A state right-of-way purchaser has been operating in our vicinity the past several days, purchasing right-of-way for the new bridge across the Middle Potlatch, toward Kendrick. This new bridge will be most welcome, as the old one is too narrow to permit passing. We understand the road is also to lose some of its "curve" as it nears the bridge, from the Kendrick side.

dent officers to see the Regional tournament. A good time was had.

Johnson's Story of Success Started About 65 Years Ago

When Samuel Curtis Johnson began making parquet flooring in his Racine, Wis., workshop 65 years ago, he little dreamed of the turn his business would take.

It was a small operation, with two men and two boys doing all the work, but they were thorough craftsmen. Their flooring can still be found in old American homes. Mr. Johnson, reading his mail by lamplight, in the evening, noticed that more and more customers were turning to him for information on how to care for floors. Knowing that many floors in Europe had withstood the tread of centuries, thanks to wax, he recommended that his customers use the same substance.

Within a few years the Johnson company was manufacturing its own wax and wood finishing products. They subsequently found that the sideline was outstripping the main products in volume of sales. In 1916, with simple tastes in home decorating becoming more evident, the company abandoned its parquet business and concentrated on wax products.

Today, with the founder's grandson, H. F. Johnson, at the helm, the company ranks high in American industry. Its main office and laboratory in Racine, the plans for which were drawn by Frank Lloyd Wright, is a symbol of industrial growth. The company has offices and plants in Canada, England, France, Australia and other parts of the world. It has a refinery and plantation in Brazil where the world's supply of carnauba wax is obtained.

The little group that began the manufacture of parquet flooring in the back-street workshop 65 years ago could never have guessed they were sowing the seed of a business that was to make Racine the wax center of the world.

Nurse Braved Fever, Risked Life to Help Malaria Fight

Feeding disease-laden, killer mosquitoes once was the hobby of an elderly Baltimore nurse.

Miss Lena Townshend, now 76 years old, hoarded spare time from her nursing duties to provide life-sustaining sugar water for the caged mosquitoes used in yellow fever experiments by the late Army doctor and scientist, Major Walter Reed.

As a civilian nurse, Miss Townshend's 16-month affiliation with Dr. Reed and his important work was unofficial but she made a definite contribution to the project's success. Her experience with the menacing mosquitoes today are a fond memory in her career, 38 years as a practicing nurse.

While the Army prepared to honor Major Reed by observing the centennial of his birth, September 13, the gray-haired nurse was proud but modest in a discussion of her work in the fever-ridden country that was Cuba in 1901.

Miss Townshend went to Cuba due to a post-war shortage of nurses and a personal desire for foreign duty at the turn of the century. As night superintendent of Havana Municipal Hospital No. 1, she had a role in the fight against another epidemic of that time, typhoid fever.

Her "spare time" work was done in Dr. Reed's laboratory, one part of the hospital, after she already had put in 12 hours of night ward duty. She worked on the yellow fever charts which Major Reed maintained for the benefit of government and private hospitals in this country in addition to feeding the mosquitoes.

Interested both in the capture and care of the man-killing insects, Miss Townshend paid little heed to the other laboratory animals, guinea pigs and rats. She said she wasn't afraid of them but "I just didn't like them."

Although she nursed both yellow and typhoid fever cases—so many that she is unable to count them—Miss Townshend escaped both diseases.

Sunken Ore

About 100 years ago on the Marquette Range in Michigan, ore cars were sent down a long, descending grade to a Lake Superior dock. But sometimes the ore plunged to the bottom of the lake. In the 1850's, a strap iron railroad was built down the grade from the mines to the docks in Marquette harbor, 12 miles away. Strings of cars were loaded with ore and coasted by gravity down to the waterside. A brakeman rode each string of cars. The hand brakes of the period were far from efficient. Sometimes the cars continued off the end of the dock, and landed at the bottom of Marquette harbor. At intervals later cargoes of iron ore were dredged up where the old cars leaped to a watery grave.

Horns and Antlers

Horns, such as occur on cattle, sheep and Old World antelope, have a bony core. Over this is a layer of a material called keratin, which is similar to the calluses that occur on the palms of the hands or the soles of the feet. The antlers of the deer are different, as they consist of a growth of connective tissue which becomes hardened with the deposition of calcium. Antlers are shed annually and grown anew, as also are the horns of some animals, such as the prong horned antelope.

Demonstration Work Old

In the midst of national observance of the fiftieth anniversary of farm demonstration work, the University of Idaho extension service looked up its own birth certificate and discovered it is in vigorous middle age.

The first practical application of research with farm soil as the class room was conducted Feb. 26, 1903, in Terrell, Texas, by Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, a pioneer of plant science. Methods used in that experiment pair provided the roots for the extension service.

Idaho is remembering the occasion by celebrating 40 years of extension work. The extension service in agriculture and home economics is a part of the college of agriculture of the University of Idaho. The service that is financed cooperatively by the state, United States, and counties is carried on by county extension workers and specialists in various farming and home economics subjects.

"Actually the service is a year or two older than 40," said C. O. Youngstrom, associate director, "but that is a matter of only academic interest. The foundation was laid on the principle of serving the needs of rural people, and on that ground we continue to work, taking every possible advantage of research that brings new facts to the aid of the people."

An advance guard was planted in Boise in 1911, with F. O. Farrell, later president of Kansas State College, as director, and E. V. Eillington, now director of Washington State college extension service, as dairyman.

Big Protection Responsibility

George H. Duwendack, St. Joe Forest supervisor, and Roger L. Guernsey, in a joint statement, announced that fire protection responsibilities on approximately 120,000 acres lying south and east of St. Maries were yielded to the state forestry department, effective Feb. 1.

The considerable area lies on both sides of the St. Maries river and includes Canyon, Santa and John creeks. The exact boundaries will be advertised in a few weeks. The reason for shifting the administrative responsibility from the U. S. Forest Service to the State Forestry department, was that the area is predominantly state and privately owned. The area will be annexed to the West St. Joe Protective district under state forest warden Art Reddekopp. Mr. Guernsey announced that Reddekopp will be given a full time deputy warden to assist him with his now very large district.

Watch Those Traffic Laws

"Ever, traffic law violator is a potential murderer!" R. H. Des Aulniers, traffic safety director, made this strong indictment of law breaking motorists this week as he called for the cooperation of the entire State of Idaho in the "Know and Obey Traffic Laws" program which is being promoted by the traffic safety division and the National Safety Council.

"No normal human being would deliberately use his automobile to take another's life," Des Aulniers said. "Yet the police files are filled with records of automobile accidents in which people have lost their lives because someone violated a traffic law. Whenever you disregard a traffic law or ordinance, you leave yourself open to the possibility of killing or being killed."

Many traffic accidents could be prevented if every citizen would make it his business to acquaint himself or herself with the local traffic laws and obey them after they have been learned.

Putting laws on the statute books will not, by itself, save a single life. The laws must be known and obeyed by all if they are to be effective in cutting down the terrible traffic toll.

While most traffic laws regulate the conduct of motorists, only, this does not absolve pedestrians from the responsibility for their own safety and the safety of others. Pedestrians who cross streets in mid-block or who otherwise disregard traffic safety rules are inviting disaster. They are endangering their own lives and the lives of motorists who may not see them in time to avoid hitting them.

There can be no hope for any improvement in the state traffic picture, Des Aulniers concluded, until each citizen accepts his own responsibility for knowing and obeying traffic laws.

There is an old law, but one of the finest: "If you drink, don't drive; if you drive, don't drink!"

Oklahoma Youth Is U. S. Star Farmer
Other Young Farmers Are Honored by FFA

Harold DeWayne Hodgson, 20-year-old farmer and Hereford cattle breeder of Freedom, Okla., was named Star Farmer of America during the 24th annual national FFA convention at Kansas City. He received an award of $1,000 for being named the outstanding future farmer of the country.

Three other young farmers received awards of $500 each as Star Farmers of their respective regions. They are George Williams, 19, of Nicholasville, Ky.; Joe Harris, 20, of Eagleville, Calif.; and Ralph G. Sanner, 21, of Kutztown, Pa.

Harold DeWayne Hodgson, 20, Star Farmer of America, owns a 320-acre farm and rents an additional 255 acres.

The Star Farmer awards are made annually and are the highest recognition given to FFA members. The winners were chosen from 295 candidates. Outstanding accomplishments in farming and rural leadership, along with evidence of the youth's successful establishment in farming are the principal considerations used in determining winners of the awards.

Hodgson owns a 320-acre farm, and operates an additional 255 acres of rented land.

Engineer Suggests Way To Meet Labor Shortage

The nation's farmers next year will be asked to maintain a high standard of production and will again be faced with a severe labor shortage of several hundred thousand workers.

Here are four suggestions by which production can be maintained:

1. More efficient use of management and labor. There were a lot of chuckles when the efficiency experts started working for industry, counting steps and clocking movements. As a result of their work, however, our industries are the most efficient in the world.
2. Increase mechanization. In normal times, the answer to labor shortages has been increased mechanization. If we get the machinery, it is still a partial answer.
3. Efficient building arrangement. Time and labor required around buildings has changed little in the last 50 years.
4. Survey of urban districts and rural towns. You can often find laborers in rural towns. The farmer who surveys his needs and acts on these suggestions can solve his labor problems.

Record Price

Next Few Weeks Is Time For Cattle Louse Control

The next few weeks is the ideal time for cutting the life span of cattle lice that are at their peak during winter months. If animals are not treated for this pest and profit-robbing, they will reflect poor signs of progress. Mature cattle on feed will not gain properly and young stock and calves will not grow normally. In addition, the cattle will have a general unthrifty appearance.

Potlatch Chief Sez

Published by the Kendrick Creamery

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS —

New Service For Customers: Beginning this week we are offering our customers a new service — the bottling of milk in non-refillable waxed paper cartons, thus bringing our services to a par with that of any city creamery or dairy.

This may apparently complicate matters when it comes to putting out your milk tickets — so here's a simple way to do it: Cut the top out of one of the empty containers and put it in sight where you usually set your milk bottles — and put the tickets for the desired number of quarts in the container — that's all there is to it.

Frances Perkins, former secretary of labor, tells about turning to a gentleman seated behind her at a movie, and saying: "If my hat prevents your seeing this picture, I'd be happy to take it off." "Please don't," said the man. "The hat's much funnier than the movie."

Price of Milk To Advance:

Forced by circumstances beyond our control, we are forced to raise the price of milk 1c per quart, bringing it to 22c, which has long been the retail price in surrounding towns. All outstanding tickets will be honored — but when you purchase new ones, it will be at 22c per quart. We regret this increase, but it is beyond our control.

Workman: "Since I got my new car I don't have to walk over to the bank to make my deposits."

Second Worker: "Now you drive over, huh?"

First Worker: "No, I just don't make any!"

Remember: We want to buy your cream. Bring it in, get the money and a steam-sterilized can. It's ready to use!
