Greetings To All

Under date of Dec. 9, 1956, from Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Schmidt, now at Metlakatla, Alaska, comes the following letter:

Dear Friends of the Kendrick-Juliaetta Area:

Two months ago today we boarded a plane in Seattle, bound for Alaska. Less than three hours later we were at the manse in Metlakatla. It all seems so long ago!

Now we are nearing the Holiday Season and are, as usual, too busy with various organizations and preparations within the church to be sure we are keeping Christ in Christmas! Do you do that, too? Maybe we need to make a New Year's resolu-

We have much snow this winter, which is most unusual. The carillonic bells are pealing out Christmas music from the towers of the church. Seattle has nothing on us. Someone will play the chimes during the noon hour each day from now until Christmas. We have been well, and busier than we ever were at Kendrick. We are sure you spoiled us, but we loved it.

And now, as always, our thoughts and prayers go out for you all. May the church, pastors and people be greatly blessed during this anniversary of the dear Savior's birth. May the work of His Kingdom prosperhere — there — everywhere — in 1957. — The Schmidts.

high during November, though the report does reflect the beginning of the seasonal decline from October's high total. There was 184 cases processed during November, as compared with 265 during the previous month. Arrests are up this fall over last, there being 140 cases processed during November of 1955. As might be expected, hunting violations accounted for most of the list, but there also were 25 cases for wrong class of license, and nine for fishing law violations. Of the hunting cases, 81 involved big game, including 16 for failure to stop at checking stations 46 involved birds, including nine for violation of laws protecting swan, and 18 miscellaneous.

Fines totaled $6,527.00. The largest was one for $300 levied on a northern Idaho man for hunting deer after hours with the aid of artificial light, and without a license. Several fines ranging from $100 to $200 were set for moose, elk, swan and wrong class of license cases.

a post-war record of $500 million this

West German purchases from the United States are expected to total $900 million for the year, making America this nation's "most important" trade partner.

Dr. Georg Schaller, director of the German-American Trade Promotion Association, released these figures, saying:

"Both as regards West German sales to the United States and German purchases of American goods, an absolute post-war record will be established this year."

In an interview Dr. Schaller said: "During the first half of 1955, the United States was West Germany's sixth best customer. During the second half of this year the United States moved up to fourth place. I consider it possible that by the end of this year the United States will have become the second greatest purchaser of West German goods. The Netherlands is West Germany's biggest customer."

An Electric Dryer heads her "Christmas Wish List"

This Christmas, give her an electric dryer-the one gift she wants most of all. It's a time-saver, work-saver, and worrysaver-a gift that will cut hours of work from every busy week, year after year after year. Give an electric dryer, and you give freedom from the back breaking lifting, carrying and stretching of old fashioned clothesline drudgery. Whatever the weather, a dryer makes clothes so fluffy soft, so wrinkle free that ironing time is cut in half. And a dryer's gentle action makes clothes last longer, too. No wonder every woman wants an electric dryer! Visit your appliance dealer soon - he'll show you how easily you can make Christmas wishes come true.

State and Local Capital Outlays Set New Record

NEW YORK-With expansion of highway and school systems setting the pace, State and local governments combined have spent a total of almost $60 billions in the 1947-55 period as capital outlays on public works, according to data made public jointly by the U.S. Departments of Labor and Commerce.

These capital expenditures for the last nine years added up to about as much as the total State and municipal spending on all public works for the four and one-half decades from the turn of the century through World War II. Higher prices, of course, represent an important influence in magnitude of the spending figures today as compared with the past. Two other major factors are the spectacular growth of population, notably in the suburb's, over recent years, and the abnormally low level of public works spending during the Second World War.

The level attained by State and local capital expenditu. • 5 has been a significant influence on the economy and its expansion. This is particularly true with respect to construction, which has been taking about 85 cents of every dollar of state and local capital expenditures in recent years.

The impact on the capital market also has been substantial. In the early post-World War II period, State and local governments combined borrowed less than half their annual capital expenditures in each of those years. The borrowing proportion was up to a new high of about 60 per cent in 1955, and came to an estimated $61/2 billions of new funds exclusive of a substantial amount of additional borrowing by State and local governments for other than capital outlays.

More Workers Than Labor Figures Show

NEW YORK-The total working population of the United States, counting everyone who does some renumerative work during the course of the year, is millions greater than the regular employment of labor force figures show.

Data compiled by the U.S. Bureau of the Census show that at least 75½ million different persons worked at some time all or part of last year. This record total is more than 12 million greater than the monthly average of 63.2 million persons who were reported as employed in 1955. It tops the whole civilian labor force, which averaged 65.8 million persons for 1955, by close to 10 million.

The figures on the total number of workers in the United States are obtained by the Census Bureau from special surveys covering the work experience of the population 14 years old and over during the course of a year. The figures exclude persons who had worked during the year but who had entered the Armed Forces, emigrated from the country, or died before the date of the survey.

Roentgen Tube Placed In National Museum

WASHINGTON-One of the first X-ray tubes employed by Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen (1845-1923) has been placed on permanent exhibition at the U.S. National Museum, Smithsonian Institution. The tube was purchased from a private owner in Germany and presented to the Institution by the General Electric's X-ray Department of Milwaukee.

It was Roentgen, professor of physics at the University of Wurzburg, Germany, who on November .8. 1895, discovered a new radiation that could penetrate wood and other dense objects. These rays were called "X-rays" by Roentgen on account of their unknown nature, but they are now also known as Roentgen rays after their discoverer.

Cats Are Animals Most Subject to Anemia

CHICAGO-Of all the domestic animals, the cat probably suffers most often and most severely from Cats have an ability to hoard their forces under conditions of limited oxygen uptake, and veterinarians report that often a severe aenmia may develop in a cat before there are definite symptoms to attract the owners attention.

Infection seems to be a frequent cause of severe cat anemia-more so than in other animals. Indications are, veterinarians say, that dietary factors have only a minor role in the problem.

Watch It - At Christmas! Detroit — Christmas is a joyous, bustling and exciting season. And it is just these elements that too often contribute to tragic accidents, according to the National Safety Coun-

Both motorists and pedestrians are apt to be so preoccupied with holiday plans and festivities that they let their guard down in traffic - and that's when accidents are most likely to occur, says the Council. Here are suggestions for a safe holiday sea-

1. Stay alert. Don't let excitement divert your attention from careful driving and cautious walking. 2. Slow down. Inclement weather and more hours of darkness during the holiday season make it doubly important to reduce speed. Don't be over-anxious to reach that gala party or to complete your Christmas shopping. Last Christmas, excessive speed was the most frequent driver vio-

3. Be a careful pedestrian. More than half of the traffic accidents at Christmas time involve pedestrians. Don't let your enthusiasm over selecting the right gifts cause you to forget common-sense safety rules. Never carry packages in such a way that your vision is blocked. Most important, cross only at corners and pedestrian crosswalks. Never dart into traffic from between parked cars. When you get into your car, do so from the curb side - never on the traffic side.

4. Be a "cool" driver. The holiday: rush and bustle often leads to tensions and impatience. Traffic is always heavy. Control your temper when behind the wheel and never take unnecessary chances.

5. If you drink, don't drive. At holiday social affairs where drinks are served, don't drive if you have had even "one for the road." If you want one "for the road" make it milk, tea or coffee!

Christmas Tree Industry Huge The United States is the world's leading source of supply as well as the top buyer in the Christmas tree industry — a better than $50,000,000 business, The majority of our Christmas trees come from New England, New York and Pennsylvania, the north middlewest, and the Pacific Northwest. In recent years, New Jersey has annually marketed around 100,-000 trees for local use. Most of the trees for Christmas sales are cut early in the fall and are kept green with plenty of water until shipped to distribution centers in the cities. Some mass producers, however, cut trees in late summer and treat them with preservatives and coloring solutions and store in chilled ware-

Outdoor Christmas Trees

Quite a number of outdoor Christmas trees have made their appearance in Kendrick this past week - some in yards, some on porches - but all gaily decorated with strings of colored lights - all adding to the Christmas appearance of the community.

We might add that quite a number of entrance decorations have also made their annual appearance.
