ball without any apparent difficulty through the Tiger defense.
 After the half-time Kendrick plugged up several holes, but not enough to keep the Maniacs from scoring another touchdown. Every try that Orofino made for extra point was good.
Observing Traffic Regulations
 Citizens of Kendrick and the surrounding area are to be reminded that the school laws regarding the passing of school busses must be strictly observed.
 At all times when busses are loading or unloading children it is unlawful to pass without first stopping. In case the stop arm on the bus is extended the traffic should remain stopped until the stop arm is retracted or until the bus proceeds. If the stop arm is not extended the approaching car must first stop, then proceed at a rate not to exceed 10 miles per hour.
 It is our aim to avoid any and all traffic hazards and the cooperation of the public is necessary.

Find Clue to Mortality Among Baby Calves, Pigs

Nobody knows definitely why many newborn calves and pigs die shortly after they begin to nurse, but a theory advanced by research veterinarians is winning acceptance because it seems to be the most logical explanation yet offered.

Picture a starving man who eats food that makes him violently ill, only to die from the illness rather than from starvation, and you will have an idea of what is believed to be happening to countless pigs, and calves too, on the nation's farms. The main difference is that the newborn animals die after consuming their mother's milk—the very thing upon which they depend for life.

This is how the trouble starts: While the cow or sow is pregnant, she is attacked by a virus disease that may or may not be apparent to the owner. Her natural body forces produce substances called antibodies that fight off the infection, and at the same time some of these antibodies find their way to the unborn calf or pig.

Large amounts of them also go into the colostrum or first milk, that will nourish the youngster after birth. These disease-fighting substances have a sensitizing effect on the unborn animal. Then, after birth, when the youngster starts to consume colostrum, it gets a large dose of the antibodies and dies from shock.

Prevention of such losses is a problem now confronting veterinarians. While the colostrum from affected cows and sows is obviously harmful, it also has many properties vital to the survival and health of calves and pigs. Ordinary milk and other feedstuffs do not contain all of these essential properties, and so far satisfactory artificial foods have not been developed for practical farm use.

Veterinarians Tell Ways To Prevent Pig Scours

These five suggestions for keeping scours out of the spring pig crop are offered by swine disease authorities of the American veterinary medical association:

1. Set up a definite schedule for feeding the sow. Irregular feeding results in an uneven flow of milk that causes nursing pigs to go hungry at one feeding and then scour from overeating at the next.
2. Don't overfeed the sow. Newborn pigs often scour because the brood sow is being overfed. Give her only warm water and no solid feed the first day after farrowing and a small amount of bran or oats the second day. After that, the ration can be increased a little each day so that she is on full feed within two weeks.
3. Feed a balanced ration. If the sow gets too much corn, her litter is almost sure to scour.
4. Keep sows away from mud holes, manure, and filth. Many cases of pig scours are traceable to filth consumed while nursing.
5. Protect pigs against sharp changes in temperature. Failure to keep pigs warm when the weather suddenly turns cold will cause outbreaks of digestive trouble.

Saws Used in Home

The saws commonly used in the home are the hacksaw and the handsaw. The hacksaw is used to cut metal and the handsaw to cut wood. There are two types of handsaws, the rip saw to cut with the grain and the crosscut to saw across the grain. All saws should be kept sharp. In starting a saw cut, the thumb of the left hand should be used to guide the blade until the cut is started at the desired location. The first stroke of the saw should be in the up direction. Sufficient pressure should be used when starting the cut so that the saw immediately begins to bite into the wood.

Warning to Cattlemen

Stock owners who use grazing land that adjoins oil lines and tanks are warned to watch out for crude oil poisoning in their herds. A bulletin from veterinary medical authorities cautions that the lines and tanks occasionally spring leaks, leaving pools of oil, and cattle may consume enough of it to be fatally poisoned. Animals on poor grazing land seem to have a special liking for crude oil, the bulletin adds. Cattlemen also are advised to keep their animals off pastures fronting recently oiled roads, particularly during rainy weather. The reason is that rain may wash enough oil onto the pasture to poison all or part of a herd.

Early Days of Indiana

Indiana territory's initial 1,000 settlers came from Kentucky, Virginia, and the Carolinas. They built their cabins in the south, along the Ohio and lower Wabash. They found the farm land rich, and when, in 1813, they moved their capital to Corydon, 20 trail miles west of Louisville, their number was 30,000. The total had jumped to 75,000 by late 1816, when statehood was won. There were a million and a half Hoosiers in Civil War days. By that time, the state's "naturals" in crops—corn, wheat, and hogs—had been found. Hominy and hogs continue to be good Hoosier fare.

GRAIN MARKETS ADVANCE DUE TO POOR WEATHER

Grain markets showed advances during the past week, influenced by fear of frost damage to corn and unfavorable weather for harvesting of soybeans and flaxseed, according to reports to the Market News Service of the Department of Agriculture. Wheat prices moved up with feed grain and advanced about 1/4c per bushel at the midwest markets but were about unchanged on the west coast. Oats prices advanced about 4c per bushel as a result of an active demand for the small receipts, and malting barley moved up slightly, while feed types remained about unchanged. The 1951 world wheat crop is tentatively forecast at 6,650 million bushels by the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations. If realized, this would be one of the largest on record: 5 percent above last year's crop of 6,320 million bushels, and 10 percent above the 1935-39 average of 6,024 million bushels. The wheat crop in the traditionally deficit area of western Europe is smaller than that of 1950, increasing import needs in most of these countries. A large part of Europe import needs this season will be dependent upon supplies from the northern hemisphere exporters, since both Argentina and Australia are expected to have smaller crops than in 1950. Prospects are below average in both of these countries because of reduced acreage. Production in Europe, excluding the Soviet Union, was forecast at 1,565 million bushels which compares with 1,520 million in 1950 and the prewar average of 1,599 million. Smaller crops than last year are expected in Italy, France, Belgium and the Scandinavian countries. Spain, in contrast, reports the biggest crop since 1934. The Soviet Union 1951 wheat crop, from present indications, will be somewhat above the 1950 crop. In North America wheat production is estimated at 1.6 billion bushels, which is the largest crop of record. Larger than average carry-over stocks in both the United States and Canada bring the total supply for the current season to 2.2 billion bushels. Assuming normal domestic requirements, this would provide 1.3 billion bushels for export or carry-over.

Arrivals of wheat at primary terminals decreased somewhat from the high level of last week and totaled a little over 16 million bushels. Sale of wheat under the wheat agreement amounted to a little over 9 million bushels. Of this, 7.3 million bushels were sales to India. This brought the cumulative sales to a little over 100 million bushels, leaving a balance of 155 million bushels yet to be sold.

While fairly heavy showers fell in portions of the Northwest early in the week, rainfall in the principal grain producing sections was very scattered and light. Farmers, however, were encouraged to continue seeding of fall grains and operations were in full swing. Early seeded fields are up to good stands in some areas. Additional moisture is needed generally to assure a good fall growth.

The cash wheat market in the Pacific Northwest turned slightly firmer the past week, influenced by good demand, advances in other markets and a continued firm holding policy by producers. Prices at Portland averaged about unchanged from the previous week with export white wheat showing a gain of up to 1c per bushel while red wheat prices eased off 1/4c to 1c, reflecting a slackened export demand for this type. Grower applications for loans under the support program were reported quite heavy, however, and there were also indications that some earlier loans were being redeemed since prices at Portland were 7c to 7 1/2c per bushel over the loan rate at that market, less handling charges. Receipts of wheat during the week totaled 1,613 cars compared with 1,415 a week ago and 828 the same week last year. Carload receipts at Portland and Columbia river terminals so far this season are nearly 40 percent larger than during the same period last season. This heavy movement, plus difficulty in securing vessel space has resulted in some congestion at a number of terminals. Exporters, however, continued active in the market and reports indicate that 4 cargoes of white wheat were sold to India the past week. Japanese firms were also inquiring for several cargoes of white wheat for shipment this month. Mills were steadily in the market for special lots to cover recent flour sales to the Philippines. In the Pacific Northwest oats held steady and firm with moderate offerings readily taken by local processors. Receipts totaled 44 cars against 33 last week and 128 the same week a year ago.

Barley markets in the Pacific Northwest turned firmer, reflecting a more active buying interest from exporters and domestic users. Prices on feed types advanced from 50c to $1.00 per ton. Receipts of barley at terminals totaled 122 cars against 237 last week and 246 a year ago.

Watch Children's Eyesight

The importance of knowing signs of falling eyesight was scored by Miss Florence Whipple, nursing director of the state health department this week, in pointing out the dangers of neglecting eyesight in preschool and school children.

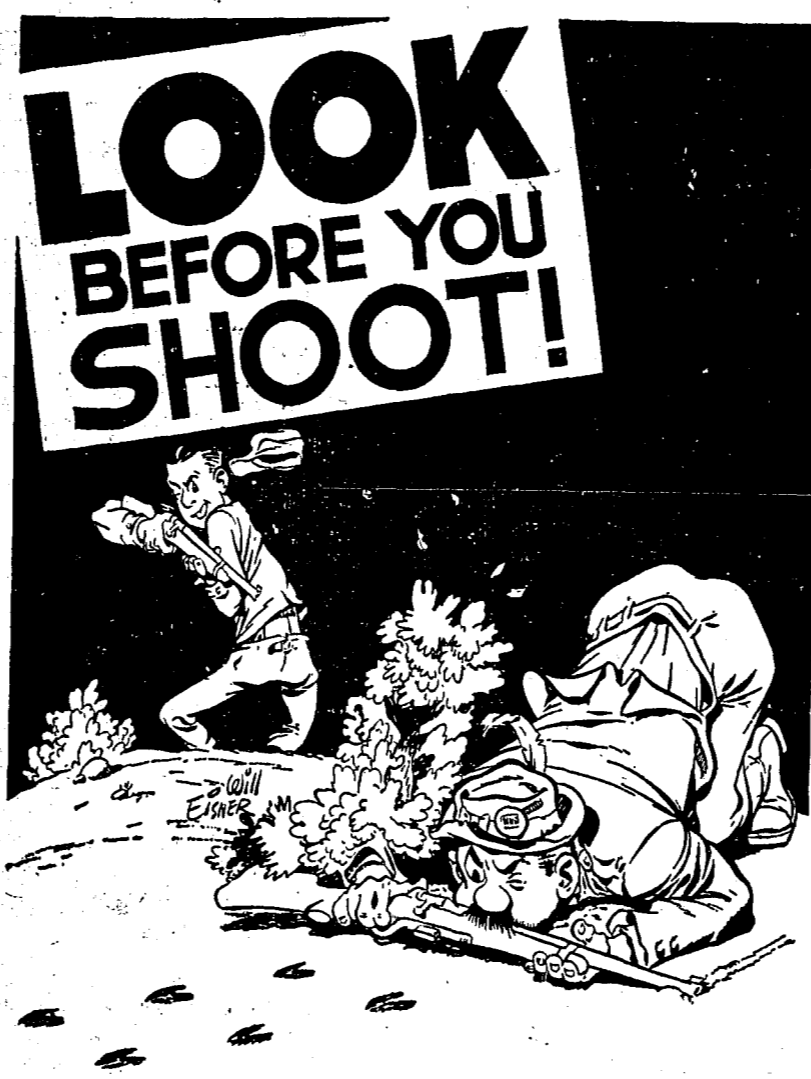

"Headaches and dizziness following close eye work may be a sign of poor eyesight as often as squinting or holding books close to the eyes," she said, in pointing out that after these signs of early eye trouble are mistaken for common irritability or overlooked entirely.

She cautioned parents and children to watch for symptoms listed below, which, if not discovered in time and placed under a doctor's care, may result in permanent damage:

Frequent attempts to brush away blur, frowning, shutting or covering one eye, abnormal sensitivity to light, unusual blinking, irritability following close work, holding reading material too close or too far away, and repeatedly stumbling into the same objects.

Public health nurses are now assisting teachers in most Idaho schools with eye testing program, said Miss Whipple.

She emphasized that these programs, followed by prompt medical attention, will give many youngsters a better chance of possessing and preserving the most priceless of all possessions — eyesight.

Farallons, Bird Refuge, Now Closed to Civilians

California's Farallon islands, whose 1950 U. S. census count of an even 30 inhabitants was reported complete before the April 1 official census started, found human traffic there far greater in the 19th century than it has been in the first half of the 20th.

Russian sealers occupied the bleak group, 26 miles west of San Francisco's Golden Gate, from 1812 to 1833, notes the National Geographic society. Drafting Indians and Aleuts as labor, they reduced seals from abundance to scarcity, taking close to 200,000 skins for the China trade. Sir Francis Drake had restocked his vessel with seal meat at the Farallons in 1579.

During the 1849 gold rush in California, food was scarce in San Francisco. Egg-gathering from the nests of gulls and murrens on the Farallons became profitable and well organized, and the traffic continued for many years. Finally, bird lovers stepped in, and the islands are now a bird refuge, closed to civilians from April to August.

The Farrallons, known but little even to mainland Californians, consist of three pinpoint groups of rocky islets spreading over seven miles of the Pacific ocean on air and water lanes of trans-Pacific travel. Paradoxically, although they are officially part of the City of San Francisco, the mayor and other city officials may not set foot on them without special permission.

The permission must come from the 12th coast guard district based in San Francisco. It provides the personnel that maintains the powerful beacon 558 feet above sea level atop Southeast Farallon, the only inhabited island of the group.

The lighthouse - keeping families live in neat, white houses at the foot of the high beacon cliff. A radar station and an automatic fog-signal horn complete the island's important navigation aid equipment.

Tip On Protecting Machinery Against Winter Rust Damage

We hear tell that the life of a farm implement may be shortened as much as 10% in one year by rust and corrosion.

You can paint or spray it on, or simply dip smaller implements. If you use a brush we suggest this handy way (left) to preserve the bristles when you put it down.

Standard Utility Coating, when used as a primer, also helps weather-proof metal roofing. Call us about it right now. Fast service is the basis of our local business.

A few cents worth of asphaltic Standard Utility Coating on an implement will ward off costly rust all winter long.

Human Regard for Criminal Modern Idea, Says Educator

The idea that the legal offender shares a common humanity with his nonoffender brother is a relatively novel conception and regards the criminal as a human being and not subhuman, specialhuman, superhuman, infrahuman, robothuman, or extrahuman, Dr. Robert Lindner, clinical psychologist at Haerlem Lodge, Catonsville, Maryland, told the first session of the third annual institute on crime and delinquency which University of California extension held in Los Angeles recently.

Declaring that "Offenders, too, are human," Dr. Lindner pointed out that the modern view of the criminal historically succeeds the primitive, theological, philosophical, mechanical, and psychiatric views. "The modern view is based on a total approach to the offender, including the whole person and his history in the world; it is based upon scientific knowledge that is reaching a level of maturity; its sources are biological, anthropological, sociological, and psychological. Among these, the psychoanalytical appears to be the most fruitful and comprehensive."

Study Hydrogen Bonds

While other scientists the nation over concern themselves with hydrogen bombs, Dr. Joseph W. Ellis and Dr. Leonard Glatt of the physics department of the University of California are busy with hydrogen bonds—a study more closely related to everyday life. Hydrogen bonds are links which assist in holding together the long molecular chains found in many of the substances we use in our daily life. These links are formed by the sharing of a proton (hydrogen nucleus) between two units of the same or different molecules. Examples of substances they bind together are liquid water, proteins, and many plastics, including nylon.

Potlatch Chief Sez

Published by the Kendrick Creamery

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS —

Haven't we been having some beautiful fall weather? These beautiful fall days are just what you farmers ordered to get the work done. But, in the rush, are you neglecting one source of income? — That from your cows? You know, with just a bit of care that income can be increased considerably — so you can't afford to overlook it. Just a little gain or a little hay added to bossy's diet will pay big dividends — and we pay cash for that cream!

Two German fishermen were trying their luck on opposite sides of the River Spree. The angler on the American-zone bank was pulling in fish after fish, but the man on the Russian-zone bank was not even getting a nibble. The latter finally yelled in irritation: "How do you manage to catch so many while I get none?" "Very simple," replied the fisherman on the American bank. "Over here the fish aren't afraid to open their mouths."

Fruit jice, hotcakes and bacon with coffee make an ideal chilly weather breakfast — and you'll find it all the tastier if those hotcakes carry a liberal portion of "Potlatch Chief" Brand Butter. Man, oh, man, but it's good — and good for you, too.

Son, reading the evening paper: "Dad, I thought that medical assistance was given to cure people."

Father: "So it is son. What makes you think otherwise?"

Son: "It says here that a woman fell and struck her head on the sidewalk and died without medical assistance. That certainly sounds contradictory to me."

Remember — always: The name "Potlatch Chief" on dairy products, means quality!
