EARLY FISHING

For the follower of the sport of Isaac Walton, relief from the "desire to wet a line" and "spring fever" will come a bit earlier than usual, according to Hale Ebling, local game warden. He informs us that:

Robinson Lake, near Moscow, will open to fishing May 1. There is a 10-fish limit, with no more than 10 in possession, however.

Elk Creek Reservoir, near Elk River, opens to fishing May 1. Here also the 10-fish limit applies. The creek above and below the reservoir remains closed until the regular fishing season, June 4.

He suggests that all piscatorial artists pick up a copy of the new fishing regulations before taking off.

EVEN BREAK?

A story in a large eastern paper says that while there are many jobs awaiting the college graduate, this year's students may not receive quite the same high salary offers as have been made by corporations during the past few years. . . . That could be very humiliating — a young man having to start out on less money than his father is making.

HOME GARDENERS REAP BENEFITS

Moscow — Home gardeners reap many benefits. The extra flavor of fruit and vegetables grown in your own garden make up for the work involved. Families that garden are happy in the working together and benefit from the fresh air, sunshine and exercise. Here are some hints from your County Agent's office on how to reap more with less effort from your home garden.

1. Take frequent rests and ease into the work.
2. Space projects over a number of week-end — no last one.
3. Keep tools sharp and in good repair.
4. If more than one person is working in a small area, be extra careful of how you swing your tools and where you step.
5. When putting tools down, place them where they can't be tripped over, and turn the points and edges down.

6. At the end of the day, clean tools and store in shed, garage or basement. Have racks or hooks on which to hang them.

7. When lifting heavy objects, get help if the load seems to heavy for you.

8. When pruning branches, never get your head below your work. Falling twigs and flying bark may injure your eyes.

9. Wear loose (but not floppy) clothes, thick-soled, low-heeled shoes and work gloves. If the sun is bright, wear a hat.

10. Avoid the bad habit of chewing on a leaf or stalk. There are more than 100 common plants which are poisonous.

11. Exercise special care when handling, mixing or applying poisonous insecticides or plant foods. Wash hands and exposed parts of body after working with them. When through, put them away where children can not possibly get to them.

Some planning tips to make better use of space and time:

Locate perennial crops such as asparagus, strawberries and rhubarb at one side of the garden.

Keep tall-growing crops, like corn, away from small crops — beets and carrots — to avoid shading.

Provide for a succession of crops, a fall garden, and over-wintered crops to mature early in the spring.

Group together early-planted, fast-growing, quick-maturing crops such as radishes, lettuce, early cabbage and scallions.

Provide plenty of vegetables for canning, freezing and storing. Some varieties are especially good in each category.

Do not over-plant vegetables the family does not like, or too much of any one vegetable at one time.

Make sure the plan provides the best spacing between rows for the method of cultivation to be used.

NEW SUIT FOR IDAHO SPUDS

U. of I., Moscow — The famous Idaho baking potato may go to market in a new suit before too many spud harvests have passed.
"We're discovering some strange things about those who retail and those who buy our potatoes," says Robert Wilcox, agricultural economist for the University of Idaho. "We find retailers who will no longer handle potatoes in bulk, but insist that they be in small containers ready for the consumer. And the consumer is now buying her spuds either in ten-pound bags, small trays the size of the common tomato tray-pack, or one at a time and foil-wrapped, ready for the oven."
Sold in trays or singly, the per-pound price of the tubers has little to do with the consumer's decision to buy or not to buy, Wilcox says.

KANYON KLUB

The Kendrick Canyon Klub will meet on Wednesday, April 13, at 1:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Oral Craig. Mrs. Lester Wallace will be the co-hostess.

Thus a tray of eight tubers, weighing eight ounces each, may bring a price of 33c or approximately eight cents per pound, $8.00 per hundred weight. The price of the single "baker" in its foil jacket and ready for the oven, might well sell at 10c to 15c a pound.
Tubers marketed this way are usually known as "fancy pack" and weigh from 6 to 12 ounces each. Carefully grown and harvested, they are in demand by retailers and consumers all over the nation.

The trouble about the people who think they know it all — is that there are so many of them!

Roll call will be an exchange of plants, flower seeds or bulbs.
The program will be "Pillow Top" making.
Everyone who wants to make a pillow is to bring one yard and one inch of corduroy or other suitable material, scissors, needles, yardstick and foot-ruler. All women who are interested in pillow making are cordially invited to attend.

A WISER MAN

Conscious as we are that age is not the sole prerequisite to wisdom, we're about ready to concede that it's often a factor. Consider, for example, the case of Fred Paulson, a New Jersey traveling salesman.
Paulson is 87. For 50 years he has been cruising the highways in the daily pursuit of his trade. Never had an accident. The other day, Paulson informed the Motor Vehicle Bureau he's decided not to renew his operator's license.
Reason? "Too many crazy drivers!"

UNUSUAL BIRTHS

U. of I., Moscow — The double-barrelled conception and delivery of 18 little pigs in a delayed-action birth to a University of Idaho Yorkshire sow has added a side-light to swine research.

Three weeks ago the sow delivered nine healthy little pigs right on schedule. Mother and pigs were doing fine.

When swine herdsman Herb Holmes was told by his assistant, Jerry Kasper, that the same sow acted as if she was ready to deliver again, he thought the pig might possibly be in the wrong pen.

Holmes checked the ear notches for identification, and, sure enough, it was the same sow. That night she delivered nine more little pigs.

"The case is rare, but not unique," said Holmes. "Usually the little pigs are sickly, but these are quite healthy."

Special measures are being taken to care for the litter. To help nature along, the swine herdsman called a doctor for a baby formula, and has put the nine smallest pigs on bottle feeding.

DIFFERENT VIEW

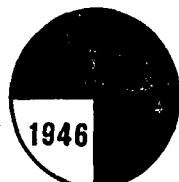

For many years a wealthy rancher employed a Chinese cook. After an unusually good dinner the rancher decided to raise his wages. The next day the cook noticed extra money in his pay envelope.

"Why you pay me more?" he inquired.
The boss replied: "Because, Ming, you've been such a good cook all these years."

The cook thought deeply for a moment, then rejoined: "You been cheating me long time, eh?"

Let us get your car ready for that week-end trip. Bring it in for an oil change, a grease job. The cost is low — results high in satisfaction. Remember, squeaks can be most annoying. We eliminate them!

"Why, Frank dear," she said, "I thought you told me you'd face death for me!"
"I would," he replied, "but that bull isn't dead!"

Always travel "Union".
