"Brethren," said the prohibitionist,

The sat down, and in the pause that followed, the parson, himself an enemy of prohibition, arose and announced: "We shall now close by joining in singing Hymn 157; 'Shall We Gather at the River'?"

recoverable oil, driving it underground to nearby producing wells.

MANY INACTIVE WELLS STILL HAVE LOTS OF OIL left underground in spite of the industry's great advances in oil recovery. Our country must have this oil to meet the growing power requirements of industry, the Armed Forces and motorists. That's why Standard is trying a new conservation experiment called "fire flooding."

We ignite some of the oil in a pool...control burning by regulating the air supply. Heat and pressure drive the oil to surrounding wells for pumping. It will take more than a year's time and a million dollars to see if fire flooding works. We think it's worth the effort because it could add more to U.S. underground oil reserves than the discovery of an entire new oil field.

1966 8,827,000 13,000,000

Standard's petroleum engineers say, "Back in 1925 the industry could predict only about 20% recovery from a new field. Modern secondary recovery methods, of which fire flooding is one of the latest, could more than double recovery."

Can't Tell Man's Work by Official Job Title, Maybe

WASHINGTON-If it is true that "men must work and women must weep," they at least may find a smile in the names and natures of some of America's gainful occupations.

Listen to the lilt of the bushingand-bung-boring machine operator; the wrinkle-chaser in a boot or shoe factory; the joy loader in a coal mine, the pulpit man in a steel mill, or the stiff-leg derrick operator on a construction job.

These are but a few of the 60,000 names affixed to the 24,000 different jobs defined in the United States Department of Labor's Dictionary of Occupational Titles.

It recognizes many a laborer whose services might otherwise be taken for granted; the cracker stacker, doll-eye setter, baseball glove stuffer, back-pocket attacher, bologna lacer, fan-mail clerk, and the ribbon-tier who makes red bows on valentines.

It also inspires sympathy for those who work under such psychologically hazardous titles as knee-pants operator, bag holder, bottom man, plodderman, moocher, leacher, bumper, knocker, neck cutter, on-and-off man, first faller and former man. Happily, on the uplifting side, there's a backer-up, bucker-up and build-up

Many job titles can mislead the innocent. The flapper, for example is a male copper worker; the gandydancer lays and repairs railroad tracks; the boarder shapes and removes wrinkles from nylon stockings, while the tipper dresses

Good Health Key To Happy Old Age

CHICAGO—Average life expectancy has risen from 48 years in 1900 to over 69 years today, and there are more than 14,000,000 Americans in the 65-plus bracket.

All this is very fine, but it poses the question, what are we going to do with those years of extended living? Elderly people who are sound in mind and body can enjoy their leisure and take pleasure in worth-while work of one kind or another. But it's a different story for those who are mentally or physically incapacitated. •

As our physical strength wanes, we have to keep our interests or our minds will rust away. It's significant that more than 30 per cent of the people who enter men tal institutions in New York City are over 65 years old. Special community activities arranged for oldsters have been found to help them out of such institutions, indicating that an interested mind is more liable to remain sound than a bored, frustrated one.

New Type Lawn Through Plug-In Technique

LOS ANGELES - Tired of the type of grass in your current lawn? Improved techniques of literally plugging in a new type may make it possible to change your entire lawn next spring.

UCLA horticultural scientists outline four major steps:

Obtain four-inch (diameter) plugs of turf of the type of grass you desire to introduce. Special tools for this process are available commercially.

Drill holes in your lawn large enough to accommodate these plugs.

Put generous quantities of fertilizer in the holes and spray the surrounding grass with maleic hydrazide; a growth inhibitor.

Insert plugs of the new grass in the holes. Nine to twelve inch spacing between plugs is recommended. Introduction of these plugging techniques is not new, but it has not been successful in existing turfs because the established grass resists the new grass too strongly. However, spraying with maleic hydrazide checks the growth of existing turf during critical period while new grass in plugs is establishing new roots.

Ground Glass Is New Potassium Fertilizer

LOS ANGELES - And now,

ground glass for fertilizer! A special type of ground glass has been developed at the University of California to furnish potassium to plants slowly and for prolonged periods.

The finely ground glass, known as potassium frit, has a very little weathering rate and extremely low solubility, making it ideal as a fertilizer to supply potassium under conditions where it would normally leach away rapidly.

Parental Guidance Can Greatly Help Speech Deficiency

CHICAGO-Guidance of mothers in the early management of speech behavior of their children may help prevent speech defects in mentally normal children, according to a study of 290 mentallynormal children with speech defects. It was done by Dr. Benjamin Pasamanick, Francis K. Constantinou, R.N., and Dr. Abraham M. Lilienfeld.

In earlier investigations the physicians found that childbirth abnormalties are significant in the background of cerebral palsy, epilepsy, mental deficiency, and some childhood behavior disorders. They thought speech defects might also be related to such abnormalities, because specific injury to the brain in adults has been reported to result in speech defects and because speech disorders are very common among children with cerebral palsy and mental deficiency.

Records of 290 children, born in Baltimore since 1940, with speech defects but without mental deficiency or cerebral palsy showed no more complications of pregnancy and delivery, prematurity, or abnormal conditions of the newborn than did records of a similar number of normal children without speech defects.

However, the discovery that there were more twins and more later-born (third, fourth or fifth) children in the speech defective group, suggests that psychological and social factors play a role in causing speech defects, they said.

Diabetes Retards Growth of Cancer

LOS ANGELES-Diabetic mice, inflicted with cancer, live longer than nondiabetic, cancerous mice and the tumor grows much more slowly in them than in nondiabetic

So report Dr. Ralph McKee and Jo Ann Jehl of the department of physiological chemistry at the UCLA Medical School.

Mice were injected with alloxan. which acts on the insulin producing mechanism in the pancreas, thus producing diabetes. Cancer was introduced into these same mice by injection of highly infective Erlich's ascites mouse tumor

It was found that the rate of tumor growth during initial peridiabetic mice. As the tumor progressed and blood sugar was reduced, the tumor growth rate increased to that of nondiabetics. But in all cases the cancerous diabetic mice live longer than cancerous nondiabetic ones.

The relationship of high blood sugar and cancer is not understood.

Under-18 Age Group Reaches Record Total

NEW YORK-Children under 18 in the United States increased in number by more than a third during the ten years following World War II to reach a record of 55% million, a gain of more than 14 million over the 1954 figure.

The increase is by far the greatest in the country's history. For comparison, during the three decades of 1900 through 1930 the children at these ages increased by only 121/3 million.

This explanation is offered by statisticians:

"The situation reflects essentially a new outlook toward family life by our young people—the proportion married is at an all-time high, and they are marrying and starting families earlier.

The postwar upsurge in the number of children is concentrated very largely at ages under 10 years, a study of Bureau of the Census data shows, with the number at ages under 5 increasing by 41 per cent and at ages 5-9 by 58 per cent.

More Farmers Taking Nonfarm Employment

NEW YORK-More than 31/2 million farm residents, representing just under two out of five persons in the agricultural working population, were employed in a nonfarm job in April of this year, according to data made public jointly by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of the Census.

This is in keeping with a longterm trend, and reflects the increasing decentralization of industry combined with the big growth in the off-the-farm job opportunities in recent years.

Arctic Sea Bottom Holds Fantastic, Unusual Animals

WASHINGTON - Abundant and often fantastic are the animals of the shallow Arctic sea bottom. All are invertebrates-worms, sea anemones, and a host of othersmany of which spend their lives buried in the bottom mud. They are described in a Smithsonian Institution report by Prof. G. E. Mac Gintie, from his collections while principal investigator at the Navy's Arctic Research Laboratory at Point Barrow, Alaska.

Some of the creatures and their curious way of life:

A delicately peach-colored sea anemone, a bottom-dwelling animal, "when subjected to unfavorable conditions, such as overcrowding in a pan or jar of sea water, casts out through the mouth a translucent white inner lining. with translucent, stubby tentacles. This offspring was somewhat suggestive of a pickled onion. If conditions remained adverse, more offspring were cast off, each one smaller than its predecessor."

In other words, when in trauble the animal spits out babiespresumably an emergency measure for preservation of the species. Apparently the same thing happens in the sea.

Among the more abundant animals on the shallow bottom were nemerteans, or ribbon worms, notable for their ability to stretch the body to twice or more its normal length. There were also echiuroids, otherwise known as "spoonworms," or "sausageworms." They burrow very deeply in the mud and are seldom seen unless washed ashore in storms.

Slow Drivers May Be More Dangerous

LOS ANGELES - Slow drivers may be responsible for more accidents than fast drivers.

This has been suggested in a study made by the UCLA Institute of Transportation and Traffic-Engineering.

Two questionaires were submitted to 130 experienced drivers. Both contained items relating to individual speed habits and traffic situations involving speed. From answers to questions drivers were classified as slow, medium, or fast drivers. Official records of traffic citations and accidents of all subjects were later obtained from the California Department of Motor Vehicles. Thirty per cent of the slow drivers, 10 per cent of the medium drivers, and 23 per cent of the fast drivers had been involved in one or more accidents. This represents a total of 28 accident-involved individuals out of the group of 139. The statistical difference between slow and fast driver accidents is still within the limits of chance in this relatively small sample.

Jet Transports Will Carry Thousands

WASHINGTON-One of the new jet transport planes now under construction will be able to carry almost as many passengers across the Atlantic in one year as the new passenger liner SS United States.

This was reported by Milton W. Arnold, vice president for operations and engineering of the Air Transport Association, who pointed out that if one of the new jet airliners (which will cost more than $5 million each) were used for 450 crossings, it would be transporting 60,000 passengers per year, just a bit less than the SS United States did in 1955. The luxury steamship cost a total of $70 million four years ago.

Today's Teenagers Have Own Set of Problems

LOS ANGELES-"More of today's young people are concerned about getting rid of pimples than they are about going to hell," says a Purdue University professor.

He is Dr. Herman H. Remmers, eminent education psychologist and founder of the Purdue Opinion Panel which scientifically polls the nation's high school students on matters ranging from politics to teenage morals.

A recent questionaire sent to high schoolers across the nation asked them to put down what problems worried them most.

A problem of major concern to 53 per cent of the young people interviewed was keeping their minds on their studies. A close second was the concern expressed by 45 per cent of the students over whether or not they would be a success in life.

Idaho has had this type of tax two different times, and when put to a vote of the people, went down by tremendous majorities.

To us, it is one of the most unfair of taxes. It catches everyone, it is true, but particularly the average worker with a large family, who must pay 2 percent on everything he buys — and in all probability real taxes as well — while the well-to-do man with little or no family - will pay far less

Farmers, who are heavy real tax payers, would also pay 2 percent on everything they purchased, including farm machinery — which is now priced far above the comparative average of farm products. And let's not forget, it's a "large headache" for the businessman, who must collect the tax, pay and report to the state!

Some Things Known About Oddities of

NEW YORK-Out of what is frankly termed the "suprisingly limited knowledge" about the common cold, some facts emerge.

That Common Cold

Colds are more frequent among women than among men.

Children have more colds than adults. Furthermore, adults in families in which there are young children have more colds than those in families where there are only older children. The common cold is the leading cause of absenteeism reported among elementary school children, and this includes the little angels who accidentally come up with a cold on the day when a tough exam is scheduled.

The five-year period of 1951 through 1955 shows a seasonal pattern: a rise in the incidence of colds from a minimum in summer or early autumn to a peak in midwinter, followed by a rapid decline, to a level which approached the minimum by late spring.

The annual range from maximum to minimum incidence is wide and varies from one year to another. For example, in one year the highest monthly incidence rate was 11 times the lowest, and the next year the maximum was only twice the minimum.

These five-year data relate to the recorded experience of the Navy and Marine Corps, which just goes to show you that even such rugged characters as our sailors and marines are subject to mankind's common bane, even as you and I. A scries on college students showed that about one-fifth averaged more than two colds a year, with the over-all average three

Just a Second-But Getting Longer

WASHINGTON-The basic bit of time—a second—isn't what it used to be. Astronomers have given it a new length.

Exactly stated, a second is 1/31,556,925.97474th part of a year -a particular year that went by more than a half a century ago. The old familiar second was defined as 1/86,400th of a day, measured by timing the revolution of the earth. Most of the world's clocks will tick away these seclionths will henceforth work with

The trouble with the old humdrum second is that it won't stay the same length.

Day by day, world time is checked by observatories whose extremely accurate instruments mark how long it takes the earth to turn once on its axis. No clock or watch yet made can match the precision with which the planet revolves. Even so, the earth doesn't turn at an exact and changeless rate. Early in each year it spins more slowly than it does toward the end of the year. Its rate wobbles over longer periods, too-as much as 30 seconds in 200 years. And very gradually, the earth is slowing

Birds 'Hibernate' to Conserve Energies

LOS ANGELES - Hibernation by certain birds seems to be a mechanism for conserving energy. In research by University of California zoologists, it was learned that swifts and hummingbirds subjected to low temperatures went into torpor. Birds that had been denied food and had lost weight did so more easily. They aroused when warmed up, and swifts could arouse even at continued low temperatures. Swifts feed entirely on flying insects and must be able to survive long periods of unfavorable weather when few insects are in the air. the zoologists point out

One Ton Unit Doesn't Weigh That Full Ton

NEW YORK-People sometimes wonder why the cooling capacity of air conditioning is described in terms of "tons." The answer is that a one-ton unit does not weigh a ton but produces as much cool air as would be achieved by melting a ton of ice in a 24-hour period. The big move among home builders these days is to yearround air conditioning, the basis of which is gas heating in winter months and gas refrigeration in the warmer season.

In the latter operation a tiny, quite gas flame replaces the motive power of the electric cooling system.
