Step-Ramp Loading Chutes Are Safest Many Livestock Yards Are Remodeling Ramps

Livestock markets across the nation are continuing in their program of modernization and the installation of step-ramp chutes to replace old wooden chutes that cause great damage to animals.

Cattle prefer steps to the oldtyle cleats. Many animals are in-jured and much meat lost from pruising due to the constant prodding necessary to get the animals up and down the old ramps, cattlemen have reported.

The Chicago stock yards recently opened 12 of the modern step-ramp chutes. Of concrete and steel construction, the new chutes are designed to ease the task of unloading stock, and insures safe and

The first truck to unload over the ramps brought 24 head of Hereford and Angus steers shipped by Carroll Snola of Onslow, Ia.

Cracked Corn Found Best Feed for Suckling Lambs

Tests made at the University of Kentucky experiment station indicate cracked yellow shelled corn is the cheapest and best ration for the creep-feeding of suckling lambs.

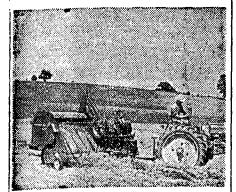

Experiments carried on over a period of nine years compared cracked yellow corn with mixtures of feeds. These included cracked corn, crushed oats and pea-sized linseed oilmeal; cracked corn and commercial milk substitute, and a third ration composed of "sweet feed" made of corn, oats, bran, linseed oilmeal, molasses and salt.

The experiment was conducted under the most controlled conditions possible, Kentucky educators re-

The conclusion of the experimenters: "None of the three more costly mixtures showed any consistent or significant superiority to corn alone in rate of gain, efficiency of gain or market finish of the lambs."

The experiments were not designed to answer the question of whether creep-feeding pays, but rather to determine what rations are best for creep-feeding under Kentucky conditions.

Baler

This automatic baler is a good example of how machinery is saving manhours on the farm. The baler can package a ton of hay in less than half the time needed by hand methods. With only the tractor driver in the field, this machine automatically picks up hay, slices it, presses it into compact packages and then ties the bale with two strands of twine. Further information is available at local machinery dealers or in the local hardware stores.

Rice Is Most Important Food in the World Today

Although most Americans believe the statement exaggerated, rice is the most important food crop in the world today. It is the basic food of more than half of the world's population. In recent years the cultivation of rice has increased in this country, but in Asia it is the important crop because it is virtually the only food millions of people have—their means of sustaining all Americans read weekly papers.

We arrive at this statement by starting from the most reliable base available — N. W. Ayer & Son's Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals — which reports there are 9,-782 weekly papers with an average weekly circulation of 20,944,000. These are very round figures, which do not include the readers of more than 750 papers which do not give circulation figures, and about 450 more with free, or partly free, "controlled circulation."

Thus, while you may be sure there are far more than 21,000,000 American families depending on the week-ly paper for their "window-on-a-cock-eyed-world," we'll be ultra-conserva-tive. Multiplying the N. W. Ayer figure by four (the average U. S. family is four-plus, and the country family is larger) we still come up with 83,776,000 readers, which is well over half the national total.

Far more important than the figure, however, is the fact that it represents not merely half, the people in America, but the Top Half!
It represents the "Cream" — the most independent, self-reliant and influential half of America. It represents the people who know their representatives - on the town council, the county board, in the state legislature and the Congress at Washington. It represents people who know the source of all strength

Picture Hunt Still On

U. of I., Moscow — In an intensive a hunt for pictures as ever conducted by a newspaperman or detective, University of Idaho officials have now rounded up photographs of 102 of the 104 regents who have served the university since its founding in 1889.

The hunt, started about five years ago, has led to attics in virtually all parents of the United States. At first it was believed the quest would net no more than about 60 percent of the wanted pictures. But relatives, alumni and other friends of the university dug deep, and came up with many photographs thought to have been destroyed or lost long ago.

Diabetics Can Live Long. Active and Normal Lives

The control of diabetes so that a person suffering from the disease may lead a long, normal and active life has become a reality.

In a study of 760 diabetic patients suffering from the disease 25 years or more, Dr. Elliott P. Joslin, of Boston, found approximately 80 per cent active and a few in perfect health.

"The patients in perfect condition are those whose treatment was initiated (with hardly an exception) with strenuous control of diabetes in their early years," Dr. Joslin stated, "this control being maintained for 10 years, more or less, to more than the usual extent and even then continued.

"In this series the evidence is overwhelming that strict treatment of diabetes pays and, moreover, that control of the disease is possi-

Mosquitoes Eat Dog (Food) In Unique Clinic Studies

Three million radioactive labeled mosquitoes raised on tap water and finely ground dog food containing radiophosphorous or a phosphate derived from it, were recently used in experiments conducted by the Chemical Corps Medical Laboratories of the Army in order to determine insect flight ranges.

With the constantly increasing human activity in northern regions, the study of arctic and subarctic species of biting insects has assumed great importance. Control of the enormous numbers of mosquitoes that occur in most arctic and subarctic areas is difficult even with large scale spraying. Even after such spraying, it has been established that reinfestation from the surrounding territory may occur rapidly. Accurate knowledge of the flight range and dispersal patterns of the important types of biting flies is needed in order to increase the effectiveness of control measures. In this particular research project the region near Churchill, Manitoba, was selected. This region is on the timberline, and has enormous mosquito populations which include both tundra and conifer forest species. Radioisotopes were used as tracers. Adult mosquitos were also made radioactive by feeding them on radioactivated rats and rabbits, raisins, flowers, and sugar solutions.

Insomnia

Insomnia is a demon that has plagued people all through the centuries. Now there are so many individual remedies that if a person tried them all, he'd never have time to sleep. There are many ex-insomniacs, though, who swear by their own particular remedy, and if sleep really is elusive every night, then the person suffering from insomnia has nothing to lose by trying one or two which appeal most to him. A word of warning, though! Don't be too upset or disappointed if a "guaranteed-to-stop-insomnia" cure doesn't work. Before he settles down doesn't work. Before he settles down to the long list of suggestions that to an article in Today's Health, friends are more than willing to thrust on him; the insomniac should make a thorough check of his bed.

Lightning Bugs

The full details of how a lightning bug produces its light are not fully understood, although it is known to utilize a chemical reaction involving water, oxygen, a rather simple compound called as enzymes, called "luciferase." Probably the luciferin, after it has become properly activated, actually produces the light. The insect control over the organs that produce light, perhaps in the same way that a nervous impulse controls the contraction of a muscle. and several scientists are engaged in research to find how this hap

Man-Made Light Moves Ahead By New Inventions

There is nothing to show that our anthropoid ancestors used candles to find their way around among the trees after dark, but there is ample evidence that the hairy cave man used fire to scare away prowling beasts.

Man-made illumination has come a long way since those remote days. By far the greatest strides, have come in the past 75 years—greater progress than through all the thousands of years before. From the cave man's torch to electric light. the flame was the only source of illumination.

Within recent weeks, a new source of artificial light has been announced wherein electricity appears to serve merely as a match to light a wick. Powdered phosphor. on a sheet of glass emits a mellow glow of its own under electric impulse. Your house of tomorrow may have these panels installed in walls and ceilings. It is claimed the cost of maintenance will be so low that the only need for switches will be to turn lights off when you want darkness. Clockfaces, stair risers and other incidentals will be permanently connected.

With this revolutionary development in man-made light comes wonder as to how it all started. Archaeologists have concluded among the earliest to whom the cave man. passed his flaming torch were the ancient dwellers of Mesopotamia where lamps, fashioned from terra cotta, were found to have been used during 7000-8000 B.C. Copper and bronze lamps were used by the Persians and Egyptians in 2700 B.C. Homer described a "Festival of Lamps" in 950 B.C. The Romans were using lanterns a century before Christ.

The candlesticks of Biblical times and the lamps of the vestal virgins used animal and vegetable oils. Pliny mentioned the use of a mineral oil for lamps in 50 A.D. The Phoenicians appear to have been the first to use wax for candles in 400 A.D.

Atom Disaster Would Demand Many Trained 'Mass Feeders'

"In case of enemy attack or atom bombing, the disaster would demand more trained persons for mass feeding than we can hope to have today," two Red Cross workers who conducted an emergency feeding program during the flood disaster in Kansas City last July. warn in an issue of the Journal of Home Economics. "Disaster feeding at best is a hodgepodge affair because there are never enough experienced people and survivors to do an ideal job." Jane Griswold, assistant national director of the American Red Cross Food and Nutrition Service, and Kathleen Kienstra, director of the Midwestern Area division of that service, explain in an article pointing out that experience in the flood disaster indicates what the situation would be in event of enemy attack. While urging the home economists to be ready with their professional help, the authors pay great tribute to the work of the community organizations who carried out the feeding program during the Kansas flood.

"It is encouraging to see the common purpose that draws people together when disaster comes to a community. The simple, basic, practical things that people can do for each other helps to ease the impact of catastrophe and turn the mind from despair," the authors conclude in the article, "Red Cross Fights Flood Disaster.
