Mr. Clark was the driver of the car. They were starting up a slight incline near the Dave Gennier home on Fix ridge as the Gennier school bus, driven by Raymond Jones approached from the other direction. Highway Safety Picture Is Held Not So Realistic

MINNEAPOLIS—Americans are being "deluded" into thinking that highway safety is improving while in reality the increasing accident problem has created an urgent need for immediate strengthening of law enforcement efforts, according to a recent statement by Thomas N. Boate, manager of the Accident Prevention Department of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies.

Boate denounced present systems for measuring highway safety in terms of deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles of travel and called for "aggressive law enforcement by the police and the courts" in order to curb the nation's "alarming upsurge" in traffic deaths.

"In dealing with the cause and effect of highway accidents," he said, "we should not be concerned with the rise and fall of a statistical flow chart. The practice by the nation and by the states of publicly measuring the degree of safety on the streets and highways on the basis of fatalities per 100,000,000 vehicle miles of travel is not only a travesty upon the truth but is dangerously misleading in its application."

He suggested: an absolute top speed limit of 60 miles per hour for multiple lane and limited access highways; strengthening of state police forces; new and more effective traffic laws and educational programs to provide training for every new and young driver.

"Today, and for some years to come," he added, "the most important element in this or any other productive safety program is aggressive law enforcement by the police and the courts. I say this because the record shows that the public has not yet demonstrated the ability or the willingness to handle the automobile without being carefully regulated and strictly controlled."

Christmas Seal Sales Originated 50 Years Ago

Some 3,000 voluntary tuberculosis associations throughout the United States and its territories are observing the 50th annual Christmas Seal Sale, which began November 15 and continues through December 31. This traditional event by which funds are raised for the prevention and control of tuberculosis had its beginning in Wilmington, Delaware, in 1907.

A group of Delaware doctors were experimenting with new methods of treating TB in a modest hospital which was little more than a group of shacks. For lack of $500, they faced the possibility of having to close the hospital and send the patients home—perhaps to die. They turned for help to Miss Emily Bissell, the Delaware Red Cross executive. Miss Bissell recalled reading of a special Christmas stamp sold in Denmark to raise funds for the sick and needy. She designed her own Christmas stamp, organized a campaign, and opened the sale of Seals on December 7.

Sales were disappointingly slow at first, and Miss Bissell turned to a great American newspaper for help. This was the turning point. With the enthusiastic backing of the Philadelphia NORTH AMERICAN and columnist Leigh Mitchell Hodges, the first Christmas Seal Sale was an overwhelming success. Instead of $500, a total of $3,000 was raised, with contributions coming from distant states where the NORTH AMERICAN was read. The following year the Christmas Seal Sale was held in 33 states, and it quickly grew to cover the whole country. In the early years, before tuberculosis associations were as widespread as they are today, newspapers frequently acted as local sponsors of the Christmas Seal Sale. Through the years the support of local newspapers has been a major contribution to the fight against tuberculosis.

Musical Activity On Big Upswing

CHICAGO — The current upsurge of musical activity in the United States—more than 27,050,000 Americans are now playing musical instruments—is reflected in the steady growth of community and neighborhood adult music groups.

The nation's adults have developed an increasing interest in music-making, with their musical tastes sharpened by constant association with radio, record and television offerings. Day and evening classes in music are filled with businessmen, housewives, clerks, scientists and professional persons who learn to play the piano, organ, band or stringed instruments.

In many instances, amateur musicians are aided in forming music groups by community councils composed of representatives from the town's civic, educational, cultural and recreational organizations. At least 500 of these groups have been formed and more are in preparation.

Occupations draw people together musically. For instance, in Duluth, Minnesota, groups of business men and women meet once a month to share ensemble music and to give solo performances for one another. There is a special section for students who share their music at hospitals.

Lack of Maturity Cause Of College Failures

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa.—Dr. Harold K. Wilson, who for the last six years has concerned himself primarily with the academic lag, blames lack of maturity for the inability of many high school graduates to make the college grade.

Dr. Wilson, director of the Division of Intermediate Registration at the Pennsylvania State University, also inclined to believe that the home rather than the school is to blame for this immaturity in college age youngsters.

Parents, in the opinion of the Penn State specialist, too often fail to instill in their children a sense of responsibility and such essential qualities as self-discipline, independence and the ability to make decisions.

"The immature student who has treated high school as a lark and comes to college with the same irresponsible attitude, all too soon finds himself in difficulties with his studies," he points out.

What Causes Spots Before Your Eyes?

MINNEAPOLIS—Ever see dots before your eyes? Floating specks or little hair-like curls—cues?

Most people sooner or later experience "vitreous opacities"— medical terminology for the specks or filaments that seem to float or dart about in front of the vision, but which are really floating inside the eye, in the vitreous humor or jelly-like substance that fills it.

Violent emotion—anger, fear, worry—can actually cause "spots before the eyes," which may be minute chemical precipitations which usually soon disappear. Such effects can also result from lowered physical condition, nervous tension or high blood pressure, according to leading eye specialists consulted in the preparation of the insurance firm's bulletin on the subject.

Most of the floating specks or filaments, however, are the remains of waste cells detached from the interior membranes of the eye; others, usually denser, result from broken blood vessels and are sometimes slight, sometimes serious.

Buckwheat Cakes Fading From the Home

WASHINGTON—America's old-time winter breakfast, a stack of golden-brown buckwheat cakes, complete with maple syrup and sage-flavored homemade sausage, may be going the way of the buffalo.

Last year the United States buckwheat crop was at its lowest ebb (2,055,000 bushels) since records were first kept in 1866, says the National Geographic Society. High point of the nine decades came in 1905, with nearly 16,000,000 bushels. By 1944 the figure had dropped to less than 9,000,000 bushels, in 1954 to 2,740,000.

Popular demand has tapered off for the tangy griddle cakes that grandmother used to make.

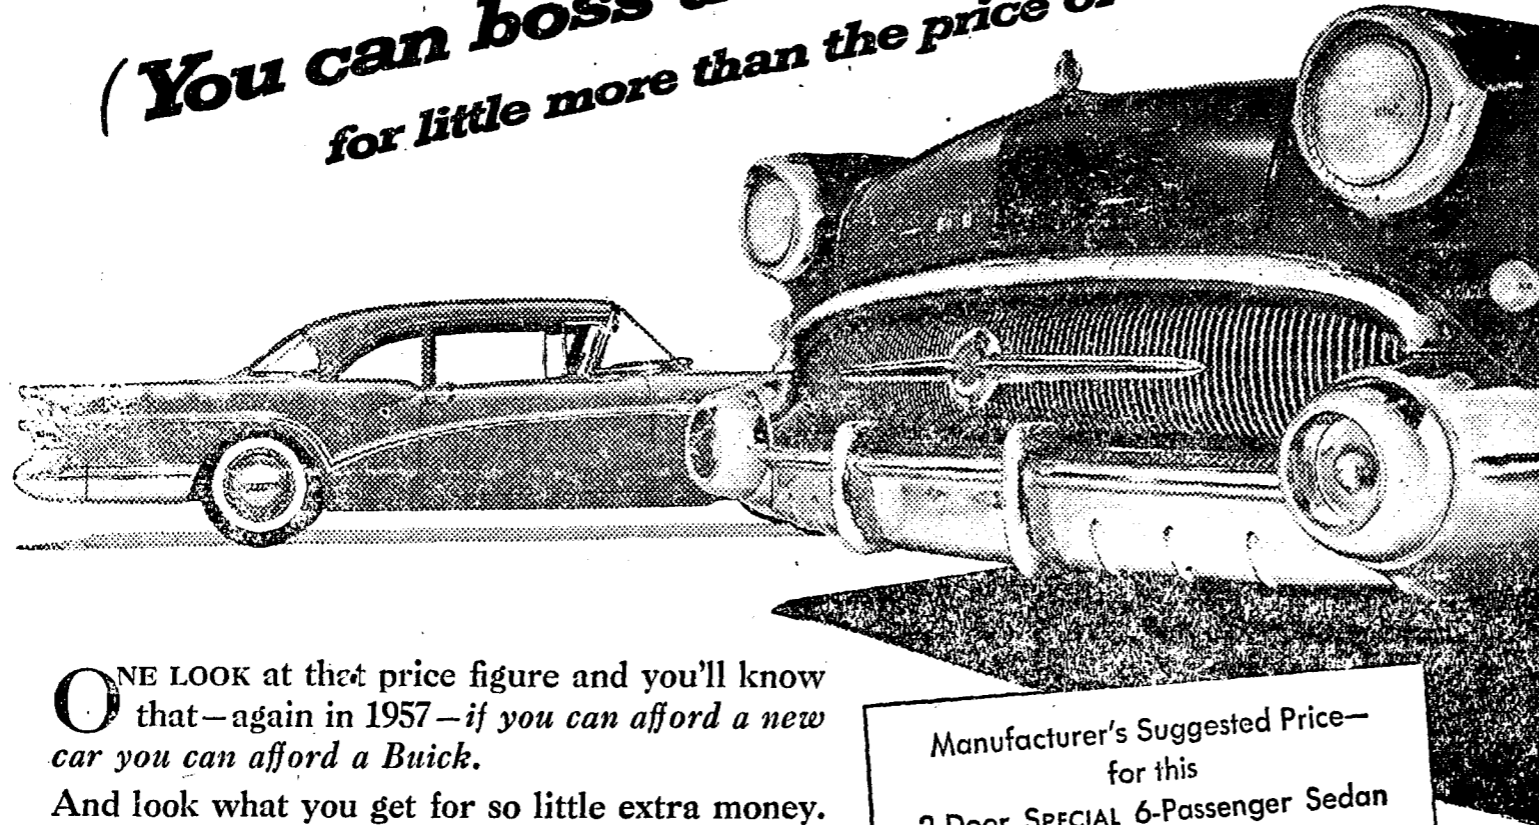

Hurried workers find little time for the old flapjacks whose yeast-mixed batter was left to stand overnight, then lovingly turned, cake by cake, for proper color and melt-in-mouth goodness.

But buckwheat still has many uses and partisans in the United States and around the world. Russia is the leading producer with an estimated 50,000,000 bushels annually. Other important growers include France, Germany, Poland, Canada and Japan.

First Is Texas

DALLAS — Texas kept a firm grip on one of its many "firsts" when the 1956 State Fair of Texas closed down with a total attendance of 2,672,252 during the two week run, 60,982 above the last year's attendance mark.

IT'S TIME TO PLAN THAT 4-H PIG CLUB PROJECT

Your assistant county agent, John Moore reports that it is time for 4-H'ers to start pigs on feed for the Spokane Junior Livestock Show to be held in May. If 4-H members are planning to exhibit hogs at the Spokane Junior Show, May 7-10, they should either have them on feed now or select them very soon. In selecting your pigs remember that well cared for pigs will reach market weight at about five to six months of age. The weight limits on market hogs are between 180 and 240 pounds, so you must select pigs of proper size and age in order to hit the proper weight.

In selecting hogs it is very important to choose "meat" type. The "meat type" is medium in all respects — in length, width and depth of body. They are heavily muscled in the hams, loins and shoulders. They are thick and firm fleshed. They will yield a high percentage (about 50 percent) of the carcass in the three lean cuts of hams, loins and shoulders. They use feed efficiently and gain weight rapidly. You will want to select pigs of this type for your project.

When you have selected meat-type weaner pigs, the next important item is the feeding and care of them.

Protein is the important nutrient for pigs at weaning. When they leave their mother, they lose an important source of protein — the mother's milk, as sow milk contains about 35 percent protein. This must be replaced by adding to the ration some feed high in protein from both animal and vegetable source. Young pigs cannot handle bulky feed, so use a minimum of hay in the ration. The following formulas are suggested for feeding your pigs from weaning to about 75 pounds in weight:

Ration 1: Barley, 25 lbs.; wheat, 20 lbs.; oats, 25 lbs.; ground alfalfa hay, 5 lbs.; meat meal, 10 lbs.; fish meal, 5 lbs.; soybean meal, 10 lbs. for a total of 100 lbs. of feed.

Ration No. 2: Barley, 15 lbs.; wheat, 30 lbs.; oats, 20 lbs.; ground alfalfa hay, 5 lbs.; meat meal, 15 lbs.; soybean meal, 5 lbs.; peas, 10 lbs., for a total of 100 lbs.

Add to either of above 1 1/2 lbs. of a mineral mixture composed of 2 pounds of oyster shell flour; 2 lbs. steamed bone meal, and 1 lb. of iodized salt.

After the pigs reach 75 pounds in weight the protein content of the ration can be decreased gradually. There are rations set up for different weight hogs and you can secure these at the county extension office.

Extreme care should be taken at all times to prevent your hogs from becoming diseased. Sickness and parasites can set the pigs back so they might not make the weight requirements for the show, and this also cuts into your profits. Animals need clean lots and shelters. A warm shelter free from drafts is important during cold weather.

Hogs need water. Don't forget to supply them with all the warm water they want. It is important to keep the water from freezing, as pigs will not drink all they should if the water is icy cold.

Home economists say detergents are usually better than soap in the family wash — unless that water is quite soft.

Fresh fish — Salmon, Halibut and Oysters at Blewett's Market, Kendrick. Arrives Thursday. adv

Why Not A PUD Vote?

A week ago we deplored what we deem a weakness in state Public Utility District law which allows a board of three to bond its people for huge sums in order to take over a private power facility by condemnation without a popular vote.

Kittitas PUD was, indeed, voted into being in 1936. It has since operated through the Rural Electrification Administration to provide service to remote areas which otherwise would go unserved. REA is the government's answer to an economic problem, and may be considered logical. But, because there never has been an actively contested election for Kittitas PUD commissioners, we do not believe the PUD can assume its people suddenly want to be bonded for the purchase of Puget Sound Power & Light facilities there.

If, as Mr. Fleming, Kittitas PUD manager, intimates, Kittitas people want such a move, then what is wrong with letting them say so? A striking parallel occurred in Stevens County in 1955. PUD and private customers alike voted 5 to 2 to sell all PUD holdings to Washington Water Power, a private firm. Earlier, the PUD had insisted that its people wanted public power, but public opinion urged the PUD board to call for a vote, although the law did not force it.

As Mr. Fleming says, cities do issue revenue bonds without a vote of the people. But, in Yakima and other cities, commissioners learn their people's wishes swiftly and unmistakably. Can that be possible in a wide-spread county PUD?

Mr. Fleming cites revenue bond issues floated recently by other PUD boards. Each illustration involves money spent for developing more power, adding new kilowatts to the Northwest Power Pool. Doesn't that seem quite different from the Kittitas proposal? There they would bond merely to buy out a private firm which sells power now at an average rate of 1.19 cents per kilowatt hour. Kittitas PUD's 1954 rate was 1.5 cents. Any bonding firm would hesitate to allow a cut equal to or below Puget Sound rates. Perhaps Kittitas customers of Puget Sound Power & Light would like to switch to PUD service under those conditions. We doubt it. Nobody knows. Can there be any objection, then, to a vote?

Reprinted from the Yakima Herald, Jan. 16, 1957, as a public service by The Washington Water Power Company.

Safety First — Always!
 An army sanitation officer learned that a certain area in Korea was reported to have bad drinking water so he decided to investigate.

He arrived on the spot and began questioning an old master sergeant about precautions being taken from drinking impure water.

"Well, first we boil the water," the old veteran said. "Then we put it in lister bags to keep it pure."

As the S. O. began nodding approvingly, the sergeant finished with, "And then, just to be on the safe side, we all drink beer!"

Fair Enough
 "Do you ever have to hurry to catch your morning train, Tom?"

"Well, Jack, it's fairly even. Either I'm standing on the platform when it comes puffing in, or I puff in while it's standing at the platform."

ELECTRIC HEATING

Electric is the most healthful heating system in use today. A silent, even distribution of warm, fresh air heats rooms from floor to ceiling. There are no "cold" or "hot" blasts of air. Soot, smoke, dust, fuel odors and drafts are practically eliminated. Every room can be heated to just the right temperature because of individual room temperature controls. Fuel storage and furnaces are no longer necessary and this means more "living space." Today electric is the choice of over 7,000 WWP customers and every year hundreds more switch from fire to wire heating. Why not convert to electric today? No need to wait until summer. A conversion can be made at any time without disrupting your present system.

estimate your cost of operation and installation and offer you a list of the qualified electrical heating contractors in your area. Remember, it is important that you have a properly engineered system for maximum efficiency and economy. No obligation. This is a free service to any WWP customer.

FREE ELECTRIC HEATING BROCHURE . . .

. . . a complete explanatory brochure on modern electric home heating. "Heat your home the modern electric way." Includes general information on the kinds and types of electric heating now available. For your free copy write or phone your nearest WWP Company office.

See our electric heating expert at your nearest WWP Co. office. He can explain the various systems of modern electric heating.

HELLO, FOLKS:

Yep, we'll admit that the weather is considerably more spring-like, but the time when you can do without a fire is a long-time-off — so to insure comfort in your home pick up your phone and call 1251 — say "Fill 'er up" and we'll do just that, with those famous Union Burner Oils or Stove Oil. One try will convince you, of their clean, hot comfort.

WAVE: "Here's you ring, I love another."

Sailor: "Who, is he?"

WAVE: "You're not going to kill him!"

Sailor: "Heck no. I'm going to try to sell him, the ring!"

Tires getting a little bald? But you don't want to buy another set of winter tires? If so, come in and let us tractionize them. The cost is low — results large.

Mother: "I'm worried about our little son's health. A great part of the time he doesn't feel at all well."

Doctor: "When is it that he seems to feel the worst?"

Mother: "When he's in school."

Bring in your car, pickup or truck and let us grease it from end to end, drain out that worn winter oil and replace with wonderful Royal Triton. You can feel the difference in performance!

"But dear," gushed the girl, "is it fair to go to the show with a boy you don't like?"

"Well, it's like this," replied her friend. "I enjoy the show and he enjoys my company."
