

INTERESTING HAPPENINGS IN THE LINDEN AREA

Rev. Miller Speaks At Gold Hill
Wednesday evening, Rev. Miller, a returned missionary of the United Brethren church from Sierra Leone, West Africa, gave a most interesting and informative talk on the mission work in that country. He described Sierra Leone as a province about the size of our state of Indiana, and it is under British rule. The population of this area is about 2,000,000 and of this number only about five percent have any education. All schooling is through the missionary workers (all denominations), and the British government reimburses the church on the school building or hospital, providing they meet certain specifications, and if there happens to be any money in the treasury available for the purpose. Rev. Miller says it is a poor country. Land is farmed only once every

The Annual Boy Scout Fund Drive will soon be under way.

The Boy Scouts of America have a long and envious record of accomplishments since their founding, 43 years ago. The people of this Community want to help do their share to keep this Citizenship and Training program.

On October 1st, the Lewis-Clark Council of the Boy Scouts is launching its Area-wide fund raising campaign.

When the solicitor calls on you for your help, do your part by making your subscription.

There are 35 Scouts and Cubs in Kendrick today. There are nearly that many more who would enjoy the program if they had an opportunity. Your financial help will make it possible for more Scouts to enroll today.

seven years, due to the poor soil. The natives eat only one meal a day (at night) and rice and fish are the principal diet. Oranges, bananas and other tropical fruits abound, but the natives take them for granted and put them to no commercial use.

The Mission hospital dispenses medicine to any and all, and will go into surrounding villages to treat patients if permission has been granted by the village chief.

Rev. Miller states that Christianity is hard for the native to conceive. They will go along with all Christian services but will revert to voo-doo, local devils, charms, etc., when a crisis arrives. There is no word in their language to describe love in any manner. He says the only love is between mother and child, and that is soon crowded out by another child.

He is touring the U. B. churches with his pictures and stories of African missions and mission life. All offerings are sent to the Mission board in Huntington, Indiana.

We are sorry that more people could not attend Wednesday's meeting, as Rev. Miller's talk is certainly an inspiration to further mission work.

Now Living Off Base

In a brief note to the Gazette Sgt. Frank Dammarell, U. S. M. C., says in part: "Bill, would it be possible to have my paper sent to our home, 3006 Rodgers St., Bremerton. Not much going on in this part of the country - it's starting to get rather chilly at night and the wind blows in the day time."

I'm still in charge of recreation here at the Marine barracks. The Marines took the area softball play-offs this year and I think we'll have a good basketball team, with most of the players returning again this year. However, in January I'll lose about six of the boys, who are getting discharged.

I went fishing in our salmon derby a couple of weeks ago and caught an 8-pound rock cod and a 4 1/2-pound salmon. Some luck, eh?

Last week we had our annual picnic for two days, and my job was to get the men to play sports instead of drinking beer all day - what a job I had!"

You see, this modern homemaker just finished saying goodbye to guests. She whisks the dirty linens into her new, completely automatic washer and bingo, one cup of soap and a flick of her washer's dial, and that robot electrical brain inside her washer jumps to her bidding and
... washes without watching!

While M'lady is off to bed, her miracle barrel of suds will fill itself, thoroughly tumble and swish her fine linens as clean as they were the day of her wedding ... rinse them in clear, lukewarm water, not once, but from three to seven times, 'til every last crumb and stain is washed from that choice fabric ... then whirl them swiftly but gently until they are damp-dry—and lo, when Mistress Housewife looks in next morning they are ready for drying (in her automatic dryer, of course!) ... she's already one big step ahead in her housework and what's more

... she's saving money besides!

Besides saving this housewife valuable time and a whole armful of effort, look how she saves on her monthly budget:

Strip Cropping Helps Hold Soil in Place It's Only First Step In Conservation Plan

Strip cropping, an important part of soil conservation, is a good deal like putting a splint on a broken bone. The splint holds the bone in place, but it doesn't knit it. Strip cropping helps hold the soil in place, but it won't rebuild run-down fertility.

The above picture is a beautiful example of strip cropping, but it was not accomplished by mere contour plowing. It was accomplished by sound soil conservation, based on use and treatment of land with all proven, appropriate measures that are needed to keep it permanently productive while in use.

Strip cropping on a field just north of Neillsville, Wis., is a beautiful example of one step toward soil conservation.

Sound conservation means terracing land that needs terracing; contouring, strip cropping, and stubble-mulching the land as needed; along with use of supporting measures of crop rotation, cover and green manure crops and the use of the right commercial fertilizers.

No farmer should undertake a conservation program without expert advice. He should first contact any one of his soil conservation district officers and apply for assistance from his district. If he doesn't know who his officers are, he can locate the address of his district office in the phone book, or he can call his county agent. Districts help only farmers who request their assistance.

Number of U. S. Farms Lowest Since the 1890s

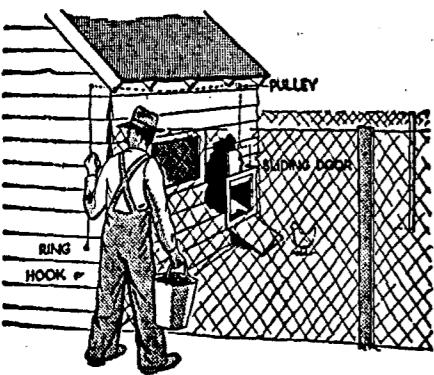

The number of farms in the United States has continued to decline since the end of World War II with the current total the lowest since before the turn of the century.

The department of agriculture reports there were fewer than 5.4 million farms in the country last year. This figure compares with approximately 5.9 million in 1945, and with the peak number of 6.8 million in 1935.

Thus the number of American farms has declined over 1.4 million, or more than a fifth, in the last decade and a half—a period in which land in farms has continued to increase and in which total agricultural production has likewise shown a spectacular increase in aggregate volume of products raised as well as in total market value.

In 1900 there were some 5.7 million farms in the U. S., approximately 350,000 more than at present. A decade before, in 1890, the number of farms was about 4.6 million.

Sliding Door

Poultry raisers can save many a step by a sliding door in poultry houses which can be operated from the outside. A small rope attached to the door by a screw eye runs to the ceiling or roof boards, along the wall, through the side of the chicken house and terminates in a ring. A hook can be attached to the side of the building and thus hold the door open.

Farm Exports Increase 14 Per Cent, Report

The agriculture department reported recently that farm exports increased 14 per cent over the preceding fiscal year. The total was placed at $3,409,245,000. Cotton exports led the group in 1950-51 with a total of $935,332,000,000, the second highest in 26 years. Wheat and wheat flour ranked second in value at $747,570,000, up 9 per cent over the $683,229,000 the preceding fiscal year.

Enrollment Up At University

Heavy enrollment at the University of Idaho during the first three days of fall registration brought the total number of students served to date this academic year to more than 3,000.

Fall registration Monday morning stood at 2,625, which is 121 more than for the same period last year. Added to this are 411 more resident students who have been served during the current academic year, putting the total already past the 3,000 mark, which will rise as registration continues.

"Registrations will not close for several weeks, and we should have about 3,000 students on the campus for the first semester," said D. D. DuSault, registrar. "The big increase is in the freshman class, which will total about 115 more than last year. The increase of college freshmen nationally was predicted to be about 10 percent, but our increase is about 16 percent."

"This is the beginning of the return to normal from the effect of the low depression days' birthrate. Enrollments should rise steadily now each successive year."

Respect Rights Of Others

Ross Leonard, director of the Idaho fish and game department, made a special appeal to hunters this week to respect the rights of private property owners throughout the state.

Leonard said the department has received several demands during the past few weeks to close certain areas to game bird and big game hunting.

"Investigation of these complaints showed that many landowners preferred to have an increasing number of birds and game animals upon their property than hunters. Even the danger of fire, as critical as it is, is rated second to the damage and inconsideration displayed by a minority of hunters."

"Sportsmen going afield should ask permission of the landowner to hunt on his property. They should be very careful not to disturb domestic livestock or crops. A few inconsiderate hunters can spoil a good season for those who abide by the rules of good sportsmanship."

Word From Don Jacobs
Accompany a subscription remittance comes a brief note from Don Jacobs, former instructor and track coach in the Kendrick High school, which says in part:
"I spent about three weeks of my vacation in southern California, after taking part in three pentathlon meets over on the coast. I managed to place sixth in the Pacific Northwest meet, but slipped to seventh in the Canadian National meet and 11th in the U. S. National meet.

"A couple of weeks ago I happened to see Ben Cook and Don and Marilyn Eicher, and had a brief visit. They were on their way back to Fort Lewis.
"Here at Colfax High school we are trying out a system of supervised study in each class and have eliminated study halls. Time will tell how it will work out."

Sitane Od Us
Washington, D. C. (USP) — We have been hearing alarming stories about Alaska. It seems that the chain of Aleutian islands that stretches westward from the mainland for nearly 2,000 — and is all but a bridge to Siberia — is not a military asset, as we once thought, but a liability. The air-strips that we considered so important in World War II are all but abandoned. Today, we are told, the only military value of Alaska would be for basing atomic bombers, and there are few bases in the peninsula large enough for this purpose.
You might think from all this that we might as well give it back to Russia, or maybe ask them to return the original price of $7,200,000! But one aspect seems to be slightly overlooked. Alaskans happen to be Americans! They happen to be pioneering Americans! They and their forebearers had the courage to penetrate this vast wilderness, to pit their strength and determination against the colossal forces of terrain and climate, to hack out farms, to build villages, and towns, and cities, and to rear, in our own tender times, a race of young Americans as rugged and hardy and self-reliant as ever our forebearers were.
No one knows the wealth of Alaska, merely because its natural resources, which have already proved fabulous, have scarcely been tapped. But that is somewhat beside the point, for the greatest asset of any land is its people. And if this prodigious territory, which has been

American since 1867, possessed more natural treasure than any of the states you wish to mention, the Alaskans' right to statehood would be no less.
We should be ashamed that there is even yet no star in our flag for this proud peninsula. And we should be more ashamed if we let another session of Congress ignore the matter... even though some of the Pentagon brass hats who regarded it as a special gift of providence to their purpose a few years ago, may now have changed their minds.

Forests Holding Up Well

Despite the inroads of civilization upon our natural resources, we still have two-thirds of the forest area that was standing when the Pilgrims landed, says Paul W. Kearney in the Readers' Digest. Thanks to present conservation methods and newly developed uses for wood waste, we will always have enough wood.

• A HEALTHY FOREST INDUSTRY keeps Idaho prosperous •

"cause of death unknown"

A stark sight in a healthy forest is an Idaho White Pine killed by pole blight. The cause of such deaths is a mystery science is trying to solve, for pole blight threatens to spread through the valuable White Pine timber of Idaho. The forest products industry is keeping a constant vigil against this destroyer of timber.

But pole blight is only one of many natural enemies of the forests. A well managed forest must be guarded against all such enemies. Potlatch Forests, Inc. employs trained professional foresters to safeguard healthy trees and plan the growing of new timber crops. The company's foresters look years ahead, knowing that wise conservation practiced now means continued prosperity in the future.

Potlatch Chief Sez

Published by the Kendrick Creamery

Well, here it is the first of October, harvest is almost over — and hunting trips are the rule — looking toward the coming of winter. But folks, when winter comes, that's when farm income ceases unless you are taking proper care of those cows and chickens — and then a year-round income is yours — especially when you sell to us. You'll find our money most "spendable" as well as welcome this winter. Send or bring in that cream and those eggs often.

Be sure you have an ample supply of "Potlatch Chief" butter with you when you take off on that big game hunting trip. It makes those breakfast hotcakes taste "super" and give the necessary flavor to the noon-day sandwiches.

Visitor: "It looks like rain."
Californian: "Not here in California."
Visitor: "Look at those clouds up there."
Californian: "They don't mean a thing. They're just empties coming back from Florida."

In the dark of night two safe-breakers entered a store. One approached the safe, sat down on the floor, took off his shoes and socks, and started to turn the dial of the safe with his toes. "What's the matter with you?" said his pal, "let's open this can and get out of here."
"Naw, it'll only take a minute longer this way and we'll drive them fingerprint experts nuts!"

Chilly the weather may be — but ice cream is still the popular after-school snack dish for the children — and just the thing to serve when friends you didn't expect come to call. Keep several quarts of Potlatch Chief Ice Cream on hand all the time.
