CLARA CHRISTINE DABERCO BRIDE OF LOYD E. WARE

Miss Clara Christine Dabercro became the bride of Loyd Eugene Ware Saturday evening, May 14, in the Methodist church at Juliaetta, in a ceremony of distinction and beauty.

The Rev. Harold Paul of the Nazarene Church in Troy performed the double ring wedding rites in a setting of lilacs and candlelight.

She is a daughter of Mrs. Abner Corkill of Troy, and he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd F. Ware of Troy (the latter old-time residents of Kendrick).

The sanctuary was decorated with large baskets of lavender and white lilacs, and the pews were marked with white bows. Tall lighted candelabras formed the background.

The radiant bride was given in marriage by her brother, Philbert R. Dabercro, and was lovely in a gown of chantilly lace over satin with heirloom detailing and old fashioned charm. Designed with a stand-up lily-petal collar, long tapered sleeves and an extravagantly full skirt, which was floor-length. Her fingertip veil of illusion net was fastened to a heart-shaped coronet studded with tiny iridescent pearls.

She carried a shower bouquet of pink rosebuds and stephanotis, which was centered with a lavender orchid. She wore the traditional blue garter which was a gift of the groom.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Georgia Southwick, who wore a gown identical to the bride's in design, with the exception of sleeve length, and which was made of organdy in Nile green.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Gerald R. White, Moscow, a school chum, and Mrs. Philbert Dabercro, a sister-in-law of the bride, Kendrick, were all dressed in gowns like that of the matron of honor and were in lavender, as were the flower girls. They wore matching head bandeaux.

The organ used for the ceremony was an old family heirloom which belonged to the groom's great-grandmother, and was brought up from Lewiston for this special occasion, as this wedding date was also that of his great-grandparents.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a suit in natural linen, which was accented with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses and carnations.

The groom's mother was dressed in an afternoon dress of navy and her accessories were white. Her corsage was also of pink roses and carnations.

SHORT LOCAL ITEMS OF MORE THAN PASSING INTEREST

Don Brown Cut By Disc
Don Brown can "thank his lucky stars" he has only one arm that is cut, for when a disc passes over your body and you come out alive, you know you are lucky. That's just what happened, too, last Wednesday.

Don was working for Ernest Jones on Big Bear ridge. He had stopped the "cat" tractor to make some minor repair, and when he went to climb back on, his foot slipped and he grabbed to keep from falling — in that frantic instant trying to keep his balance, his hand came in contact with the clutch, throwing the tractor into motion. As it jerked ahead it hit a rut and threw Don off, right into the path of the disc, which passed over his body.

Don threw up an arm, which saved his face, of course, but in turn took the brunt of the damage, for it was cut to the bone in two places. However, in some miraculous way the rest of his body escaped.

His cap was cut into two pieces; his boots were cut, but not his feet. Disc marks showed plainly on his pants, but they were not cut. Evidently mounds held the disc up far enough to prevent it from burying itself in his body. Anyway, Don was brought to town, Dr. Christensen cared for his injuries, and Don is convalescing at his home here.

Who Said "Spring?"

We've seen a quarter century of springs come and go in Kendrick — and never to our memory has there been one like this one — and it's borne out by the official weather reports at Lewiston — the coldest May ever recorded!

The middle of last week most all thought that "spring had sprung," but on Friday morning everyone knew the report was false, for farmers coming to town reported a real snow storm on top the hills, and in some areas back of Southwick as much as an inch was reported on the ground.

In town it rained most of Friday, almost all day Saturday and Saturday night, and most of Sunday, but we escaped the 32-degree cold reported in Lewiston, due to the heavy rain clouds.

Friday evening the heavy moisture-laden air and the wind were just right to bring the odor of the big P. F. I. paper mill into town, and fog lay on the hillsides.

The rain was mostly welcomed by farmers, as it put an end to the cement-like crust that had formed on the ground, due to warm sun and a windstorm of some two days duration. The rain has stopped farm work and logging, but most farmers say they will gain, provided this cold snap does not last too long.

Work Needed On Swim Pool

In preparation for the opening of the Area Living War Memorial Swimming Pool at Kendrick, Bill White, village custodian, reports that an examination of pipes in the chlorinator and pump room show several of them to be badly corroded, and they must be replaced before the pool can be put in operation. This corrosion, he said, was largely due to the chlorine action.

He expects to pump out and scrub the pool this week, in preparation for the coat of paint promised by the Village trustees — and then, when and if spring finally comes — the pool will be ready for use.

It's been so cold this spring that even the hardiest of the teen agers about town have not been heard to mention "swimming."

Accompanying Prof. Chester A. Moore, head of civil engineering on the trip as one of the students was Buddy A. Clemenhagen of Kendrick.

Our School Children Enjoy Greatest Health in History

NEW YORK—America's school children are enjoying better health today than ever before in the country's history, says a report by a leading life insurance company.

Extraordinary gains have been made over the past 20 years in reducing mortality at the school ages. In the experience of the insurance company's industrial policyholders at ages 5 to 14 years, the death rate for boys dropped nearly two thirds, from 158 to 57 per 100,000 between 1933 and 1953, and the rate for girls declined even more sharply, from 126 to 37 per 100,000.

In each sex decreases of 85 percent or more were recorded over the 20-year period in the death rates for a number of diseases, including the principal communicable diseases of childhood, appendicitis, pneumonia and influenza, and tuberculosis.

Despite this progress, there are still about 15,000 deaths among children at school ages in the general population of the United States, and a considerable part of the loss of life is amenable to control, say the statisticians.

Accidents are the greatest single menace to child life, accounting for more than two fifths of the total mortality among boys and for more than one quarter of the mortality among girls. Second in rank as a cause of death are the cancers, which twenty years ago were a minor cause of death at school ages. The leukemias account for nearly a half of all deaths attributed to malignancy among school-age children. Pneumonia and influenza and acute poliomyelitis continue to be among the leading killers at ages 5 to 14, but the death toll from these diseases varies from year to year with their prevalence and virulence.

Strange Worm Must Be Eaten to Survive

LOS ANGELES—The survival of the spiny-headed worm is quite dependent upon the appetite of other animals, unlike that of most creatures, which is largely a matter of avoiding being devoured by other animals.

The tiny worm, says a University of California zoologist, belongs to a group of organisms that "hitchhike" through life. The worm would never be born in the first place if the egg from which it hatches wasn't ingested by a sand crab. Apparently the egg will hatch only inside a sand crab.

And if some marine bird, perhaps a gull or scoter, doesn't eat the sand crab, the larva never becomes an adult worm. Spiny-headed worm larvae apparently just don't grow up except inside marine birds. They are encased in a sturdy capsule which enables them to survive digestive processes and grow into adulthood in the bird's intestines.

The spiny-headed worm must produce a tremendous amount of eggs. Otherwise the chance that a sand crab would ingest an egg and that particular sand crab would be eaten by a marine bird might be too much of a long shot for survival. Yet they are abundant.

Engineers Diverting River Thru Mountain

WASHINGTON—Engineers are diverting a river through the middle of a mountain so that the Indian village of Kitimat in British Columbia can double Canada's aluminum production.

A $600 million program of damming, drilling and building in some of the wildest country in Canada will reverse an entire watershed, send it through a mountain range and drop it 2,400 feet to make electricity in a cave.

So much electric power is needed to smelt aluminum that the strategic metal has been nicknamed "packaged electricity." Successful pioneering to find abundant power sources on its wilderness frontiers has ranked Canada next to the United States in aluminum production even though all the ore must be imported.

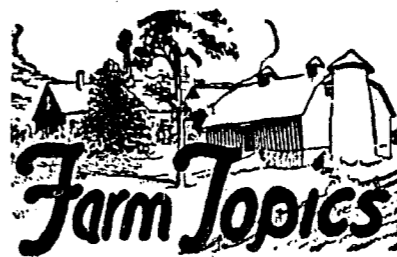

Now, to double that production by tapping a new power source, the Aluminum Company of Canada is spending a million dollars a week to build at Kitimat the world's biggest aluminum smelter. In ten years isolated Kitimat may grow into a city of 50,000 people.

Wrong Type Support

VIENNA—A Communist magazine reaching here from Budapest says Hungarian girls wearing low-cut dresses have succumbed to the "influence of the enemy."

The magazine, Uymarcus, said, "Sex-emphasizing short skirts, loud colors, and low-cut dresses are unpatriotic and foreign."

The article charged that Hungarian girls wearing such clothes support the views and morals of capitalist countries.

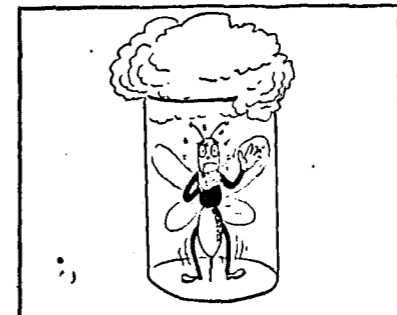

Mosquitoes Test Insecticides

Chemicals Used in Soil Being Tested

Ever think that mosquitoes, possibly the world's most universally hated insect, could be used to benefit mankind? Possibly not, but scientists at Oregon State college have found that mosquitoes are the key to a project designed to protect people.

The project is a testing program of various insecticides used to kill insects in the soil. Program objectives are to determine how much toxic, or poisonous residue, is still in the soil after the chemicals have done their work, and whether this will result in harmful effects or undesirable taste of crops planted in that soil. Such testing programs have been necessary for 30 years under the federal food and drug act.

Where do the mosquitoes come in? Because they are easily killed by modern insecticides, they are used to play an important role in detecting the amount of toxicity that has been transferred from the chemically-treated soil to vegetables or fruit grown in it.

The mosquito's heart is probably not in it, but he's lending himself to a study which is directly beneficial to the farmer—that of determining how much chemical is left in the soil and absorbed by crops.

This is the technique: Ten 5-day old mosquito larvae are put in a vial, 2 inches tall and about the size of a half-dollar, along with a portion of the vegetable or fruit being analyzed for toxicity. The larvae are fed on this for 24 hours. The number dead are then counted and compared with a standard—the amount of DDT necessary to kill the insect. The same process is repeated with increasing amounts of the material being tested.

Corn Belt May Face Corn Borer Infestation

Corn Belt farmers may be faced with a serious infestation of European corn borers if spring weather is favorable for this insect's development, say U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologists.

This outlook is based on field surveys conducted last fall by 25 states infested by the corn borer, including those in the main Corn Belt.

Nationally, the infestation ranges westward from the Atlantic ocean to eastern Montana, Wyoming and Colorado, and from the Canadian border southward to northern South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

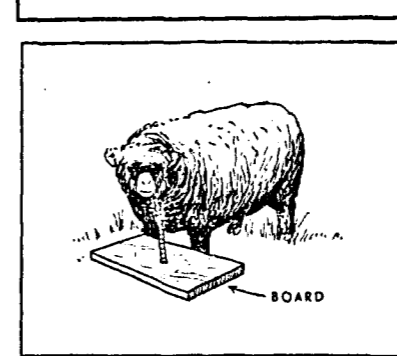

For 13 North Central States, corn borer populations last fall averaged 223 for every 100 corn stalks. This compares with an average of 114 per 100 stalks that were found in a similar survey made in the fall of 1953.

Somewhat offsetting this heavy infestation is a sharp drop in corn borer numbers in 12 Eastern states—from an average of 65 per 100 plants in 1953 to 33 last fall.

The insect was not reported from any new states (it is now known to occur in 37) but was reported from 18 counties not previously known to be infested.

Biggest problem areas are likely to occur in central Iowa, north-eastern Nebraska, southeastern South Dakota and central Illinois. Sharp increases were recorded in smaller areas of Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, and South Dakota.

Female 'Ham' Operates Highest Chicago Station

CHICAGO—When and if disaster should strike Chicago, Mrs. Grace Ryden, one of the key figures in amateur radio operation, will be ready for it.

Mrs. Ryden is president of the Young Ladies Radio League and one of the top "hams" in the Midwest. She was recently appointed head of the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Services, known as RACES, in Chicago.

She operates the highest "ham" station in Chicago—with an antenna 140 feet above the ground in the President Hotel. She and her fellow members of the Young Ladies Radio League have also opened a joint station in Gompers Park Fieldhouse, Chicago, which can transmit a distance of 100 miles and have plans for a second unit capable of transmitting coast-to-coast.

Like most top-notch operators, Mrs. Ryden finds her chief problem that of keeping equipment in good working order for any emergency. This problem was aided recently when she was awarded a $300 scholarship on radio repair and maintenance by a radio and television school.

Now, she's ready for any emergency. She says, "In the event disaster strikes and all telephone and radio, and television service is wiped out, we will carry on, even if we have to hitch our radios to automobile batteries."

Determined? Sure, she is. She adds: "Never underestimate the power of a woman. Just give us the equipment, the training, and the know-how, and we will carry on in any emergency."

Twisted Root Top Antidote in India

WASHINGTON—For more than 3,000 years the twisted root of a low-climbing plant with pinkish-white blossoms has been used in India as an antidote for snake and insect bites, fever, intestinal ill, insanity and insomnia, and as an aid in childbirth. For the past two decades, the root, called "rauwolfia serpentina," also has gained unprecedented popularity in India in the treatment of hypertension (high blood pressure), says a Bombay physician.

Dr. Rustom Jal Vakil told a session of the American Heart Association that he has employed rauwolfia serpentina in more than 3,000 cases of high blood pressure in the past 14 years. The first clinical reports to appear outside India on its therapeutic value have caused the drug to attract international interest and physicians in many countries are testing the hypotensive (pressure-lowering) properties both of the crude whole root and the individual alkaloids (chemical compounds) rauwolfia serpentina is known to contain.

The drug has a soothing effect on the general nervous system, a property which has led to its testing with the mentally ill. Patients report that it gives a "sense of well-being," improves appetite, increases capacity for mental and physical effort, and enables them to sleep better.

Piano Still Basic Beginner's Instrument

CHICAGO—The piano is still the basic instrument in American musical education, say the results of a poll of 1,000 instrumental music directors all over the country.

With study of music zooming—there are now about 7,500,000 children learning to play an instrument, the American Music Conference says—brass instruments, strings, fretted strings, reeds and percussion instrument have grown rapidly in popularity. But 76 per cent of the music educators say the piano is still the best instrument for a student to start on.

More than 95 per cent of the educators in large and small schools agreed that the student who has studied piano learns a second instrument more easily and rapidly.

The instructors chose both melody or pre-band instruments and piano "keyboard experience" as the most effective ways to teach note reading. In "keyboard experience" the piano is used as a means of teaching the fundamentals of music to whole classes, rather than teaching piano playing directly.

Double Protection

WASHINGTON—The Air Force is equipping B-47 jet bombers with drag parachutes to cut landing approach speed, in addition to the larger chutes now used for braking on the ground.

The new parachutes are 16 inches in diameter, just half the size of the breaking parachutes which B-47's have been using for six years.

They were developed at the Wright Air Development Center of the Air Research and Development Command, at Dayton, Ohio.

Mighty Spinach Drafted in War On City's Smog

NEW YORK—Spinach has been drafted for Los Angeles' war on smog, says Wilfred M. Noble, air pollution plant specialist of Los Angeles County.

Spinach, petunias and annual blue grass are now being put to work by the Air Pollution Control District in test stations throughout the Los Angeles area to determine the causes, occurrence and intensity of smog, he said.

A number of plants have been observed to display a distinctive damage pattern when exposed to smog, and a study of this damage yields much information helpful to the smog control program.

These studies have also shown that gasoline and automobile exhaust fumes are potential factors in the production of smog. Smog damage has been estimated to cause $480,000 annual loss in vegetable crops alone in Los Angeles County.

Animal tissue cells are similar to plant cells in many ways. Because of this, Mr. Noble stated, the district will widen the scope of present experiments with vegetation. The researchers plan to isolate single plant cells and study the effects of various pollutants in order to determine why certain cells are more sensitive than others.

Damage to plants, induced by artificial smog in the laboratory, might serve as a botanical tool to study the growth and development of leaves, he suggested.

Only plant cells in a specific stage of maturity suffer this damage, which has not been described previously.

Rapid growth causes an increase in the width of the band of some plants. A high concentration of pollutants causes injury to the more resistant cells so that larger areas will be affected. Extended periods of exposure, repeated daily, may cause an overlapping of bands in some plants which normally have wide bands of damage.

Buses Replacing Red School Houses

WASHINGTON — The big yellow school bus is pushing the little red schoolhouse off the American landscape.

Although there remain 45,000 one-room schools (some still red), the number is shrinking at the approximate rate of 10 a day.

School districts have been enlarged. Modern steel, stone and glass structures, each housing hundreds of pupils and 10 or more teachers, are replacing the elementary classrooms where four or more grades studied and recited side by side.

Educators believe advantages of consolidation outweigh the good points of the "little red" schools. Progress in road building and motor transportation has made it possible to hire more and better-trained teachers. Larger buildings offer better facilities at lower cost per pupil.

In the school year 1917-18, 196,000 one-room schools represented 71 per cent of all the country's school buildings. By 1940, the number had dropped to 114,000, and by 1952 only 51,800 single-unit buildings were left.

Most of the remaining one-teacher schools offer instruction only up to the sixth grade. Using primitive equipment, they are scattered in rural areas. A few cities still have single-room buildings.

Industry's Engineers See Around Corners

MILWAUKEE—Engineers running conveyors are seeing around corners these days.

Impossible? Not all—it's being done through industrial television and factory video is increasing by many-fold the operations that can be supervised by one man.

B. G. Schneider, assistant chief engineer for Chain Belt Company, described industrial television at a Milwaukee meeting of mechanical engineers.

"By industrial television, control through an operator's observation is greatly extended," he said, "and moreover it can be extended into areas of extreme heat, cold, chemical fumes, or other conditions which normally exclude the presence of an observer."

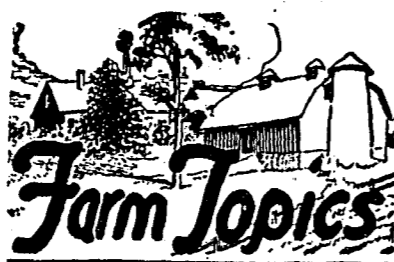

The possibilities for application of industrial television are unlimited and without question a greatly expanded use of it will be seen in years to come, he added.

No Pounding Feet

LAKELAND, Fla. — Lakeland policemen are riding their beats on bicycles equipped with two-way radios.

Police Chief Leo Brooker explains that the bikes will let the policemen make their rounds more quickly and cover wider areas.

And not to be overlooked, he says, is the fact that "bicycles are silent and the approach of the officers will not be noticed."

Honeybees Boost Red Clover Yield

As Much as Nine Times, Tests Show

Research begun in northern Minnesota has shown that honeybee colonies placed near the fields can help boost red clover seed yields up to a healthy 500 pounds per acre—nine times as much as many seed growers get today.

Minnesota's legume seed growing industry has been plagued by low yields for several years and the problem was tackled recently by a University team of entomologists, soil specialists, plant pathologists and agronomists.

Entomologists report their red clover experiment shows honeybees are more efficient pollenators than honeybees, but honeybees can't be depended upon because their populations vary so widely from year to year.

The research, still in progress, has also found the Lygus bug the most important damager of red clover seed crops. They studied damage by such insects as the Lygus bug, the rapid plant bug, alfalfa plant bug, clover seed midge, clover seed chalcid and the pea aphid.

The University scientists found they could effectively control plant bugs by one application of insecticide during the red clover bud stage. They found 1½ pounds actual DDT per acre or two pounds actual toxaphene per acre will check Lygus bugs.

In two fields which had honeybee colonies nearby, about 90 per cent of the pollinating insects were honeybees. In two other fields about a mile away from colonies, 62 to 75 per cent of the pollinators were honeybees.

Many Factors Affect Chick Feeding Program

No one method of feeding chickens is the best for all situations.

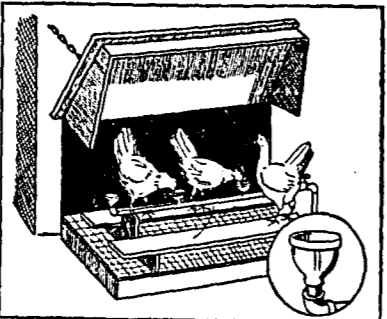

The differences in strains and breeds, whether or not you have farm grains to use and the different management abilities of operators all have some effect on the feeding program.

The most common program makes a high-protein mash available to the hens all the time and adds grain once or more times a day in the litter, in separate hoppers or top of the mash. It's a good way to regulate the relative consumption of grain and mash without home-mixing your feed.

In free-choice mash-grain programs, the hens get mash and farm grains free-choice all the time. This program is best for flocks that are bred and managed for high egg production. Hens from low-producing strains may eat too much grain and get too fat.

In both these programs it is important that hens get grain and mash in the right proportions to get a protein content in the total ration of about 15 or 16 per cent.

Continuous supply of fresh water may be provided by a horizontal run of ½ x 12-in. pipe nipples joined to tees. Nipples are screwed into each of the tees and an elbow is turned onto the end of the last nipple in the run. Short nipples are then screwed into the tees and the elbow. Individual drinking cups are provided by screwing ½ x 2-in. reducers onto the short nipples. Cracking a valve in the pipe line allows continuous overflow. Concrete beneath wire mesh leads to drain.

Discourteous Friends Needed

The friend who tells us our new necktie is beautiful when he thinks it's terrible; who says our speech was "marvelous", when he actually slept through it, and who in every way is so kind that he never tells us the truth, may win our love, but he never helps us any.

If a man is going to grow, he needs someone to coach him from the sidelines, someone to act as a mirror in which he can see himself as others see him. Without someone to tell him the truth about his mannerisms, his habits, mistakes, he may go marching straight to disaster with the cheers of his courteous friends ringing in his ears.

To improve yourself, get a close friend to check you. Just so there won't be any hard feelings, check him in return. Thus you will eliminate the bunk and hokum and really and constructively help each other.

Kindness puts us to sleep with the ether of self-satisfaction. Criticism may be hard to take, but it achieves the proper result. — It wakes a man up. — Liontel.

Socialistic Seed Bears Fruit

Great oaks from little acorns grow, says the old adage. That is certainly true of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Its roots lie in the old Muscle Shoals plant for the production of agricultural fertilizer. Then, when TVA itself was legislated into life, it was officially explained that it was to develop river navigation, improve the land, and conserve natural resources. Hydroelectric power production, it was further explained, would simply be a relatively unimportant by-product. At that time, of course, nobody said anything about TVA going into the steam power business — which has nothing whatever to do with conservation of resources or any other non-commercial purpose.

How times have changed! Power production is not only the dominant TVA activity, overshadowing all other functions to the point of oblivion — but in the fiscal year that ended last June 30th TVA's steam plants actually produced more power than its two hydro plants. And steam's relative importance is going to grow. For, at that time, TVA had steam plants with an estimated cost of $273,877,000 under construction, but not a single dam.

It's a long way from a fertilizing manufacturing enterprise to this gigantic tax-subsidized and largely tax-free socialized power monopoly. It shows how socialism, once it gains a foothold, can wax fat at the expense of all the rest of us, and how all-powerful centralized government can come to be the undisputed boss of great regions. Lawn Mowers Get Work Out
 The cool, damp weather of the past week has been wonderful when it came to making lawns grow, and the "clicking" of push type lawn mowers and the "pup-pup" of power ones can be heard every evening that the weather permits. Frankly, we didn't realize how many power mowers there were in Kendrick!

HELLO, FOLKS:

Well, here it is, past the middle of May, and winter still with us. Farmers have been telling us about how much work they have to do, and many are planning on running their equipment day and night "when the weather finally does 'break.' And that is where you'll find we "rise and shine" — on the delivery of diesel fuel, gasoline and lubricants to keep 'em rolling. Just Phone 1251 — and tell us your needs — we'll do the rest.

A third grade teacher carefully explained that a group of sheep is a flock, and a group of quail is a bevy. Then she asked for the names of groups of other birds and animals.

When she came to camels, a child timidly suggested: "a car-

How about the tires on your car, or pickup? Are they ready for a lot of use in the short summer that lies ahead? If not, come in and talk over the problem with us.
You'll be amazed at how cheaply you can re-tire with famous U. S.
Royals or Royal Masters. It won't cost a cent to talk it over.

Two motorists met on a mountain road too narrow to pass.

"I'll never back up for an idiot," yelled one driver.

"That's all right," said the other, shifting into reverse, "I always do."

Are you taking fullest advantage of our washing, polishing and lubrication work? If not, why not?
The prices are most reasonable.
