Narrowly Escape Death

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Baker and family, Kendrick, had a very narrow escape from death last Saturday night about 11:30 o'clock, when the big Buick Roadmaster car he was driving, and carrying as passengers Mrs. Baker and their four children left the state highway near the Lester Wallace home in the west part of town, plowing deep ditches in the road shoulder, and then struck the big chestnut tree in front of the Wallace home with terrific force — almost wrapping itself around the center body post on the left hand side of the car.

The two children riding in the back seat were thrown out the door on the left side of the car. Mrs. Baker and two smallest children, in the front seat, were able to absorb the terrific jolt to escape with only minor cuts and bruises. Mr. Baker was rendered unconscious and suffered a deep cut over one eye.

Dr. Christensen was called and gave first aid to all, as well as sewing up the cut suffered by Mr. Baker.

The car, headed toward Kendrick, failed to negotiate the turn, and left the highway on the left-hand side. It is considered a total loss. The accident was investigated by Arthur Foster, village marshal.

Word From Bill Mitchell

From Pvt. Bill Mitchell, who is stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, comes the following letter:

Hi, Bill: I just found out from Parker last week what a good deal you give service men on subscriptions and due to the fact that I'm always broke and can't afford to buy newspapers or home-town subscriptions, I thought I'd take advantage of it and ask you to put me on your mailing list. My address is: Pvt. William B. Mitchell, US56122935, Co. B, 2nd Bn., MPSS, BAMC, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

I will only be here for another 13 weeks, learning how to be a Medical Laboratory Technician, and then I will probably be shipped overseas — Europe — I hope.

We are learning a complete laboratory technique here at the school, and the last four weeks we are on our own at the hospital. After that we are expected to be able to do just about everything, so we have a lot to learn.

The heat down here is the almost unbearable thing I know of, although I suppose you've heard a lot about it from Parker.

Well, I'll be much obliged if you'll send me the home town paper, so I can keep up with the happenings.

So long — Bill Mitchell.

Home From California Trip

Leonard Eldridge returned Sunday from a wonderful week's vacation to San Francisco which he earned by securing 60 new subscribers to the Spokesman-Review.

Leonard says the high spots in his trip were the visit to Chinatown, a ride on the famous cable cars, a cruise in San Francisco Bay, and a tour of the famous Fleischaker zoo and adjoining amusement park.

He had several exciting experiences, one of which was in Chinatown. There he discovered lots of fireworks on display, only to learn it was illegal to buy. However, some of the boys did smuggle some out. One boy put a jar over a big firecracker and when it exploded, flying glass hit him in the face, injuring his eyes. The police came, raided the place and searched everyone. Leonard admits this was not only exciting, but a little terrifying. The big city was wonderful to see and the trip most enjoyable.

And What About The Weather?

"What is the weatherman going to do?" is the question that is on every farmer's lips in this area these days, as shower after shower prevents the proper working and handling of ground and crops.

Here in the canyon bottom some hay has been cut — and some were lucky enough to get it baled and under a roof before the rains, or perhaps we should say "showers" of Saturday night and Sunday struck.

On top the hills there are hundreds of acres of alfalfa and other hay crops ready and past ready to cut, but which are still standing, as the owners prefer an over-ripe hay to a bleached, discolored and possibly worthless crop.

Bean raisers, too, are "sitting on the anxious seat" for some say they must re-seed, the chill spring having seen their seed rot in the ground or fields taken over by wild oats, which thrive on this type of weather. Others who got a good stand of beans have been kept from the fields by the excess moisture, and so have been unable to properly cultivate their crop. And fowl ground, with lots of wild oats is far from the best situation when you are growing the "fruit of the Potlatch."

To make a long story short — all local farmers are hoping for warm weather and sunny skies.

Taking Lots Of "Kidding"

Walter Bigham, who with his family, from Cupertino, Calif., is visiting in the Ernest Andrews home, has been having lots of fun telling his old hunting pals here about fish and game in California — and taking a lot of good-natured ribbing about the size of the California deer. But when the talk turns to fishing, Walt doesn't have to take a back seat — for fishes in the ocean as well as in the California streams.

You Can Attend College!

U. of I. — Action taken by the founders of the University of Idaho in 1889, which provided that no resident of the state should ever be charged tuition, will receive attention in a forthcoming issue of Pageant magazine, it has been learned.

The magazine will feature an article entitled: "Twelve Ways to Get to College — Without a Bankroll." Way No. 1 is to:

"Check your own state-supported university. If you live in Alabama, Arizona, California, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Mississippi, Montana, Oklahoma, Missouri, Indiana or Wisconsin, you'll find your state institution charges no tuition at all."

The article further points out that this fall more than 2,225,000 young men and women will enter college, but that from a third to half again that many — who should be joining them — will search for jobs instead, because they haven't, or think they haven't, the means to go. The article also places particular emphasis on the possibilities of scholarships and loans available to students. Last year in "Compact" magazine the University of Idaho was listed among the 20 top universities and colleges considered "budget-wise."

Too Hard
A famous psychiatrist was visiting Bermuda and a prominent official happened to meet him. The official asked him:
"Doctor, how do you really tell if a person is insane?"
"Oh, we merely ask him a few questions which ordinary people can answer correctly."

"What type of questions?"
"Well, replied the psychiatrist, 'this sort of thing. Capt. Cook made three voyages around the world and died on one of them. Which was it?'"
"Oh, I say," objected the official. "I think that's a bit steep. I'm not very good at history."

Small Town Utility Serves Farm Folks Gas Made Available To Farms for First Time

The farm folks within 20 miles of Antigo, Wis., have gone in for gas in a big way. This new interest of farm folks in heating and cooking with gas started over a year ago with the reorganization of Antigo's City Gas company.
The Antigo utility which manufactured gas from oil, coke and steam converted its plant to "propane-air" gas and offered service to farm homes and rural firms within a radius of 20 miles.

Mrs. Dale Madison, a rural homemaker, has converted her kitchen to gas, and reports it gives her more freedom from kitchen duties.

The new rural customers have their own "backyard utility" in the form of storage tanks for large users and "bottled" installations for homes with smaller consumption.

Because they are a part of the Antigo utility system, country customers receive monthly fuel bill just like the town. Fuel consumption is recorded on a meter attached to their cylinders or tanks. Bad weather can't interrupt service, since a sufficient supply is stored on the premises in advance of use. Empty cylinders are periodically replaced by company service men.

Since the reorganization, rates have been reduced for town and farm users three times.

Contour Farming Cuts Soil Losses in Half

Iowa agronomists report that contour farming cuts soil losses in half, boosts corn yields as much as 7.4 bushels per acre and ups soybean production by 2.7 bushels.

Other advantages from contour farming include lower fuel and operating costs for tractors and other machinery and an increase in the length of corn rows.

The need for more contour cultivation will increase with the steadily expanding acreage of row crops to meet the nation's food needs.

While contouring is a vital step in keeping soil at home, other soil building measures are needed to keep farm land at high yielding levels. Every crop burns up organic matter and uses up plant nutrients. The organic matter can be replenished by growing well-fertilized deep-rooted legumes regularly in the rotation and by returning manure and crop residues to the soil.

Safety Plug

A new safety plug has been developed that should be of interest to most farmers. It has a tiny replaceable fuse. Electrical cords are connected to the plug exactly as they are connected to the wall socket itself. The fuse blows out should a short circuit develop in any connected cord. This prevents current from reaching the danger point, instantly cutting off the source of fire.

Nebraska Farmers Paid High Cost for Corn Crop

Nebraska farmers paid with two lives, 194 fingers, 18 hands, 10 arms, one leg, four toes and two feet in gathering approximately 225 million bushels of corn. That is last year's accident record. Failure to stop the cornpicker before trying to remove the stoppage of the machine accounted for almost every accident. Farmers should discuss safety problems with their harvest crews.

Synthetic Sow's Milk Is Used Successfully 3,000 Piglets Raised On Experiment Formula

The development of a synthetic sow's milk, made possible by the wonder drug terramycin was announced recently by Herbert G. Luther, research scientist associated with the Pfizer & Co., laboratories of Brooklyn, N.Y.

The formula, called Terralac, was tried on 500 piglets at the company's laboratories. In addition, 3,000 piglets have been raised successfully without sows on several large pig farms which cooperated in the testing of Terralac.

Luther contends the formula may revolutionize the swine-raising industry. In the first place, his experiment reduced infant pig mortality to an astonishing 5 per cent, as contrasted with the national average of 21 to 33 per cent. It also largely solves the problem of the runt, long a bane to hog-raisers, by making growth-stimulating terramycin and milk equally available to all pigs in the litter.

Luther emphasized that good pig farm management is essential for the successful use of Terralac. Constant temperature must be maintained, either via the use of heat lamps or by blowing warm air. And it must be prepared properly and fed at regular intervals.

Average U.S. Farm Bigger As Number Falls

The Bureau of the Census reports a decided trend toward fewer but bigger and better equipped farms between 1940 and 1950.

The number decreased by 713,000 in the decade, the bureau reports, but the average size unit grew from 174 acres in 1940 to 210.5 acres in 1950. There were 5,384,000 farms in 1950, against 6,097,000 in 1940.

The sharpest decrease came in the five years between 1945 and 1950, when the number of farms dropped by 475,000.

Other statistics in the report included: About 870,000 fewer persons were working on U.S. farms in 1950 than in 1940.

Less than one-third as many horses and mules were on farms in 1950 as in 1920.
In 1950 there were 59,764,000 cattle and calves more than 3 months old on farms as compared to 60,674,736 in April, 1940.

The number of chickens on farms was 2,500,000, or 0.7 per cent more than in 1940.

Plenty of Pull

One of the newest aids to farmers is the power curve tire developed by B. F. Goodrich engineers to provide maximum traction and prevent bogging down of heavy tractors and combines in the sticky mud or sandy soil of rice fields. The tire is reported to be the first suitable for use in all types of soil used for growing rice.

Veterinary Group Sets Up New Defense Committees

A nation-wide network of defense emergency committees has been set up by the veterinary medical profession to help safeguard this country's livestock health and food production in case of war, the AVMA reports. The committees will assist on defense measures in case of biological warfare, atomic warfare, atomic blasts, or other wartime emergencies concerned with the nation's animal population.

Duke Psychologist Offers Tips on Cigarette Control

Do you have trouble leading a sane cigarette life?

If so, here's a common sense recipe by Dr. Gelolo McHugh, Duke University psychologist, that may help you "use cigarettes instead of being used by them."

"People who have to have cigarettes need psychological help, not scare tactics such as threats of stomach ulcers or lung cancer," Dr. McHugh says. "Swearing off entirely is dangerous, because if you fail once, the next try will be that much harder. Limiting your cigarettes to eight or 10 a day is also risky, because it keeps the thought of smoking uppermost in your mind."

Here are Dr. McHugh's suggestions for cutting down:

1. Set aside an hour or two at the beginning of each day and don't smoke during that period no matter how much you want to. After that, smoke as much as you like for the rest of the day.
2. Don't make your daily no-smoking period longer than you can safely control. Over-ambition sometimes leads to failure.
3. Tell your friends what you're doing. Their interest will help you keep control over your no-smoking period.

"After following this plan for several weeks, smokers often find that their cigarette control is growing stronger," Dr. McHugh said. "Experiments show that smokers who set aside a no-smoking period do not have a tendency to smoke more than usual during the rest of the day to make up for lost time."

"Most important of all, after two or three weeks of controlling part of the day, the smoker begins to find himself smoking a little less during the free period. This means that he is on the way to mastering cigarettes instead of being mastered by them."

Dr. McHugh's suggestions are based on data collected over a period of five years' and covering some 600 people.

Chubb Crater 1,325 Ft. Deep, Largest Meteorite Crater

A new champion's official measurements have been announced by the National Geographic Society.

The champion is Chubb Crater, established as the largest of all known meteorite craters in the world as the result of four weeks' research carried on last summer at the crater site in northern Quebec by Dr. Victor Ben Meen, Toronto geologist, and five scientist-associates.

The huge pockmark in the sub-arctic granite has a maximum depth of 1,325 feet, figured from the level of the highest point on its rim. The surface of the lake in the crater bowl is 500 feet below the rim's top level, and the maximum depth of the lake is 825 feet. Diameter of the rim averages 11,500 feet, and its circumference is 6.8 miles.

The depth is thus a few feet less and the rim diameter a few hundred feet more than indicated by preliminary figures dispatched from northern Quebec last August at the time field work was completed. Both dimensions, however, are more than twice the corresponding ones of Arizona's Meteor Crater, long officially recognized as the earth's largest scar known to be due to an earth-meteor collision.

The crater lake averages 9,100 feet in diameter. Its shoreline measures 5.4 miles around.

Dr. Meen, director of Toronto's Royal Ontario Museum of Geology, and Mineralogy, led an expedition to the crater site. With magnetometers, they defined a "magnetic anomaly"—a subsurface mass of iron outlined by its effect on the earth's magnetic force. Such an anomaly is attributed by scientists to meteorite fragments buried deep in the granite rim.

Kinds of Mines

Coal mines are of four kinds, three of them underground. If the mass of coal can be reached horizontally, say from the side of a hill on a level grade straight to the heart of the coal, it is called a Drift Mine. If you have to reach the coal at a perceptible angle, down or up, you have a Slope Mine. To get inside either of these mines, tunnels are made into the sides of the hills. The miners may go to the working areas by "man-trip" cars, which are trains of mine cars pulled by especially designed mine locomotives. If you must ride a cage (mining term for elevator) to reach the coal seam, you are in a Shaft Mine. If the coal lies near the surface of the earth and you can rip it out by huge electrically operated shovels and bulldozers, you have an Open Cut or Surface (sometimes called "Strip") Mine.

Indian Legend

Hiawatha, who is believed by many persons to have been a purely legendary character, really lived about 1450 A.D. The mighty Iroquois chieftain of the Onondago tribe of North American Indians was transformed by legend into a miraculous character with supernatural powers. About 400 years after his death, he was immortalized by Longfellow in "The Song of Hiawatha", an epic poem written after the style of the great Finnish Kalevala.

Adrenal Gland Plays Role When One Suffers Injuries

Another step forward in better understanding the important role played by the adrenal gland in helping the body recover from injuries has been achieved, a University of Michigan doctor states.

Dr. Jerome W. Conn, an associate professor of internal medicine, reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science on research he has been conducting at the university.

His study has shown that the adrenal gland calls upon a substance in the blood known as cholesterol to help in producing the huge amounts of adrenal hormones needed in prolonged periods of stress which the body undergoes at the time of an injury.

Cholesterol, produced largely by the liver, is the basic compound of adrenal hormones, including cortisone, the hormone found to be beneficial in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, Dr. Conn says.

In his experiments, Dr. Conn found the cholesterol content of the adrenal gland could be reduced 75 per cent within three hours by artificial stimulation which produced conditions similar to those created within the body during periods of prolonged stress.

This artificial stimulation was achieved through use of ACTH, the pituitary gland hormone which causes the adrenal gland to produce its hormones.

The effect of this prolonged stimulation of the adrenal gland has important implications for future study of several diseases, including those of the heart, liver and kidney as well as hardening of the arteries, according to Dr. Conn. These diseases are all associated with an unusual production or use of cholesterol.

Wool Scarce; Give Blankets Extra Care for Longer Life

Treat your wool blankets with the gentle care that precious possessions deserve. Textile scientists of the U.S. department of agriculture have pointed out that U.S. production of wool this year is one of the lowest on record.

Frequent airing of blankets in use not only is good sanitary practice but helps them last longer and hold their fluffy warmth and comfort. When a blanket is thrown back loosely so fresh air reaches both sides, the wool has a chance to get back its natural springiness which makes for warmth. But care should be taken not to throw a blanket over anything sharp, such as a peaked bedpost, which may pierce or pull it, or on anything that may stain it. Loose bed springs, sharp metal corners or even roughened wood may also catch and tear blankets or other bedding.

For best service and comfort blankets should be large enough to come up well over shoulders and still tuck firmly in the bottom of the bed. Short blankets often wear out early because they take so much pulling and strain.

A blanket stays clean longer if the bed is made so that the sheet turns back over the top of the blanket 8 to 12 inches. If the sheet is too short, a strip of cloth, basted over the top or the full length of the blanket, is good protection against soiling the wool. A covering over the blanket, or even a third sheet used on top, gives added warmth because it holds still air in the fluffy wool.

For Pig Protection

A pair of clean rubber boots is worth more than any medicine in protecting pigs from a fatal intestinal disease called transmissible gastroenteritis. Best means of controlling it is to move healthy pigs as far away as possible from the sick ones. Many farmers do this, a veterinary medical bulletin points out, but they overlook the fact that their shoes can spread the infection. Attendants who have walked through infected hog quarters should put on a pair of clean boots before entering healthy quarters, the bulletin cautions. The disease, believed to be caused by a virus, is marked by severe diarrhea, vomiting, and rapid loss of weight. Young pigs are hit hardest, with death losses sometimes running as high as 90 per cent.

Finishes Pre-Tested

The term "industrial-finishes" is applied to the finishes used by manufacturers to enhance their products. Before being applied, they are subjected to many special tests based upon the kind of usage to which the article may be subjected. For example, in addition to tests for adhesion, and hardness, finishes for refrigerators, stoves and kitchen cabinets are tested for their resistance to various foods, such as lemon juice, butter, lard and vinegar—as well as to various cleaning materials.

Wooden, Aluminum, Ladders

The rung of a wooden ladder will bend downward about one-sixth of an inch for a 150-pound person stepping on its center. An aluminum ladder is constructed so that the deflection is much less. If it were built like the wooden ladder, the deflection of the aluminum rung would be about a ninth as much as for the wooden rung under similar conditions. This is because aluminum is nine times as rigid as wood (white oak).

Man-Made Light Moves Ahead By New Inventions

There is nothing to show that our anthropoid ancestors used candles to find their way around among the trees after dark, but there is ample evidence that the hairy cave man used fire to scare away prowling beasts.

Man-made illumination has come a long way since those remote days. By far the greatest strides have come in the past 75 years—greater progress than through all the thousands of years before. From the cave man's torch to electric light, the flame was the only source of illumination.

Within recent weeks, a new source of artificial light has been announced wherein electricity appears to serve merely as a match to light a wick. Powdered phosphor on a sheet of glass emits a mellow glow of its own under electric impulse. Your house of tomorrow may have these panels installed in walls and ceilings. It is claimed the cost of maintenance will be so low that the only need for switches will be to turn lights off when you want darkness. Clockfaces, stair risers and other incidentals will be permanently connected.

With this revolutionary development in man-made light comes wonder as to how it all started. Archaeologists have concluded among the earliest to whom the cave man gassed his flaming torch were the ancient dwellers of Mesopotamia where lamps, fashioned from terra cotta, were found to have been used during 7000-8000 B.C. Copper and bronze lamps were used by the Persians and Egyptians in 2700 B.C. Homer described a "Festival of Lamps" in 950 B.C. The Romans were using lanterns a century before Christ.

The candlesticks of Biblical times and the lamps of the vestal virgins used animal and vegetable oils. Pliny mentioned the use of a mineral oil for lamps in 50 A.D. The Phoenicians appear to have been the first to use wax for candles in 400 A.D.

Atom Disaster Would Demand Many Trained 'Mass Feeders'

"In case of enemy attack or atom bombing, the disaster would demand more trained persons for mass feeding than we can hope to have today," two Red Cross workers who conducted an emergency feeding program during the flood disaster in Kansas City last July, warn in an issue of the Journal of Home Economics.

"Disaster feeding at best is a Hodgepodge affair because there are never enough experienced people and survivors to do an ideal job," Jane Griswold, assistant national director of the American Red Cross Food and Nutrition Service, and Kathleen Kienstra, director of the Midwestern Area division of that service, explain in an article pointing out that experience in the flood disaster indicates what the situation would be in event of enemy attack. While urging the home economists to be ready with their professional help, the authors pay great tribute to the work of the community organizations who carried out the feeding program during the Kansas flood.

"It is encouraging to see the common purpose that draws people together when disaster comes to a community. The simple, basic, practical things that people can do for each other helps to ease the impact of catastrophe and turn the mind from despair," the authors conclude in the article, "Red Cross Fights Flood Disaster."

Treating Addicts

Law enforcement, education of the public and treatment of the individual are the three most important factors in combating the alarmingly increasing dope addiction among teen-agers, according to an article in Today's Health, published by the American Medical Association. "Regardless of where the upsurge of addiction started, it has jumped racial, economic and social boundaries," said the author of the article, Dr. Victor H. Vogel, medical officer in charge of the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital at Lexington, Ky. The hospital is one of the two federally operated for the treatment of drug addicts. Dr. Vogel reported that admissions at the two federal hospitals for drug addicts rose from 2,700 in 1949 to 4,500 in 1950, with an estimated rate of 4,200 in 1951. "An alarming part of this increase was due to the admission of addicts under 21, which jumped from 22 in 1947 to 440 in 1950—an increase of 2,000 per cent," Dr. Vogel stressed.

Early Inventors

Among the early American inventors who founded great industries, few struggled against adversity more desperately than Gail Borden (1801-1875), who was the first to obtain a patent (August 19, 1856) on a process for condensing milk. His first invention was a meat biscuit for which he was granted a prize at the International Exposition of London in 1851. Returning from London he was anguished by the death of infants on the ship who had been fed milk from sick cows. As a result of this experience, he spent years of experimentation to invent a process that would preserve milk under white conditions.

Shorthorn Breeders Conduct Experiment

102 Bulls Put Through First U. S. Program

Shorthorn breeders recently put 102 bulls through an obstacle course in the Nebraska range country with a view to toughening them up for a unique show and sale held at Broken Bow, Nebr., last month. Converting farm bulls from mid-western herds to rugged range bulls for service in large commercial herds of the west, the program was called the Range Bull project. The bulls were judged in groups of two and three, in the manner of "Camp Showings" in Argentina; and then sold to western cattlemen who wanted them for regular herd sires or for cross-breeding programs. It was the first such program in the United States.

The drove of Shorthorn bulls above were part of the Broken Bow experiment to toughen up 102 animals to be used in cross-breeding programs in large commercial herds. The project was sponsored by the American Shorthorn Breeders Association.

The animals were consigned by 48 breeders in the middle west and east and were turned out to range on July 1.

Gasoline on the Farm Is 'Liquid Dynamite'

Gasoline on a farm is "liquid dynamite" and must be handled with extreme care to prevent explosions and fires. It is estimated that annual farm losses from gasoline fires amount to more than $7,000,000.

Here are eight safety rules the farmer should follow:

1. Gasoline should be stored in steel drums in underground tanks at least 75 feet from any building.
2. Gasoline or kerosene should never be left in open containers in any building.
3. Gasoline or kerosene should never be handled in the presence of an open flame or other source of possible ignition.
4. In pouring gasoline, make sure the pouring and receiving receptacles are grounded, to avoid static sparks.
5. Never use gasoline, benzene, or other flammable material for dry cleaning.
6. Never use gasoline or kerosene to start a fire in a stove or elsewhere.
7. Make sure cans or tanks used in storage of gasoline or kerosene are painted red, marked plainly and in large letters.
8. Never forget that gasoline or related petroleum products are the most potentially dangerous things you have on your farm.

Observance of these rules will cut down farm fire losses.

Rat Control

The farmer who has 20 rats on his farm is feeding them at a cost of $40 a year. In other words, it costs farmers $2 a year to keep one rat. Three rats eat and destroy as much feed as two laying hens require in a year's time. This is sufficient reason for every farmer to execute a rat-killing and control program.

Poultrymen Are Advised To House Best Pullets

House only the best pullets that probably will produce well for the entire laying year, poultry experts advise. Those chickens that are under-developed, or generally unthrifty looking, will seldom produce well and should be marketed. And when housing pullets, it is generally wise to keep together those of the same age and stage of development. Smaller birds have a better chance this way.

Chile Produces Some Of World's Best Wool

Three-Fourths of Crop Is Shipped to U. S.

The small American farmer has learned from experience just how profitable a small flock of sheep can be to his general farm program. And in the western part of the country great flocks are maintained by producers.

One of the greatest producers of wool, now selling at a record price, is Chile. The industry is valued at $170,000,000 and employs more than 10,000 people.

Chile's first sheep were brought from Spain by the Spanish conqueror Pedro de Valdivia over 400 years ago. In 1877, 300 head were brought to the Punta Arenas area from the Falkland Islands.

The huge English Marsh Romney will produce 12 kilos of long staple wool, or 30 pounds. This type wool is often called the best in the world.

The industry specializes in the famous English Marsh Romney sheep which produces, according to many experts, the finest long staple wool in the world. Today, Chile has a total sheep population close to 7,000,000 head.

Three quarters of the nation's wool crop — about 15,000 metric tons — goes to the United States. England gets the remainder.

Farm Worker Crop Output Triples in Fifty Years

Fifty years ago a farm worker produced enough food for himself and five other persons. Today the crops raised by a single worker are sufficient for 15 persons.

Although machinery has had much to do with this spectacular productivity record, a major factor is the expanded use of fertilizers. The nation's farms last year consumed 18,346,132 tons of soil food—six times as much as in 1901—at a cost of $744,000,000.

At the turn of the century 265 million acres of crop land, tilled by 13 million farm workers, were needed to supply the crops required by a population of 76 million. Now 10 million workers produce from 345 million acres of land the food required by twice as many Americans, as well as thousands of persons in other countries.

Agricultural authorities say that the use of fertilizer is responsible for roughly one-fourth of the volume of all crops.

The use of fertilizer is expected to continue upward for an indefinite period.

Seed Beds

It is a long time from planting seed beds, but gardeners and farmers might spend some of their spare time during the winter months making one. Seed beds with plastic covers are hailproof, shatter-proof and light in weight. A plastic-coated wire mesh, weighing less than glass, passes on to the plants most of the sun's ultraviolet and infrared rays. This material is available at most farm equipment dealers and hardware stores.

Poultry and Egg Eating Increases, Experts Say

Poultry experts report the American family is consuming more poultry and eggs and predicts the increase will continue during the rest of 1951. Forecasts indicate the average American will have eaten 30 pounds of chicken by the end of 1951, 10 per cent more than last year; 406 eggs, slightly more than in 1950; and about five pounds of turkey meat, approximately the same as last year.

Posts Found On Farm Woodland

A large number of excellent, cheap fence posts are being lost on Latah county farms each year, according to E. L. Williams, Latah county farm forester. The posts which are being lost are in trees which have gone down due to snow damage, insect attack, and normal competition.

There is an unusually good supply of these posts in the farm woodlands at the present time. This is due to the extensive snow damage to pole-size stands of trees in the past four years. Right now these pole-size trees are losing their bark, so all are "barked" and ready for bucking and treating after being skidded from the woods.

The farmer can plan to use all species of downed trees in his woodland. The pines are sure to take the treatment in good shape. The others should be checked closely for consumption. About one pint per post consumption is the recommended standard. If the posts fail to take up the desired amount of chemical, then it will be necessary to perforate their surfaces near the ground line. This can be done with an axe or some other personally designed tool. The treatment recommended for these posts is the "Penta-Treat." Penta is a chemical which is 30 times more toxic than creosote and does not need to be heated to get a satisfactory treatment of the wood.

The University of Idaho extension service has put on an excellent bulletin on treating of wood with "Penta," which is available at the county agent's office. Get that fresh fish at Blawett's Cash Grocery every Thursday. Delicious, nutritious. 1-adv.

This is the first time in our life that we ever assumed the title of "Editor," but we're going to try to tell you something about the wonderful Union Oil Company products and the U. S. Royal Tires that we handle — as well as throwing in some items on the lighter side of life — and we sincerely hope that our efforts will please you — and you'll find the time spent reading "The Bulltin" worth while.

Clerk: "Not at all, ma'am. It's an educational toy, especially designed to adjust a child to become an expert government employee. Any way he puts it together, it's wrong."

Yes, you bet, when we wash your car we also vacuum the inside, including floor carpets. Try this personalized service.

A "young" woman was greatly enjoying the attention of her dinner parter, a handsome Westerner. "But how old do you think I am," she asked coyly.

Come in and talk over your lubrication problems. You'll find we have a Union Lubricant to fit any specialized need. Try Royal Triton for the finest in motor oils.

Father to small son: "Never mind how I met your mother! Just don't go around whistling!"
