SCHOOL NOTES

tory has been committed. Someone has stolen turkeys and butter from the Hot Lunch program. The food was stored in Blewett's Lockers. The Hot Lunch has stored these government donated commodities there for years without previous loss. We have lockers there, but have not had sufficient space to put everything under lock and key, and had never before thought it necessary. The guilty party or parties apparently failed to realize that they have committed a crime against the federal government.

These commodities have been allocated to the Hot Lunch program by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, and are therefore under Federal regulations until consumed. Any information that will lead to the arrest of the guilty party or parties should be transmitted to the local school authorities.

Wednesday before Thanksgiving the children of the fourth grade English class, being inspired by the Thanksgiving dinner, wrote some very interesting little rhymes. Some of them are:

Thanksgiving is here,
Yes, siree!
My mother is a dear,
She cooked turk-e-e-y.
— Ricky Ray Rogers.

Thanksgiving Day is coming,
What a good day it will be,
We'll have turkey with dressing,
Oh, it will be good for me!
— Glen Stratmeyer.

Thanksgiving is fun,
'Cause there's always lots to eat,
And then when you're done
You can always rest your feet.
— Dana E. Magnuson.

There's a turkey in the ice box,
There's a cake upon the shelf,
And I know when someone knocks,
I can eat a lot myself.

Life Insurance Funds Going To Nation's Defense Plants

Life insurance funds are moving to the aid of the defense activities of the country in increasing volume, and loans made by the life insurance companies in support of the defense program may reach $3,500,000,000 for 1957, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

"In keeping with the usual policy of directing new funds into channels where they may be most useful for the national economy, the current trend in life insurance investments is towards meeting the capital needs of the preparedness program," Holgar J. Johnson, Institute president, commented. "This is in line with the voluntary credit restraint program under which defense needs have precedence over all other elements in the economy. Defense financing now accounts for the greater part of the life insurance company placement of policyholder funds in business and industry."

More than $1,000,000,000 has been loaned by the life insurance companies so far this year to defense plants and indications are that a like amount may be loaned in the remaining months of the year.

In addition, some $800,000,000 has this year been invested in loans to utility companies and railroads, which are basically involved in all defense activities. This amount may be nearly doubled by the end of the year. Thus, the total of financing made available during the entire year for defense industries or defense-supporting activities may come to $3,500,000,000.

The loans for defense or defense-supporting purposes represent two-thirds of all loans made in the first six months by the life companies to business and industrial concerns, and the ratio has been increasing since mid-year.

Contrary To Superstition, Oysters Edible Year-Round

Contrary to superstition, oysters are edible in all 12 months. Hot-weather shipping problems helped to build the R-month legend. The taboo remains appropriate even with modern refrigerated transportation, however, since May to August is the natural spawning season. The adult female oyster's feat of discharging as many as a half-billion eggs in this season leaves her a bit too thinned down for prime succulence.

Shad were surpassed only by cod and salmon among U.S. commercial fisheries before the turn of the century. Overfishing, industrial pollution, and high dams barring the way to upstream spawning grounds have forced shad far down on the list now. Although the Chesapeake Bay still accounts for one fish out of three, the total catch is less than one-fifth that of 19th century peak seasons.

Crabs, alewives, rockfish, croakers, sea trout, and menhaden all figure importantly in Chesapeake Bay commerce. Like oysters and shad, they are studied for rehabilitation purposes by such organizations as the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory at Solomons, Maryland, and the Chesapeake Bay Institute, Baltimore.

Pearls and Pipelines

Iranian nationalists have laid verbal claim to Bahrain, oil-rich island across the Persian Gulf where Arabian dhows put in bearing huge milky pearls from the sea floor. Persia has been claiming Bahrain without avail since 1783, however. An independent sheikdom under British protection, Bahrain is the site of an American oil field and refinery. Saudi Arabia's oil wells were joined with the Mediterranean coast in 1950 by the competition of Tapline, a 1,068-mile, 30-inch pipeline across the burning Arabian desert. American and British engineers proposed to build next an even bigger "Middle East Inch" (34-36 inches in diameter) from Abadan to the Mediterranean. Iran's oil would thus be linked by a tunnel of steel with the Western world—if the hot desert wind from Tehran does not blow the project away.

Turbans

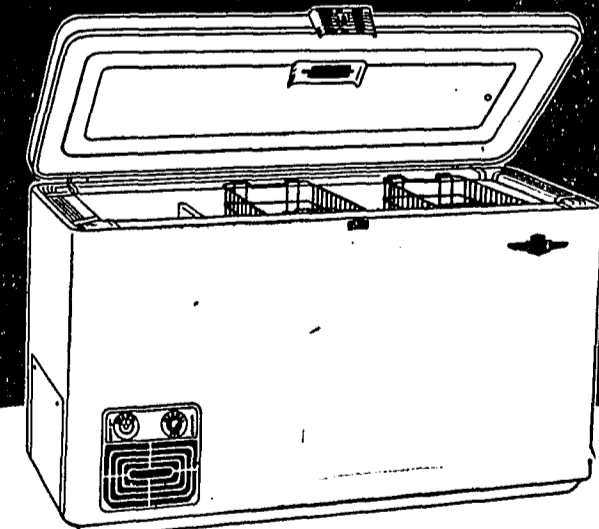

In a survey of "fashions down through the ages," made by The Book House For Children the turban was found to be a favorite head covering of many ancient peoples, among them, the Armenians, Babylonians, and Phoenicians. Today's favorites include variations of the cloche, beret, and "beanie," a small disc of felt or straw that is anchored to the head, usually with hatpin or veiling.

Color Blindness

Most common in color blindness is the confusion of red and green, which may affect as many as 80 men and 5 women per thousand population. One person out of several thousand has trouble with yellows and blues. Very rare is complete color-blindness, in which everything is seen as black, gray and white. Not more than a hundred such cases have been reported in the scientific literature. Even a partially color-blind person usually learns to name colors properly a great deal of the time. For example, one with red-green deficiency may learn by experience that what he sees as dull dark yellow is really red, while a light yellowish-gray is what other people call green.

Cost Of Education Per Pupil
 What does it cost to educate a child in the schools of Idaho for one year? Legislators, educators and specially parents and taxpayers, will be vitally interested in that question during the next few months, with a legislative session in the offing. The Public Relations committee of the Idaho Education Association is endeavoring to provide the answers to this and many other questions concerning education through the newspapers of the state.

Trying to judge the quality of education on a dollars and cents basis is difficult, if not dangerous. There can be too much variation in such expenses as teachers' salaries, building maintenance, utilities, etc., to say that $20 spent per child provides twice as good an education as $10. By and large, however, states spending more per student provide better teachers, better buildings and more instructional benefits than states spending less.

Where do we stand in Idaho? Figures obtained from school finance officers in the other western states revealed that we stand at the bottom, with a total cost of $225 per child per year. Wyoming spends $350 per child; Montana, $342; Oregon, $350; and Washington spends $300. Even Utah, next to Idaho at the bottom, spends $16 more per child per year. The amount spent in each state does not tell the whole story either. If we attempt to provide equal education for all students in our state, we are faced with the fact that the "assessed valuation behind each student" can vary in some school districts from as little as $2,000 to as much as $20,000. With local tax sources varying that much, only contributions on the state level can help to equalize educational opportunity. In that light, how does Idaho stack up with her western neighbors?

The most recent figures available show Idaho next to the bottom, with a $61 contribution per child per year. Only Colorado stood lower, but her $59 per child was expected to double as a result of recent legislative action. Compare Idaho's $61 with $150 in Wyoming, $224 in Nevada, and $233 in Washington. The low level of state contribution to our schools can not help but mean much greater variation in the quality of educational opportunity in our state.

The citizens of Idaho have a right to know where we stand regarding our schools and their problems. Concerning this one question, that of cost per pupil in the state, we stand at the bottom.

Standard's educational program helps provide college training for 286 students this year

Industry needs many trained minds with specialized knowledge. For example, the paleontologist who supplies accurate data for oil exploration by studying fossils of marine life from millions of years ago.

THEY CALL THIS THE 'ATOMIC AGE... the era of the "thinking" machine. But above all, this is the age of human thought. For today our country needs more and more skilled minds to harness our atoms, advance our culture and guide our government. Standard, too, needs fresh concepts to maintain its position in a highly competitive business. That's why this year Standard's educational program makes available, through colleges, 234 scholarships for undergraduate study, 52 fellowships for graduate work, plus a series of grants to universities.

In these ways, Standard affords young people throughout the country a better opportunity to contribute to their professions and communities.
