Kendrick Loses To Orofino

Last Friday evening the Tigers went to Orofino for a game with the Maniacs, and lost to that team 40 to 43.

Both teams were short-handed from the bench, Kendrick without Wolff and Celemenhagen; Orofino without Wilson and two other varsity men, due to ineligibility and the flu. With two minutes to go Midland made two foul shots for Orofino, putting them out in front 43 to 40. Kendrick had several chances to score, but just couldn't "get the lid off the basket," and Orofino gained possession of the ball and successfully stalled the final seconds of the game.

GOVERNMENT HAS NO FIRM POWER POLICY

When Douglas McKay's qualifications for secretary of the interior were reviewed recently by a senate committee, he pointed out how the federal government's public power program had interfered in recent years with private power development, particularly in the Northwest. Mr. McKay is interested in giving the private utilities a better chance to serve the public than they had under the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. The senate interior committee gave his appointment a unanimous indorsement, and he was confirmed in his new position.

This does not mean that Mr. McKay is going to reverse government public power policies. He will not have the authority to do so, for he is purely an administrator of some of the power laws enacted by congress — those that come under the department of the interior.

The fact that these laws are a hodge-podge of contradictions was brought out by Senator Guy Cordon of Oregon, a long-time associate of Mr. McKay, when he voiced the need for congress to develop and spell out clearly a public power policy.

Right now the federal government is spending millions and millions of dollars on the construction of steam — not hydro-electric — power plants in the Tennessee valley, in the Northwest the power generated at federal dams must be sold under laws which give preference to municipal corporations like the PUDs. In other areas the generation and sale of power varies with the specific authorization of limitations made by congress. There is no firm federal power policy.

The federal government and the individual states regulate the private power firms through the federal power commission and the state public utilities commission. Private power has had to conform to multitudinous regulations from these sources at the same time that it has tried to compete with the public power agencies which now get preferential treatment in particular areas.

There is obviously a need for a new appraisal of the role of the federal government in the power industry. But don't expect Mr. McKay to do anything about it. That's a job for congress.

Maybe the new administration can halt the trend in the executive agencies toward a socialization of the power industry under the New-Deal Fair-Deal. But the policies should be clarified in the legislative branch of the government, so that private power and public power can fulfill their obligations in serving the consumers, both domestic and commercial — The Spokesman-Review.

Elves and Leprechauns Took Blame for Everything

It may not be on the official unemployment records, but the fact is that there are hundreds of shees, leprechauns, and elves out of a job.

Since each one of them has a long history of diligent service to humanity, it seems a real shame they can't be put back to work. Each of us needs one to take the rap for the petty annoyances of daily living. These out of the way, we could devote ourselves to the big problems.

According to the Childcraft reference library, our ancestors used the little people to full advantage. They let them take the responsibility of souring the milk, rattling the windows and creaking the stairs, and breaking Aunt Nellie's best china.

A nice feature of the little scamps, too, is their wide range of nationality.

Did your parents come from Scandinavia? Then you will want to select an elf. This pint-sized creature will live in your home and help keep the kitchen neat. If he occasionally cracks a dinner plate or burns the toast, you can't very well complain. That's what you want him for, to take the blame, isn't it.

Pixies are your choice if you have British ties, and there is a fine assortment of shees for you Scottish folks. If you are Irish you may select between the revelry-loving shees and the rather dour leprechauns, who, incidentally, are apt to ignore you as they spend most of their time making shoes for the shees.

If you favor France you will have to get along with a goblin. But maybe he's better than a German poltergeist, who is downright rowdy. He will cause no end of commotion until someone bakes him a spice cake.

Just a word of warning before you adopt one of these little chaps — they believe in people, and definitely expect people to believe in them.

Life Expectancy for Man Reaches 66-Year Average

Man once shared the life expectancy of a pack-donkey, but over a 2,000 year period has attained a 65-year average—almost rivaling the 70-year expectancy of the whale, the longest-lived mammal in the life chart.

But this increased age has drawbacks in the form of cancer, diabetes and heart disease.

The average Roman of about 50 B. C. lived only 25 years. Modern medicine and sanitation now give man at least 40 more years—and a greater chance of having one of the diseases usually associated with the aging of the human body.

Human progress up the life-expectancy ladder is something of a triumph for man, who is not too well endowed with protective equipment. He is the only mammal in the higher brackets who is without some form of protective armor. For example, he ranks with the whale, 70; the elephant, 60; the hippopotamus, 40; and the alligator, 40 years.

Domesticated mammals range in life expectancy from the dog, 10 years, to the cow and horse, 20 years, and the burro, 25. Lowest mammal in the chart is the mouse, who lives from 2 to 6 years.

"Breaking Up" Water

Water, which consists of hydrogen and oxygen, can be broken up into these elements by electrolysis. If two wires, carrying a direct electrical current, are placed in water, bubbles of oxygen form around the one connected to the negative side of the battery or generator, while oxygen forms around the wire connected to the positive terminal. Usually a small amount of acid must be added to the water to make it conductive of electricity. Also, if water, in the form of steam, is heated to a very high temperature, around 3500 F, it separates into hydrogen and oxygen. These recombine to form water as the temperature is lowered again.

Longer Life for Sheets

To lengthen the life of sheets follow these suggestions. Reverse sheets every other time by putting a bottom hem at the top. Cover bare springs with heavy sheet or sheeting to avoid snagging bed linens. And check all beds for needed carpentry. Put a mattress pad between the sheet and the mattress to avoid the abrasive action of the rough ticking against the sheet. Loosen the edges of the sheet until all around before stripping the bed. Use mild solution of bleaches and rinse thoroughly, or better still, let the sunshine do your bleaching. Always rinse thoroughly to remove traces of soap and soap powders.

Study Premature Babies

An instrument corresponding to a miniature iron lung has been used by University of Michigan researchers in studying premature babies. Object of the studies was to find out why premature babies breath irregularly—in gasps or jerks. The research has shown that the cause of this irregular breathing is that oxygen is not reaching the tissue of the brain center which controls respiration.

From faraway places—more oil for you

In Sumatra back in 1924, Standard geologists began mapping possible deposits of oil. But not until last year did Sumatran wells start adding to available oil supplies. This operation, costing some $62 million to date, was pioneered by Standard. It is now carried on jointly with The Texas Company under the name "Caltex."

Into San Francisco Bay come tankers carrying Sumatran crude—returns on the long gamble Standard undertook nearly 30 years ago. Other shipments go elsewhere in the world, aiding progress and adding defensive strength. Four friendly nations in particular benefit directly. First, of course, is the young Indonesian Republic, of which Sumatra is a part. Then Australia, Japan and the Philippines. They produce practically no oil of their own, but will be supplied in the near future by refineries which Caltex is helping to build. ¶ And, of course, the Sumatran oil brought into this country helps keep you in gasoline and the many other petroleum products you've come to rely on. ¶ Standard's activities abroad, typified by this flow of Sumatran crude, are constantly being expanded, as an added guarantee that petroleum needs of the free world will continue to be met.

"THERE IS FAR MORE DANGER

in public monopoly than there is in private monopoly, for when the government goes into business it can always shift its losses to the taxpayers. If it goes into the power business it can pretend to sell cheap power and then cover up its losses.

"The government never really goes into business, for it never makes ends meet. And that is the first requisite of business. It just mixes a little business with a lot of politics and no one ever gets a chance to find out what is actually going on. I feel so strongly on the government keeping out of business that if I had my way . . . all the government should have is an efficient inspection bureau."

Load And Speed Curbs Applied
Load and speed restrictions went into effect Tuesday morning for an indefinite period on several stretches of state and federal highways in the Lewiston area. J. J. McCreedy announced Monday evening.
A load limit of 400 pounds per inch width of tire, a 14,000-pound maximum load per axle and a 30-mile-per-hour speed limit was placed on the restricted roads.
Limits were necessitated, Mr. Mc-

Creedy said, by the long continued period of wet weather.
"While there has been no serious breakup as yet, and frost has left the sub-grade except in the extra high country, the soil has now become saturated to the point, where, if precipitation continues, all supporting value of the sub-grade will be lost," McCreedy said. He added that the limits are needed "to preserve the existing surface, protect highway users' investment and provide a safer riding surface."

Included were the following:
State Road 7 — Junction with U. S. 95 near Grangeville to junction with State Road 9 near Orofino, and from Ahsahka to junction with U. S. 95 Alternate near Harvard. (Ahsahka through Southwick, Kendrick, Deary, etc.)
State Road 8 — Washington State line through Moscow to Bovill.
Trade at home. But it in Kendrick!

World Day Of Prayer
 The local Women's Society of Christian Service is sponsoring a World Day of Prayer service on Friday, Feb. 20, in the Kendrick Community church.
 The theme for 1953 is "Walk as Children of Light." The service is interdenominational and was written by Christian women in Africa, with the hope that those who participate will so stretch their minds that they will be able to understand something of the joys and sorrows, longings and sufferings of others.
 The purpose of the World Day of Prayer is twofold. 1. To unite all Christians in a bond of prayer. 2. To make an offering for Christian missions at home and abroad. In 1952 the service was held in over 17,000 communities in the United States, and women in 113 other countries participated.
 Every woman in the community is invited to meet with us as we pray and sing this service sent us by our African friends. The service starts at 1:30 and will be over in time for mothers of school children to be at home when the children arrive.

Potlatch Chief Sez

Published by the Kendrick Creamery

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS —

Well, here it is past the middle of February, and the grass growing greener by leaps and bounds in the lower country — although we understand some of the section got its biggest snow of the season Monday morning. Just goes to prove that you can't count on too early a spring and field work. So in the meantime, care for those cows and chickens and bring that cream and those eggs in to us. You'll like our cash and our service. Try us next time, won't you?

"How is it that you are late this morning?" the clerk was asked by his boss.
"I overslept," was the reply.
Boss: "What? Do you sleep at home too?"

Butchering this spring? We rather imagine you are. Most farmers do — and if you are, better come in and pick out that locker box now. You'll find one to suit your requirements at a price you can pay. Let us show them to you.

Judge: "What happened after the prisoner gave you the first blow?"

Witness: "He gave me a third one."

Judge: "You mean a second one?"

Witness: "No. I gave him the second one."

Do your children want to snack after school? Well, most children do — so here's a suggestion that is worth while. Keep plenty of that delicious, nutritious "Potlatch Chief" Ice Cream on hand, and give them a dish when they come home — or a dish before bed. It's good, and good for you!

Manicurist: "Does the moon affect the tide?"
Barber: "No, only the untied."
