1955 Health Record Good—1956 Outlook Also Favorable

NEW YORK-In 1955 the health record of the American people appeared exceptionally good and the prospects for 1956 seem even more favorable.

The death rate for the year, 9.2 per 1,000 population in the United States, is close to the 1954 figure, the lowest on record. This marks the eighth successive year for which the death rate for the country has been below 10 per 1,000 population. In 1945, only one decade ago, the death rate was 10.6 per 1,000 population, one-sixth above the level for 1955.

A notable feature of the 1955 record is another substantial reduction in mortality from tuberculosis. For the first time the death rate from this disease is somewhat less than 10 per 100,000 of the population. This represents a decline of about one-tenth from the previous year. Just one decade ago, in 1945, the tuberculosis death rate was almost four times the 1955 level.

Mortality from influenza and pneumonia continued at a low level in 1955.

Grocery Sales Setting New Highs

NEW YORK-Food and grocery consumption in 1955 set a new high record and even further increases are in prospect for 1956, according to Paul S. Willis, president, Grocery Manufacturers of America. "Total consumer food expenditures in 1955 have apparently established a new all-time record of about $68 billion, compared with $64½ billion in 1954 and $16 billion in 1939," he said, "and with population continuing to grow, and with consumer income on the increase, food spending can readily top $71 billion next year."

Taking a longer look ahead, Mr. Willis forsees the distinct possibility of a $100 billion annual food expenditure by 1965-provided grocery manufacturers and distributors meet the increasingly effective competition of other industries bidding so vigorously for a larger share of the consumer's

A recent study showed "name" brands to be a big factor in 1955 sales. For 41 commodity groups surveyed, major advertised brands accounted for 76 per cent of the market as compared with 74 per cent in 1951. Stores stocking seven brands of a given classification has sales ranging from 48 per cent to 375 per cent greater than stores stocking only one brand.

Motorcycle Accidents Kill Thousand Yearly

NEW YORK-Accidents involving motorcycles account for approximately 1,000 deaths yearly in the United States, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company report.

About 800 of these deaths result from injuries sustained by motorcyclists or motorcycle passengers, and most of the remainder are pedestrians killed by motorcycles. In addition, a few deaths each year occur among riders of bicycles and occupants of automobiles in collisions between vehicles and motorcycles.

In the life insurance company's experience among its industrial policyholders, the highest death rates for motorcycles, as might be expected, are among young males—ages 15 to 24.

Somewhat over half of the policyholders fatally injured while riding motorcycles died as a result of collisions with automobiles. trucks or other motor vehicles. An additional two-fifths lost their lives when motorcycles overturned or run off the road.

Sunday School Lesson Puts Parent on Spot

LONG BEACH, Calif. - Mrs. John Fredericks is somewhat in a dither about the business of talking over Sunday school lessons with her daughter. The little girl came home and said, "The teacher told us that before people are born they are dust and that they return to dust when they die. Is that true, Mommy?"

If it was taught at Sunday school, it was true, Mrs. Fredericks replied. "Why do you ask, honey?'

Empire report electric home freezers and convenience of buying and cook-

Savings are effected by buying the superior grades of meat and other foods when prices are lower than at other seasons of the year, or when it is possible to buy certain foods at bulk prices. A wide variety of readyto-cook packaged foods are also available on the freezer shelves of almost any food market.

Depending on the rate of family consumption, enough meat can be cut into meal-sized portions for easy storage to last for months, and if guests arrive unexpectedly, there's no need for a hurry-up trip to the neighborhood market in order to have enough food for dinner.

One of the most important conveniences in having a home freezerwhether it be an upright, horizontal or combination refrigerator-freezer model, is that it helps provide hours of time saving assistance to family meal planners. By preparing and packaging food properly for freezing, housewives will find more leisure

However, let's consider the road from Deary to Kendrick. Designated as a "State Highway" there are sections of this road that were taken over from the highway districts—and not built by the state to state specifications. Now these same sections are being asked to carry pulpwood hauling and logging trucks licensed up to 76,000 pounds! Is it any wonder that these roads "just won't take it?"

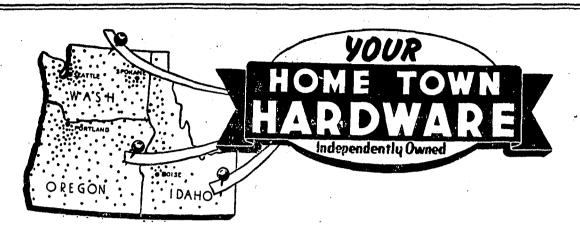

MORE ABOUT ROADS

Said one party: "Why do you blame Moscow for the condition of the roads in your area?"

Frankly, we're not blaming anyone for the condition of the roads in this area — not Moscow — and least of all the maintenance men — for they have certainly had their hands full and in many cases "nothing to work with in the sense that the road was worn out in the first place. We think our local crew has done an excellent job!

Now where does the "Blame Moscow come in?" Let's put it frankly any say for the lack of a road between Kendrick and Juliaetta. Both ends of this four-mile section were built by the state — but the middle portion was constructed many years ago by the Kendrick Highway District and later taken over by the state. Here the same situation is strue as the Kendrick-Deary road—all the maintenance men — for they had nothing to work with in the first place. We think our local crew has done an excellent job!

Now where does the "Blame Moscow come in?" Let's put it frankly any say for the lack of a road between Kendrick and Troy, and on to Moscow for the lack of a road between Kendrick and Juliaetta. Both ends of this four-mile section were built by the state — but the middle $1,250,000 which leaves here anually for Lewiston — where a good road gives easy access. # PRIVATE COMPANIES CAN BRING POWER AND SAVE A BILLION DOLLARS OF YOUR TAXES

That is a lot of tax dollars, isn't it? But it would cost the United States Treasury $1,264,500,000 if the Federal Government were to build the eight power projects now under construction or being planned in our Pacific Northwest. Investor-owned utilities and other non-federal agencies are ready, willing, and able to build the dams needed for the power expansion that is so vital to the area development . . . and at NO COST to you or other taxpayers, a billion dollar saving!

Doesn't it make good sense to depend on our independent utilities to develop our power potential? They can plan ahead to meet our power needs, they do not have to wait for an act of Congress or tax money from the Treasury. Instead of costing the taxpayers huge sums of money, independent utilities PAY approximately 23c of each revenue dollar for county, state, and federal taxes. New Power must be "on the line" by 1960. If not delayed by red tape and political maneuvering, the independent utilities of the area will help to meet the demand.

New Insecticide For Cotton Growers Treated Plants Carry Built-In Protection

A new insecticide, which if applied to cotton seeds produce plants that kill early season insects, has been accepted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and is now being produced commercially.

Named Thimet by its developers, American Cynamid Company, the insecticide will be marketed this year to seed treaters in Mississippi and Texas only. Commescial distribution throughout all cotton growing areas in the United States and several foreign countries is planned for 1957.

Cotton seeds which have absorbed Thimet, a systemic insecticide, grow into plants that carry "built-in" insect protection through the early weeks of growth. A systemic is a chemical that finds its wdy into the growing plant, and is carried in the sap stream in sufficient quantities so that insects which feed on the plant are killed.

Advantages to cotton growers in using Thimet-treated seed, are these: it replaces two to four early season spray or dust applications that are usually applied to growing plants to control pests; it eliminates uncertainties as to the proper time for these spray or dust applications.

Research by Federal and State agricultural scientists has shown that when cotton is treated with Thimet, the insecticide stays in the growing plant and continues to kill.

insects for up to seven weeks after the plant has come through the

Beef Marketing Costs Subject of Study

Charges for marketing beef advanced about the same amount from the last quarter of 1954 to the last quarter of 1955 as they did in the seven years ending in 1955—about one-fourth in each instance.

The farm value of Choice grade beef averaged over 9 cents per pound lower in the last quarter of 1955 than a year earlier, whereas retail beef prices were down only about 3.5 cents per pound. This means that approximately threefifths of the drop in farm value was absorbed by higher marketing

These relationships are brought out in a report "Beef Marketing Margins and Costs," published by the USDA. The publication is one of a series being issued by the Agricultural Marketing Service in response to a request by the Congress for intensive studies of costs of marketing farm products. A recently issued publication, "Marketing Costs for Food," presented an overall view of recent changes in the spreads in prices between producer and consumer.

The report shows that the farmer got 70 per cent of the consumer's dollar spent for beef in 1949; and only 62 per cent in 1955. The difference between what the farmer gets and the consumer pays—the "marketing margin" - represents the return to marketing agencies for their services, including such costs as labor, supplies, and transportation. Such costs have risen substantially in the last seven years.

Faster Feeding

One farmer found that feed moved twice as fast when he added 6" to his aluminum scoop. For farmers who don't feed by hand, such a bigger scoop speeds choring work.

Lack of Nutrients Means Low Yields Some Farm Crops

Near Starvation

The wise farmer can "write his own" insurance against low or declining prices by following the simple policy of giving his soils a full feed of nutrients.

Despite this fact, the nutrient "cupboard" is bare on many Midwestern farm soils, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. As a result, it says, many farm crops are only a jump ahead of starvation. This nutrient famine results in poor yields, high costs and low profits.

The committee points out that wheat and corn yields are only about half as high as could be produced, with reasonably good soil management and the use of heavy amounts of fertilizer. Hay and pasture production is less than half the potential production.

Hungry soils now dragging along at low production speed can be restored to healthy, high profit production by a sound system of soil building, says the committee.

By getting bigger yields per acre on fewer acres, profits could be increased and at the same time, total overall production reduced. The higher yields per acre would mean lower costs or production per bushel or ton, the committee points out. This would help a farmer get more net return, even with lower prices.

Management Could Cut High Pig Mortality

The "appalling" mortality rate that prevents 30 per cent of pigs farrowed from reaching the market could be lowered by better management practices.

management practices.

Donald E. Jasper, dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine in the University of California, believes hog raisers can cut production costs significantly by measures aimed at the common swine diseases.

"Many management factors in disease are just plain lack of care and sanitation," he told farmers attending a swine session during a Farm and Home Conference. "Hog houses, waterers, and feeders need thorough cleaning and disinfecting. Viruses and bacteria, for example, may hide under dirt and later infect new hogs."

Replacement stock frequently brings disease into a herd, he added. Growers should raise their own replacements or bring them from known disease-free sources. Imports should be quarantined for three to four weeks and should always be blood tested for diseases such as brucellosis and leptospirosis. Careful clinical examination should be made for atrophic rhinitis, which is spread by carrier booss.

Parakeratosis is a disease increasing in California, although not yet common, which seems caused by an upset in the utilization of zinc. The disease causes cracks, thickening, and abscesses in the skin and eventually the pig dies.

Cleaning Brush

Brush turned by a ¼" electric drill scrubs teat cups and gets residue that couldn't be removed any other way. No more high bacteria counts when this cleaning method is used.

Over $700 Billions In 10 Years for Tangible Wealth

NEW YORK—A spectacular increase in the people's material possessions and in the nation's over-all stock of privately-owned capital assets has gone hand in hand over the last decade with the great growth of the American economy, now some four-fifths bigger than it was at the end of World War II in gross national product.

An analysis of figures compiled by the U. S. Department of Commerce shows that a vast sum adding up to more than $700 billions has been spent by the people and by business since the beginning of 1946 to expand their tangible wealth in the form of producers' and consumers' durable goods.

For the 1946-55 period as a whole, these figures break down into three broad components as follows:

A total of more than $340 billions in business investment, predominantly in new plant and equipment, commercial construction and inventories.

Close to $260 billions in consumer durable goods, of which automobiles represent nearly one-third; and

More than $100 billions in residential nonfarm housing.

This accomplishment in such a comparatively short space of time is without parallel in the history of this or any other nation. It is indicative of the stimulating force of credit and investment on American economic growth and progress, and testifies to the effectiveness with which the capital market, aided by the people's thrift institutions, has supplied the need for lendable funds.

Typical U. S. Wife Young, Busy Mother

NEW YORK—How do you describe the typical American wife? With data supplied largely by the Bureau of The Census, some enterprising statisticians say she is: very young; lives in an urban area (not with in-laws or other relatives); and is quite busy raising a family.

As to age, almost two-fifths of all wives are under 35, and an additional one-fourth are in the 35-44 age group. This reflects our tradition of early marriage as well as the upsurge in marriages during and immediately after World War II. Almost one-half of the wives in our country have married since 1940.

Only about six per cent of all married women live apart from their husbands, and in most of these cases it is not because of marital discord. Many husbands are away from home because of their employment, and 446,000 are in the Armed Forces.

Hospital Patients Operate Sundry Store

TAMPA, Fla.—Patients at the Southwest Florida Tuberculosis Hospital operate their own sundry store and get the benefit of all the profits.

The profits have been used to buy two television sets and a movie screen for the wards and to set up an emergency fund for needy patients, to provide fare home for some discharged patients, and to supply items from the store to patients who can't pay and can't work.

Those who have no resources but can work operate the store, handle the mobile cart used for the convenience of the bedridden, and care for vending machines. They earn enough to get necessities and some luxuries from the store.

The store is a project of the Patients Executive Council, backed up by hospital authorities.

Cows Like Corn, Alfalfa Better

Illinois Tests Top .
Producing Cows

Research recently completed at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture indicates that corn silage and alfalfa silage preserved with corn and cob meal are superior to oat silage for high-producing dairy cows.

In an experiment at the University dairy farm, high-producing cows didn't eat as much oat silage as other silages because the oat silage was not so palatable. The result was a loss in weight and a drop in milk flow when cows were switched from either alfalfa or corn silage to oat silage. The opposite effect was seen when cows went from oat silage to either of the other two silages.

The oat silage was considered to be excellent quality. The oats were cut in the early-dough stage. Had they been harvested for grain, they would have yielded about 85 bushels an acre.

The cows used in the experiment were 12 high-producing Holsteins. They were fed 14 pounds of good quality alfalfa hay daily throughout the test. All cows got a 15 per cent grain mix feed according to their individual production.

Final figures showed that, on the average, cows ate 53 pounds of corn silage, 45 pounds of alfalfa cilage and 28 pounds of oat silage silage and 28 pounds of oat silage daily. In all possible sequences, the silages were fed free choice for five-week periods.

Most Tetanus Cases Have Unhappy Ending

Stories about farm animals infected with tetanus (lockjaw) usually have unhappy endings, says Dr. D. R. Lingard of the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

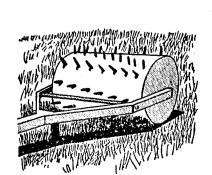

When tetanus germs get into a wound in either man or beast, they produce a deadly poison that causes muscular spasms. These spasms spread through the body and frequently result in death.

You'll be able to notice a stiffness in the leg muscles of the infected animals before the characteristic symptom of tightly closed jaws strikes. Small farm animals that have tetanus are usually found lying on their side, legs outstretched, with ears erect and jaws locked shut.

Horses are the most susceptible to tetanus of all farm animals. Cattle are second in susceptibility, but most cases occur in swine and sheep because routine castrating and tail docking of the young animals give the germs a chance to get into the blood stream. Umbilical abscesses in newly born animals also present an opportunity for tetanus infection. Cleanliness and good management are the best ways of preventing tetanus.

You can protect valuable animals by having a veterinarian vaccinate them against tetanus. A veterinarian should also be called to treat injuries and to administer tetanus antitoxin to animals suffering from deep or dirty wounds.

Spike Roller

Irrigated pastures need attention if they are to last through the season. Homemade spike roller can be used twice a year to open soil for penetration by water and fertilizer. Spikes are 8".

Educator Believes Rural Youth Needs Special Education

ANN ARBOR, Mich.-Education for rural youth should not follow exactly the same pattern that education for city children fol-

This is the conviction of Robert S. Fox, associate professor of education and director of the University School at the University of Michigan.

He contends that a good educational program should capitalize on the rural background of the child rather than superimpose an urban education that doesn't fit his needs.

Professor Fox asserts, "This business of using the environment with which the child is familiar should permeate every subject and class activity. Take Arithmetic. Problems could be suited to the rural situation. Social studies ought to emphasize rural needs and might include study of the community, conservation, and changes in the community. For young children the teacher could introduce social studies relating to the immediate community-home and school.

"Probably we need in some way to encourage our teachers who come from rural areas, and have some understanding and appreciation of rural problems to stay there," he continues.

Good Eye Care Should Begin Early

NEW YORK-Today's schools are placing great stress upon general health programs, but not enough of this stress is being placed on the vitally important function of eyesight, according to the Better Vision Institute.

It is estimated that about 83 per cent of all our knowledge comes to us through our eyes. And yet a number of studies show how little attention is paid to the vision of youngsters during the learning period.

Near-point vision has been largely overlooked, although reading is essential to education. Wall chart tests of distance seeing which have been conducted in many schools for years have not led to any large-scale correction of the shortcomings in far-point vision.

A recent study of female office workers who had been out of school less than two years found have uncorrected low acuity. It's believed that if these girls had been given early correction they would not have made such a poor showing. Seeing faults, corrected at the earliest possible age, cut down on the amount of visual trouble that people will have to endure in adult years.

Ancient Lighthouse Gets New Paint Coat

CAPE ELIZABETH, Me.-The famed, oft-photographed, oft-painted old Portland Head Light has a new coat of paint—after 165 years.

The famed lighthouse, a pioneer United States public works project, was painted when put into service in 1791. Periodically ever since it has been whitewashed. The inexpensive process was right in line with the frugality attending its erection when President George Washington ordered the 80-foot tower built of local field stone and brick by Portland-area stonemasons. Not long ago science developed a plastic vinyl weather-resistant paint, since adopted to coat aids to navigation. The Coast Guard rigged boatswain's chairs and applied about 30 gallons of the new stuff-white-to the spraydrenched, rock-bedded old bea-

Basement Oil Gusher Brings Big Surprise

ROYAL OAK, Mich.—It's like a dream come true when an oil "gusher" sprouts forth unexpectedly, but Harry Lamborn's joy over the gusher he found in his basement turned to sorrow when the oil company crew arrived to deodorize the basement.

Not a "strike" at all, the oil company employees explained. It just happened that an over-eager delivery man had overfilled Lamborn's oil tank earlier in the day.

The crew had been sent to clean up the mess left by more than 100 gallons of oil which overflowed onto the tiled floor in the base-

HELLO, FOLKS:

Well, after a hard days work in the harvest fields we think you might enjoy a joke or two — so we're just going to say that we wholesale and retail those famous Union Lubricants — delivered to you (just phone 1251) - and sell those famous U.S. Royal Tires for cars, trucks, etc., and take better care of your car at this service station - and then devote the rest of this space to just plain fun:

3.3 . . . A little boy was about to purchase a ticket for a movie in the afternoon when the box office girl asked: "Why aren't you in school, young fellow?" 'Oh, it's all right, Miss," said the youngster earnestly, "I've got the measles."

Hostess: "I hope my husband wasn't rude when he asked you to Pianist: "Oh, no, he only asked that I do not play one tune. Hostess: "And what was that?" Pianist: "He said don't play 'For the Love of Mike'."

Small Boy: "Could I please have two balloons?"

Advertiser: "Well, usually we give just one balloon to eachchild. Do you have a brother at home?" Small Boy: "No, but my sister has, and I want it for him!"

"I took up golf to develop self-control," a man confided to his
