No Budget Protests Heard

Last Saturday afternoon the Joint School District Trustees waited in vain at the High School for someone to come to the Budget hearing. Since no one showed up, it would appear that everyone is satisfied with the way the School District is spending its money.

At a recent meeting of the School Trustees all teachers were asked to return to their present positions. None of the teachers have expressed themselves to the contrary, so it may be assumed that the faculties in all three communities will remain the same for the coming school year.

TWO KENDRICK YOUNG MEN NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

Two Kendrick young men were injured — one perhaps seriously — in a plunger off the Lewiston Hill spiral highway at about 7:15 Friday evening, April 16.

Neil Erlewine, 22, of Southwick, and Ted Fey, 21, Kendrick, rode a 1953 sedan almost to the bottom of a rolling plunge of about 700 feet.

Erlewine suffered lacerations of the scalp and legs, and multiple abrasions and contusions, but was not hospitalized. He had been driving the car, according to State Police Officer Frank Shoemaker. His companion was taken to the St. Joseph's hospital, where he underwent X-rays for a back injury. Fey's physician said last night the extent of the injury had not been determined.

The accident occurred as the two men were driving up the spiral highway about four miles from the bottom. The car failed to negotiate a left-hand turn, skidded onto the shoulder, smashed through several guard rails and went over the edge.

It gouged a deep trench in the hillside immediately below the highway and then it began rolling. It came to rest right side up on the steep, grassy hillside between 500 and 700 feet from the highway.

The maroon sedan appeared to be an almost total loss. Fey told the officers the car threw him out near the end of the plunge and he thought it had rolled over him, Erlewine said he was thrown out later, on about the last roll.

Erlewine had been recently discharged from the Army and Fey was at home on furlough from Fort Lawton, Wash. They were driving to Moscow to attend the rehearsal of a friend's wedding.

A wrecking crew from the McMonigle Chevrolet Co. took the car out of the canyon Friday night. — Lewiston Tribune.

It is understood Neil Erlewine recovered sufficiently to attend the wedding of Robert Grim in Moscow, Saturday.

Latest reports on the condition of Ted Fey are that he was taken to Spokane by ambulance on Wednesday for further examination. He had been in the St. Joseph's hospital since the accident. It is feared he has a back injury.

The sleet, about the size of a pea, was accompanied by pouring rain, which dissolved the "pellets" in short order, and no damage was reported.

LETTER GIVES VIVID DESCRIPTION OF HOLY LAND

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Platt have received a most interesting letter from their son, Kenneth, who is with the State Department, and stationed at Cairo, Egypt. Excerpts follow:

Jerusalem, March 31: "Jean and I got here yesterday afternoon, and will fly back to Cairo tomorrow afternoon. Some day we may find time to tell of this trip in detail, perhaps when we show the pictures we are taking, but now I will give you a 'quickie' from right on the ground. We took a plane from Cairo to Beirut a week ago, and after three days there came here by car. We stayed the first night in Damascus, Syria, and next morning saw the "Street Called Straight" and the house of Ananias, who took care of Saul after he had been struck blind — the house where Saul became Paul, the guest missionary to the Gentiles and to whom all we Westerners owe our Christian heritage. About noon the next day we got to Amman, Jordan — the Rabboth-Amon of II Chvan, Chap. II, where David contrived to have Uriah, husband of Bathsheba, killed so he could have Bathsheba. (Picked up a rock from the walls of the ancient fort of the town). Yesterday morning we drove over here, crossing the Jordan river and valley near Jericho. At Jericho we saw the excavation where an archaeological expedition has been digging for the last three years, and where they reached bottom and stopped work only 5 minutes before we arrived. Bottom was on bedrock 50 feet down, and a good 40 feet below where the remains of Joshua's Jericho lay. The earliest wall and the later ones, were of stone, followed by an undetermined number of mud walls. The head archaeologist said the age of the oldest structure was probably at least 5000 B. C.

"From Jericho we came on an oiled road following mostly along the course of the ancient road where the "Good Samaritan" story was laid; past Bethany, the home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus; and on to Bethlehem. There we saw the field where the shepherds watched their flocks on the night of Jesus birth, and the cave which is thought to have served as the stable in which he was born. A guest church, called the Church of the Nativity, has been built over the cave, and the cave itself has been reinforced with concrete, lined with cloth, filled with altars, etc., until you must have quite an imagination to reconstruct the manger scene, but still we felt it was quite likely the right place. The tomb of Rachel, wife of Jacob, is nearby.

"Today I hiked before breakfast to Gethsemane and the top of the Mount of Olives, about 1 1/2 miles from our hotel. Gethsemane is the site of two large churches and the whole area (about 10 acres) is within high walls, so that I could only see in from a distance. Tomorrow I will take Jean for an inside visit. The top of the Mount of Olives also is walled in, and includes the church of the Ascension, where Jesus was received into Heaven. After breakfast we went on a walking tour of the old city, all of which is on the Arab side of the Arab-Israel truce line. The political situation here is so strained that we cannot go over into the Jewish-held part of the city and back into the Arab-held portion. Fortunately, nearly everything of Biblical significance is on this side.

"Our walk took us to the prison where Jesus awaited trial, the site where Pilate's judgment hall stood (long since destroyed) and the site where Jesus was scourged and crowned with thorns (long buried, but now uncovered and housed) and the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, housing a crypt long thought to have been the one where the body of Jesus lay until he rose from the dead, but now seriously doubted, along the route long thought to have been the one followed by Jesus on the way to the crucifixion, but now also doubted. We also visited the places now thought to be the authentic sites of the crucifixion and entombment, which we found very convincing and inspirational. Other places we saw were the Pool of Bethesda where Jesus cured the paralyzed man, and the site of Solomon's Temple.

"It is fine to be here ahead of Easter. The city already is crowded and busy, and when the Easter throngs arrive it will be swarming. For those who like the crowds, ceremony and display, that will be a high moment, but we are thankful for the chance to look about at leisure and in a spirit of reverence. There are several people here whom we have known elsewhere, and we have met many new friends of inspiring character.

"Our trip has been three times disturbed by serious political affairs, which no doubt have been in the papers there. First, the day after we arrived in Beirut the American University students (Arab) rioted just two blocks from our hotel, while we stood on the roof listening to the shouting and watching the ambulances bring the dead and injured into a hospital just across the street from us. The day we arrived in Amman, the Jordanians were in a fury over the latest Israeli aggression, in which several Arabs were killed in a night attack on a village near Bethlehem. The day we arrived here we learned that crowds were rioting in Cairo, while the Naguib-Nasser power struggle was going through a new phase there. Notwithstanding we have managed to keep on without too much worry and each incident seems to have passed off, at least for the present.

"We will be home tomorrow night. God willing, and will keep you posted from there. Love and Easter greetings from the land of the first Easter. —Kenny."

Potlatch Creek Down
Potlatch creek is down again, following a rather sharp rise a week or ten days ago, and the stream itself is not too muddy.

In all the years we have lived here and seen the creek throughout the various seasons, we cannot remember a winter when the stream has stayed so low, week after week, as it has the past several months. It may be, however, that when warm weather really arrives, it will rise sharply, for we understand that in its headwaters considerable snow still remains.

Mulching Will Not Prevent Freezing Leaves, Grass, Straw Are Good Materials

Even though many gardeners have used mulches for years and are aware of its value, they are not sure of their reasons for mulching. It is not to prevent plants from freezing, as often thought, but to prevent quick freezing and thawing.

It prevents drying out of plant tissues, and freezing and thawing from heaving plants out of the ground. It also prevents plant development too early in the spring when buds might be harmed by late frost.

The gardener looking for mulching materials could try leaves when available in quantity. They are satisfactory for perennials borders and beds, rock gardens and around evergreens and shrubs.

Mulching is nature's way of providing plant protection. Leaves, grass, straw, peat moss and ground corn cobs are all good mulching material.

Straw is another good material, especially good for strawberry beds. Oat straw is preferred over wheat and others.

Peat Moss is often used and does an excellent job of preventing temperature fluctuations, but has a tendency to crust on top. Grass clippings are good, too, if available in large quantity.

Ground corn cobs have recently come into use as a mulch, especially for roses. This material is reported to also improve the soil by stimulating the growth of micro-organisms.

200-240 Pound Hogs Will Bring the Best Price

According to livestock specialists, both underfinished and overfinished hogs are likely to sell at larger-than-usual discounts this fall.

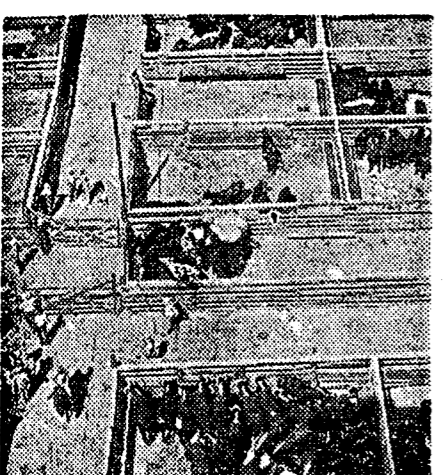

The 1951 pig crop of about 105 million head is the second largest on record, and there no longer is the strong world demand for fats and oils of a year ago. So there will be more fats available and possibly a weaker lard market.

As a result this will mean more price differential for type in live hogs. Hogs that are too heavy or too fat will probably have to take a larger discount than last year.

Specialists believe farmers should feed out hogs now under 180 pounds. Discounts on lightweighters are such that farmers can hardly afford not to feed them out.

With so many hogs starting to market, packers can be rather choosy about the type of hog for which they pay top prices. Both underfinished and overfinished animals will sell at a disadvantage. Try to sell as many as possible between 200 and 240 pounds.

Filling Up

Restored pens of the Kansas City stockyards begin to fill up as cattle flow in again after the great flood. More than 20 feet of flood water covered this area. The job of rehabilitation has been hailed as an outstanding feat by livestock men throughout the midwest.

Cattle Grubs Cause Big Meat and Hide Losses

Not less than 12 million pounds of the most valuable part of the beef carcass are trimmed out around grub holes from cattle slaughtered in the U. S., according to livestock specialists. The trimming detracts from the carcass appearance, resulting in a lower price per pound. It has also been estimated that grubs cause $20 million damage to hides each year, enough to make a million shoes.

Sit-Down Dentist's Career is Longer, Professor Says

Several years of service will be added to the life of the average dentist if he sits down part of the time while he works.

This is the belief of Edgar W. Swanson, D.D.S., M.S.D., professor of operative dentistry at Northwestern university dental school, who recommends that dentists use operative stools at least 50 per cent of the time.

Dr. Swanson said students in the operative technique laboratory at the Northwestern dental school use operative stools about 60 per cent of the time. Students in the clinics use the stools from 10 to 90 per cent per operation.

Northwestern, convinced that operative stools will be used more widely by dentists to eliminate fatigue and extend their years of service, trains students in the use of the stools.

To obtain more accurate information on the reaction of students to the stools, the school recently sent a questionnaire to every member of its senior class.

The first question was: "Do you feel as tired at the end of the day when you have used an operating stool as you do when you have operated from the conventional standing position?" All but three answered "no." Two of those answering "yes" said it may have been due to their limited experience with the use of a stool.

The second question was: "Do you like the idea of sitting while operating?" All answered "yes."

To the question, "Would you do more operating from a sitting position if more stools were available?" All senior students answered "yes."

Dr. Swanson points out that the operative stool enables a dentist to change his position during the day, which is extremely important in preventing fatigue.

Sugar-Graving Animals Lured by Poison Plants

There may be danger ahead when livestock pass up lush pastures in favor of weeds and tough plants.

The attraction may be a poisonous spray or other chemical that gives ordinary unpalatable weeds and plants a special taste-appeal.

A bulletin issued by the American Veterinary medical association explains it this way: Certain chemicals used in farming, such as sodium chlorate, turn plant starches to sugar, and animals with a "sweet tooth" readily eat the sprayed plants.

Not all the chemicals used for spraying crops and treating soil are poisonous to animals, the AVMA emphasizes, but many of them are. The severity of poisoning varies directly with the kind of chemical and the amount of treated plants the animals consume.

Experiments are still being made to test the safety of various new chemicals on the market, and until all the facts are known, livestock farmers are advised to use only those proved to be safe and to follow manufacturers' instructions.

Resistant Plants

Plant diseases are no respecters of experimental plots. As a result scientists have sometimes acquired valuable information in a nick of time. So it was in the case of Victoria blight of oats, which invaded breeding plots and demonstrated to plant breeders of the U. S. department of agriculture and some of the middle west state experiment stations a type of disease resistance soon to be needed on a large scale. Clinton—and some of the other new varieties of oats derived from the Bond variety—in that way became known as resistant to a disease soon to be rampant in the Mississippi valley. This disease attacked the widely-grown oat varieties derived from the Victoria oat brought in from South America.

Vanishing Wildlife

Gone from the British Isles since World War II is the great bustard, Europe's largest land bird. Going or gone from haunts in Florida and vicinity is the ivory-billed woodpecker, largest of its clan. Deserting the Bahamas in alarming fashion is the tail, scarlet, hued flamingo, whose one United States haven is at Hialeah park, Miami, Florida. Whales, vital food source for many Europeans, long have been reduced to scarcity in northern hemisphere waters. Blue whales, biggest of all, currently show signs of sharp depletion in Antarctic whaling grounds. A new international treaty shortens the hunting season as a whale conservation measure.

First Tank Car

On November 1, 1865, about six years after the world's first oil well was opened at Titusville, Pennsylvania, the first tank car was loaded in that city. It was a flat car fitted with two wooden tanks shaped like inverted tubs. Many of these "rotary" oil cars, as they were called, were used for transporting oil from the Pennsylvania wells, until replaced by the present type of horizontal cylindrical tank, fitted with a dome which allows the oil to expand without injury to the tank. The first of this type was introduced in 1868.

Soap Holes Found Value in Disguise

Produce Magic Mud With Multiple Uses

Ever since Belle Fourche, S. D., was a rip-snorting cattle town at the end of the old Chisholm trail its residents have been damning the "soap holes" that plagued the area.

Fast-riding cowboys often took a nasty tumble in this super-slippery mud and cattle were forever getting bogged down in them.

But now, like a man discovering his hives are really a blessing, Belle Fourche has found its soap holes are one of its biggest assets.

Every one of them is filled with a magic mud called bentonite. It's an odorless, tasteless, soapy mud with a thousand uses and scientists are thinking up new ones every day.

Most of us already are using it a half dozen times a day, but almost nobody has heard of it. Men use it in shoe polish and hand cleaners. Women use it in face powder, lotions, beauty cream. Bentonite also is found in many types of paint, plaster and cleaning agents. It's handy for filling holes in giant dams and for casting moulds for molten metal. Forced down thousands of feet into the earth this magic mud lubricates the drills in oil wells and sends the debris up to the drillers.

Bentonite is the most absorbent material found in nature. When moistened it swells to several times its normal size. This quality makes it useful in waterproofing housing foundations and many other industrial uses.

Its new uses and increasing popularity for its older uses all add up to a boom such as Belle Fourche hasn't seen since the gold rush.

In the past 10 years the population has practically doubled and bentonite now pours $600,000 a year into the town in the form of additional purchasing power.

Fifteen years ago Belle Fourche shipped out three carloads of bentonite. Last year its production was 6,187 carloads and this year they expect carloading to go considerably higher.

Scientists say that bentonite, a strange mixture made up mostly of dust from prehistoric volcanoes, is found almost nowhere in the world except in the Black Hills of Wyoming and South Dakota.

It is the most absorbent material nature ever has devised, they say, and a half dozen teaspoonsful will soak up a glass of water.

Insect Killers Made By Synthetic Means

New pyrethrum-like chemicals that kill insects have been made synthetically for the first time in the laboratories of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine. It has been announced by the U. S. department of agriculture.

The chemical makeup of the synthetic materials is almost identical with that of the insect-killing principle in pyrethrum, according to the chemists.

It Just Ain't So!

If that United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO, if you're in a hurry) is looking for assignments, we'd like to suggest that they send a mission to those "underprivileged" countries to explain that American women really do not have three legs.

The idea of America's "new woman" being so lavishly equipped has sprung from the promotion idea of a soap maker that is familiarly known to our gentler sex and the corner grocer as "A Pair and a Spare." Instead of going shopping for stockings (or do we mean "hose")? a lady lays in a supply of detergent or soap. Each box tells her how to indulge her penchant for glossy, gam-flattering nylons — not just one pair, but "A Pair and a Spare" adding up to three — and reputedly at less than the price of a pair.

No doubt mere US mates, who have never bought three socks at a time, or three gloves, shoes or ear-muffs, are as confused as those on the plains of Abyssinia and in the jungles of Bechuanaland. We have therefore, as a public service, conducted our own research into the matter. And we have found the American woman is often unwilling to go out socially without that "spare" in her pocket-book (or is it handbag?). When completely attired she says: "I haven't a thing to wear," it means she hasn't a "spare" and must go buy another box of soap before she can go to the P.-T. A. meeting.

Just how a woman can lose a stocking she happens to be wearing at the time, we haven't yet found out. But we'll keep working on the problem. In the meantime, we hope that UNESCO mission convinces those two-legged outlander dames that they are just like our girls.

Elves and Leprechauns Took Blame for Everything

It may not be on the official unemployment records, but the fact is that there are hundreds of sheeps, leprechauns, and elves out of a job.

Since each one of them has a long history of diligent service to humanity, it seems a real shame they can't be put back to work. Each of us needs one to take the rap for the petty annoyances of daily living. These out of the way, we could devote ourselves to the big problems.

According to the Childcraft reference library, our ancestors used the little people to full advantage. They let them take the responsibility of souring the milk, rattling the windows and creaking the stairs, and breaking Aunt Nellie's best china.

A nice feature of the little scamps, too, is their wide range of nationality.

Did your parents come from Scandinavia? Then you will want to select an elf. This pint-sized creature will live in your home and help keep the kitchen neat. If he occasionally cracks a dinner plate or burns the toast, you can't very well complain. That's what you want him for, to take the blame, isn't it.

Pixies are your choice if you have British ties, and there is a fine assortment of sheeps for you Scottish folks. If you are Irish you may select between the revelry-loving sheeps and the rather dour leprechauns, who, incidentally, are apt to ignore you as they spend most of their time making shoes for the sheeps.

If you favor France you will have to get along with a goblin. But maybe he's better than a German poltergeist, who is downright rowdy. He will cause no end of commotion until someone bakes him a spice cake.

Just a word of warning before you adopt one of these little chaps—they believe in people, and definitely expect people to believe in them.

Most Life Policy Benefits Go to Widows, Children

Reflecting the basic use of life insurance in family financial planning, wives, children and other relatives appear to be the directly named beneficiaries in more than 80 percent of all life policy death claims, the Institute of Life Insurance says. This is indicated by an Institute analysis of one month's claims in the United States.

Applied to the year's probable total of death claims, the one month's distribution would indicate that this year, wives, children and relatives will be beneficiaries of some 1,200,000 life insurance policies, with total benefits about $1,400,000,000. Wives and children alone would account for $1,225,000,000. In addition, they will receive a considerable share of the 7 percent of claims and 14 percent of benefit payments which go to estates and other beneficiaries, excepting husbands.

Husbands were shown to be beneficiaries in 11 percent of the policies, although they received only 4 percent of aggregate benefits, reflecting the smaller average size of policies owned by women.

The month's claim analysis also revealed that, while the majority of death claims were paid on policies which had been in force a number of years, there was a large number in the early life of policies, even in the first year. Although great care is taken in selecting applicants, with those to whom policies are issued being in apparent relatively good health, nearly 5 percent of policies becoming death claims were found to be less than a year old. This would indicate that this year there will be some 70,000 death claims within a year of issuance of policies, with nearly $100,000,000 involved.

Nearly one-sixth of all claims were shown to be under policies less than five years old. Almost 40 percent of the claims and just over 40 percent of the amount of benefits paid were under policies in force 20 years or more.

Life Expectancy for Man Reaches 65-Year Average

Man once shared the life expectancy of a pack-donkey, but over a 2,000 year period has attained a 65-year average—almost rivaling the 70-year expectancy of the whale, the longest-lived mammal in the life chart.

But this increased age has drawbacks in the form of cancer, diabetes and heart disease.

The average Roman of about 50 B. C. lived only 25 years. Modern medicine and sanitation now give man at least 40 more years—and a greater chance of having one of the diseases usually associated with the aging of the human body.

Human progress up the life-expectancy ladder is something of a triumph for man, who is not too well endowed with protective equipment. He is the only mammal in the higher brackets who is without some form of protective armor. For example, he ranks with the whale, 70; the elephant, 60; the hippopotamus, 40; and the alligator, 40 years.

Domesticated mammals range in life expectancy from the dog, 10 years, to the cow and horse, 20 years, and the burro, 25. Lowest mammal in the chart is the mouse, who lives from 2 to 6 years.

Preventive Measures Urged As Safeguard Against Stroke

The best way to avoid a stroke, third among leading causes of death in this country, is to recognize its possibility and make physical readjustments that may help to stave it off.

In the absence of serious systemic diseases such as diabetes and syphilis, there is not much chance of the average person having a stroke before 45 years of age, according to Dr. William F. Floyd, associate editor of the magazine, Today's Health. But, virtually everyone past middle age is a possible candidate. The following precautions were recommended.

1. Obtain prompt, active treatment of systemic diseases.
2. Do not become or remain overweight.
3. Watch blood pressure that tends to become high.
4. Obtain regular physical check-ups.

"Strokes vary from widespread, devastating ones that bludgeon their victims into oblivion to tiny ones producing such vague, indefinite signs that they often escape immediate detection," he said. "The basic cause in both extremes is identical: escape of blood into the brain tissue. The amount of bleeding and its location near to or far from vital centers or important nerve pathways are the chief factors that determine severity in strokes.

"Not all strokes are the result of direct escape of fluid from blood vessels into brain tissue. Some physicians lean strongly to the belief that temporary spasm in a blood vessel may be a common cause.

"Another fairly common event is formation of a clot within one or more of the tiny arteries in the brain.

"There is increased possibility of stroke in certain diseases."

"Breaking Up" Water

Water, which consists of hydrogen and oxygen, can be broken up into these elements by electrolysis. If two wires, carrying a direct electrical current, are placed in water, bubbles of oxygen form around the one connected to the negative side of the battery or generator, while oxygen forms around the wire connected to the positive terminal. Usually a small amount of acid must be added to the water to make it conductive of electricity. Also, if water, in the form of steam, is heated to a very high temperature, around 3500 F, it separates into hydrogen and oxygen. These recombine to form water as the temperature is lowered again.

Longer Life for Sheets

To lengthen the life of sheets follow these suggestions. Reverse sheets every other time by putting a bottom hem at the top. Cover bare springs with heavy sheet or sheeting to avoid snagging bed linens. And check all beds for needed carpentry. Put a mattress pad between the sheet and the mattress to avoid the abrasive action of the rough ticking against the sheet. Loosen the edges of the sheet until all around before stripping the bed. Use mild solution of bleaches and rinse thoroughly, or better still, let the sunshine do your bleaching. Always rinse thoroughly to remove traces of soap and soap powders.

Tough Case

Recognizing the fact that portable movie projectors are often carried into all sorts of climates and that they must withstand the hard knocks incident to travel, the manufacturer of one such machine has devised a special carrying case that is able to "take it." Built of birch and basswood, high frequency radio waves are used to set the adhesive that binds the panels so they can never pull apart. The case is then dipped in a synthetic resin sealer that checks decay and minimizes moisture absorption. It is then primed, sanded, and painted with a spatter finish. Allowed to cure for three weeks, the finish is hard and durable. Even after years of intensive service, it does not become brittle or chip away from the wood.

Study Premature Babies

An instrument corresponding to a miniature iron lung has been used by University of Michigan researchers in studying premature babies. Object of the studies was to find out why premature babies breath irregularly—in gasps or jerks. The research has shown that the cause of this irregular breathing is that oxygen is not reaching the tissue of the brain center which controls respiration.

Pre-War Army

Six months before World War II began, the Army contained 29 infantry and cavalry divisions at nearly full strength, totaling more than 450,000 officers and men, plus an armored force of four divisions with a total strength of 40,000 troops. The Army history, "Washington Command Post: The Operations Division," credits mobilization of the National Guard and induction under the Selective Service Act for this rapid expansion of strength.

After Congressional Seat
E. B. (Ed) Knopp, St. Maries druggist, this week announced his candidacy for Congress from the First Idaho District on the Republican ticket.

A young man of 40, the Benewah county candidate is well known over the state, and while never before a candidate for state office, has been active in many phases of Idaho affairs.

In 1949, Mr. Knopp was president of the Idaho Pharmaceutical Assn., and July 1 of last year was appointed by Gov. Len Jordan to the State Board of Pharmacy for three years. He was named by the state association as "pharmacist of the year" for 1953 and is, of course, a college graduate with a B. S. in pharmacy.

A life-long Republican, Knopp has been actively engaged in party affairs in North Idaho, and his home county. He is a past officer of the Benewah County Republican committee.

The St. Maries druggist has filled the president's chair of virtually every one of the numerous organizations with which he is or has been affiliated. Currently he is president of the St. Maries Chamber of Commerce, the St. Maries Shrine Club, and representative of Calam Shrine, Lewiston.

Grangers See Cancer Films
The Kendrick Grange held open house last Tuesday evening for the showing on two cancer films, but the audience was disappointingly small, due in a large part, no doubt, to the epidemic of measles, flu, colds, etc., which has been plaguing this community and the schools for some time.

Dr. Kulp of Moscow was present and answered a number of questions following his brief talk.

Mrs. George Brocke, Sr., gave a statistical report on the use made of Cancer Drive funds last season.

Refreshments of coffee, punch and cookies were served in the banquet room at the conclusion of the evening.

Epidemic Of Measles Hits
This area has been undergoing quite an epidemic of measles, most of the kids having had them - but now adults are falling victim. Included in this latter list are Mrs. Wm. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Brocke, Jr., and Mrs. Burton Souders, Jr.

A Daughter Is Born
Word was received here by Mrs. Paul Lind that a baby daughter was born on April 3rd to Mr. and Mrs. Neil Maxfield (nee Villa Lou Harris) at Spokane, weight 7 lbs. 1 ounce. She has been named Shelly Lou.
