Wacs Work Overtime in Japan; Aid Army in Korean Conflict

Approximately 1,500 members of the Women's Army Corps are filling important jobs in Japan and in their off-duty moments are enjoying life in the Orient.

The excitement of an important Army job, the fun of a tour through an oriental city, and the chance to help soldiers wounded in Korea have all become part of a day's routine for members of the WAC serving in Japan.

In answer to an urgent request, the Army sent large numbers of its women to the Far East Command shortly after the outbreak of the Korean war. Many of them replaced men who were sent to the battle zone while others aided the 625 Wacs already there. The women soon earned well-deserved recognition from their superiors. Upon arriving at their new post, the Wacs were assigned to important tasks utilizing their special skills. Included in the long list of job assignments were positions as technicians in the Army Medical and Signal Corps and military intelligence duties.

The women settled down in their strange surroundings, comfortably combining the customs and lan-guage of the country with their own. They enthusiastically tackled the jobs given them, frequently putting in long, tedious hours to finish special assignments. But whatever the task-it was always done well - so well that General Matthew B. Ridgway complimented them on their splendid performance.

"Your loyalty, integrity and devotion to duty have again been generously displayed during these many trying and anxious months," he said. "The outstanding manner in which you have performed your mission in support of the United Nations troops fighting in Korea adds another fine chapter to the history of the Women's Army Corps.

'Chemical Eye' Reproduces Reactions of Human Eye

A group of scientists has recently created a "chemical eye" in a test tube, in which certain chemicals reproduce all the chemical reactions that take place in the human eye when it sees in dim light. These scientists, headed by Dr. George Wald of Harvard University, have also produced in the test tube electrical changes such as occur in vision.

The retina or back-screen of the eye contains two types of nerve ends-the cones, which are used for daylight seeing, and the rods. which are used in near-darkness The rods contain a rosy, light-sensitive substance called rhodopsin necessary for vision in dim light. Rhodopsin is made directly from Vitamin A, and this is normally present in high concentration in the retina. An inadequate supply of Vitamin A causes night blindness.

Bright light bleaches rhodopsin. so that the eye loses its ability to see in dim light. But darkness reforms the rhodopsin, and sensitivity is regained. The "chemical eye" demonstrated how this continuous cycle works: In the dark Vitamin A is converted into retinene, which combines with a substance called opsin to form rhodopsin. In the light, rhodopsin bleaches back to retinene and opsin, and the retinene again becomes Vitamin A.

The "chemical eye" studies are expected to bring about a better understanding of how vision works, and consequently better means of preserving it. They include experiments which seek to solve the mystery of how the bleaching of rhodopsin stimulates the retina's nerve cells electrically so that vision is transmitted to the brain by way of the optic nerve.

Coaxial Cables

Coaxial cables make it possible to transmit as many as 400 words a minute (2,400 letters) by intricate teletypewriters and relay equipment. Scores of messages are sent simultaneously, in both directions, over a single line. Many cables, however, are 30 or more years old, and can handle only about 50 words per minute. Undersea "repeaters," -vacuum-tube amplifiers-are now thickens to three or four inches near shore where there are hazards from chafing, trawling or ships' anchors. Standard 3.15-inch cable weighs 19 tons to the mile in water. Twenty miles or more of such line may be suspended in the sea while it is being laid, but once down, the cable hugs the ocean floor.

Nation's Timber

Biggest timber producer of all, the United States is one-third forest covered. Its woodlands yielded some 37 billion board feet of lumber in 1950. Notably wasteful in the past, the nation's forest industries have increased their replenishing and conserving activities steadily in recent years. Wood chemistry provides uses for previously wasted parts of trees. In 1950, some 600 square miles of U.S. forest land were planted in trees for future commercial use. Only a beginning, it nevertheless represented a 50per-cent increase over the area planted in 1949.

Man-Made Light Moves Ahead By New Inventions

There is nothing to show that our anthropoid ancestors used candles to find their way around among the trees after dark, but there is ample evidence that the hairy cave man used fire to scare away prowling

Man-made illumination has come a long way since those remote days, By far the greatest strides have come in the past 75 years—greater progress than through all the thous sands of years before. From the cave man's torch to electric light, the flame was the only source of illumination.

Within recent weeks, a new source of artificial light has been announced wherein electricity appears to serve merely as a match to light a wick. Powdered phosphor on a sheet of glass emits a mellow glow of its own under electric impulse. Your house of tomorrow may have these panels installed in walls and ceilings. It is claimed the cost of maintenance will be so low that the only need for switches will be to turn lights off when you want darkness. Clockfaces, stair risers and other incidentals will be permanently connected.

With this revolutionary development in man-made light comes wonder as to how it all started. Archaeologists have concluded among the earliest to whom the cave man: passed his flaming torch were the ancient dwellers of Mesopotamia where lamps, fashioned from terracotta, were found to have been used during 7000-8000 B.C. Copper and bronze lamps were used by the Persians and Egyptians in 2700 B.C. Homer described a "Festival of Lamps" in 950 B.C. The Roman were using lanterns a century before Christ.

The candlesticks of Biblical times and the lamps of the vestal virgins used animal and vegetable oils. Pliny mentioned the use of a mineral oil for lamps in 50 A.D. The Phoenicians appear to have been the first to use wax for candles in 400 A.D.

Atom Disaster Would Demand Many Trained 'Mass Feeders'

"In case of enemy attack or atom bombing, the disaster would demand more trained persons for: mass feeding than we can hope to have today," two Red Cross workers who conducted an emergency feeding program during the flood disaster in Kansas City last July, warn in an issue of the Journal of Home Economics.

"Disaster feeding at best is a hodgepodge affair because there are never enough experienced people and survivors to do an ideal job." Jane Griswold, assistant national director of the American Red Cross Food and Nutrition Service, and Kathleen Kienstra, director of the Midwestern Area division of that service, explain in an article pointing out that experience in the flood disaster indicates what the situation would be in event of enemy attack. While urging the home economists to be ready with their professional help, the authors pay great tribute to the work of the community organizations who carried out the feeding program during the Kansas flood.

"It is encouraging to see the common purpose that draws people together when disaster comes to a community. The simple, basic, practical things that people can do for each other helps to ease the impact of catastrophe and turn the mind from despair," the authors conclude in the article, "Red Cross Fights Flood Disaster."

Treating Addicts

Law enforcement, education of the public and treatment of the individual are the three most important factors in combating the alarmingly increasing dope addiction among teen-agers, according to an article in Today's Health, published by the American Medical Association. "Regardless of where the upsurge of addiction started, it has jumped racial, economic and social boundaries," said the author of the article, Dr. Victor H. Vogel, medical officer in charge of the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital at Lexington, Ky. The hospital is one of the two federally operated for the treatment being installed in older lines to of drug addicts. Dr. Vogel reported boost their capacity. Submarine that admissions at the two federal cable is thin, usually less than an hospitals for drug addicts rose inch in diameter in deep water. It | from 2,700 in 1949 to 4,500 in 1950. with an estimated rate of 4,200 in 1951. "An alarming part of this increase was due to the admission of addicts under 21, which jumped from 22 in 1947 to 440 in 1950an increase of 2,000 per cent," Dr. Vogel stressed.

Early Inventors

Among the early American inventors who founded great industries, few struggled against adversity more desperately than Gail Borden (1801-1875), who was the first to obtain a patent (August 19, 1856) on a process for condensing milk. His first invention was a meat biscuit for which he was granted a prize at the International Exposition of London in 1851. Returning from London he was anguished by the death of infants on the ship who had been fed milk from sick cows. As a result of this experience, he spent years of experimentation to invent a process that would preserve milk under wholesome conditions.

Bright Future For Coal Will coal be as important to us in

Will coal be as important to us in the future as it is today?

The answer is "even more so" in the view of an authority on the coal industry whose experience dates back to 1926. He thinks that soft coal will play an increasingly dominant role in providing our nation's heat and power during the next quarter century.

This isn't based on mere wishful thinking. Almost everyone expects that during those coming years our thinking. Almost everyone expects that during those coming years our energy needs will double. Our coal reserves are to all practical purposes without limit — enough to fuel the country for a period ten times longer than all the time that has elapsed the Declaration of Independence. since the Declaration of Independence was written in 1776. Equally important, mechanization and research have provided the coal industry with the means to produce all the coal that will be demanded.

Moreover, in addition to providing more mechanical energy, coal will be used to an ever-increasing extent in the production of synthetic fuels and chemicals of many diverse and valuable kinds.

Coal is an industry with a long, history-making past — and a bright future. — Industrial News-Review.

> Mr. and Mrs. H. Parsley and sons motorists today by the Traffic Safe-

He suggests that every motorist have his car checked before he starts during the summer months. According to the National Safety Council about 10 percent of the ve hicles involved in fatal accidents in Erlewine, Sunday evening to say he was leaving for Korea, June 29.

Mrs. Harv Parsley and sons and Mrs. Dick Parsley visited Mrs. Chas.

Inger at Park, Monday.

A check of your car's mechanical condition now may be a check against 86,669.75 Parker of Nebraska, called on Mr. to mention the additional pleasure you will get out of driving a car

Ten points are listed that motorists

1. Brakes should take hold evenly Mrs. Arley Allen was a Sunday on all wheels. The hand brake should the proper level.

2. Headlights should be at the proper height for maximum road illumination and minimum glare. The lenses should be clean and reflectors

3. Tail and stop lights should operate properly.
4. Tires should be checked for wear and proper inflation. 5. Wheel allignment should be carefully checked by machine.

6. A qualified mechanic should completely check the exhaust system and breakfast food to such occasional carburation.

7. Windshield wipers should be clean, with blades checked after the heavy winter to see that they are "live" and clean. 8. All glass should be clean, free of cracks or discoloration.

9. The horn, while it should not be an annoyance to others, should be audible for 200 feet. 10. The rear-view mirror should give a clear view of the road behind. And above all — If you drive, don't drink. If you drink — don't drive!

Are You One Of Them?

The rank and file of the people are demanding tax reduction, but it's hard to achieve that objective when all sorts of groups are still looking for and demanding handouts and special privileges. — Brownsville, Pa., Telegraph.

Why People Buy Stocks

More and more people, and particularly people of moderate means, are buying stocks,

Various reasons lie behind this purchasing - the hope of a good return on the investment probably being paramount. But there is another reason that is extremely important. As a people, we buy enormous quantities of trade-marked, nationallysold ware of all kinds. Everything from such frequent purchases as a breakfast food to such occasional ones as an automobile is produced by companies whose shares are listed on the security exchanges. People like history of American railroading headed west on the Northern Pacific from Big Timber, Mont., July 6th.

A train composed of 60 open-end the security exchanges. People like than for them to put a part of their savings in these companies' shares?

When that happens, the share owner has a direct personal interest in everything that the company concerned may do. He shares in the risks and the rewards alike. He can cast his vote to keep or change the management at annual elections. And, most important, he has a real stake in the American free enterprise system—in the Cascade mountains east of Seattle. After the rails are unloaded they will be field-welded into continuous two-mile lengths, thus eleminating all rail joints inside the tunnel, which is two miles long. The tunnel rail weighs 140 pounds to the yard and is the heaviest steel ever laid on the N.P

Elimination of joints by use of welded rail permits smoother train American free enterprise system—the capitalistic system, which has done more for more people than any other economic system ever tried since history began. Finally, he can buy more stock or sell what he has any business day in the year, at an openly quoted price which isn't "fixed" by anyone — a price which reflects the honest judgment of the prospective buyer and seller. — Industrial News Review.

Unusual Train Shipment

One of the most unusual longdistance freight shipments in the history of American railroading head-their products, and have faith in the ballast cars carried 8 half-mile long soundness and integrity and future lengths of welded steel rail a distance prospects of the concerns which make the state of the concerns which make the state of them. So what cold be more natural tunnel, on the main line of the NP than for them to put a part of their in the Cascade mountains east of

Vacation Greatly Enjoyed

Since we returned from our 10-day vacation we have heard quite a number of comments on the "Twenty Year Ago" edition of the Gazette, which made it possible — and may we say those comments have all been on the "credit side."

To say that we enjoyed the ten days would be putting it mildly — we did — to the limit. It was our first trip of more than a week-end since 1939!

Going in to Anchorage on Friday evening, July 10, we were able to see from the plane the crupting Mt. Spur quite clearly, and a dim trace of one of the lesser volcanoes.

Contrary to many reports of "two inches of volcanic dust" the actual measurement at Anchorage, Alaska, was 5-16 of an inch — but a worse mess would be hard to imagine. With relatives we were privileged to cover some 700 miles of Alaskan roads, and on the whole the roads, like the scenery, is wonderful! We were impressed by the size of FOR SALE BY OWNER — Modern Anchorage.
