The basketball boys were guests in the homes of the Libby and Bonners Ferry players. All the boys and their families were ideal hosts for the Tiger boys, and the hospitality of these fine people will not be forgotten.

The residents of Libby and Bonners Ferry found it hard to believe that a school with only 120 students, such as Kendrick High, could consistently post such a good basketball team — one capable of winning from schools with 280 and 360 students such as Libby and Bonners Ferry. These people also commended the team on its sportsmanship and playing ability, as well as the fine coaching. The people in and around Kendrick should be very proud of their basketball team for the fine showing they made in northwestern Montana and nothern Idaho.

One thing that merits mentioning about the Libby ball game is the fact that the Libby coach and our coach, Dennis Racicot, are cousins, and grew up together in Sandpoint. This game was something of a homecoming for Mr. Racicot, because many of his relatives were present at the game and helped cheer the Kendrick boys on to victory. Libby has a very fine team and did a real job helping the Tigers enjoy the trip. Christmas Vacation

Water Supply Vital In Farm Fire Control Annual Damage Amounts To Over $100 Million

Recently a New Jersey farmer's barn was set afire by lightning, and despite the efforts of three fire dpartments from nearby villages, the barn was a complete

Two factors combined to defeat the firemen. There was a delay in notifying the fire department because the fire wasn't immediately noticed. There wasn't a good sup ply of water near the barn from which the pumpers could draw.

These conditions are common to most properties in rural or small town areas. If rural residents can find means to correct them, they will go a long way toward reduc-ing the large number of "total" losses" that occur on farm properties, causing damage amounting to $100,000,000 a year and taking the lives of 3,500 farm residents.

In spite of efforts on the part of county agents, farm groups, insurance men, and volunteer fire departments to encourage the building of farm ponds, there still are thousands of farms in all parts of the country with inadequate water supplies.

The easiest way to provide adequate water is to dam a brook, or deepen an existing marsh or water hole near the barn. Or 🛋 farmer may be able to bulldoze a suitable pond near his buildings. For proper drainage, the pond! should be laid out with surveying instrum nts.

Sound of Corn Growing Recorded by Professor

Probably every farmer in the United States at one time or another has heard the old saw "it's so hot you can almost hear the corn growing." Now, seven men, including three University of Wisconsin experts, have joined the ranks of believers.

They have a tape recording of what they describe as corn growing. Herbert Jacobs, telegraph and farm news editor of the Madison Capital Times, thought up the idea. With the aid of Wisconsin U. experts the experiment was conducted in a 100acre stand of university raised corn.

Recording equipment was carried 500 feet into the field. Microphones were carried deep into the corn rows. There was no wind or other noises to complicate the recording, the experimenter reported.

When the experiment was over and the recording played, Verner E. Suomi, associate professor of meteorology at the school, said, "When background noises subsided, you could hear that corn growing."

Farm experts report corn makes 80 per cent of its growth during night-time and will grow as much as two to five inches in one night.

Hinged Fence

Here is an idea a number of midwest farmers might use in their feed lots. Hinged at the bottom and held in position by chains, a section of fence is lowered to form a manger. It can be raised when not in use to become again part of the fence. Posts should be set along the length of the manger as 11lustrated.

Farm Land Prices Up Sharply in Nebraska

Farm land dollar values in Nebraska have increased 124 per cent since 1939, according to figures of the bureau of agricultural economics. In the west north central region of the country, of which Nebraska is a part, prices have increased 3 per cent during the four months ending in July. This despite the usual seasonal reduction in farm real estate activity and a downturn in farm products.

HEALTHY FOREST INDUSTRY keeps Idaho prosperous

"A tree can be compared to a man, in that each is born, grows to maturity and dies. If something useful is not produced from either tree or man during their prime years, their contribution to our community and society is lost."

Potlatch's contribution, in terms of trees and men, is the creation of products and employment. Sustained yield forest management provides new trees for future generations; more complete utilization of each tree harvested diminates waste.

When an Idaho White Pine log is processed in the mills of Potlatch Forests, Inc., there are pieces left over too small for lumber, but too good to burn. These aren't wasted. The industrial cut stock department, an important part of the uilization program, cuts, routs, saws and planes them into clear blocks of wood. Carloads of these blocks are sent East, where toy manufacturers make them into menageries of dogs and ducks, cats and cows, to the delight of America's small fry at Christmas time.

The company does more than act as Santa's helper, however. It utilizes "scraps" to make parts of boxes, chairs, tables and scores of other useful products. Such utilization eliminates waste from tree harvesting. It adds employment, diversifying and strengthening the forest products industry of Idaho.

To Our Friends:

At Christmas time we like to pause for a moment and look back over the year now closing.

There is a real satisfaction and pleasure in recalling the happy as-sociations and old and new friends, whose friendships, with the seasoning of time become more real and lasting. We want you to know we value yours most deeply.

And so our heartist thanks and good wishes to you and yours - for a Joyous and Merry Christmas, and an abundance of everything that's reasonably priced. Quick service. good for the New Year. — Mr. and Gazette, Kendrick, Idaho. 27-tf Donald Brown
