Kendrick Canyon Klub

The Kendrick Canyon Klub met on Wednesday, Oct. 7, with Myrtle Darby — ten members and two visitors being present.

Roll calls was answered with a "bulb exchange."

The group decided to help the County Home at Moscow by bringing jellies, jams or pickles to the next meeting, and packing a Thanksgiving box.

Each member is to pick the month they wish to be hostess for the coming year, and ideas for roll call both are to be answered as roll call at the next meeting. And, as Mrs. Hunter cannot meet with us on our regular meeting date, our next meeting will be on Tuesday, Oct. 27, at the home of Grace Lind, and Mrs. Hunter will give a demonstration on "More Facts On New Fabrics."

Marjorie Eldridge, Myrtle Darby, and Helen Brocke were appointed as the Nominating committee to select officers for the coming year.

Ada Westendahl of the Evergreen Friendship Club aided Erna Nelson in a demonstration on "Will Your Child Know The Value of a Dollar?" Clara Kuykendall became a member of this group, and all welcomed her.

Helen Brocke received the "White Elephant."

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Myrtle Darby and Sue Craig.

Guests included Mrs. Eeva Thompson of San Diego, Calif., who is visiting relatives in Kendrick; Mrs. Florence Melgard, Vice Supreme Guardian of the International Order of Job's Daughters, from Moscow; Mrs. Dorothy Tyson, Grand Guardian of Job's Daughters of Idaho, from Parma, Idaho, and Mrs. Vida Bork, Vice Guardian of Job's Daughters of Idaho, from Emmett, Idaho.

The latter three ladies gave interesting and educational talks on the Order of Job's Daughters. They were invited by Mrs. Johanna Nelson to attend the O. E. S. Chapter meeting in Kendrick as a part of her entertainment obligations, and an addition to the education program for the year.

Mr. Melgard was invited to share the delicious pumpkin pie and coffee served in the banquet room at the close of the meeting.

Part in National Ceremony

Mrs. John E. Hayes of Twin Falls, Idaho, past president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, took part in the ceremonies of laying the cornerstone of the new $750,000 headquarters building in Chicago last month.

Mrs. Hayes was one of four past presidents to hand the history and charter of the National association to the National first vice president, Mrs. J. W. Heylman, who deposited them in the cornerstone.

Mrs. C. S. Bosquet of the Idaho Congress, who was in Chicago attending a national Board of Managers meeting, was also in attendance.

Money for the building has come from contributions from the nearly 8,000,000 members of the national congress. Idaho is one of seven states whose members have averaged donations of 15 cents or more per member. The total amount of the gifts from Idaho is $4,531.39.

Graveling On Southwick Road

A state crew, with trucks and loading equipment are busy this week distributing gravel from stockpiles on the Southwick-Kendrick road, in preparation for winter travel. WHAT NATURE BEQUEATHS

Yes, now the leaves are falling
Autumn everywhere
In our fair land in which we dwell
Today there's stillness there.

I can not well explain the feel
That seeps into my soul
It seems one question to ask
Have I played well my role?

I think of all the plans I've made
And of how far I have sailed
Of the obstacles cast into life's down stream
The why, I sometimes failed.

But all in all I've lived and loved
Through many happy hours
Sometimes I've drifted on and on Past banks of greens and flowers.

'Twas then I heard life's music
Like the woodland birds would make
And I looked to the heavens and saw the stars
Then anchored, before 'twas late.

Now life brings me to autumn time
Like the leaves I too must fall
Soon nature will say in her own quiet way

"Bid ye good night now to All."
— Margaret H. Stedman.

Plan For Windbreaks Now
Immediate planning and land preparation for windbreaks to be planted next spring is being suggested by Lonnie Williams, county forester with the Extension Service.

Williams says planning now will be better than waiting for a couple of months, when the planning would have to be done on snow. The preparation of land now will save some of the cultivating which has to be done during the busy season after the trees are planted.

Each year sees an increase in the number of trees being used in the county by farmers to improve their farmsteads. Seedlings being recommended mostly for planting in Latah county are multiflora rose, Siberian pea-tree, green ash, honey locust, Siberian elm, golden willow, Norway spruce and Douglas fir. These trees have proven the most successful in plantings made in past years in the county.

Although the ordering season for trees does not start until November 1, it is strongly recommended that the orders be sent in soon after that date, so the desired trees may be had. The trees are put out on a first-come, first-served basis, so the early orders are the ones that receive the trees of their choice.

The order blanks for the trees can be obtained by writing or visiting the county agent's office. Anyone who would like assistance in planning the windbreak will be visited, if they will leave their name and address with the county agent, said Williams.

Have Rented Gertje Home

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Choate have rented the home belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gertje, on the school house hill, and expect to move into it about October 15. Since their purchase of the Red Cross Pharmacy and Variety & Gift Store some months ago, the Choates have been driving back and forth daily to their home near Teakean. However, this is too long a daily trip in the winter time — so they will become town residents.

To the Weaver, the Baker,
the Beauty Maker

Rub-A-Dub-Dub, want a suit you can scrub, face cream, or a well-protected loaf? Then we can help you, for Standard Oil Company of California has put oil to work for the weaver, the baker, the beauty aid maker.

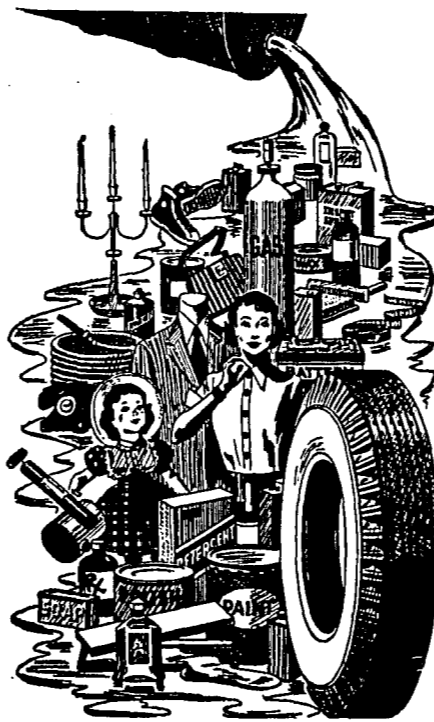

This being Oil Progress Week, it's a good time to point out that oil men help provide thousands of things you don't buy in a service station.

Suits, for instance! That wrinkle-resistant model you may be wearing was woven from an oil-born ingredient developed in our research laboratories.

Bread, too! Millions of loaves were wrapped last year in paper coated with Standard wax. Whenever you light a candle, polish a shoe, or empty a milk carton, you may be using wax turned out by Standard Oilers.

And when your wife creams her face we're involved, too. Each year we supply 1/2 million gallons of highly-refined oils to cosmetic makers—enough for 10 million jars of face cream.

These examples of oil's place in modern living emphasize one important point. The oil industry has moved from kerosene to synthetic fabrics in one short generation—and so have you. Oil progress is your progress.

What comes from a drum of oil? Tires, medicines, nylons, detergents, plastics, paints, insecticides—and thousands of other products. And that's because oil companies like Standard invest millions each year to find new ways to make oil serve you better. *Questions or comments about our Company or industry are welcome. Tattered Laundry

The following little item is reprinted from Time magazine: "Now that Malenkov himself has criticized the sordidness of Soviet consumer goods, Pravda is washing some of the tattered laundry out in public, complains that Soviet rayon underwear does not survive a single laundering, that men's shirts fall apart in the tub."

In past times similar official criticisms of Soviet production and distribution agencies have appeared, and have usually proved a prelude to wholesale liquidations of managers and technicians who somehow fell out of favor with the powers that be. But what is significant to us as Americans is the character of the system that makes manufacture and sale of such shoddy goods possible. The answer, of course, is found in the nature of communism and socialism. The state owns practically everything — including all of the factories and the vast majority of retail outlets. There is no competition as we understand the word. If a consumer doesn't like what he is offered, or thinks the price excessive, he has the privilege of doing without and going cold and hungry.

Contrast that with conditions in the United States. Every manufacturer is in direct competition with other manufacturers, and all are trying to see the public on their trademarks. Every store from the biggest chain to the smallest independent is competing with other stores for consumer patronage. The result is the best deal for our money that the cost of carrying on business will permit.

Johnson's Story of Success Started About 65 Years Ago

When Samuel Curtis Johnson began making parquet flooring in his Racine, Wis., workshop 65 years ago, he little dreamed of the turn his business would take.

It was a small operation, with two men and two boys doing all the work, but they were thorough craftsmen. Their flooring can still be found in old American homes. Mr. Johnson, reading his mail by lamplight in the evening, noticed that more and more customers were turning to him for information on how to care for floors. Knowing that many floors in Europe had withstood the tread of centuries, thanks to wax, he recommended that his customers use the same substance.

Within a few years the Johnson company was manufacturing its own wax and wood finishing products. They subsequently found that the sideline was outstripping the main products in volume of sales. In 1916, with simple tastes in home decorating becoming more evident, the company abandoned its parquet business and concentrated on wax products.

Today, with the founder's grandson, H. F. Johnson, at the helm, the company ranks high in American industry. Its main office and laboratory in Racine, the plans for which were drawn by Frank Lloyd Wright, is a symbol of industrial growth. The company has offices and plants in Canada, England, France, Australia and other parts of the world. It has a refinery and plantation in Brazil where the world's supply of carnauba wax is obtained.

The little group that began the manufacture of parquet flooring in the back-street workshop 65 years ago could never have guessed they were sowing the seed of a business that was to make Racine the wax center of the world.

Nurse Braved Fever, Risked Life to Help Malaria Fight

Feeding disease-laden, killer mosquitoes once was the hobby of an elderly Baltimore nurse.

Miss Lena Townshend, now 76 years old, hoarded spare time from her nursing duties to provide life-sustaining sugar water for the caged mosquitoes used in yellow fever experiments by the late Army doctor and scientist, Major Walter Reed.

As a civilian nurse, Miss Townshend's 16-month affiliation with Dr. Reed and his important work was unofficial but she made a definite contribution to the project's success. Her experience with the menacing mosquitoes today are a fond memory in her career, 38 years as a practicing nurse.

While the Army prepared to honor Major Reed by observing the centennial of his birth, September 13, the gray-haired nurse was proud but modest in a discussion of her work in the fever-ridden country that was Cuba in 1901.

Miss Townshend went to Cuba due to a post-war shortage of nurses and a personal desire for foreign duty at the turn of the century. As night superintendent of Havana Municipal Hospital No. 1, she had a role in the fight against another epidemic of that time, typhoid fever.

Her "spare time" work was done in Dr. Reed's laboratory, one part of the hospital, after she already had put in 12 hours of night ward duty. She worked on the yellow fever charts which Major Reed maintained for the benefit of government and private hospitals in this country in addition to feeding the mosquitoes.

Interested both in the capture and care of the man-killing insects, Miss Townshend paid little heed to the other laboratory animals, guinea pigs and rats. She said she wasn't afraid of them but "I just didn't like them."

Although she nursed both yellow and typhoid fever cases—so many that she is unable to count them—Miss Townshend escaped both diseases.

Sunken Ore

About 100 years ago on the Marquette Range in Michigan, ore cars were sent down a long, descending grade to a Lake Superior dock. But sometimes the ore plunged to the bottom of the lake. In the 1850's, a strap iron railroad was built down the grade from the mines to the docks in Marquette harbor, 12 miles away. Strings of cars were loaded with ore and coasted by gravity down to the water side. A brakeman rode each string of cars. The hand brakes of the period were far from efficient. Sometimes the cars continued off the end of the dock, and landed at the bottom of Marquette harbor. At intervals later cargoes of iron ore were dredged up where the old cars leaped to a watery grave.

Horns and Antlers

Horns, such as occur on cattle, sheep and Old World antelope, have a bony core. Over this is a layer of a material called keratin, which is similar to the calluses that occur on the palms of the hands or the soles of the feet. The antlers of the deer are different, as they consist of a growth of connective tissue which becomes hardened with the deposition of calcium. Antlers are shed annually and grown anew, as also are the horns of some animals, such as the prong horned antelope.

A Sign of Idaho's Bright Future

The sign of a Western Pine Tree Farm is a sign of progress and prosperity — future prosperity for Idaho.

Devoted to growing a timber crop under the best practical management, a certified Tree Farm is privately owned forest land dedicated to perpetual yield for future generations. It is tax-paying land under continuous production of marketable, employment-giving resources — WOOD PRODUCTS.

On Saturday, another 16 Tree Farms will be certified in ceremonies along the Lewis-Clark highway between Kamiah and Kooskia. Large and small, they total more than 12,000 acres. The dedication recognizes good forestry practices which Potlatch Forests, Inc. and many other members of the industry have long followed.

Attend the dedication if you can. In any event, watch for the signs marking certified Tree Farms. They point to a bright future for our state.

HELLO THERE, FOLKS:

Well, a lot of meat from big game kills has rolled into Kendrick and into our lockers since the season opened — a lot more folks have said they were going as soon as it rained, and they could expect better hunting conditions. Let us say to you who are planning on going that it would be a good idea to come in and select your locker box now — know where you're going to put that meat when you come home.

An Australian was trying to impress a Texan who was visiting his country, but without much success — but then the Texan saw a kangaroo. Drawled the man from the Lone Star State: "Ah'll grant you one thing, that's for sure — your grasshoppers are bigger'n ours!"

Butter is a food, not a luxury. Try some "Potlatch Chief" pure creamery butter on those hot cakes tomorrow morning for breakfast. Man, it puts just the right touch to them. And now that the "hot roll" dinner season is here, be liberal with the butter — you'll find it adds flavor to every hot dish — but be sure it's "Potlatch Chief" — made from pasteurized cream. Safe, pure!

An army sanitation officer learned that a certain area of Korea was reported to have had drinking water, so he decided to investigate. He arrived on the spot and began questioning an old master sergeant about precautions being taken against disease from drinking the impure water.

"Well, first we boil the water," said the sergeant, "then we put it in lister bags to keep it pure."

As the officer knodded approvingly, the sergeant finished with: "And then, just to be on the safe side, we all drink beer."
