Rains Delay Harvesting
Rains which may be classed as true "soakers" have very effectively put a stop to harvesting and logging operations in this area. A little digging shows the moisture to have penetrated from five to six inches into the ground — and Potlatch creek, for the first time in many months, is running a deep coffee color.
Those familiar with the situation say that a week to ten days of warm, dry weather will be needed before harvesting work can be resumed. Considerable damage is said to have been done the pea crop; some to the bean crop, and but little, if any, to standing wheat and barley.

DOROTHY J. PARKER IS BRIDE ON DONALD R. JOHNS

At the Lewiston First Christian Church, Aug. 14, Miss Dorothy J. Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Parker, Clarkston Heights, became the bride of Donald R. Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johns, Kendrick. The Rev. Melford Knight of Genesee officiated at the double ring ceremony at 1:00 p. m.

The rostrum of the sanctuary was decorated with baskets of yellow and white gladioli and lighted candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a beige knit suit, with which she wore matching shoes and a white velvet brocade hat. She carried a white Bible on which rested a white orchid corsage.

The maid of honor, Miss Joanna Jeffreys, wore a soft blue knit suit, matching shoes, and a tangerine hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of painted daisies.

Mr. Craig had driven down the highway some two or three miles to deliver an order of blueberries, and on his return home, as he left the highway, he evidently miscalculated the distance and speed of the approaching tanker, and before he could complete the turn in front of the oncoming truck, his car was hit, the tanker's engine was said to be resting almost directly on top of the engine of the Craig car — mashing it into a "total loss."

Mr. Craig suffered severe facial cuts, bruises, lacerations, and several broken ribs.

Canning Committee
The Southwick school canning committee would appreciate it if everyone in this area having children in the Southwick school, and all others interested, would add a quart or more of fruit, jelly, jam or pickles to their regular canning projects — for the school. This would eliminate a lot of work at the school lunch room, which isn't very adequate — and also help those usually doing the work. So far the lunch program will not allow the use of canned vegetables, but anyone having an excess may contact Helen Cowger, and if needed, a method of preservation will be found. In the fall we will have a school shower, and those having the products may then deliver or send them to the school.

Standard's Pacific Northwest refineries help pave the way for better roads

Washington, Oregon and Idaho are now midway in a billion-dollar highway program to bring you safer, smoother, speedier transportation. Long before this construction began, Standard built refineries in this region, specializing in asphalt production. Today these refineries turn out new and constantly improved products for stronger, longer-lasting roads, weather-resistant roofing; products used by the Pacific Northwest paper industry; and many other materials that mean better living for you.

... and we've been first in pioneering better care car for you since 1907. Besides providing the West's favorite service, we've steadily introduced advanced new products. One of the latest is "RPM 10-30 Special," the motor oil that can save up to 1/4 gallon of gas in every 5.

It increases power, reduces ping, gives you faster starts. Standard Stations or independent Chevron Stations will be glad to change your car to "RPM 10-30 Special" today.

Fertilizing Important In Balanced Farm Plan Lime, Fertilizer Pays Off in High Hay Yield

Farmers in every part of the nation are realizing more and more the importance of well-balanced fertilizing programs to build production and soil structure.

Ben Vossen, who farms near Watkins, Minn., believes his investments in lime and fertilizer have done more for his farm than anything in his career.

The results of one of his investments are shown in the above picture. At the right is a run-down field of bluegrass overgrown with buck grass. At the left is a field of oats after the buck grass was sprayed to kill it, grubbed and plowed under.

Farmer Vossen inspects his field of oats. At the right is the field of bluegrass overgrown with buck grass. Fertilizing has turned the oat field into a high producer.

Vossen limed and fertilized the oat field with plant food carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash before he seeded it. He keeps the field in oats two years, then seeds down to an alfalfa crop. He takes hay and pasture off as long as the stand is productive. He helps lengthen its life by top-dressing regularly with manure.

The use of lime and fertilizer pays off in much bigger hay yields. Vossen reports. He harvested eight tons of hay on two acres that used to produce about one-half ton of timothy.

Total Feed Supply Will Be Higher Than Last Year

With the approach of the 1951-52 feeding season, livestock feeders will be interested to know that the expected total supply of feed grains and concentrates will be greater than last year, according to the bureau of agricultural economics.

The available supply of feed will permit livestock to be fed at about the same rate per unit as last season. The number of animals to be fed, however, is also expected to be greater. An estimated 174 million animals will be on hand as compared with last year's 168-million.

A large acreage and a fair carry-over is expected to provide a larger corn supply. About 4 billion bushels is expected to be available for the 1951-52 season.

The total supply of corn, oats, grain sorghums, and barley for the coming season is estimated to be 127.1 million tons. This compares with last season's total of 125 million tons of grain.

The department reported total crop production may be the second highest in history in 1951.

Tractor Drawbar

A heavy piece of angle iron bolted to the rear of a tractor and extending well beyond the wheels makes harrowing easier fastening the harrow with a long chain hitch, especially when making turns at ends of the field. Bolted to the drawbar it can be removed when not in use.

Iowa Tests Show Value Of Alfalfa for Swine

Everyone knows that alfalfa pasture is good for hogs. But just how good? The Iowa experiment station thought that one way to find out would be to feed one batch of hogs on dry lot; and another on alfalfa.

They found that the biggest value in alfalfa comes from a saving in high-cost protein and mineral supplement. Hogs gained faster on alfalfa.

American Inventions Make For Better Living Standard

During the period prior to World War II, when Adolph Hitler was building up an arsenal of weapons with which he hoped to conquer the world, a nuclear physicist at the University of Berlin had an idea for a death-ray gun.

The only thing wrong with the idea was that the inventor intended to use the death rays to kill microorganisms that spoil food. Hitler wasn't interested.

America thrives on inventions that promote health and make for better living. It provides a Patent System as an incentive for such inventions. Dr. Arno Brasch, the nuclear physicist with the death-ray idea, and his associate, Dr. Wolfgang Huber, left Berlin for New York 12 years ago.

Food is an important item of trade, here, and financial interests backed the two physicists in developing their electronic gun to the extent of a half-million dollars. They rented an icehouse on Long Island and scrounged the area for hard-to-get parts required for their electrical apparatus. The pilot model, resembling somewhat the steel skeleton of a skyscraper, began to tower toward the third-story ceiling. Near this was a cylindrical structure, tapering in sections to the top.

Out of this combination of transformers, insulators, and giant electronic tubes there protruded something similar to the muzzle of a gun, aimed straight down to hit the target directly underneath. A 220-volt house current was thus stepped up to shoot 3,000,000 volts.

It was five years ago that this amazing gun began its operation of shooting electron bullets into specimens of food.

Poison Deaths of Children Caused by Careless Parents

Parental carelessness plays a big part in the more than 600 deaths of children each year due to the accidental swallowing of poison, according to Dr. Jay M. Arena of Durham, N. C.

Dr. Arena is associate professor in the department of pediatrics, Duke University School of Medicine and Duke Hospital.

"Children who survive the ingestion of poison may be left with permanent disabilities," he added.

"Poisons contained in household agents are responsible for most of the deaths and disabilities. If all drugs and household agents that contain poison were made inaccessible to children, such poisonings could be almost entirely prevented."

Lye, he explained, is one of the most common causes of poisoning in childhood. During the first 18 years of the Duke Hospital, more than 136 children were treated for stricture of the esophagus caused by swallowing lye. Many of these cases were due to sodium hydroxide in washing powders, drainpipe cleaners or certain paint removers.

Among other causes of childhood poisonings listed by Dr. Arena are the following: strong acid, kerosene, iodine, strychnine, phenolphthalein, barbiturate, salicylate, aniline dye, lead, and mercury.

Farm Land Boom

Farm land prices on an over-all basis may have experienced a record rise over the last decade, but the increases varied widely as between one section of the country and another, according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The boom was led by eight states, headed by Kentucky, which enjoyed increases of more than 200 per cent between the 1935-39 average of dollar farm land valuations and July of this year. More than half these states are in the South.

Thirteen others, mostly in the South and Middle West, showed rises of between 150 and 200 per cent, and fourteen more between 100 and 150 per cent. The remaining thirteen showed gains of less than 100 per cent.

High Hat

The expression "to high hat" or be snobbish toward one of lower rank probably goes back before the days when the top hat became a symbol of wealth and social position. The rank of a Spanish lady in the latter days of the Roman Empire could almost be measured by the height of her head covering. The more important the lady, the higher her turban towered above her head.

Sea Food

The ocean contains enormous quantities of small plants and animals, many of them microscopic in size, which cannot swim but float with the tides and currents. These are called "plankton" and they form the principal food of various whales, as well as sharks and many other kinds of fishes. The animal plankton is said to have a nutritive value equal to the best meat, since they consist largely of protein, while the plant plankton equal rye flour. The main difficulty seems to be in harvesting. A biologist who studied the matter has said that to meet the normal food energy requirements of one person would require the animal plankton each day from a volume of ocean water equal to an area the size of a football field, and about five feet deep.

How to Make Home Piano Appear Less Conspicuous

How to make your piano as decorative as it is musical is often a problem in home decorations, points out Mrs. Kate C. Archer, extension specialist in home furnishings, Kansas State college, Manhattan. With the introduction of the new spinet-type pianos much better arrangements are possible, as well as novel ways of placing the old upright models.

"If your upright piano has a beautiful finish and a nice grace of line it is most pleasing with no decorative articles on it," says Mrs. Archer. "If any articles are placed on top of it, they should be low ones. The horizontal picture is best above a piano."

"However, if your upright is quite undistinguished you might consider painting it the same hue as walls, or picking up the background color of the wallpaper. Pianos can be used as space dividers between living and dining rooms or may be placed in an alcove in a bedroom."

Sometimes it is satisfactory to build in a space that fits the piano with wall space on either side given over to radio or record player or book cases. Such a musical group, with chairs placed for easy listening, is a nice solution.

A piano always appears larger when it is against a narrow wall space, particularly between two doors or two windows; when the end is close to an entrance; when it is against the best-lighted or most prominent wall when it is across, or when it stands alone against a long wall without other furniture near it.

'Big Top' Grows Bigger, Circuses Become Scarcer

Are new dangers looming for the high wire walkers of the circus, the daring bareback riders, and death-defying trapeze artists? Yes, say the "big top's" friends, but not in the form of the ever-present risks to individual performers. The fear is that a slow process of attrition may be menacing the circus itself.

A half dozen circuses have closed during the current season. Only 10 are left of the scores which once flourished in the U.S.

America's spangled show of feats and freaks, of wild animals and wistful clowns, has had many ups and downs since it first took to railway wheels more than three quarters of a century ago. Today the paradox of the "Greatest Show on Earth" is that, while numbers dwindle and costs mount, the remaining outfits grow bigger and more spectacular.

Last year the largest of the rolling shows travelled some 19,000 miles, used 32 railroads, and gave 415 performances before nearly 3,500,000 people. It carried motorized caravans of set-up seats, and spread the world's biggest piece of canvas—30,000 square yards of it—in a tent that can now be raised by mechanical stake drivers and tractor power.

Early Railroads

The earliest railroads in the United States were built of wooden rails capped with thin strips, or "straps," of iron to provide a running surface for the wheels. These were called "straprails." Iron rails 10 feet in length were imported from England as early as 1831. The first iron rails of American design were rolled in the United States in 1844. By 1850 most railroads were being built of iron rails. The first Bessemer steel rails manufactured in the United States were rolled at the North Chicago Rolling Mills on May 25, 1865, and by 1880 about 30 per cent of all tracks in the United States were laid with steel rails. At the end of another ten years, 80 per cent of the country's mileage was equipped with steel rails, and by the late 1890's steel had almost completely replaced iron.

It's in the Finish

Simulated pearls are no longer thought of as imitations, but as fashion accessories, acceptable in themselves. The impression of depth and softness in a pearl is the result of light reflections from a multitude of paints within the pearly film, making it impossible to focus on any single layer. In simulated pearls, this effect is conveyed by layers of crystals incorporated in the finish which is applied to plastic and glass beads. The crystals used are guanine or pearl essence crystals. They are obtained from fish scales and are only 40 millionths of an inch in thickness.

Gregorian Calendar

In 1582, Pope Gregory VIII ordained a simple reform. Astronomers showed him that the sun-year is some 11 minutes less than 365 1/4 days. In the course of a dozen Julian centuries, spring's first day had moved forward from March 21 to March 11.

To correct this, Gregory directed that October 4, 1582, be followed by October 15, and that leap-year days be omitted in the last year of each century except years divisible by 400 (as 1600). His reform reduced the annual error to 26 seconds, which will add up to one day by about 4900 A.D.

National Foundation Need Grave

In a letter to the Gazette under date of July 28, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis says in part:

"Often the news behind the headlines is overlooked. This is the story of services supplied to individuals and all communities by local chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

"These are the core of every polio story published in a newspaper. Today they are jeopardized by a crucial lack of funds, brought about by the heavy cost of patient care and the new, promising, polio prevention program.

"All national patient care and polio prevention programs are threatened unless the public understands and fully supports the Emergency March of Dimes, Aug. 16-31.

"The immediate need is for $20 million.

"This is the sum required to pay the high costs of continuing care for 67,000 patients stricken in earlier years and unknown numbers of victims of current record outbreaks. Simultaneously we must meet the cost of increasing the nation's supply of gamma globulin and financing the polio vaccine study.

National Foundation programs are at the point of no return. There can be no retreat except at unthinkable human sacrifice or postponement of polio prevention.

"Although the March of Dimes last January was the most successful in polio history, it fell far short of the tightly budgeted needs for 1954. That is why we must now make an emergency, all-out appeal for funds."

Floor To Have Canvas Cover

U. of I., Moscow — Past fears of damaging the Memorial gymnasium basketball floor in using it for other campus activities will soon disappear with the board of regents approving the purchase of a canvas covering for the floor.

The floor will be covered by the canvas for concerts and other activities in which the audience may be seated on the court.

The regents also approved installation of lights on part of the practice football field. The team will now have approximately half of a normal gridiron under lights in which to practice for night games. This fall the Vandals have night games in the south against College of Pacific and the University of Arizona.

Ain't It The Truth

We love the football season. Aside from its many other offerings, it's the only time of the year a fellow can go down the street with a blanket on one arm and a girl on the other without having people ask so many darn fool questions.

THE WONDER OF HOME-SPENT DOLLARS

(from Odessa, Wash., Record)

"Are you on the lookout for means of possibly attracting 100 new residents to the community? If so, we offer the following suggestion:

"If every article of men's clothes, new hats, dresses, etc., for every lady; shoes, radio sets, TV sets, refrigerators, drugs, gasoline and tires, hardware, stoves, produce, groceries, printing and other items used or needed in our everyday living were bought from local suppliers, you would notice things begin to happen.

"Your clothing dealer would need an extra clerk, your filling stations would put on more men, your grocer add another check stand, your garage add mechanics, your local printer would have to add a man — and so on down the list, easily filling the 100 new residences.

"All of these workers would come from the age bracket which is in the family raising era. The average family, the census people say, is 4.2 people. So multiply each job by 4.2 and you have a sizeable increase in our population.

"More population means more students in our schools and the opportunity to add more courses and instructors — adding still more population. More population adds to the number and opportunity of our professional people.

"To do this you would have to forget the gripes about the 'other guy' for about six months to a year. Give the community's dollars a chance to work in the community.

"Within a year you'd never know the old town — in community understanding, improvement and general all-around gains. Do you want this extra population?"

We are prompted to sponsor the above advertisement through our desire to serve the best interests of our community, in every way possible.

Johnson's Story of Success Started About 65 Years Ago

When Samuel Curtis Johnson began making parquet flooring in his Racine, Wis., workshop 65 years ago, he little dreamed of the turn his business would take.

It was a small operation, with two men and two boys doing all the work, but they were thorough craftsmen. Their flooring can still be found in old American homes.

Mr. Johnson, reading his mail by lamplight in the evening, noticed that more and more customers were turning to him for information on how to care for floors. Knowing that many floors in Europe had withstood the tread of centuries, thanks to wax, he recommended that his customers use the same substance.

Within a few years the Johnson company was manufacturing its own wax and wood finishing products. They subsequently found that the sideline was outstripping the main products in volume of sales. In 1916, with simple tastes in home decorating becoming more evident, the company abandoned its parquet business and concentrated on wax products.

Today, with the founder's grandson, H. F. Johnson, at the helm, the company ranks high in American industry. Its main office and laboratory in Racine, the plant for which were drawn by Frank Lloyd Wright, is a symbol of industrial growth. The company has offices and plants in Canada, England, France, Australia and other parts of the world. It has a refinery and plantation in Brazil where the world's supply of carnauba wax is obtained.

The little group that began the manufacture of parquet flooring in the back-street workshop 65 years ago could never have guessed they were sowing the seed of a business that was to make Racine the wax center of the world.

Nurse Braved Fever, Risked Life to Help Malaria Fight

Feeding disease-laden, killer mosquitoes once was the hobby of an elderly Baltimore nurse.

Miss Lena Townshend, now 76 years old, hoarded spare time from her nursing duties to provide life-sustaining sugar water for the caged mosquitoes used in yellow fever experiments by the late Army doctor and scientist, Major Walter Reed.

As a civilian nurse, Miss Townshend's 16-month affiliation with Dr. Reed and his important work was unofficial but she made a definite contribution to the project's success. Her experience with the menacing mosquitoes today are a fond memory in her career, 38 years as a practicing nurse.

While the Army prepared to honor Major Reed by observing the centennial of his birth, September 13, the gray-haired nurse was proud but modest in a discussion of her work in the fever-ridden country that was Cuba in 1901.

Miss Townshend went to Cuba due to a post-war shortage of nurses and a personal desire for foreign duty at the turn of the century. As night superintendent of Havana Municipal Hospital No. 1, she had a role in the fight against another epidemic of that time, typhoid fever.

Her "spare time" work was done in Dr. Reed's laboratory, one part of the hospital, after she already had put in 12 hours of night ward duty. She worked on the yellow fever charts which Major Reed maintained for the benefit of government and private hospitals in this country in addition to feeding the mosquitoes.

Interested both in the capture and care of the man-killing insects, Miss Townshend paid little heed to the other laboratory animals, guinea pigs and rats. She said she wasn't afraid of them but "I just didn't like them."

Although she nursed both yellow and typhoid fever cases—so many that she is unable to count them—Miss Townshend escaped both diseases.

Sunken Ore

About 100 years ago on the Marquette Range in Michigan, ore cars were sent down a long, descending grade to a Lake Superior dock. But sometimes the ore plunged to the bottom of the lake. In the 1850's, a strap iron railroad was built down the grade from the mines to the docks in Marquette harbor, 12 miles away. Strings of cars were loaded with ore and coasted by gravity down to the waterside. A brakeman rode each string of cars. The hand brakes of the period were far from efficient. Sometimes the cars continued off the end of the dock, and landed at the bottom of Marquette harbor. At intervals later cargoes of iron ore were dredged up where the old cars leaped to a watery grave.

Horns and Antlers

Horns, such as occur on cattle, sheep and Old World antelope, have a bony core. Over this is a layer of a material called keratin, which is similar to the calluses that occur on the palms of the hands or the soles of the feet. The antlers of the deer are different, as they consist of a growth of connective tissue which becomes hardened with the deposition of calcium. Antlers are shed annually and grown anew, as also are the horns of some animals, such as the prong horned antelope.

Medina Mosque Is Younger Building than White House

According to tradition, Mohammed journeyed north from Mecca to the region of Yathrib's oasis, where he loosed his camel to wander unguided until it stopped and knelt. There the mosque was built. Disciples renamed Yathrib Madinat-al-Nabi, meaning City of the Prophet, now varied to Medina.

The original house of worship has been rebuilt several times. No existing relics of previous structures bear proof of use earlier than 1808. The present Great Mosque is actually newer than the White House in Washington and replaces an earlier mosque which was destroyed by fire only a century ago.

Though somewhat crowded by other buildings on its south side, the mosque stands out gracefully from most angles of approach. Its minarets are shapely, its dome a restful, dull green. Dominant construction material is a locally quarried crystalline rock of pinkish hue, with occasional elaborate inlay and false decoration.

Pilgrim trade is easily the chief business of Mecca, Medina, and Jidda, the Red Sea port by way of which nine-tenths of the worshipping tourists now travel. The two shrine cities each have sacred areas where unbelievers are not welcome and subject to trespassing fines or jail terms.

Date growing is the second industry around Medina's oasis, which is larger than Mecca's and can support more population. Under Turkish rule prior to World War I, Medina counted 80,000 people and was the southern terminus of a railroad from the cities of present Jordan, Syria, Turkey, and Iraq to the north.

Not until Mohammed moved from Mecca to Medina, did his creed begin the expansion that now encompasses 250,000,000 followers.

Drug Given By Mouth Said To Relieve Pain in Cancer

A chemical compound which can be given by mouth is reported by seven New York doctors to be useful in bringing temporary relief to patients suffering from fatal cancer-like diseases of the white blood cells and tissues.

The oral use of triethylene melamine on 58 patients is described by Drs. David A. Karnofsky, J. H. Burchenal, George C. Armistead, Jr., Chester M. Southam, J. L. Bernstein, L. F. Craver, and Cornelius P. Rhoads. The doctors are all associated with the Memorial Center for Cancer and Allied Diseases, New York.

Triethylene melamine is a valuable addition to the small group of drugs now known to be effective in relieving pain in these types of disease, according to the doctors. This is due primarily to the fact that it can be given by mouth, releasing the patient from his dependence on a doctor for administration of the drug. All the other drugs, they point out, have to be injected intravenously, which almost always makes hospitalization necessary.

Clinical trials with the drug are now being widened to include a greater variety of tumorous conditions, they said.

Cleaning Up

In the Smithsonian Institution's laboratory of vertebrate paleontology, six tons of fossil bones belonging to the extinct gigantic ground sloth, Megatherium, are being cleaned and repaired. The skeletal remains of this grotesque animal were collected in western Panama by Dr. C. Lewis Gazin, curator of vertebrate paleontology of the U. S. National Museum, assisted by Dr. Theodore E. White, paleontologist of the Smithsonian's River Basin Surveys. The Smithsonian Institution paleontologists will attempt to reconstruct for exhibition in Washington a complete skeleton of the giant sloth. A large part of the collection will be returned to Panama for exhibition there.

Forming Pearls

Although some pearls are formed in fresh-water clams and oysters, the most valuable come from the marine pearl oysters of eastern Asia. They occur when some foreign object—perhaps a tiny grain of sand—gets between the shell and the body. The animal then secretes around the object successive layers of a material called nacre, which consists of calcium carbonate. This is the same material as the "mother of pearl" lining of the shell. The Japanese make "culture" pearls by deliberately introducing small particles of graphite into the oyster and keeping it for several years as the pearl is formed.

Infrared Rays

Infrared rays are similar to rays of visible light, except that the length of their waves is greater than those of red light, which are about 1/40,000th of an inch and are the longest that the eye can detect. The longest infrared waves are about 1/65th of an inch long. Any hot object—the Sun, an open fire, a red hot poker, a warm radiator, an electric lamp, etc.—sends out infrared radiation, often with visible rays as well. Special electric lamps to generate these rays, used for applying heat, have a filament which operates at a lower temperature than is used in one designed mainly for purposes of illumination.

Thank Practical Eskimos For 'Deep-Freeze' Invention

Thanks to practical Eskimos and a shrewd Yankee fur trader, we are now able to have seasonable fruits and vegetables "fresh" at any time of the year. The quick-freeze pack keeps them fresh.

The Yankee fur trader is Clarence Birdseye of Gloucester, Mass., who still indulges his fancy for adventure in the Far North. While dealing with Arctic Eskimos up the Labrador coast during 1912, he was amazed at the excellent meat and fish they seemed always to have available. The secret was in the quick-freezing of game freshly caught. "Quick-Freeze!" That was the Big Idea he mullied over as he sailed home. Invent a special kind of freezing machine to freeze almost instantly, patent it, make fresh foods available to everyone!

Inspired by this thought, and stimulated by this hope of protection afforded by our patent system, he built his first crude machine which he called the "Multiplate Quick Freeze." This consisted of a new garbage can of corrugated iron with layers of steel plates between which codfish and rabbit meat were placed. It was supplied with coils that contained salt brine as a refrigerant. Incredible, but true, this unpolished mechanism was the forerunner of our gigantic lockers of today. Encouraged by the success of his invention in food preservation, and the patent protection obtained thereon, Birdseye endeavored to promote his idea.

A skeptical America was not too eager to accept quick-frozen foods, and our inventor, in 1924, after making stabs in both Gloucester and New York, went broke. Unbeaten, his perseverance and ingenuity urged him to try again and, in 1927, after securing a $2,250 loan on his life-insurance policy, and obtaining $375,000 from backers, he again launched into the business. This time it took a year to interest the public sufficiently.

Cretaceous Geological Period Shale Collected in Fresno

More than a ton of shale and marl containing 100-million-year-old fossils, collected in Fresno County, Calif., last summer by Dr. Alfred R. Loeblich, Jr., Smithsonian Institution paleontologist, is being processed at the U.S. National Museum.

The Fresno County locality has one of the thickest known deposits—in some places as much as 25,000 feet—of sediments laid down in the ancient sea bottoms during the Cretaceous geological period, the heyday of the great dinosaurs on land and of the weird swimming reptiles, the plesiosaurs in the sea. The material collected by Dr. Loeblich, however, contains fossils far less conspicuous than these monsters, but in some ways they represent even stranger forms of life. They are minute Foraminifera, or shelled protozoans. Although constituting a very large branch of the Animal Kingdom, the Protozoa are one-celled animals and nearly all are microscopic; the best-known of the living forms are internal parasites which cause some of the most deadly diseases.

Foraminifera are a specialized group of Protozoa that build an external shell, and these shells may be preserved as fossils. During the Cretaceous period, represented by the material collected this summer, many of the more modern shell forms were first developed. These fossil shells are often used by the oil industry to determine the age of geologic strata and thus are of economic importance, as well as being of value to the scientist in showing evolutionary trends.

Although single-celled, such sea creatures may have many chambered shells. As they grow they form new chambers all connected by openings through which the protoplasm of the cell flows. But, however many chambers of this sort are produced, the protoplasm is continuous through all and the animal still remains a single cell.

Looking Back

Haile Selassie's 1,150-man, hand-picked battalion in Korea is a far cry from the desperate army he raised in 1935. Then, as Mussolini's men marched into his land, he issued this draft notice: (1) When this order is received, all men and boys able to carry a spear will go to Addis Ababa. (2) Every married man will bring his wife to cook and wash for him. (3) Every unmarried man will bring any unmarried woman he can find to cook and wash for him. (4) Women with babies, the blind and those too aged and infirm to carry a spear, are excused.

Ptolemaic System

The Ptolemaic System was the ancient concept of the universe, proposed by the Greek astronomer Hipparchus, who lived about 130 B. C. It is named after Claudius Ptolemy, a later astronomer, who popularized it in a famous book known as the Almagest. According to this system, the Earth was fixed at the center of the universe, and the Sun, Moon, planets and stars all revolved around it in varying periods. It has been superseded by the system proposed by Copernicus in 1543, which places the Sun at the center of the Solar System, and has the Earth as one of a number of planets revolving around the Sun.

KEEPING IDAHO GREEN—Keeps Idaho Prosperous

one match may cost a million trees

PFI maintains a short wave radio network covering 7,000 square miles of operating area. Lives have been saved through this means of quick communication in the woods. Its transmitters in logging camps, in trains and at landings are ready to help fishermen, campers and other visitors to our Tree Farms in times of real emergency.

you are asked to help protect and keep Idaho's forests green. You can help by simply being thoughtful and displaying CARE in the woods. ONE THOUGHTLESS ACT: starts a fire . . . burns a forest . . . destroys both timber and wildlife . . . renders useless both game habitats and cherished recreational areas. When a forest burns, everyone loses. Green Idaho forests represent employment to thousands of Idaho homes. — Keep Idaho Green.

PFI, besides making contributions to Timber Protective Associations that supervise fire prevention and control, has invested in modern, mechanized equipment—radio communications and extensive training of personnel in fire fighting techniques. Planned preparedness by Idaho Tree Farmers and the display of CARE by the public has resulted in a reduction of fire losses. You are welcome to use our timberlands for recreational purposes, unless the area has been closed due to high fire potential. Your continued cooperation will keep losses at a minimum and will make Idaho Forests the best-protected timberland in the world.

Published Weekly by the Union Oil Service at Kendrick
W. L. "Bill" Rogers, Editor

HELLO, FOLKS:

Well, this rain has certainly put a stop to harvesting operations — and will give you time to come in and talk over those tire and gas and oil problems that may have been bothering you — and will give you the chance to be really ready for the final rush when the weather does clear.

In gasoline it's 76, and 7600; in Oils we have one for every need including the famous Royal Triton, known everywhere for its superb qualities; and then there's a Union Lubricant for every need, right down to those track rollers.

While getting ready for a visit with her grandmother, the little six-year-old Effie ran to the bookcase and brought back three books: "Peter Rabbit," "Little Black Sambo" and "Child Guidance."

"Effie," said her mother, "you won't need that 'Child Guidance.'" "Oh, yes I will," replied the child. "Grandma still believes in spank ings."

Having tire problems? Let us show you the wonderful U. S. Royal, for cars, pickups, trucks, farm machinery. The answer to real service needs.

First Candidate: "There's only one honest way to make money."
Second Candidate: "And What's that?"
First Candidate: "Ha! I thought you wouldn't know!"

Don't drive "banana peel" tires for harvest operations. Come in and see how cheaply you can own famous U. S. Royals for your car, pickup, truck or tractor.
