

SCHOOL NOTES

taking part will include the Senior Chorus; the Senior Ensemble; Band; Majorettes; Junior Girls Chorus and the Junior High Sextet.

An evening of wonderful entertainment is in prospect — something no one should miss.

Win Places At Lewiston

Members of the Music department of Kendrick High school and Junior High school certainly "brought home the bacon" from the Lewiston Music Festival held April 29-30 and May 1. Earning the first Division I rating to be received here in many years were the Senior Girls Chorus and the Girls Senior Ensemble. Gaining a Division II rating were the Majorettes in Team Twirling; Jane Racicot, mezzo-soprano; Junior Girls Chorus; and Clarinet Trio (Karen Nelson, Wanda Peters and Marje Ingle). Placing in Division III were the Band and Elnora Swinney, soprano.

Judging of events at the Lewiston Music Festival is not done in competition with other schools, but rather, in competition with a rating scale which reflects the judges' opinions of music groups in accordance with performance standards for the various divisions.

The last events of the Festival took place on Saturday, May 1, when the Band and Majorettes performed in the Festival Parade, and twenty members of the choruses sang in the massed chorus during the concert which closed the week-end's festivities.

To Set Up Test Plots

County Agent Elbert McProud stopped in the Gazette Thursday to give us some information on the test plot now underway at the Henry Wendt ranch near Southwick. W. K. Pope of the Agronomy department of the U. of I. accompanied him and told of the arrangements made for a spring cereal nursery which includes spring varieties of oats, wheat and barley — 16 types in all.

Half of the plot will be treated with nitrogen fertilizer. This plan is being used as a demonstration plus — to get these varieties before the public. Some time in July, when the various specimens have reached maturity, plans call for a field day.

J. M. Raeder, assistant plant pathologist from the U. of I. was with the group, and had surveyed some of the acreage atop the ridges where concern was held for fields showing poor development. It was feared there was disease present, but he analyzed the poor condition of the wheat at the George Wilken farm, near Cameron, as due to plowing down too heavy a coverage of straw, which produced a lack of nitrogen, and created a nutrition block rather than disease. He felt that with the advent of warmer weather the condition will disappear.

Fire Wednesday Morning

Fire of unknown origin broke out Wednesday about 10:30 a. m. in the storage room of the Kendrick Hotel, situated behind the L. Lindquist apartment.

The fire had an excellent start before being discovered, the alarm being turned in by Homer Parks, and in almost a matter of seconds the Kendrick Fire truck was on the scene, but flames were lapping out the windows and thick black smoke rolling skyward. The fire boys confined the blaze to the storage room and a small room adjoining.

The building, which is brick and cement, was gutted, and smoke rolled through the Lindquist apartment, the Kendrick Cleaners and the Jud Lee apartment upstairs.

The value of personal property destroyed or damaged had not been determined at the time of going to press.

Oldest Living Thing In U. S. Has Rival in Olive Tree

Thousands of years from now California may boast of possessing two types of trees that were growing here in the 20th century. One of these is the Sequoia, or giant redwood, a few species of which already have grown in the Golden State for over 4,000 years. The other is the olive tree, a comparative newcomer to the U.S.

The olive tree, although estimated to have lived in Mediterranean countries for periods of time equal to that of the Sequoia, did not join this other ancient perennial in California until about 1769. It was in that year that Francisco padres planted the first olive tree cuttings around their missions.

The modest efforts of these religious men to provide a little shade became the basis of an industry which, according to the California Olive Association, now nets some 2,200 growers in the U.S. about $10,000,000 annually.

It was not until the late 1890's that olives were available commercially in this country, even in a limited amount. Then improvements in canning processes and development of the modern type metal container by the American Can Company gave olives a new life in the new world. During the last 60 years the olive orchard "population" has grown steadily from less than 1,000 acres to about 26,000 acres last year. They now produce an annual crop of over 40,000 tons of olives. Of the 25,000 tons sold for canning, 98 per cent go into metal cans, the remainder in glass containers.

The ripe black olive of California, gathered when fully matured, has a rich oil content and is marketed in nine different grades, ranging in size from "standard" to "super-colossal." According to Professor M. E. Jaffa, nutrition specialist at the University of California, the ripe olive has about double the calorie value of the green olive.

Transfusions Through Arteries Said Life-Saving Measure

The rapid transfusion of blood through an artery, instead of through a vein as is usually done, has been described by two Washington surgeons.

Drs. Charles S. White and Donald Stubbs of the Research Foundation, Doctors Hospital, Washington, said the method has been found "safe, practical and life-saving."

Intra-arterial transfusion, they reported, has been found most effective in cases where the heart beat has stopped or has become almost imperceptible following a heavy loss of blood.

"It should be emphasized that this type of transfusion is not a proper substitute for intravenous transfusion except in those cases in which the blood pressure is very low, or cannot be recorded, or in arrest of the heart action from hemorrhage," they said.

"In the latter cases, blood introduced into the veins, even under pressure, has a long route and a slow one to reach the coronary arteries (supplying the heart), even if it could be forced or propelled in some manner through the right chambers of the heart and lung. The most direct route to the coronaries is the arterial highway."

The Washington surgeons said that with blood pressure at zero and no pulse to be felt, circulation was repeatedly restored "in an unbelievably short time." They added:

"It is accepted generally that resuscitation is futile if more than seven minutes elapses after the heart action is arrested, as irreparable damage to the cerebral cells ensues, and if life is maintained the facilities remain permanently damaged. Some remarkable exceptions to this statement have been reported, but usually not well authenticated."

Fire in the Desert

Abadan, an oil city of some 140,000 people, only 40 years ago was a desert island in the sun-baked delta below the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. In a great geologic trough beneath the Mesopotamian river basin waited a hidden treasure. It remained for an Australian wildcatter named William Knox D'Arcy to drill 1,180 feet through Iranian limestone and bring in a gusher in 1908.

Wild tribesmen had ridden into Persia thousands of years before and found oozings of gummy black bitumen to fire their lamps and bind the materials of their buildings, tools and weapons. Alexander the Great marched through Persia, his horsemen collecting naphtha and pitch from evil-smelling pools to strike blazing terror among the war elephants of enemies he met later.

Habits

Habits are easily formed, but not nearly as easy to break. According to Professor William James, Harvard psychologist, it is not enough just to decide to break a habit—one must decide wholeheartedly and not let a single exception occur. Habits should be broken off abruptly, and not gradually. Taking sleeping pills in a dangerous habit as well as an unnecessary one. Good bedding is all that's needed for sound, restful sleep as long as there are no physical ailments.

Find Clue to Mortality Among Baby Calves, Pigs

Nobody knows definitely why many newborn calves and pigs die shortly after they begin to nurse, but a theory advanced by research veterinarians is winning acceptance because it seems to be the most logical explanation, yet offered.

Picture a starving man who eats food that makes him violently ill, only to die from the illness rather than from starvation, and you will have an idea of what is believed to be happening to countless pigs, and calves too, on the nation's farms. The main difference is that the newborn animals die after consuming their mother's milk—the very thing upon which they depend for life.

This is how the trouble starts: While the cow or sow is pregnant, she is attacked by a virus disease that may or may not be apparent to the owner. Her natural body forces produce substances called antibodies that fight off the infection, and at the same time some of these antibodies find their way to the unborn calf or pig.

Large amounts of them also go into the colostrum or first milk, that will nourish the youngster after birth. These disease-fighting substances have a sensitizing effect on the unborn animal. Then, after birth, when the youngster starts to consume colostrum, it gets a large dose of the antibodies and dies from shock.

Prevention of such losses is a problem now confronting veterinarians. While the colostrum from affected cows and sows is obviously harmful, it also has many properties vital to the survival and health of calves and pigs. Ordinary milk and other feedstuffs do not contain all of these essential properties, and so far satisfactory artificial foods have not been developed for practical farm use.

Veterinarians Tell Ways To Prevent Pig Scours

These five suggestions for keeping scours out of the spring pig crop are offered by swine disease authorities of the American veterinary medical association:

1. Set up a definite schedule for feeding the sow. Irregular feeding results in an uneven flow of milk that causes nursing pigs to go hungry at one feeding and then scour from overeating at the next.

2. Don't overfeed the sow. Newborn pigs often scour because the brood sow is being overfed. Give her only warm water and no solid feed the first day after farrowing and a small amount of bran or oats the second day. After that, the ration can be increased a little each day so that she is on full feed within two weeks.

3. Feed a balanced ration. If the sow gets too much corn, her litter is almost sure to scour.

4. Keep sows away from mud holes, manure, and filth. Many cases of pig scours are traceable to filth consumed while nursing.

5. Protect pigs against sharp changes in temperature. Failure to keep pigs warm when the weather suddenly turns cold will cause outbreaks of digestive trouble.

Saws Used in Home

The saws commonly used in the home are the hacksaw and the handsaw. The hacksaw is used to cut metal and the handsaw to cut wood. There are two types of handsaws, the rip saw to cut with the grain and the crosscut to saw across the grain. All saws should be kept sharp. In starting a saw cut, the thumb of the left hand should be used to guide the blade until the cut is started at the desired location. The first stroke of the saw should be in the up direction. Sufficient pressure should be used when starting the cut so that the saw immediately begins to bite into the wood.

Warning to Cattlemen

Stock owners who use grazing land that adjoins oil lines and tanks are warned to watch out for crude oil poisoning in their herds. A bulletin from veterinary medical authorities cautions that the lines and tanks occasionally spring leaks, leaving pools of oil, and cattle may consume enough of it to be fatally poisoned. Animals on poor grazing land seem to have a special liking for crude oil, the bulletin adds. Cattlemen also are advised to keep their animals off pastures fronting recently oiled roads, particularly during rainy weather. The reason is that rain may wash enough oil onto the pasture to poison all or part of a herd.

Early Days of Indiana

Indiana territory's initial 1,000 settlers came from Kentucky, Virginia, and the Carolinas. They built their cabins in the south, along the Ohio and lower Wabash. They found the farm land rich, and when, in 1813, they moved their capital to Corydon, 20 trail miles west of Louisville, their number was 30,000. The total had jumped to 75,000 by late 1818, when statehood was won. There were a million and a half Hoosiers in Civil war days. By that time, the state's "naturals" in crops—corn, wheat, and hogs—had been found. Hominid and hogs continue to be good Hoosier fare.

Out Of State Hunters

Non-residents (mostly big game hunters) from 43 states, Alaska, Puerto Rico and South America, made up the 3,309 buyers of Idaho $50 combination hunting and fishing licenses during 1953, says a compilation just released this week.

All of the states except Maryland, Maine, New Hampshire, Georgia and North Carolina were represented. So was Idaho, because a number of new residents still had not qualified for resident tickets.

These non-residents paid approximately $160,000 for their 3,309 licenses — it would take more than 55,000 resident licenses to make up the same amount of revenue. By states California was first in number with 1,778; Washington second with 769, and Nevada third with 193.

Trash Fire Ignites Clothing Mrs. Charles Graham, mother of Mrs. Bob Lind, was seriously burned at their home in Eagle, Idaho, last week. She was burning trash in the back yard when her clothing ignited after she had thrown some fuel oil on the heap. Her screams brought a son from the house, who rolled her in a blanket and put out the flames, but not before she was seriously burned. Reports are that her body below the waist received second degree burns.

Mrs. Bob Lind and her brother left from Moscow last week to be with their mother. Then on Monday Mrs. Bob Lind called, saying her mother was in serious condition, and Bob, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Paul Lind, left for Eagle, immediately. No word has since been received.

SEED SLANTS

Within the next few days is the time to plant your sweet corn. Corn should be planted as soon as the ground becomes warm. The ideal time is when the locust trees start to bloom. However, many gardeners stagger their corn plantings, in order to have a longer time in which they can use corn from the garden. Others plant different varieties for different maturity dates - an early corn like Golden Sunshine, a medium corn like Golden Bantam, and a later type such as Golden Cross Bantam. Others plant Hybrid, Tendergold, and a later hybrid, Iochief.

For the very best in Hybrid corns we suggest "Iochief." This corn grows an ear 8 to 10 inches long. A very deep kernal, rich, deep golden color, tasty, tender, ideal for roasting, and considered the best for freezing. We rate this our No. 1 corn. We know that if you plant this variety, you will grow the finest of sweet corn. Remember the name, "Iochief," Hybrid, in "Bettergrow Seeds."

If you want an early maturing corn, plant a few rows of "Tendergold Hybrid." This grows an ear about 7 inches long. As its name implies, it is gold in color - tasty and tender.

Other hybrids that we have in stock are "Golden Cross Bantam," "Tendermost" and "Spancross."

For regular varieties in early corn plant "Golden Sunshine." This is an early maturing golden corn that is ideal for roasting ears. And then, we have the old standby, the sweet corn that is known to every gardener, "Golden Bantam." This year we have the "Improved Golden Bantam." This is an improved strain over the regular "Golden Bantam." "Improved Golden Bantam" is an all-purpose corn. It can be used for freezing or canning.

Some gardeners like a white corn. In this we have "Stowell's Evergreen." This is considered one of the best of the white sweet corns. The ears grow large, the kernel is very deep, and with the tasty sweet flavor, this variety is the choice of many home gardeners. It is ideal for canning.

All our sweet corns are "Bettergrow" treated. Bettergrow seeds insure you of the very best in garden seeds.

Putting In Long Field Hours

The bark and clatter of tractors can be heard on all the ridges in this area any time of the day, and quite often at night, as farmers strive to catch up on long-delayed spring field work.

Some have welcomed the rains of the past few days, others have not, depending on how far the particular farmer has gotten with his spring work.

We understand that field crops are badly in need of sunshine, for most of the rain that has fallen has been chill, and as sufficient moisture is now present, sunshine seems the answer.
