Tree Farming Plan Shows Money Can Grow With Timber

WASHINGTON—The Tree Farm movement started just 16 years ago is growing up.

From Montesano to Miami, from Kennebunk to California, landowners are waking up to the fact that money really grows on trees.

Interest in tree farming—the growing of timber as a crop—is best attested by the fact that to date 44 states participate in the voluntary, industry-operated American Tree Farm System of growing timber as a crop on tax-paying timberlands. The program enrolled more than 4 million acres during the past year.

Behind all this increasing fervor for good forestry lies the basic stimulant of good markets for wood products. Unless the farmer can sell his sawlogs, his pulpwood, his fence posts and his Christmas trees, he has little incentive to investigate the opportunities of good woodland management. For geographical reasons, there isn't always a local market for timber, but the overall market outlook around the country is bright. Already Americans use 5,129 articles made from wood—and the list is increasing.

In the United States today are some 4,461,274 "small" woodlot owners whose holdings are under 500 acres. They hold 61 per cent of the country's commercial forest land. Each year they take to market and sell $700 million worth of sawlogs, pulpwood, posts, turpentine, Christmas trees, maple syrup, and other forest products.

Because these small landowners control most of the nation's forestland, it is clear that increasing demands for wood open the door to greater opportunities for producing timber as a cash crop. The farmer who has paid little or no attention to his woodlot might well look into the advantages of forest management.

Science Evaluates True Weight of Arizona Meteor

WASHINGTON—The great shooting star that plunged to earth thousands of years ago and dug the famous Arizona Meteorite Crater weighed at least 12,000 tons (the size of an average house) and approached from a direction slightly south of west. Hitherto it has been estimated that the giant meteorite weighed between 10,000 and 10,000,000 tons, and that it crashed to earth from a point slightly west of north.

These most recent measures of weight and direction are based on an on-the-spot study by scientists headed by Dr. John S. Rinehart, who spent three months living in the Arizona Desert near the Crater while making the survey.

Direction of the meteorite's flight was determined by sampling earth over an 80-square-mile area for tiny fragments of the meteorite. These particles of metals were found distributed over a symmetrical swath running nearly west to east. Samples were taken every half mile in a square pattern, and sifted by screen and magnetic separator. Particles adhering to the magnet were all strongly magnetic and mainly in three categories: a meteoric iron particle, a meteoric iron-oxide bit, and a shiny particle probably volcanic.

From the area immediately surrounding the crater—which is 4,100 feet in diameter, and about 600 feet deep—the scientists sampled earth that contained a concentration of meteorite particles. The weight of these particles, taking into consideration the area over which they were collected, constituted the basis for estimating the 12,000-ton weight of the meteorite.

Nuclear World Ours in 20 Years

NEW BRUNSWICK—How soon will the applications of nuclear science become a vital factor in our economy?

Perhaps as soon as 20 years, according to Dr. Peter A. van der Meulen, Rutgers professor of chemistry.

He bases his prediction on the rapid advances in nuclear science since the neutron was recognized in 1932, and on atomic energy's already proven value in the field of medicine and as a source of energy for power.

What he is saying is that a new world is just around the corner, politics of the current world permitting. He envisions an era of better health, longer life, cheaper and cleaner fuel and power, and more leisure in which to enjoy more wonderful and improbable gadgets.

Industry representatives at a nuclear science symposium cited the need for more trained personnel—scientists, engineers, technicians, and administrators—to design, construct and operate atomic plants and devices, as well as a central facility for pooling specialized knowledge and stimulating new research in nuclear energy.

GOP Holds Steady Block of Voters

LOS ANGELES—Except in the "solid" South, the Republican Party has a more solid bloc of consistent voters to depend upon than does the Democratic Party.

This was indicated by a study of 13 presidential elections made by Dr. Jenniellen Wesley Ferguson.

Dr. Ferguson, now an assistant professor of government at Los Angeles State College, analyzed votes cast for President in elections from 1900 through 1948. From this data, she drew conclusions regarding behavior trends.

She found, for example, that major urban counties cannot be placed safely in either party column. Rather, these counties "swing" from one party column to the other, indicating that the major factor in a Presidential campaign is the urban vote.

Highest voter participation since 1900 has been in the Midwest and East, with the lowest in the South. On the other hand, voter participation has been rather stable in the South while it has declined in other areas.

City Dwellers Drive Farther for Their Fun

LOS ANGELES—City dwellers drive farther for social reasons than for shopping purposes, according to a study of metropolitan Los Angeles' contact patterns.

Most of the interviewees indicated they did their shopping within their own neighborhoods, but social contacts were some distance beyond. Some interviewees averaged as high as 16 miles a trip for social reasons.

"Neighborhoodness" seemed to be limited by the number and quality of cars in the family. Car ownership increased the radius of urban contacts. Those with two cars in the family had more commercial and social contacts outside the neighborhood than those with one car.

Three Out of Four College Grads Marry

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa.—Married alumnae of the Pennsylvania State University outnumber single alumnae by about three to one, according to a recent survey.

The survey covers 64 years, from 1890 until 1954 and includes replies from 4,708 alumnae. Questionnaires were sent to 7,000.

The 3,456 married graduates report a total of 5,037 children. Among the women graduates, 1,126 never married, 67 are widowed and 59 are divorced.

Standing Economy

WASHINGTON—Inauguration stands in the vicinity of the White House were built of wood. Proposals that steel stands be erected were turned down as too costly. Much of the cost of the wooden stands is recovered by resale of the lumber used.

Nation's Health Was Good During Year 1956

NEW YORK—Excellent health conditions prevailed among the American people in 1956, according to statisticians, who expect a continued favorable health record in 1957.

For 1946, the death rate in the United States is indicated as 9.3 per 1,000 population, or on a par with that for 1955. The year just ending is the ninth in succession to show a national death rate below 10 per 1,000 population.

Fashion Was Feasting

NEW YORK—More than 100 cooks used to be employed to prepare meals for as many as 10,000 people at the former Sultan's palace, now the Topkapı Museum, in Istanbul, Turkey. Palace records show that in one year more than 50,000 hens and 22,500 sheep were consumed.

The Boot that Leaves a Print of Safety

The logger's boot is an often talked about item. Its high build, heavy leather, strong heel and famous 'calk' nail are its marks of distinction. The man who wears this boot is more sure-footed and safer in the woods. It's the boot that leaves a print of safety, and at PFI safety is a resource.

Snake River Region Inhabited Over 1,000 Years Ago

WASHINGTON — Evidence suggesting human occupation in the Upper Hell's Canyon region on the Snake River over a period in excess of a thousand years was obtained during the recent field season by archeologists of a River Basins Survey party from the Smithsonian Institution.

Working in areas to be flooded by the Brownlee and Hell's Canyon reservoirs, the party made an interesting series of excavations in rock shelters, refuse deposits and village areas. Most of the material recovered came from four habitational sites, two on the Oregon side of the Snake at Robinette and two on the Idaho side at Big Bar. The majority of the artifacts found indicate that these sites date from the late prehistoric period and the early period of European contact, but at two of them were items coming from much earlier horizons.

The artifacts collected during the digging showed that the people had a basically hunting-gathering type of economy. They include large numbers of projectile points, knife blades, scrapers, and other stone tools. The implements were found in association with quantities of deer and elk bones, indicating marked dependence on the hunting of large game animals. The presence of milling stones show that there was some utilization of plant foods available in the area. Implements associated with fishing were for the most part lacking, but the abundance of fresh-water mussel shells in kitchen middens suggests that aquatic food had a place in their diet.

This Male Bird Is Real 'Boss'

WASHINGTON—A tough construction boss is the male oropendula, or giant oriole, Zarhynchus wagleri, whose "towns" of as many as 50 nests in a single tree are one of the striking sights on Barro Colorado island, in the Panama Canal Zone.

The actual nests, made of fragments of leaves and bark, are contained in pendant bags as much as a foot long woven from straws, plant roots, and strips of bark, and suspended from limbs.

The weaving of such a bag is laborious and is done exclusively by the females who work a 12-hour day, watched all the time by the males to make sure they do not shirk. During this nest-building the males appear first shortly after sunrise and summon the females out of the jungle with a series of explosive notes. They start work. The males do nothing but "boss the job."

The black-and-yellow laborers are allowed a rest period of about an hour at noon, but early in the afternoon work is resumed and continued unremittingly until about 5:30. Then all the birds return for the night to retreats in the jungle depths.

Atomic Heating Will Erase Smog, Soot

RICHLAND, Wash. — Within a few decades, factories, office buildings and other large structures may be heated atomically "without a speck of soot, an ounce of ash or a cubic foot of smog," a General Electric Company engineer predicts.

S. L. Nelson, manager of one of the processing operations at the Hanford atomic plant, says that successful use of reactor waste heat for Hanford buildings has shown that dirt-free atomic heating is technically feasible.

He pointed out, however, that success of his prediction depends on making atomic fuel available for heating purposes, design of a reactor specifically for low-energy heat production and over-all reductions in costs of building and operating reactors.

Early Greeks Paid for Young Voting Privilege

LOS ANGELES—Young people who think they should be allowed to vote might enjoy a comparison with early Athens.

Then, young men were given full citizenship and the right to vote at 19.

But the luxury of early manhood had its drawbacks — nineteen-year-olds had barely cast their ballots when they were inducted into the army for ten years of duty at frontier posts.

Still Big Problem
NEW YORK — Satisfaction over the saving of lives of tuberculosis patients is tempered by the realization that even today 400,000 persons in the United States alone are handicapped by tuberculosis, that another 50,000,000 or more are unwilling hosts to live tubercle bacilli, that tuberculosis is costing this country $600,000,000 a year, largely in tax dollars.

Self-Service Is Growing Giant of Retail Food Field

NEW YORK - Self-service retailing is rapidly becoming "a way of life." A decade ago this infant in the retail industry showed no more promise than any other crawling baby; but crawl he did, and fast, too.

Originally the popularity of self-service was attributed to the price saving factor. This may have been true in the infancy of self-service, but it certainly isn't the case today.

EASY shopping convenience than by any other retail factor. It's no coincidence that supermarkets out sell drug, variety, and department stores on non-food items like toothpaste, shampoos, etc., even though prices are identical.

Nowhere is this change more dramatically illustrated than in the buying of meat. Prior to conversion to self-service, the purchase of a roast involved practically a state of spiritual communion with the butcher.

While the use of massive advertising campaigns . . . in newspapers, magazines, television, radio, and outdoors in behalf of hundreds of famous consumer products . . . is intended to soften up the prospect, the decisive battle of the brands continues to be fought at the point of purchasing . . . in the retail store.

Another Crime Is Charged to Smog

LOS ANGELES—Smog, the bane of city folks around the world, has another indictment against it. It's tough on clothes.

This is indicated by research conducted at UCLA by textile chemist Rita Landry.

The home economics instructor reports that smog—the Los Angeles variety at least—makes fabrics lose their strength, causes dye colors to fade and sometimes changes the color of the fabric.

Miss Landry tested 17 different fabrics at two exposure stations—one located in a "heavy" smog area downtown, the other in a "light" smog area at the city's edge. Fabrics were also tested in an artificial smog chamber.

She found that there seems to be a definite relationship between smog's effect on clothing and the density of air pollution as measured by the Los Angeles County's Air Pollution Control District.

Good Eyesight Held Important to Driving

NEW YORK—Good eyesight is one of the most important factors in highway safety. In fact, it has been estimated that 90 per cent of all the driver's decisions are based on his ability to see.

A person with faulty, uncorrected vision is accordingly a poor risk at the wheel of a car.

Other factors enter into the picture, of course. During 1955, a grim total of 37,800 highway deaths occurred in the United States, nearly smashing the all-time record. The number of boys and girls under 25 years involved in fatal accidents did reach a new high, amounting to more than 27 per cent of the total implicated in such accidents.

Relax Rules on Taking Alaska's Huge Walrus

WASHINGTON - Alaska's walrus, long a mainstay of the hard-pressed Eskimo economy, is expected to be still more helpful in the future.

Until Congress passed a bill last year, walrus hunting was restricted to natives, miners, and explorers who actually needed food and clothing.

The new bill provides for limited hunting by non-natives and the export of hides, giving Eskimo guides a larger cash income, an outlet for the skins, and more food for local use.

Big Power Users WASHINGTON - Statistics reveal that 20 manufacturing industries use nearly half of all the electric power generated in the United States and that almost 49,000,000 tons of coal are required annually to produce the power demanded by the three leading industries—primary metals, chemical companies and stone, clay and glass products.

HELLO, FOLKS:

During the first part of this week most of us began to get a touch of spring fever — but it's just a little too early to allow that fuel oil tank to get too low for, a fire is necessary at least during the mornings and evenings — and quite frequently all day. So pick up your phone and call us at 1251. Say "fill 'er up," and we'll do just that, using Union Burner Oils. The oil for quick, clean heat.

Woman's Club speaker: "And ladies, don't turn away the wanderer seeking food at your door. It's only then that wives will know what a relief it is to see a man eat a meal without finding fault with the food."

Bring in your car, truck or pickup and let us drain that winter-worn oil from the crankcase and fill it with that wonderful Royal Triton. You'll get away from the "g-u-r-r-r" and enjoy the p-u-r-r of a sweet running motor again.

Driving up to the house to deliver the family's seventh baby, the doctor almost ran over a duck. "Is that your duck out there?" he asked. "It's ours, but it ain't no duck," replied the man of the house. "It's a stork with his legs wore down!"

Need tires? Come in and let us figure with you. You'll find you can own new ones cheaper than you ever thought possible.

Wife: "I don't know whether to go to a palmist or a mind reader." Husband: "Go to the palmist. It is obvious that you have a palm."

Just Sit There

Up in Pittsburgh the traffic department has decided that it's not drunken drivers who cause most of the trouble, but drunken walkers reeling off the curbs and generally getting in the motorists' way. The menace of potted pedestrians is getting worse, says Traffic Commissioner T. T. Wiley and "no relief in sight."

This seems to dictate a revision of the old temperance injunction which should now read: "If you drink, don't drive and for heaven's sake don't walk. Just sit there." — Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.
